And Judy LaMarsh, the sharp-tongued little lady who dips in all the Commons, could carve up the Prime Minister, was selected to slice a few painful strips off the Thompson hide.

This she proceeded skillfully to do.

But Mr. Thompson, listening politely, only nodded pleasantly and smiled.

This obviously was a challenge, and Judy, rising to the occasion, literally flayed him alive.

And when she was all done, what did he do?

"I was rather surprised," she related, still a bit bemused, "when he rose from his seat, waved in the Commissionaire, came walking down the Centre Aisle towards me from the far end of the House.

"He was smiling, and I guess perhaps I was disarmed.

"He took me by the hand, and in a most pleasant voice, proceeded to congratulate me.

"It was quite obvious that he was halfway back to the other end of the Commons that it suddenly struck me what he had said.

"Standing there, smiling as if he had been immensely pleased with what I had been saying about him, he shook my hand and congratulated me on what he called 'a magnificent performance' — a magnificent performance of the most outrageous hypocrisy."

This was the first time that anybody in the Commons had ever been one up on Judy, a gal who specializes in the fine art of "one-upmanship."

Oct. 16, 1962 . . .

The RCMP Arctic patrol vessel St. Roch reached Vancouver after an 86-day voyage from Halifax 18 years ago today—in 1944—to become the only vessel to make the trip via the Northwest Passage in both directions. She left Vancouver June 23, 1940, reached Halifax Oct. 11, 1942, after spending two winters in the Arctic because of unusually severe ice conditions.

1716—Port Royal in Nova Scotia was captured from the French by British troops and named Annapolis in honor of the reigning queen.

Monroe Creed Ideal for K

Kansas City Star.

Now that many politicians and several wits in the country pundits have staked the United States case against Cuba on the Monroe Doctrine, it would better hasten to keep the record straight.

We haven't the slightest doubt that Nikita Khrushchev would be extremely happy to settle for the kind of world military arrangement that is practiced in the Western Doctrine.

It would require the Russians to forget Castro, who has only a dubious value for them. It would require the United States to withdraw missiles, bombers and missile-carrying submarines from the perimeter of the communist world in Europe and Asia. For the defence of the non-communist world the United States has immense bases and China with the greatest destructive power in its nuclear age.

Such an involvement in a world struggle was completely inconceivable in 1823. Keeping out of European quarrels was a major part of what appeared to be the United States foreign policy. George Washington had warned the country against foreign entanglements. John Adams and Thomas Jefferson had reiterated the policy.

In 1823 President James Monroe had a sound case for telling other nations to keep their colonizing out of the Western Hemisphere. He commanded no more of them than the non-interventionist policy that the United States accepted for itself.

How neat and simple it was the American world of 1823!

The Monroe Doctrine reflected the fundamental isolationing of the old principle of spheres of influence. Joseph Stalin is reported to have privately advanced this means of settling the fates of the postwar world. He would have given the United States influence over the Western Hemisphere and taken the rest for himself. In fact, the same idea is advocated by isolationist American politicians.

For reasons that should be apparent, the United States cannot become a party to any division of the world. The United States provides the backbone of the defenses that stand in the way of a communist sweep across Europe, Asia and Africa. If we left the communists fall to communism there would be no security in our own hemisphere.

Nikita Khrushchev could well afford to accept the principles implicit in the Monroe Doctrine to get American power out of Europe and Asia. It would be the ultimate catastrophe for the non-communist peoples.

Meaningful Words

Prince Philip has been criticized by the Tripe Dressers of Britain for saying the name of this fine old food in a derogatory sense, to mean something of little value. Our language is going to lose a good deal of its color if there is equal sensitivity among the makers of applesauce, the growers of corn, tomatoes and mashed potatoes, and the breeders of bulls.

Ectopic Pregnancy Often Requires Surgery

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain an ectopic pregnancy.

A. R.

An ovum is fertilized in one or the other of the very small Fallopian tubes. After that it progresses along into the uterus or anyway it should.

The ovum then attaches itself to the wall of the uterus, grows, presently separates - except for connection via the placenta - and develops into the baby-to-be-made, safely enclosed in the protective sac.

The uterus, being a most sophisticated sort of tissue, grows at a corresponding rate, so there is plenty of room.

Now suppose something prevents the ovum from making its natural journey through the Fallopian tube into the uterus. The stoppage could be from infection and swelling, or from scar tissue in the tube, or from some less common defect.

If that happens, the ovum still seeks to grow, but inside the Fallopian tube it has very limited space. Further, the tube, unlike the uterus, is not able to expand very much. Even if the tube can't expand; the ovum must grow to a large maturity, time, by which I mean a modest-sized baby, small part of the usual nine-month term, something has to give. Usually it is rupture of the tube.

There is great pain associated with this, obviously, and something has to be done immediately: Surgical removal of the trapped baby, and usually removal of the tube.

The whole thing happens early in pregnancy, usually, so I'll sign at all in the beginning. There may not even be any positive sign that a pregnancy has begun, except for a single missed period.

The missed period signals the beginning of pregnancy, and other symptoms then indicate the stoppage, or "ectopic" pregnancy. The "tubal pregnancy," as it is also known.

Nothing can be done except to operate and remove the damaged tissue. You cannot possibly "save the baby."

It is not a rare condition, as abnormalities go. I wouldn't want anyone to worry about this condition, since normal pregnancies are the rule and the abnormalities the exception.

But it's a period of mood, and presently severe abdominal pain begins (lower abdomen), and the doctor is called in a hurry sort of thing, as you can see, is no casual "missed period" or "cramp." It is serious, and the sooner it is diagnosed and treated surgically, the less chance there is of danger.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does pentothal sodium, when used as an anesthetic, have any after-effects, long-term or immediate?

Mrs. A. R.

It is eliminated rapidly by the body, and has no long-term effects when used in the amounts required for anesthesia in all the white faces shown there. You might suppose that all members of one very large family.

Well, they are. They are members of the family of Nazis and fanatics. And I suppose if we had occasion to bring all our own legal bigots and fanatics together, they would all bear a curious facial and physical resemblance to one another. There may be a physiological basis for bigotry. Whether there is or not, bigotry imparts to the human countenance a thin, stretched, jackal-like expression that must have been known to the martyrs from time immemorial.

Puritan Ontario

Montreal Le Matin

We do not want to attach more importance than is necessary to the views of Protestant ministers who are worried about Catholic infiltration in our country, but we cannot pass over in silence their bad faith and their ignorance.

Unless we are making a mistake, the Catholics in that puritan province called Ontario have formed a party in favor of justice and if they have, they have paid dearly for it. In recent years, they have tried in vain to describe the Province of Quebec as a centre of fascism intimidation and what-have-you. Canadian newspapers have shown a mischievous interest in bringing to notice anything that might tarnish Quebec. We have been treated at each new and cry raised against our 'stupidity' and also against the 'priest-ridden' province, Maurice Duplessis.

But we might ask it, that time, anybody heard that man utter another word in bad faith against our separated brethren? Was there ever the least illmannered allusion to Protestants? Have they not always had respect for those of the Catholic majority?

It is ourselves of French origin, who express assuredly the 'fair play' in which the Anglo-Saxons take so much pride Perhaps we express it to a greater extent than they do.

Ectopic Pregnancy Often Requires Surgery

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is a B.M.R. test?

Mrs. A. R

A "basal metabolism reading" meaning the rate at which your metabolism your food, or turn it into energy. And the rate at which you do so is apportionately parallel to the rate at which you use up oxygen, the test is performed by having you breathe through a tube from a tank of oxygen. The amount used is calculated with age, weight and body surface area, giving an index of how rapidly the metabolism.

The thyroid gland dominates metabolism. The test is in effect an index of whether the thyroid is normal, overactive or underactive.

The PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

All white Southerners do not look alike. Having travelled fairly widely in the Carolinas Arkansas, Mississippi and Georgia, I am able to state positively that there is as much variety in the appearance of the men, women and children down there as there is at home here. It is only on the newsreels and TV, when we see a dozen bunched together around negro students trying to enroll, pathetically inarticulate or lining the streets to hurl imprecations at little negro children, that we get the false impression that all Southerners look alike.

There is a fantastic resemblance in all the white faces shown there. You might suppose that all members of one very large family.

Well, they are. They are members of the family of Nazis and fanatics. And I suppose if we had occasion to bring all our own legal bigots and fanatics together, they would all bear a curious facial and physical resemblance to one another. Given Suspended Sentence on Theft Charge

A Belleville youth, George Allan Zachariah, was given a one-year suspended sentence by magistrate T. Y. Wills in city court here this morning when he pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a bicycle owned by a seven-year-old Belleville girl, Karen Brown, of 86 Pringle Drive.

The accused appeared in court last week at which time he pleaded to the charge and evidence was heard. He was remanded until today for sentence.

When he appeared before the magistrate last week, Magistrate Wills asked the accused what sentence had been given him the previous week in Picton on a similar charge, the accused replied, "I don't remember."

nored by democratic Canadians and we will not allow the board to.

"We are well aware that the long delay in arriving at this decision was sought by the board in order to allow the stink surrounding the public exposure of forgeries to subside.

"We are also aware that the release of their split decision at this time is deliberately intended to influence the outcome of our local union elections scheduled in Sudbury for Oct. 24."

BEFORE COURTS

The certification vote in the inter-union battle was held Feb. 27-March 2, but the vote was not finally tallied until June 12, after the Labor Relations Board had rejected Mine-Mill objections. Mine-Mill has an application before the courts to invalidate the vote on the grounds it should have not taken place in the first place.

The union holds that the validity of membership cards submitted by Steel is questionable because fraud was disclosed in some membership cards in Steel's application for bargaining rights at Falconbridge Nickel Mines.

In an earlier decision the Labor Relations Board held that Mine - Mill had not submitted any evidence warranted a new look at Steel application cards in the Inco dispute.

Steel won certification by just 15 votes, with 7,182 supporting ballots from the 14,618 eligible Inco employees.

Before making its decision the board considered two objections by Mine-Mill: That Steel had violated a 72-hour ban on propaganda preceding the vote and that 70 ballots did not bear the signature of the returning officer.

New Waterworks System At Marmora Opened by Reeve, Other Dignitaries

Marmora's new $214,000 waterworks system in use now for several months was officially opened yesterday as village residents, children and municipal officials looked on.

The official opening of the system, built by the Ontario Water Resources Commission, was held on the Earl Prentice Public School grounds.

Reeve William Shannon paid tribute to the council members who, he said had done much of the preliminary spade work in making the waterworks system a reality.

He said that although the $214,000 expenditure for the system did not appear to be a large amount in the light of municipal expenditure today, it did however represent a large amount of money for village residents.

"The amount compared with a $10,000,000 expenditure for a centre the size of Peterborough", he said.

Dr. D. S. Caverly, assistant general manager of the O.W.R.C. said his department put considerable stress on opening ceremonies as they provided the opportunity of residents to see what they were paying for.

MANY SPEAKERS HEARD

Also heard at the opening ceremonies were W. E. Sandercock, MPP for Hastings West, J. H. H. Root, OWRC commissioner and MPP for Wellington-Dufferin, Keith Brown MPP for Peterborough, Hastings county, Harold Varty, Marmora medical health officer, Dr. H. G. Parkin and Marmora township Reeve J. Wilkes.

Mr. Edward McNamara of Marmora acted as chairman for the ceremony held on the school ground almost in the shadow of the half million gallon capacity water system storage tank high on the promontory above the Crowe River. Rev. M. McCleod pronounced the invocation while the benediction was said by Rev. W. P. Healy.

GUARD OF HONOR

Ceremonies chairman Mr. McNamara stated that since the original part of the water system was put into operation approval had come through for installation of service to the Marmoraton Mines housing area on the west side of the river. Eventually water would be extended to the entire west hill area he said.

Following the ribbon cutting ceremony residents were invited to visit the water system pump house on the east bank of the Crowe River.

The Marmora system pumping station has a capacity of 675 gallons per minute with water being pumped from the Crowe River.

After filtration through a diatomsceous earth filter the water is chlorinated through an automatic chlorinating machine and then elevated into the hilltop storage tank from which it flows by gravity through the entire system.

Trained Company of Belleville built the water treatment plant with mains and appurtenances being installed by Tathams and by Armstrong Brothers of Brampton. Horton Steel Works Ltd. constructed the steel storage tank.

Survival Individual Matter Col. Duffy Tells Rotarians

"Survival is an individual matter," according to Lt. Col. Angus Duffy, Quinte Emergency Measures Organization Co-ordinator and that there's nothing the government can do about helping individuals. "The government can take measures to ensure its own survival," he added, "but the survival of the nation depends on the survival of the individuals."

Speaking yesterday at the Belleville Rotary Club's meeting in the Hotel Quinte Col. Duffy emphasized that the QEMO is not a high pressure organization and that co-operation on the part of individuals is purely voluntary. He made it clear, however, that only those individuals who had co-operated to the extend of ensuring their own survival could reasonably expect to survive a nuclear war.

But to assure the smooth operation of the community QEMO will need help. The area must be ready to accept foot evacuees from metropolitan centres for every resident in the area, and an estimated 260 reception and welfare workers will be required to feed, clothe and house them. The hospitals will be hit by more than the four to one load on the rest of the area, because of the casualties, and the normal facilities will be hopelessly inadequate. Because of this, QEMO is now sponsoring first aid training given by the St. John Ambulance Brigade, in Belleville, and is planning a home nursing course for the near future.

TRAINING OTHERS

Auxiliary police officers and firemen will also be trained, as soon as possible, to assist the regular forces in time of emergency. This program is especially important because the municipal forces may be withdrawn and assigned to a disaster area, in time of emergency.

Belleville is now better prepared than ever before, according to Col. Duff, but the present state of affairs is not yet good enough. More of almost everything is needed, and in case of attack, and winter, the time for which an enemy might be expected to plan an attack, is approaching. "But," Col. Duffy said "no enemy will launch an attack if there is any reason to believe we will survive."

Rotarian Jack Ireland introduced Col Duffy to the club, and Ron Cass extended the club's thanks to him for the speech.

OWEN SOUND (CP) — The coast guard ship Montmagny was christened here Monday by Mrs. Percy Noble, wife of Percy Noble, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Grey North. The 146-foot ship will go into service on the St. Lawrence Seaway for the department of transport.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harry Hewton are shown signing the register following their marriage in St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling. The Rev. F. F. Downing performed the ceremony before a full choir was in attendance with Miss Helen Morrow presiding at the organ.

Given in marriage by her godfather, Mr. Harry Morrow, the bride was charming in a street-length dress of white nylon peau de soie, fashioned with plain bodice, softly draped bouffant skirt and lily-point sleeves. Her finger - tip veil fell from a tiara of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and white stars of Bethlehem.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Ronald Woodcock, as matron of honor, and Misses Gwen Coombes, a sister, and Beryl Slatter, as bridesmaids. They were similarly attired in autumn - green peau de soie with matching green satin and net wedding-ring hats. They carried bouquets of mums and Shasta daisies.

Mr. Ronald Woodcock was groomsman and the ushers were Messrs. Angus Cameron and Maurice Faulkner.

The reception was held in St. John's Parish Hall.

The bride's mother was attired in moss-green, with brown accessories and a corsage of yellow 'mums. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother in a foam green brocade with beige accessories and yellow roses, and the bride's godmother, Mrs. H. Morrow, who wore navy blue with dusty-pink accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

The young couple will reside in Belleville.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was guest of honor at showers given by Miss Ann Sprague, Trenton; Miss Linda Anne Morrow, River Valley, and by Mrs. Barbara Woodbeck, at Oak Lake.

'Program Problem' Is Topic At Leadership Training Course

Programming Problems? Try this formula. Decide on a goal or theme, study methods of presentation and pick the one most effective, then publish.

This was the suggestion offered to those gathered on the 3rd night of the Leadership Training Course sponsored by Belleville and District Council and School Council. This evening "Programming" was the subject for discussion. In two separate sessions the formula was enlarged on and discussed.

Mrs. A. R. Gariepy, vice-president area "C" of Ontario Federation Home and School from Peterborough led the first session in which Mrs. Gariepy pointed out the importance of a program committee.

A role play titled, "Who is on the program committee ", "the cast" being picked from the audience. After discussion groups formed to find merits, and pitfalls of the role play.

The value of having evaluations at an association's meeting was pointed out by Mrs. A. J. Fort, chairman of the evening. Later, Mrs. Gariepy outlined a basic guide for program planners and introduced the new course on "Family Life" as set up by Ontario Federation for the use of Association in programs. The course is titled "Meet Your School Age Child."

Accompanying Mrs. Gariepy were two enthusiastic and active Home and School workers also from Peterborough, namely, Mrs. W. R. Phillips, membership chairman for Ontario Federation Home and School, and Mrs. L. S. Roper, past Secondary School chairman for Ontario Federation and presently secretary - treasurer of area "C" Committee. These ladies through their enthusiasm were able to add greatly to the program and pass on to the audience some helpful ideas.

For all who attended, why or why not all the three nights of this course, there was a wealth of information both oral, and written for their benefit and subsequently to their associations.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Prest are pictured following their recent marriage in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Mary Catharine Embury, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Embury of Belleville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Prest, of Halloway, Ontario.

PREST — EMBURY

White chrysanthemums adorned the altar, and white satin bows the guest pews in the church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, for a recent lovely double-ring ten o'clock wedding when the Rev. Peter Murphy united in marriage Mary Catharine Embury of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Embury, to Elmer Prest, of Halloway, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Prest.

Miss Dorothy Grant provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Robert Burke, in his rendition "Ave Maria", "Panis Angelicus," and "The Wedding Prayer".

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ronald Embury of Belleville, the bride was charming in her full-length bridal gown of nylon net over taffeta featuring a fitted bodice of Chantilly lace with embossed embroidery accenting the neck line. The long sheath-like sleeves ended in lily-points over the wrists. The bouffant skirt of nylon net over taffeta was embellished with design on each lace tier, matching that of the neckline. She wore a tiara encircling the waist-length veil edged with seed pearls and carried a cascade bouquet of red Sweetheart roses with flowing ivy-knotted streamers.

Miss Patricia Fitzgerald, of Belleville, was maid of honor and Miss Margaret Babcock of Belleville, was brides maid. The maid of honor wore a waist-length gown of blue nylon chiffon over taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodice having a scalloped neckline and long sleeves. Her headdress was a white pillbox type with veil; white accessories and gloves and she carried a bouquet of yellow Shasta daisies, and ivy streamers; flowing from the bouquet to the bouquet.

The bridesmaid's gown was identically but in yellow, with matching hat, and accessories and carried a bouquet of blue Shasta daisies.

The little flower girl, Miss Sharon Lummiss, of Belleville was demure in her pretty two-tier frock of white nylon brocade over taffeta, with bandeau of blue and white baby 'mums and carrying a basket of blue and white Shasta daisies.

Mr. Harold Prest of Halloway attended his brother as groomsman, while Mr. James Semark of Belleville, uncle of the bride ushered the guests.

The reception was held at the Charles Street home of the bride, where a buffet luncheon was served and prepared by Misses Gladys Fitzgerald and Margaret Winkle, both of Belleville.

The bride's-table was appointed with white damask linen and centred by a two tier wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and bride groom. The bridal bouquet; completing the pretty nuptial setting.

The guests from Stirling; Hallowayl Prestwood; Roslin; Rochester, N.Y.; Shannonville; Carrying Place; Ivanhoe and Belleville, were received by the bride's mother and the mother of the bridegroom, the former in a brown linen sheath accented at the waistline with a wide belt. She wore a blue velvet hat, brown accessories and corsage of white camelias and the latter in a two-piece flowered silk and crepe ensemble in street-length, with black accessories and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

For the honeymoon to the United States, including Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto, the bride travelled in a turquoise dress with matching jacket with three-quarter sleeves, black satin hat and gloves, black accessories and corsage of white 'mums.

Mr. and Mrs. Prest are residing at 119 West Bridge Street, Apartment 1, Belleville.

Prior to the marriage, the bride was the honored guest at two miscellaneous showers, one given by the girls at the home of Mrs. Babcock, with Miss Margaret Babcock, as hostess and Miss Joan Wilson as co-hostess. The bridegroom was also honored at a presentation given by the employees of the workers at Stirling Motors, and the bride presented with an electric tea kettle and by the workers of the Bank of Nova Scotia, as well as by a community shower for the people when they were present with a T.V. rocker and has sock embroidered in yellow roses.

Last evening at Queen Alexandra School, the Women's Canadian Club was thrilled as Major-General Victor Odlum, of many honors, the chief one being V.C., told of his many wide travels and his meeting with the peoples of distant lands; of his searching of humanity; of his library of ten thousand volumes, which, though they were great on history, were weak on humanity.

"Friendship," said the General, "is the greatest thing in life. Always take a smile with you and it will open all doors for you." This he found to be a fact in Africa, in Australia, and in other countries he visited, adding that a smile always brings a smile in return."

The General, who was born in Cobourg, Ontario, has a great pool in his heart for Ontario, with its fine city, Toronto, which is leading the way in progress. He considers Ontario the heart of Canada."

Briefly he told of being a member of the Canadian Club at Vancouver, which in over 50 years of age. Canadian Clubs are not noisy; they do not deal in propaganda, but are a very quiet thinking and study. They study their influence among many people. He told a history of the Canadian Club numerically as to members, but rather to have them study conditions, and think things through.

OUTSTANDING MEMBERS

In this connection he mentioned three men, Arthur Meighan, Arthur Meighan and the great speaker, Leonard Brockington, who had been members of the Canadian Club and had added much to its life, and the two distinguished men, Vincent Massey and General Vanier, who have added their quota.

General Odlum has been in 68 countries, all of which regard Canada as a wonderful country. It is rich in resources of coal; timber; ore; fish; climate; and has a people who have the 'know-how'. It is not aggressive, or a danger to others. It has great friends throughout the world; the United States, at the south, would defend Canada in order to defent themselves; they speak the same language; read each others papers, as does the British Isles, which also look to Canada it times of stress.

He also thought that Canada should have a flag which would represent the history of the Country.

WORLD PEOPLES

He mentioned different peoples of the world; the Arabs who have a boundless imagination; China with its 700,000,000 whom no human being can know as its people are beyond any one's mental grasp. Almost any story can be true somewhere, there.

NOT ALL CHINA HUNGRY

Many places in China have amply and those white others not over 50 miles distant may be in want. This is because it is too difficult to transfer food over the mountains. He also found the Japanese a kindly people, who also live on little per day as do the Chinese. The Chinese say the western world is gluttonr , they cannot eat like the Chinese and the west cannot eat and live like the Chinese.

The most important thing in the human being is not what he is. He is most interesting as a human being when he responds to your smile. Every race has its good and bad "nuts", concluded the speaker.

The General was introduced by the president of the Club, Mrs. J. H. Forrester, and thanks on behalf of the audience, was extended by Mrs. Andrew Davis, to which Mrs. Forrester added her appreciation.

Tea was served following the close of the meeting.

St. Julien Chapter Picks $100 Bursary, $25 Grant Winners

St. Julien Chapter, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, was held at the home of Mrs. R. C. Ellis, Cliff Crescent.

Members were reminded of the district tea and dinner, and of the semi-annual meeting to be held in Peterborough.

Presentation of Nicholson College, was awarded the $100.00 bursary (Grade 13).

Winners to $25.00 grants to grade 12 students of New Canadian parents, and who have the highest standing in progress in English during the year, were: Miss Darko Medved of Nicholson College; Rita Demczyna, of Quinte Secondary School and Joseph of Moira Secondary and Donald Wilson of Belleville Collegiate Institute.

Business of the evening being settled, a social hour was passed to welcome Col. Angus Duffy as guest speaker, representing the Quinte Regional Arts Resources Organization. Col. Duffy is coordinator of the Quinte area.

Col. Duffy stated that as E. M. O. is set up to take care of people in time of emergency or disaster; that the chapter had not experienced any such stress but would be prepared in case of need. The organization has two basic divisions, which the speaker analyzed fully — these are clothing, housing, feeding, emergency and enquiry, personal services.

These would be manned by Daughters and other volunteer help. All organizations in the city and surrounding area would be called for assistance. Lectures will commence in November.

An appreciative vote of thanks was tendered Col. Duffy by Mrs. J. R. Reynolds.

QUESTION:

Have you a recipe for flour scones like you buy in bake shops? They are very light in texture and triangular-shaped . . . Mrs. A. W. L.

ANSWER:

SCONES:

2 cups sifted cake-flour, 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder, ¾ teaspoon salt, 5 tablespoons sugar, 5 tablespoons shortening, 2 egg yolks, 1-3 cup light cream, slightly beaten egg white, 1 tablespoon sugar or mixture of sugar and cinnamon.

Measure sifted flour, add baking powder, salt and sugar, and sift again. Cut in shortening with pastry blender. Beat egg yolks well and add cream, add to flour mixture and stir until soft dough is formed (20 strokes). Turn out on lightly floured board and knead 20 turns only. Divide dough into thirds. Pat or roll each into circle, ¼" thick, and cut in quarters. Place quarters on ungreased baking sheet. Brush tops lightly with egg white; sprinkle with sugar or mixture of sugar and cinnamon. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 12 minutes, or until browned. Makes 12 large scones.

QUESTION:

Thank you for your prompt reply to my latest request for date cookies and butter tarts. However the date cookies are not quite what I was looking for. I want date drop cookies looking very much like chocolate chip cookies. I have another problem. After several years of trying to make flaky pie crust, I have finally given up and am now buying the ready-mix kind which gets to be quite expensive in the long run. Would you please give me your version, explaining step by step the method that you use and then I might notice what I do wrong. I am giving you my family's favorite recipe for chili con carne which calls for pork and beans instead of kidney beans. This has been an old standby for several years and this can be served for any occasion — at mealtime with a salad, for parties or picnics.

CHILI CON CARNE (courtesy Mrs. R. McK.):

2 or 3 lbs. lean hamburg (make half portion in meat balls, balance to be cooked loosely), 2 cans tomato soup, 2 cans mushroom soup, 1 20-oz. can pork and beans, onion to taste, 4 to 6 tablespoons brown sugar, 4 tablespoons ketchup, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, celery, green peppers or carrots may be added if desired. Combine all ingredients and simmer to 1 hour.

ANSWER:

Thank you for this streamlined recipe for chili con carne. sheet 1" apart. Bake at 350 deg.

DATE DROPS:

1 cup butter, 1½ cups brown sugar, 2 eggs, 2½ cups chopped dates, 1 cup choped nuts, ½ teaspoon baking soda, 2 tablespoons boiling water, 2½ cups sifted flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon (optional), ¼ teaspoon allspice (optional).

Cream butter and add sugar gradually. Add eggs, well beaten, then dates and nuts. Add baking soda mixed with boiling water, then the sifted flour and spices, if used. Drop from a teaspoon onto buttered baking sheet 1" apart. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 12 to 15 minutes.

PASTRY (for 2-crust 9" pie):

Two cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup shortening plus 1 tablespoon butter, 4 tablespoons ice water. Sift flour and salt together and cut shortening and butter into them with pastry blender until size of peas. Stir in the water, 1 tablespoon at a time, drizzling over entire surface and tossing with fork until all flour is moistened. Press into ball. Divide in two. Roll out on lightly floured board to fit pie plate. Line pie plate. Turn in filling. Roll out second half. Fold over and gash. Cover filling. Seal edges. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for first 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 375 to finish — or until filling bubbles through gashes and fruit is tender — about 45 minutes in all.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: My husband and I were divorced ten years ago. He since has married a widow who has two children, aged fourteen and sixteen. I received custody of our daughter, but, during the years, she has visited the home of her father and his family during vacations and over some of the holidays. Her relationship with them is very cordial.

The reason I'm writing is this: My daughter, now 21, is to be married in a few months and has asked her father to give her away. She also wants to invite his wife and her children to the wedding. I'm agreeable, but I'd like to know what rules of etiquette should be observed concerning their seating. After her father gives her away, should he join me in the first seat on the bride's side of the chapel? At the reception, should he stand in the receiving line? Is he seated at the parents table, or at another table with his present family? I want to get through the ceremony and reception easily, and dread any snags developing. I'm issuing the invitations in my own name since my daughter has made her official home with me. I'm also taking care of the entire expense of both wedding and reception. — Mrs. S.C., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: Aside from giving his daughter away, the bride's father, in this situation, enjoys no other status than that of guest, along with his wife and stepchildren. After guiding his daughter down the aisle, he joins his present family in a few rows back of the first pew, which you will occupy with your parents or some other close relative. At the reception he does not take part in receiving guests, and is seated with his family, instead of at the parents table. The only other "official" custom he may observe is that of dancing with his daughter after she's first danced with her new husband.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

HAROLD J. — She panics at the thought of running a party for our friends.

Harold J. - Things have just about reached a point where I feel like an idiot repeating to our friends, "Next time we meet it'll be at our house," because they and I and Elda all know it won't be. It'll be at one of their homes - if they aren't tired of handing out invitations which never get reciprocated. In the three years we've been married, Elda hasn't once played hostess to our friends.

She has some sort of block on this subject. She feels that unless she can hire a waitress and a bartender and serve caviar and champagne, she can't face the gang. That's ridiculous. They'll enjoy herring and good coffee, too. I want her to set a date and send out a few invitations:

• • •

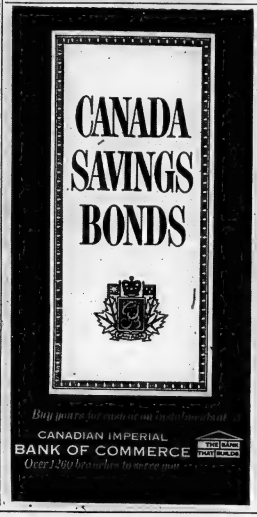
Elda J. — He hasn't told you the way our friends entertain. They're older and wealthier than we and they set out a spread that would do for the White House — fine table linens, cut crystal, sterling flatware, bone china, floral arrangements — the works! And the menu for one such evening would knock out our food budget for six months — pounds of sliced roast beef, sturgeon, smoked fish. All this is served most graciously, of course, by uniformed help while our friends relax and join in the fun.

How could they stand our plain setup? It's all right for the relatives. Harold's folks pitch in and help when they call, and mine bring roast chickens, a cake and extra bridge chairs. That's my kind of entertaining!

• • •

The Council: Elda forgets that the principal ingredient of good parties is nice people. And the shindigs one looks back at with pleasure are those at which one felt like a Somebody. One's being there "counted." In fact, the perfect host has been defined as the man who gives the party you are the life of.

In that sense no hostess need "compete" or worry about measuring up. Measuring up to whom? Elda isn't participating in a contest to choose the Hostess with the Mostess for 1962. Her only concern in entertaining Harold's and her friends provide a pleasant break in their week — one which will leave them with nice memories, not only gastronomically (chicken salad, coffee and cake can do that!), but also emotionally.



And what makes people feel better than to be needed! One of the best parties we recall attending was one where every guest was assigned a light easy "chore" ... You keep the galoshes sorted, please. You spoon out the melon balls. This removes the bane of most get-acquainted socials, namely self-something to do, which makes "something to say" follow easily.

Another get - friendly gambit is a sing-along session. Instead of depending upon passive amusement, such as watching television or a hired (or invited) magician, the guests provide their own entertainment. One summer resort has substituted this sort of thing (bringing rates 'way down, incidentally) with great success. Around a camp fire, with a good leader, even a guest who swears he can't carry a tune believes forth lustily, safe in the cover-up of dozens of other not-so-hot vocalists. Still another theme to unite a group and offer them a memorable evening is poetry. One couple invites others to share, by reading aloud, two pieces of favorite verse.

In short, Elda, accentuate the "personal" climate and "dimunate" the trimmings. Your pocketbook isn't as important as your imagination and your enjoyment of people.

FINE JOCKEY $50

TORONTO (CP) — Jockey Keith Robinson was fined $50 Monday by stewards at Woodbine race track for creating a disturbance on the way to the jockeys' quarters after Saturday's fourth race. Robinson is reported to have grabbed apprentice Ron Turcotte by the jacket in a fit of anger underneath the tunnel leading to the jockeys' room. Valets separated the two riders before any blows were struck.

Mohns, Richard Tops NHL Scoring Leaders

MONTREAL (CP) — Doug Mohns, a fast-breaking Boston Bruins defenceman, shares the early lead with Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard of Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Official NHL statistics released today show both players picked up five points last week in their first three outings of the current season. Mohns is ranked first because he has scored three goals to Richard's two. Mohns has picked up two assists and Richard three.

Ranked third and fourth respectively — with four points each—are Johnny Bucyk of Boston and Claude Provost of Canadiens. Bucyk has three goals and one assist, while Provost has two of each.

Seven players are tied with three points each. They are Parker MacDonald and Alex Delvecchio of Detroit Red Wings, Bobby Baun of Toronto Maple Leafs, Camille Henry of New York Rangers, Cliff Pennington and Murray Oliver of Boston and Don Marshall of Canadiens.

MacDonald and Baun, whose three-point totals came on goals alone, lead the group. Baun, a defenceman, scored only four goals in the entire 1961-62 season.

Terry Sawchuk of Detroit leads the goaltenders with a .57 goals-against average. He has allowed only two goals in three games.

Most penalized team after the first week's play is Chicago Black Hawks with 26 minutes. Chicago's Elmer Vasko and Detroit's Howie Young are most penalized players with eight minutes each.

'63 Chevrolet Trucks make rugged Baja Run!

WE PICKED THE TOUGHEST RUN UNDER THE SUN TO PROVE NEW ENGINES, FRAMES AND SUSPENSIONS!

Down from the mountains into the bush north of Santa Rosalia comes the Chevrolet caravan. After hours and hours on mountain switchbacks, engines and transmissions are searing hot. But on they went, without a delay or breakdown.

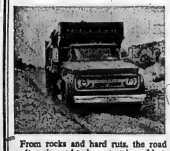
Chevrolet went looking for the toughest performance challenge on the continent to test new 1963 engines, frames and suspensions. And they found it — a 1000 mile route of rocks, ruts, washboard and washout that snakes down the Baja (bah hah) California peninsula in Mexico.

Six '63 Chevrolet trucks challenged this route — a Carryall, a ½-ton pickup with the new 230 cubic inch 6-cylinder engine, a ¾-ton pickup with the new 292 cubic inch 6-cylinder engine*, a Medium-duty unit with refrigerated van, a Medium-duty Diesel tanker and a Heavy-duty Tandem. And they were heavily loaded with fuel, spares, water, food and camping supplies.

The beating began just inside the border and continued through mile after mile of bone-jarring ruts, tire-chewing rocks, steep mountain grades, harrowing switchbacks and choking dust. And the temperature reached as high as 122° F!

It took 17 days to travel those 1,066 miles. Every inch of the way was rough and tough — and in many places downright dangerous.

But these new '63 Chevrolets took it all — without a breakdown or failure, though they received only normal maintenance and minor adjustments during the run!



The Baja Run proved that '63 Chevrolet trucks can handle the toughest hauling jobs in the business — yours included. These "New Reliables" are at your dealer's now. See them soon and see for yourself the tough stuff that Chevies are made of!

*Optional at extra cost.

CHEVROLET

QUALITY TRUCKS COST LESS!

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

From rocks and hard ruts, the road often changed to long stretches of hot, loose sand that made the trucks struggle and strain for traction. But these tough Chevies ploughed their way through.

There was only one way to cross this Baja stream — with plenty of torque and lots of nerve. That river bottom taxed Chevrolet's light- and heavy-duty suspensions to the limit, but couldn't break 'em.

It took plenty of torque and power to get the big units like this up some of those gorges. But up they came, thanks to new deep-breathing powerplants and rugged, versatile transmissions.

Terrain like this put tremendous stresses on engines, frames and suspensions. Like all the trucks in the group, this ¾-ton pickup survived in perfect condition!

Listen, buddy, you do not know it but your days are numbered. Whether you are a gentleman moose or a member of a cow harem, you've had it.

I have it straight from your executioner. Your life expectancy as of now is a few short weeks. So how about a little more life insurance, notifying the next of kin, and bequeathing your share of the your northern estate to your favorite mooselet?

I hate to ruffle your moosian dignity, but the finger that will trigger your death bullet belongs to a lady. But don't be ashamed. This feminine nimrod is no novice at hunting. Her trusty rifle has brought down many a buck and doe of your deer cousins.

In case she misses when she gets you in her rifle rifle, which I doubt very much and you wish to prefer assault-with-intent-to-kill-with-a-deadly-weapon charges, her name is Mrs. Audrey Davies, 288 William Street, this city.

And you can name as co-defendant her husband, Gordon Davies, and one Russell Bauder of Kingston. They're up to their necks in the moose-steaks-for-Christmas caper. In fact they might bump off one of your lodge members or one of the ladies' auxiliary if they're around while you are getting the coup-de-grace from Mrs. Davies.

Your foe, they paid a visit to your community, in fact stayed there for a few days. The reception you gave them had a distinct aroma. You sent out waves of man-eating black flies which dined luxuriously on hunter meat. You blanketed the area with a heat wave that made midsummer Florida feel like a tip of the Arctic.

Worst of all there was no personal touch. You sent the mooslan claus into hibernation. Not one of your tribe made himself known except one who snorted a call of derision in answer to an invitation issued by Mrs. Davies via a birch-bark "caller" fashioned by herself.

You set yourself a record. Two grizzled old prospectors living in an old log cabin near a deserted sawmill mumbled in their beards. "Never seen it like this before. Never saw such heat at this time o' year. Never saw so many danged black flies."

Perhaps you know the odds were against you. There were more hunters on the byways and off-roads, the moose-runs and deer-ways than drivers on 401 home going after a long weekend.

But the Davies party got away from the madding crowd. They took their trusty trailer-tent and blazed a trail into the forest wilderness to set up camp. But you ignored them and their calls. You let them eat beans and other camp food while your blackfly cohorts dined on fresh meat.

They searched the small lakes and other moose haunts. They lay in wait for you from sundown to early evening. But you never kept a rendezvous with death. However, you were fair. Not one of the many hunters combed by the Davies party claimed a moose. Nor had they seen any.

Okay, you've had your fun. You black-flied and heat-waved a crowd of male hunters. But now you're dealing with a woman hunter who has trod the deer-haunts for over a dozen seasons and has yet to come home empty-handed.

Audrey Davies is determined to get her first moose —and she's coming back for it. Gordon and Russell will be about to help lug your big carcass out of the woods.

Don't say you were not warned. Within a few weeks you will be converted into moose steak, roasts, stews and chops and parked in the Davies freezers.

Unless of course, you detail the mother-in-law to look after the store while you amble off to the North Pole where the pickings are poor.

Pierce, Cepeda Send Series To Limit

By JACK HAND

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)— After 13 days, 6,000 miles of jet travel and six ball games, San Francisco Giants and New York Yankees are all even after going into today's seventh and final World Series game.

And for the third time in the rain - delayed marathon, it will be Jack Sanford of the Giants facing Ralph Terry of the Yanks. Sanford (24-7) shut out the Yanks with three hits and beat Terry (23-12) in the second series game, 2-0. Terry edged Sanford 5-3 in the fifth game, 5-3, when rookie Tom Tresh broke a 2-2 tie with a three - run homer in the eighth inning.

The Giants have not won a series from the Yankees since 1922. In six Series meetings, the Yanks hold a 4-2 edge, winning in 1923, 1936, 1937 and 1951. The Giants took the first two—in 1921 and 1922. In all, the Yanks have a 19-7 series record against all competition while the Giants are 5-9.

GIANTS TRUE TO FORM

But records mean little to this comeback Giant bunch, who were written off after their "June swoon." From the brink of disaster, they closed a four-game cap on Los Angeles Dodgers in the final week of the National League season, then pulled out the pennant in the ninth inning of the third playoff game. One down three different times in this joust with the Yankees, they bounced back three times — the third time Monday when Billy Pierce and Orlando Cepeda led them to a 5-2 victory that snapped Whitey Ford's five-game series winning streak.

Pierce, an old American Leaguer, won his first series game with a three-hitter for his 13th consecutive victory at Candlestick Park, and Cepeda awoke from an 0-for-12 hitting slump. He had three hits—a double and two singles—drove in two runs and scored one. The plan no lineup changes.

Ford contributed to his own downfall in the fourth inning. After Felipe Alou's second single and a walk to Willie Mays, he tried to execute the Yankees' well - drilled pickoff play at second base, which has ruined many an opposition rally over the season. But this time it went awry.

THROW GOES WILD

As Whitey wheeled for the throw, he appeared to hesitate as he found Alou closer to the bag than he anticipated. The ball squirted out of his hand and sailed past second-baseman Bobby Richardson into the outfield. By the time it was recovered, Alou had scored and Mays was on third.

Cepeda's double and Jim Davenport's single produced two more runs before the Giants were retired.

A home run by Roger Maris, the first hit off Pierce, gave the Yankees a run in the top of the fifth inning but the Giants bounced back for two more in the bottom half on Harvey Kuenn, Chuck Hiller, Alou and Cepeda.

That finished Ford and the Giants were held scoreless the rest of the way by Jim Coates and Marshall Bridges. But Pierce gave up only one more hit—a home run by Tony Kubek singled home Clete Boyer, who had doubled, in the eighth.

Cepeda's outburst got him a place in the starting lineup for today's seventh game, although he has been riding the bench lately against right - handed pitching.

Manager Ralph McCoy, who usually replaces Cepeda at first base, will be in left field in place of Felipe Alou, and Cepeda will take over for catcher Ed Bailey. Haller always catches when Sanford pitches. The Yankees

"I hope we get our hitters going," said Houk as for his pitchers, Houk said it would be Terry at the start and "the other 10 guys in the bullpen."

The weatherman promised fair weather with the temperature in the mid-70s. After three days of rain, the outfield was soggy but playable Monday.

FORD OVERTHROWS — New York pitcher Whitey Ford, trying to pick off Felipe Alou of Giants at second, overthrows second baseman Bobbie Richardson as ball flys into centerfield. Alou is safe on play to give Alou, on the bag, scored on the run of sixth game of World Series in San Francisco's Candlestick Park yesterday. (AP Wirephoto)

Goalie Has Infectious Allergy

Maniago Replaces Ailing Plante

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Canadiens announced Monday that ailing goalie Jacques Plante will not be able to resume practice with the team until next Monday.

Plante's illness was described as an infectious allergy, probably related to a previous asthmatic condition. His condition is not serious.

Plante was ill when he played in his team's first game of the National Hockey League season, won by Boston Bruins 5-0.

Ernie Wakeley was called up from Hull-Ottawa of the Eastern Professional Hockey League for Saturday's game in Montreal, won by Canadiens 6-3 over New York.

Cesare Maniago, recently sent to Spokane of the Western Hockey League, was recalled by Canadiens for Sunday's game in Detroit, won 3-1 by the Red Wings. Maniago will remain with the Montreal club pending Plante's return.

Cookie 'Crumbles' For Bills

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Cookie Gilchrist, who started the season as the ugly duckling of Toronto Argonauts, has blossomed into a 243-pound swan for Buffalo Bills.

Weekly statistics released today by the American Football League showed the burly Buffalo fullback in second place among the league's ground-gainers with 296 yards in 78 rushing attempts, a mere nine yards behind pace - setting Charley Tolar of Houston Oilers.

Gilchrist, released under a cloud by the Argonauts early this season after violating the Eastern Football Conference club's curfew regulations, picked up 124 yards Saturday night against the Fearsome Foursome of San Diego Chargers, a four-man defensive line averaging 275 pounds.

Cookie also scored two touchdowns as the Bills thrashed the Chargers 35-10 for their first victory of the season and moved into fifth place among AFL scorers with six touchdowns and a field goal for 20 points.

Bobby Richardson Says

Too Much Pierce, Cepeda

This is another in a series of daily articles analyzing the World Series by Bobby Richardson, second baseman of New York Yankees.

By BOBBY RICHARDSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—If I am not in the mood to do much talking about Monday's game, I hope you'll understand.

Billy Pierce pitched a great game for the Giants and Orlando Cepeda finally snapped out of his slump. That probably sums up why the Giants beat us 5-2 and forced the series into a seventh game.

I can't help but feel, however, that the turning point of the game came in the fourth inning, when a pickoff attempt by Whitey Ford backfired on us.

Up to then neither team had scored. The Giants had threatened in the first two innings but each time we averted danger by making a double play. The Giants had two men on base again with one out in the fourth and, with Cepeda hitting, we are hopeful of another double play.

PLA BACKFIRES

Felipe Alou was on second and Willie Mays on first when Whitey gave us the sign he was going to try the pickoff at second, a play with which the Yankees win many games. This time Whitey threw the ball past me into right centre field and Alou scored, with Mays going to third.

I don't know whether or not this upset Whitey—he's not the kind to be bothered much by a bad break — but the fact is Cepeda and Jimmy Davenport followed with run-scoring hits. The way Pierce was pitching, it was too much for us to overcome.

I talked with Whitey about the play afterwards. He told me the reason for his bad throw was that, at the last moment, he realized that Alou had not wandered too far off the base and he felt had no chance to pick the runner off the base. He tried to check his throw but already gone too far. As a result, he lost his grip on the ball.

CALL UP SHIELDS

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts announced Monday they have recalled tackle and defensive end Lebron Shields and placed injured guard-linebacker Larry Patrick on the disabled list for the balance of the Canadian Football League season.

Quarter Sets TD Pass Record

Tiger Tornado Buries Saskys 67-21

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

HAMILTON (CP)—Joe Zuger, a steel mills truck driver from Homestead, Pa., watched his first Canadian professional football game here Monday night. He couldn't have chosen a better time.

He kept his eyes peeled on a young blonde Hamilton Tiger-Cat quarterback wearing a sweater with the big numeral "9" on it. The wearer was his son, Joe Jr., who came up with probably the greatest exhibition of passing the Canadian pro game has known.

Young Joe pitched eight touchdown passes, a record in this country, as the Tiger-Cats destroyed Saskatchewan Roughriders 67-21 in the final East-West interlocking game of the season.

It was the first starting assignment for the 22-year-old who does industrial painting on the side, and he left the Roughriders shattered and torn. The Roughies, who earlier had beaten Toronto Argonats, Montreal Alouettes and Ottawa Rough Riders in East-West interlocking games, didn't know what had hit them.

CROWD IN FRENZY

Zuger, behind a great offensive line and with receivers who appeared to be using fishhooks for hands, sent the crowd of about 19,000 into a frenzy in the first 20 minutes. The Tiger-Cats had the ball five times in that space and on each occasion Zuger, a six-foot-two graduate of Arizona State, connected on touchdown passes.

"He has real good native ability," applauded Trimble in the Ticat dressing room. "I always thought he was a good kid, but what can you say after this performance? He throws that ball right on the button. He makes the receivers look good."

There was little doubt about that. Zuger caught end Hal Patterson and halfback Garney Henley each with three touchdown throws. He hit Tim Reid and newcomer Dick Easterday from Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League, with singles.

He probably could have increased this output but Trimble inserted Canadian Frank Cosentino in the quarterback slot a few times and Cosentino responded by throwing touchdown strikes to Easterly and Henley.

ALSO ON PASSES

And, just to complete this night of what some fans might call basketball on cleats, the Ticats pitched a good ball game. We didn't get any hits. That's about all there was to it."

That was New York Yankee manager Ralph Houk's calm comment on the 2-1 defeat Monday by San Francisco Giants and Billy Pierce, who set the Yanks down on three hits.

Ralph Terry, the 23-game winner who is 1-1 in the rain-delayed series, will find the Giants Jack Sanford his opposing pitcher in the seventh game, for the third time since the series opened Oct. 4.

Houk has been high in his praise of Sanford, who shut out the Yankees on two hits in the second game and pitched a strong losing effort in the fifth game in New York, but he reminded questioners:

"We beat him the last time."

Roger Maris, who hit his first home run of the series for the first Yankee run, said he hit a curve ball. Then he retreated into the trainer's room—off limits for reporters.

MANTLE NOT TALKING

Mickey Mantle, who went hitless in four trips to drop his series record to 2-for-22, an .091 mark, was not very communicative, either.

"I don't want to say a damn thing about anything," he said.

Most of the other Yankees were quiet, too, although there was little gloom in the clubhouse of the World Series veterans.

Ford, who started his third game and took his first defeat, said:

"I felt fine, and I thought I looked good. I'm ready to come back tomorrow and work in relief if I'm needed."

The ace lefthander, knocked out in the fifth inning, was the first Yankee to get dressed. He scooted out of the clubhouse quickly.

Ford said of the wild throw he made in the fourth inning in an attempt to pick Felipe Alou off second base:

"I tried to hold up the throw when I saw I had to play. I called the play and went through the count, but when I wheeled and then tried to check the throw, the ball flew out of my hand into the outfield."

Alou scored the first Giant run on the error, and Mays went to third when the ball slowed up in the high, wet outfield grass.

In the Dressing Rooms

By JACK STEVENSON

By JIM BECKER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Those were the hardest shots Orlando Cepeda has hit in a month and a half," San Francisco manager Alvin Dark said of his batting hero in Monday's sixth World Series game, won by the Giants 2-1.

There was also plenty of praise for Billy Pierce, the 35-year-old lefty who limited New York Yankees to three hits for his 13th consecutive victory at Candlestick Park this year.

Yet Dark didn't think Billy was throwing as hard as he did in beating Los Angeles Dodgers 5-0 in the first game of the National League playoffs two weeks ago Monday.

"He pitched great and was putting the pitches where he wanted them," Dark added.

Pierce said: "The home run pitch to Roger Maris in the fifth was a curve. I threw him a fast ball to strike him out in the ninth. You can't relax a minute with the Yankees."

DELAY HELPED

Both Pierce and Cepeda benefited from the rain-enforced rest which caused a three-day delay in this sixth game that tied the World Series at 3-3.

"We won, so I have to say the long rest helped," Pierce said, while admitting he was worried on long flies to centre field by Mantle in the second inning and Bill Skowron in the third, both caught near the fence by Willie Mays.

"I turned around and looked at Willie and when I saw he wasn't too perturbed, I didn't worry so much," the veteran hurler grinned.

Mantle didn't get a hit, but he drove the ball toward centre in each of his four times at bat on what Pierce said were a fast ball, a slider and two more fast balls.

"I didn't swing any different than I have been," said Cepeda who has been one of the series goats until Monday with no hits in 12 at bats. "But with the rest I felt pretty well. I used a 35-ounce bat instead of a 33."

Record Entry Will Start

LONDON (AP) — Three American - owned horses were among the 27 named Monday for Wednesday's Cambridgeshire Handicap, one of the biggest betting races of the season.

The previous record field for the mile-and-a-furlong turf race was 26 in 1951. That was the year scoble Bressley, crack Australian jockey, steered five-year - old Fleeting Moment through the jungle of jostling jockeys to grab the victory.

This time Bressley will be aboard favorite Hidden Meaning, a three-year-old filly carrying 126 pounds. No filly ever has won the 123-year-old Cambridgeshire hauling such a weight.

An Irish Hospital sweepstakes is based on the result of the race.

GIVEN 'ONE CHANCE'

Fool's Gold, a good-looking black filly, is the pick of the American entry, and many experts give her a fine chance of landing the 120th running of the Cambridgeshire.

She failed to show up well on the hard, unyielding tracks earlier this season but appears to be running better on the easier going.

Hidden Meaning is expected to start about a 10-1 favorite with Bewildroom at about 14 - 1, Golden Wedding 14-1 and Colour Blind and Fool's Gold at 20-1.

The other two American entries are long shots in the 50-1 range.

OUT OF ACTION

NEW YORK (AP)—Del Shofner, New York Giants' star pass receiver, probably will miss only three National Football League games, the club doctor said Monday. Shofner was injured Sunday in the Giants' 20-17 loss to Pittsburgh Steelers. He suffered a separation of his right shoulder while catching a pass.

Says Mr. Kuenn

Ford Flip Was Big Lift

This is another in a series of articles analyzing the World Series by Harvey Kuenn, outfielder of San Francisco Giants.

By HARVEY KUENN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Now the Series looks exactly the same as the playoff. I swear we haven't done anything easy all year.

We fought from four games out the last week, we won the playoff in the final inning and now the series is going down to the end.

Of course we won't be able to throw out the first eight batting today—but it may go to the ninth again.

That rest certainly didn't hurt us. We got back in the right frame of mind and all the little injuries you pick up had a chance to heal. Remember, we played through the end of the season into the playoff and into the series and didn't have any days off until it rained.

BAD THROW HELPED

The big play, Monday was that pick off where Ford threw the ball away. He had men on first and second when the ball went into centre field.

When you can get a run and move the other man to third without even hitting the ball, you get a big lift. And I'm sure it hirt Whitey.

I think he tried to hold up on the throw when he saw he couldn't get Felipe Alou at second. So he let go of the ball late and it got away. Fortunately, we had the right men on base with Alou and Willie Mays. They can run.

The field, despite all the rain, wasn't as bad as some I've seen. It was soft, but not watery squish up when you step, but not this one. My shoes were damp, but they weren't wet.

Basketball League Organized

The Bay of Quinte Basketball League held its annual organization meeting last night and named Mr. Ernie Miller, of the RCAF Station, president for the 1962-63 season.

Don Smith was re-named league statistician. A representative from each league team will also be named to the executive body.

Three definite entries were announced last night while three others are in the "possibilite" class. Definite starters are the Belleville Crawford Metals, RCAF Flyers and Trenton Wilson Concrete.

Belleville Lightfoots, Brighton and Picton are possible entries. The league is hoping for six starters, of somewhere near equal strength, to round out a well-balanced loop.

The entry fee was set at $5 per team and the entry deadline is October 30, when the league will meet again at 7.30 p.m. at CJBQ.

The league schedule is expected to open around November 10, this and other plans to be finalized at the October 30 meeting.

President Miller is drafting a set of league rules for approval. The only "law" passed last night was one stating that any player playing in any other league will not be allowed to take part in the Bay of Quinte Basketball League.

First you'll notice that it's the same shape as last year. But that's the secret of our success. And the reason a Volkswagen is worth more when you trade it in. We never change the basic design, we just keep improving it.
For examples: The list price of our Custom model includes adjustable bucket seats. (Optional in most cars.)
And every VW has a built-in heater and defroster. (Extra cost on most cars.)
Standard equipment includes 2 padded sun visors, windshield washers and an automatic choke.
And then there's something we've always had. An air-cooled engine that won't boil over in summer and never needs antifreeze in winter. A rear mounted engine that gives you better traction on snow and ice. A dependable engine that gets an average of 38 miles to a gallon of gas.
If you think car prices are out of this world, take heart. The '63 Custom Volkswagen is still down to earth.

Despite Hamilton Tiger-Cats' high points scored in their 67-25 victory Monday night over Saskatchewan Roughriders in a Canadian Football League game, only two changes were made in the top 10 scorers in the Eastern Conference.

RECORD BLOOPER

Upper wasn't so happy in a later game when his fun-loving screwball exceeded all records—at least for altitude—with the blooper pitch.

"I had heard there was a guy in the majors whose blooper went 10 feet up, then came down and sailed across the plate for a strike," said Lefty. "I had tried a few in this game and did pretty well.

"Then this heavy hitter came up and the crowd started yelling, 'blooper, blooper.'

"I let 'em have it. I must have thrown the ball at least 100 feet into the air. It came down near the plate. Two runs scored before the ball hit the ground.

The 'Lefty' Boivert Story

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP)—The little guy walked to the plate and laid down a bunt, on orders.

Then he headed for third base, definitely not on orders.

Everything worked out just as the impish Marcel (Lefty) Boisvert had hoped.

"The pitcher was so mixed up he threw to third," said the irrepressible Lefty in recalling the hilarious affair.

"I went back, rounded the plate and ran on to first. I didn't need the base umpire there to tell me I was out.

"But the baserunner we had had on first was then on second. It would have been a sure double play if I had started for first after bunting to the pitcher."

The Shipyards team, in the Defence League with the airmen, the navy and the army, was the rival.

FUN-LOVING ATHLETE NOW EDITOR — Marcel (Lefty) Boisvert, whose baseball-playing days with the RCAF in Halifax are filled with hilarious incidents, reads a newspaper in his Montreal office where he now is radio sports editor of Broadcast News. His war-time athletic shenanigans include: (1) the time he bunted and ran to third base, confusing the defending team and fouling up a sure double play; (2) the time he pitched his self-styled blooper ball 100 feet in the air, allowing two runs to score before the ball hit the ground. (CP Photo).

"I think old Stone-Face Corrigan, the umpire, smiled for the first time in his life. But all he said was 'ball.' Upper kept shouting out and benched me. But we won the game."

Boisvert, now 45, is a native of Cap-de-la-Madeleine, hard by Trois-Rivieres, birthtar sports-rival communities. He always loved sport, even long before he persuaded his grandmother to finance a junior hockey team. Lefty then was 15.

NOW SPORTS EDITOR

Around his home area he has been player, manager, organizer, coach, umpire, owner, entrepreneur and clown. He has also been a machinist, a paper-mill worker, radio sports broadcaster, newspaper sports columnist and editor, race track manager and curling club manager.

Currently he is sports editor for Broadcast News in Montreal. He is only five feet, three inches tall, but is still trim and muscular at 145 pounds. He is a good golfer, shooting in the 80s after only five years at the game, and a capable curler.

He joined the RCAF in Quebec City in 1940 and was shuttled about from Ontario to Quebec to the Maritimes. The brass rejoiced in his prowess as a pitcher for their service teams and just as regularly threw him into the clink when he blandly forgot to come back from leave.

Lefty was equally as eccentric in hockey — to the extent that he drew a life suspension from the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association for packing one of his junior teams with six over-age players. He was subsequently reinstated. Now he is a director of the QAHA.

LOVES TO CLOWN

But it is largely in baseball that Lefty can claim membership in the Daffy Doings Club.

With the RCAF team in Halifax one day he strode to the plate swinging six bats, ready to frighten the pitcher with all of them. He stumbled and lost four. He started swinging the other two and both flew out of his hands. Accidentally, it is presumed.

After the war Lefty returned to his native Cap-de-la-Madeleine and played ball there and for teams nearby.

Twice—at Lac Megantic and St. Boniface—he called in his outfielders.

"The parks were small and if the guy was going to get a hit he would have put the ball out of the park anyway," said Lefty. Lefty got by with his strategy both times. At St. Boniface he pitched three games in one day and won all of them.

In a game at Causapscal, Que., he was bludgeoned for five home runs in the first inning. After the game an opponent asked why the devil Lefty's manager didn't yank him.

"He couldn't," said Lefty succinctly. "I'm the manager."

Frank Sinatra's Primary Interest Is Motion Pictures

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Those hoping for a Hollywood Renaissance get some encouraging words from Frank Sinatra: "This town is far from dead."

It's not all talk with Sinatra. He is the head of a growing enterprise that is branching into several entertainment fields. But his primary interest is motion pictures.

"This is still a good business," he commented.

"It is undergoing some changes, but it is going to survive. And Hollywood is going to come back.

"I have no plans to shoot abroad. I want to stay here, where the money is. And I think other producers are coming to that same conclusion. You don't save money in the long run by shooting overseas. The know - how of Hollywood crews makes filming more sensible here."

Sinatra could never tolerate the leisurely pace of continental filming.

"Those three - hour lunches they take over there are ridiculous," he said. "I had a go at shooting in Europe with The Pride and the Passion. We were the first big film to shoot in Spain and the Spaniards didn't know what they were doing! I might add that Stanley Kramer (the producer - director of the film) didn't, either."

Sinatra has The Manchurian Candidate coming into release and is making Come Blow Your Horn in partnership with Paramount.

When he isn't filming, he spends a full work day at his luxurious suite of offices in a bank building at the western edge of the Sunset Strip.

"This is something I have been aiming at for a long time," he said. "I intend to be decreasing my work as a performer. I am a special kind of actor. When I get older, I would have to go into character acting and that's not my cup of tea.

"After a few years I expect to be a director or producer, or head of a production company. There is room for new companies with an aggressive policy. Lately I have been looking for new talent in a quiet sort of way—so mothers and fathers won't be dragging their kids to see me. I think Hollywood has neglected the need of new personalities too long."

Digging of Escape Tunnel May Not Be Shown by NBC

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Last week the National Broadcasting Company called an unusual press conference to reveal details surrounding the shooting of escape five film about the digging of an escape tunnel under the Berlin wall through which many people fled to the west.

Excerpts from more than 60 reels of film shot under difficult conditions in the three-foot-high tunnel were expected to be special Oct. 31.

Almost immediately after this was announced, 17 German students who had helped with the tunnel digging announced they would ask NBC to cut those portions of film showing their faces for fear of East Berlin reprisals.

Then a German senator announced he would ask the network not to show the film, lest disclosure of details might help East German police find East Berliners who helped in the escape plot or relatives of refugees.

NBC says it contributed money — amount undisclosed — when three of the students in the plot gave them film rights to the project. And as for the students' fear of exposure, Vice-President William McAndrew says:

"None of their faces will be shown. We will show only the faces of those who knew what we were doing and what the film would be used for."

A result-is debate inside television reminiscent of that which went on when Jack Paar did his Tonight Show at a criticized checkpoint in the Berlin wall.

Napanee Jrs. Shade BCI 13-12

Napanee Juniors pulled out a hard-fought 13-12 victory over their BCIVS counterparts in a game of Quinte COSSA football match.

BCI broke a scoreless tie at the five-minute mark of the third quarter and made it 13-0 on another unconverted touchdown before the quarter ended.

Napanee roared back with a major, unconverted, on the first play of the final quarter to make it 13-4. A bad BCI hike led to the deciding scoring play. A Napanee player grabbed the ball and ran for the TD to tie the score and the convert netted the final and deciding point.

The losers drove deep into the Napanee zone before the tilt ended but were unable to penetrate the tough Kep ance defence. A strong wind forced both clubs to stick to the ground attack most of the time.

Mott and Lichtfoot scored the BCIVS touchdowns.

Thirty Head Of Holsteins Average $1,177

OAKVILLE (CP)—Cattlemen from Colombia, Peru, Mexico, Puerto Rico and the United States were among leading buyers at the annual all-Canadian Holstein sale held here Monday.

Thirty head of cattle were purchased by export. Another 25 heads sold pushed the total sale to the top of $29,500 for an average of $1,177 per head.

Richard Schleisaner of Jerseyville, Ill., paid the price of $8,100 to George McLaughlin of Dunrobin and Elmcrop farms, Beaverton. This was for Elmcrop Irene Newdrop Dotty.

The partnership of Eybedalia farms and H. B. Bruce Mitchell of the second highest price of $3,500 to Guelph's Ontario Reformatory for a cow.

Paul Martin Urges Canada Follow Example of Europe

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada should follow Western Europe's success recipe of government-management - labor collaboration, the old set up economics of advisory council bringing together representatives of these major sectors to discuss and plan common objectives of economic development, Paul Martin said Monday night.

The existing national productivity council is not the answer, the Liberal member of the Commons for Essex East said in a major address to the Ottawa Junior Board of Trade outlining his party's economic philosophy.

The designated purposes of the productivity council did not fully satisfy the trade union organizations, as evidenced by the resignation from the council of Claude Jodoin, president of the 1,000,000-member Canadian Labor Congress.

"In Canada, we must embark upon a broad policy of economic and social development stimulated by the closest co-operation between the groups concerned. This represents an outstanding achievement in certain European countries, which have evolved from postwar disorganization to economic buoyancy.

'GAPS' IN TALKS

A special mission to Europe of the productivity council representing government, labor and management had concluded, in a unanimous report that there are "certain serious gaps in government-management - labor consultation and co-operation on economic and social problems in Canada."

This report should not be allowed to gather dust. The government must provide the leadership and inspiration needed to end Canada's economic problems and bring about greater government - management - labor co-operation Mr. Martin said.

TEST FOR DISTROPHY

LONDON (Reuters) — British scientists have found "a glimmer of hope" in the fight against muscular dystrophy—the wasting away of the muscles—which kills many young children. Dr. J. N. Walton, vice-chairman of the British muscular dystrophy group, said Monday that it now is possible to detect whether babies are likely to develop the disease through blood tests on young mothers and girls about to be married.

Dr. Chapman said new knowledge being obtained from the Alouette will help scientists to combat communications blackout. It won't be possible to interfere with nature but it would be possible to develop equipment capable of detecting the effects produced by northern lights.

Dr. Chapman said readings by ground stations have shown that the ionosphere is relatively smooth and undisturbed over the southern half of the earth. It also was known previously that the worst disturbances occurred in the ionosphere over the northern half of the world, but the extent and nature of this irregularity was unknown.

Only Preparation H Contains New Healing Substance... Shrinks Hemorrhoids...Stops Itch

If your doctor thinks that surgery is not necessary,
Preparation H may be the answer to your hemorrhoidal problems.

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a healing substance with the unique ability to shrink hemorrhoids and relieve pain and itching. This substance has been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to discuss such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 30 years' standing.

All this, without the use of anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is the wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask your druggist for Individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special Applicator. Satisfaction after one package or money refunded.

Three Beers and She Left Him

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I have been married to a lovely girl for fifteen years and have three children. My wife knew I took a drink before we got married and after marriage she was dead against it. I have a steady job, but in the past ten years we have been separated nine years and three months. She had a baby from another man and told me about it. I forgave her and she came back to me.

I hadn't been drinking, but one night brought home three bottles of beer and got them over the head. The next morning she went home with the children to her folks in another province. I have seen her in the past six months and the kids all want to come to Daddy, but are still in school. She is a real good mother, and I forgive her for what happened. I have had a promotion and have written her several letters, but no answer. I still love her, but I know she has another boy friend, as the kids told me.

I would like a divorce and wrote and told her about it, but still no answer. What is the next move?—DESERTED.

* * *

DEAR DESERTED—Three bottles of beer are not cause for desertion. Of course if you got drunk and beat her—and haven't thought to mention it—getting them over the head is fair enough.

Trouble is, I need to know her side. From yours, I'd suspect the beer was an excuse; the boy friend is her real reason for leaving.

In any case, you want a divorce and think you have grounds. Since she ignores your letters, get a lawyer to write and follow through.

* * *

TO DISMAYED—Your cousin is wrong to make it obvious that she has a child born out of wedlock. She has staged a comeback but society still frowns on illegitimacy; and the boy will suffer the stigma. Now that marriage is in the offing, she can change his status by adoption. Mum's the word about anything else!

* * *

DEAR DORIS—I am fourteen and in grade ten. I'm also very interested in people and helping them. I was wondering if you could recommend some literature I could read to learn about some of the different careers.—BONNIE.

* * *

DEAR BONNIE—Some of the "helping professions" are: social work, teaching, nursing, law, medicine, psychiatry, vocational counselling. Literature abounds in your own public library about them all. A booklet on social work is on its way to you.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO LONELY IN-LAW—Marrying into a large family takes rare courage. They don't spare one another with their frank advice and are joined when you take exception to it. As you get to know them and gain more self-confidence, you'll find yourself inside the circle and enjoying the sensation.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—My problem is underarm perspiration. I have tried every deodorant there is—the paste, liquid and spray. I perspire so much I ruin all my dresses, even when I wear dress shields.—HELP NEEDED.

* * *

DEAR HELP—Just do everything. Bathe daily. Use large dress shields, anti-perspirants and deodorants. Check your diet.

Ask your druggist to make up a 25 per cent solution of aluminum chloride in distilled water and apply every other day. In addition, use a deodorant after the bath.

Excessive perspiration may be caused by nervousness or poor health; or merely by too much coffee, tea or highly seasoned foods. If nothing simple solves the problem, see your doctor.

* * *

TO LONELY WOMAN—I sympathize, but try making your own fun. Invite someone in for a cup of tea—just one person. Discuss her favorite topic. Next time have two. Straighten up and start smiling.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—This is to thank you for putting me in touch with a number of leather workers. After contacting several of them I was able to get an excellent job done in the pattern of the old purse.—MR. F. B.

* * *

DEAR MR. F. B.—You're welcome. And thanks, everybody for showering us with offers.

* * *

TO LOUELLA—If you will send me a large self-addressed envelope with a stamp on it, I will be glad to forward to you the booklet on social work.

* * *

TO MRS. R. L.—Please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I will be glad to send you the information you are requesting.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—My mother said something about leaving home. She hasn't said anything about it to Daddy and I hope she won't. I don't know if she'll leave or not. What do you think she'll do?—DON'T KNOW.

* * *

DEAR DON'T KNOW—It's not likely she'll leave. But she has no business putting this kind of a fear into your head.

* * *

READY FOR BURNING — Norse warriors with battle plumes and helmet horns board a Viking ship being towed to a burning grounds for an ancient fire ritual at Lerwick in Britain's remote Shetland Islands. The burning of the ship while warriors chant traditional songs is one of the most spectacular of old customs still practised in Britain. (CP from UKIO.)

Hundreds of Old Customs Still Practised in Britain

By ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP) — Flames devour a Viking ship surrounded by fierce warriors in the ancient Up-Helly-Aa ceremony at Lerwick in the remote Shetland Islands.

This survival of ancient Norse fire rituals is the most spectacular of the hundreds of old customs still practised in Britain.

"Guisers" with bright battle plumes and helmet horns chant traditional songs as they tow the ship through the icy evening to the burning ground. They fling torches and circle the pyre forming fiendish silhouettes as the conquering Norse did centuries ago.

Some old British ceremonies are celebrated in Canada—notably April Fool's Day and Hallowe'en—but many are unique to one portion of Britain.

For instance, the Tichborne Dole is a remnant of a gruesome incident 800 years ago when Lady Mabella Tichborne on her deathbed, persuaded her husband to give to the poor as much land as she could walk over while carrying a burning faggot in her hand.

HONOR BARGAIN

The wretched woman staggered and crawled over 23 acres, tradition holds, and then with her dying breath prophesied that if a Tichborne ever failed to honor the bargain the family line would end. So flour from the land—known as the Crawls — is given to the poor at Alresford in Hampshire on "Lady Day" March 25.

"Wassailing the Apple Trees" is supposed to keep evil spirits away from cider crops in Somerset. Farmers sing to the largest tree, throw cider at its trunk and fire guns into the branches.

When the bells at St. George's Church in Toddington, Bedfordshire, ring on Shrove Tuesday children put their ears to Conger Hill and listen to the "Witch's Cauldron" as she fries pancakes in the hill's centre.

A swordsman knocks off the head of a giant rabbit model in the ancient dance of the "Grenoside Sword" in Yorkshire. It is believed this practice has its origin in a primeval sacrifice when the community's leading man was decapitated for the good of the population.

"Well-Dressing" take place in various parts of Derbyshire when "biblical scenes, formed with flowers stuck into clay at wells and springs, symbolize gratitude for the gift of water.

SWANS MARKED

Many of the better - known ceremonies taking place throughout Britain are held in the spring and are conected with ancient fertility rites. Men ride decorated wooden hobby horses. Dancers in gay costumes circle May Poles. Orange, egg and cheese-rollings celebrate the return of life to earth and are used as symbols of the stone rolled away from Christ's sepulchre.

"Swan Upping" is in July. All swans on the Thames are owned either by the Queen or by two of the oldest trading companies in London—the Vintners and the Dyers. Swan masters in gold-braided uniforms take a week to identify and mark the beak of each bird.

The custom began in the 15th century when swans were first introduced into England from Cyprus.

Possibly the best known of all British customs originated after Guy Fawkes was captured trying to blow up the Parliament buildings in 1605. He was executed for high treason and ever since, children have built effigies of him and exploded fireworks when they "remember, remember, the fifth of November."

Nearly $200,000 Found In Raids On Firms, Homes

Revenue Dept. Searches Blusteins' Properties

TORONTO (CP) — Nearly $200,000 was found Tuesday in raids on two Toronto firms and four homes by Royal Canadian Mounted Police and officers from the department of national revenue.

RCMP superintendent John Henry said three premises of New Era Home Appliances Limited were searched along with two premises of Blustein's Furniture Company.

The homes of John, Murray, Irving and Samuel Blustein, owners of the firms, were also raided, along with the homes of the firms' principals.

About $38,000 in old money was found at a home listed as the residence of Irving and Samuel Blustein, Supt. Henry said, but the money was not seized.

He said sums of $61,000 and $59,000 were found in two other homes.

The revenue department acted under the authority of the Income Tax Act to obtain an order from the Exchequer Court to organize the raid, an official said.

Douglas Swinton, advertising manager of a New Era store on Danforth Avenue, said a routine tax investigation had been made.

Other officials of the revenue department would not comment except to say that any investigation carried on by them would be in connection with suspected tax evasion.

CPR, TRAINMEN MEET AGAIN TO AVERT STRIKE

Wages Apparently No Longer Issue

MONTREAL (CP)—The CPR and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (CLC) meet again today to try to avert a strike over issues that both sides said earlier are too complicated to explain to the public.

Wages apparently are no longer an issue in the dispute, in which the trainmen have set Oct. 29 as the deadline for agreement. The CPR has said that if a walkout occurs then, another 9,000 employees will be laid off, ensuring the closedown of the railway's 17,000 miles of track.

The trainmen's union had demanded an eight - per - cent wage increase, the same as they won from the CNR four months ago only a few days before that carrier was to face a strike. CPR Trainmen, representing yardmen, trainmen and conductors, now earn an average of $4,000 to $7,000 a year.

A week ago the CPR said it is ready to meet that demand, offering the increase as part of a package deal that included acceptance by the union of the recommendations by a federal conciliation board on a series of work rules.

REJECT OFFER

The union immediately rejected the package, saying the recommendations for changes would cost some of the trainmen more in lost wages than they would pick up through the eight-per-cent wage increase.

The work rules in effect are regulations, accepted over the years, by both railway and union, that lay out how the trainmen build up credit for work.

On this credit their wages are built.

The CPR says some of these regulations, in effect for 40 or more years, are outdated by technological developments such as dieselization and result in unmerited and unearned payments to trainmen—in other words, it says, they produce featherbedding that is hampering efficient operations.

The union says any attempt to remove some of these regulations would be the end to victories built up by their members over the years and result in serious distinctions for many of its members, as well as smaller pay cheques.

SIU Is Accused of Attempting To Frustrate Probe of Shipping

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor lawyer Maurice Wright accused the Seafarers International Union of Canada (ind.) Tuesday of trying to stall and frustrate the federal investigation into strife and disruption on the Great Lakes waterfront.

Mr. Wright, counsel for the Canadian Labor Congress, made the charge—promptly denied by SIU President Hal C. Banks—at the hearings before the federal inquiry ended here.

Mr. Justice T. G. Norris plans to resume public hearings Monday in Montreal, when the SIU is to present its case on shipping disruptions and labor violence on the Lakes in recent months.

The British Columbia Appeal Court closed a short but extraordinary session in his investigation after Mr. Banks said the SIU's general membership would decide about a tug boycott of the freighter Red Wing in Montreal.

The freighter, owned by Upper Lakes Shipping Limited which holds a contract with the SIU's arch-foe, the Canadian Maritime, U.A., berthed in Montreal without tug assistance last week. It sailed Tuesday.

The Red Wing was helped by tugs, except for a nudge by a tug to help it swing away from its dock.

Crews of the tugs belong to the SIU. They refused to handle lines from the Red Wing, forcing the vessel to berth without help and raising fears of a port tieup when it sailed.

The special session was or-

LIBERALS ASK FOR EXPANSION OF FARM LOANS

Also Want Trade Barriers Reduced

OTTAWA (CP)—From international trade to small debtors, the Berlin situation, travelling salesmen, and on to the problems of small farmers, Parliament Tuesday ran the full course.

The night sitting ended on an agricultural note with Liberal Hazen Argue offering criticisms of the government's attitude on federal farm loans.

This, he said, is what small farmers are told when seeking a loan: "Unless you get to be a bigger farmer, so you can take a bigger loan, we won't give you anything at all."

The MP for Assiniboia accused the government of "arbitrary action" that has denied the benefits of the loans legislation to small farmers.

He spoke as the Commons debate a resolution that would clear the way for a government bill to raise the ceiling on total loans by the Farm Credit Corporation to $400,000,000 from $300,000,000. Agriculture Minister Hamilton termed the measure "complementary" to the attack on the problem of low-income farmers.

WANTS EXPANDED

Mr. Argue called for great expansion in the field of farm loans. He said Prime Minister Robert Thompson said the item is so important it should be proceeded with immediately without going to the standing committee on agriculture.

Before legislative business got under way, Prime Minister Diefenbaker read a letter he had sent to Premier Kennedy proposing a conference on reducing world trade barriers. It was a follow-up to proposals he made during the Commonwealth prime ministers conference in London.

The letter immediately provoked a round of all - party praise for recent American trade expansion action. The government termed it a "momentous step," opposition Leader Pearson said it was "both courageous and imaginative in its scope." Mr. Thompson said Canada has also got to start a "substantial" barriers "and start soon," and Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth) said the U.S. move "is one of the most imaginative and far-searching proposals" of recent years.

Meanwhile, Speaker Marcel Lambert took a 20-minute step to reduce the heat in the Commons chamber. Clouds that have been hanging over the controversial question period for days began.

Appealing for the co-operation of members, Mr. Lambert said a series of guideposts to be followed in the oral question period.

MAY STILL FUSS

There was no immediate indication whether the Speaker's statement would settle the simmering issue that boiled up after opposition MPs ran afoul of his definition of what constitutes a proper question.

Division bells clanged Tuesday through the corridors of the Centre Block for the sixth time in this young session after an MP's member appealed a ruling by committee chairman Gordon Churchill that the ruling was illegal under the 1960 amendments to the Canada Elections Act.

Both the chairman and the Speaker ruled that amendments were irrelevant to the bill under consideration.

The bill doubles to $400,000,000 the maximum insurance liability incurred on specific authority of the cabinet for special export deals — such as grain sales to Communist China.

Club Allowed to Operate For Year After Gaming Conviction Inquiry Told

TORONTO (CP) — Tough charter policies which he enforced for a gambling club in the city of Hamilton, now held in New York in a huge drug-smuggling conspiracy case, was named today on Tuesday as a silent partner in a gambling club which it took the Ontario government almost a year to close after a gaming conviction.

The province's royal commission on crime was unable to get a firm explanation of why the Metropolitan Club, originally chartered to operate only in Timmins, Ont., was able to run four clubs in Hamilton with the knowledge of provincial authorities and with the conviction clearly applying it for the last 11 months.

The club's charter eventually was cancelled in 1959, but commission was told by Deputy Provincial Secretary R. J. Cudney that it operated for nearly the first phase of its investigation dealing with allegations of government connection with operation of "social" club charters.

Near the end of Mr. Cudney's cross-examination, Mr. Justice W. D. Roach announced his own commission will open on Thursday today on the third and final chapter of his inquiry into gambling — crime charges and the adequacy of law enforcement agencies to deal with it.

Present plans called for a day or so of private sittings, to be followed by a few days of public testimony by Mr. Cudney and cross-examination of Provincial Secretary John Yaremko on a defence of his department's club

Jobless Number Cut 20,000 As Students Back at School

TORONTO (CP) — A further drop in Canadian unemployment, down 20,000 from mid-August to 260,000 at mid-September, was reported today in a joint statement by the bureau of statistics and the labor department.

The decline in jobless numbers, due largely to the back-to-school movement of students during the labor month put the September unemployment rate at 4.1 per cent, the lowest it has been since September, 1959. This compared with 4.9 per cent in July, 5.1 per cent in August and 4.7 per cent in September last year.

The September decline in unemployment followed an above-normal drop in August which had been attributed to holidays being students finding jobs. The report said the cool-weather drop in students found temporary summer jobs.

The back-to-school move in September was also given as the main reason for what the report said was a sharp decline in the number of persons with jobs.

Employment dropped by 197,000 in the month to 6,335,000, which was 150,000 higher than a year earlier.

	Sept. Aug.	Sept.
Labor Force	6,595 6,615	6,445
Employed	6335 6,582	6,235
Unemployed	260 290	306
Rate	4.1 4.4	4.7

About two-thirds of the September jobless — 180,000 — had been unemployed for four to six months; 50,000 had been jobless for more than six months.

The statistics bureau estimated all of the September decline in unemployment was among persons under 25 years of age. The change left 209,000 men unemployed — 41,000 fewer than a year earlier.

Dealing with the job-holding work force, the report said that the drop in September virtually all in agriculture, and in manufacturing and construction. Employment gains among older workers, mainly women, offset part of the decline in numbers of jobs held by those under 19.

Estimated employment by regions in September, with August figures bracketed: Atlantic 590,000 (560,000); Quebec 1,980,000 (1,960,000); Ontario 2,400,000 (2,400,000); Prairies 1,240,000 (1,270,000); Pacific 315,000 (315,000).

NO DECISION ON MEDICAL CARE PLAN

Matter Under Constant Study - -Robarts

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has not decided for or against a medical care plan, Premier Robarts told a press conference Tuesday.

Mr. Robarts called the conference following a published report that the provincial government plans to announce a voluntary medical care scheme within a year.

He told reporters a medical care scheme could not be introduced within a year, under present plans.

"I do not believe that a compulsory scheme is necessary in view of the fact that so many of our citizens are involved in voluntary schemes," the premier added.

Mr. Robarts said the matter is under constant study by the government and "it is wrong to say we have rejected the concept."

The government submitted a brief to the royal commission on health services in Ottawa Tuesday.

Any decision on medical care by the Ontario government would not necessarily depend on the decision of the federal royal commission, he said.

Mr. Robarts added: "This matter is much too complicated and involved and has too great a bearing on the day-to-day lives of our people to become a political football."

Meanwhile, the provincial leaders of the Liberal and New Democratic parties also released statements on medical care.

Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer said he is confident a working agreement on a medical care plan can be reached with the medical profession.

WILL BE OPPOSED

But NDP Leader Donald MacDonald said such a scheme will only be instituted in Ontario over the opposition of the profession.

The Liberals last week proposed a comprehensive medical care plan that would cost about $175,000,000 in the first year of its operation.

Mr. MacDonald, in a speech at Hamilton, claimed the Liberals are embarking on the medicare bandwagon in a "cynical bid for votes."

He said the doctors would oppose any attempt to establish a medical care plan in Ontario.

"If there is one lesson that emerges above all others from the Saskatchewan experience, it is that victory will have to beswon over the unremitting opposition of the medical association," Mr. MacDonald said.

MINISTERS DENY DECISION NEAR ON ATOMIC ARMS

Globe and Mail Says Arms to Be Bought

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Harkness and Associate Defence Minister Sevigny said Tuesday night there is no impending decision on Canadian acquisition of nuclear weapons for the armed forces.

Mr. Harkness added in a statement:

"The situation is the same as outlined by the prime minister and myself in the House of Commons prior to the last election."

Last Feb. 26 Prime Minister Diefenbaker, replying to Commons questions on nuclear arms, recalled his statement of previous years that "the matter finally should not be addressed so long as there is any possibility of disarmament among the nations of the world."

The prime minister added on last date: "I could mislead weapons be used against us Canadian troops participating should not be charged with the use nuclear weapons."

At later dates in the session Mr. Harkness referred questioners to the prime minister's remarks and declined to enlarge on them.

Mr. Sevigny said Tuesday night that any talk of obtaining nuclear weapons for Canada is the next couple of months is "a product of journalistic speculation."

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says the federal government, "watching the Berlin crisis closely, is ready to announce its decision to acquire nuclear weapons for its armed forces."

"Timing of the announcement depends upon the speed with which the crisis develops but official confirmation of the decision will come probably in mid-November," the newspaper says in a copyright dispatch from Ottawa.

The Globe and Mail says it obtained its information outside the House of Commons after Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the House there were indications that Russia would precipitate a new crisis on Berlin.

The newspaper adds it was told the government decision on nuclear weapons was communicated to U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad, commander-in-chief of North American Air Defence Command, by Defence Minister Harkness.

Gen. Gerhart was in Ottawa Monday and cancelled a projected trip to North Bay, site of one of Canada's two bomarc squadrons, to return Tuesday to Washington.

Hubby Back Home After 40 Years But Soon Leaves With $100,000

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A 78-year-old man whose 85-year-old wife took him back after a 40-year absence has vanished again along with $100,000 in stocks belonging to her, police said Tuesday.

The missing man was identified by police as Arthur E. Williams. They said he charged his wife $4,378 issued to his wife, Mrs. Clara Williams, by a brokerage house.

Detective George Katsekes said that after four years of marriage Williams left his wife in 1918. Mrs. Williams moved to Milwaukee from Kirkwood, Mo., shortly thereafter and went to work as a dressmaker. She invested her income wisely and over the years accumulated the stocks and bonds.

Mrs. William's son, Arthur, 45, of Kirkwood, told police that Williams reappeared in 1958 and his mother took him back without asking for an explanation of his absence. Three weeks ago Williams packed a suitcase and disappeared. On Oct. 1, Mrs. Williams received a letter postmarked Niagara Falls, Ont., in which he stated he had "done well in investing."

The son told police that the stocks and bonds were removed from a bank safety deposit box.

Nicholson Catholic College Holds Graduation Exercises

School traditions were followed at Nicholson Catholic College at graduation exercises in St. Michael's Academy auditorium which was attractively decorated with the school colors, ferns and autumn floral arrangements. Dominating the stage was a shrine of the Blessed Virgin, Lady of the school.

Following the processional, sung by the Glee Club, the senior graduates in caps and gowns took their places on the stage, with the junior graduates arranged directly in front of the stage. The chairman for the evening, James McNamee, welcomed the guests and expressed the gratitude of the staff and students to those persons and groups who had offered prizes.

The guest speaker, Reverend Maurice Imhoff, O.F.M., (Conv.), pastor of Holy Rosary Parish, Belleville, spoke on the graduation as "a time of promise and expectation — a season of the mind during which the dreams of youth materialize into the glowing ambitions of young manhood." He reminded the graduates that, at this test what the future might hold, the imprints of the College would be stamped within them. "These impressions," he said, "will provide memories for remembrance, for there has been more than enough happiness to obliterate the sadness; strength when you are tried with crises; wisdom when you are confused; wisdom in time of indecision; courage for the days of decision." May, by your relatives and friends, pray and hope that you will grow into men of Christian character with an upright and noble character; be ever an honor to yourselves, a joy to your parents, the pride of your friends, and a credit to your school."

Plan to Number Parking Meters

TRENTON—Trenton's parking meters will soon blossom forth with numbered markers. This will enable the Meter Maid to pin-point fliefers on her over-parking; tickets and reports and also assist her in locating meters in need of repair.

In the municipal parking lot on Front Street, the malfunctioning meters will be replaced with new, single-headed meters, (at a cost to the town of approximately $100 each). In all, there are 100 meters in the lot.

A suggestion that un-metered spaces at the fire hall and police station be taken over by the town and metered was turned down by town council Monday night, when it was decided that the firemen and police might have need of this space.

Meantime, council has promised to "consider" changing the town's parking committee, headed up by Lloyd Wenz, to a "parking authority," which would have a much wider scope of activity, with punishment still to be controlled by council.

Death Penalty Is Opposed

TRENTON—Toastmaster Don Wine left no doubt of his opinion on capital punishment when he addressed Quinte Toastmasters at their regular meeting in the Trenton hotel last night.

"There is no justice in putting a man to death," said Mr. Wine in a 14-minute speech in which he traced the death penalty from the Code of Hammurabi on the Nile Delta to the modern days of electric chair and gas chamber.

The Toastmaster cited the case of Adolf Beck, a London cab driver, in which he said there is a case on record in which a man was convicted of a crime that he didn't commit. Timothy Evans was hanged in 1950 for the murder of a woman found buried under the floor of a London house. Later, more bodies were found in the same house and Evans' body was exhumed to the murders and was cleared.

"This leaves no doubt that the death penalty should be abolished," said Mr. Wine.

VON Campaigns To Raise $5,000 For Its Work

TRENTON — This week the Trenton branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses is conducting a campaign to raise approximately $5,000 to finance the branch's nursing services in the community. The local branch has set out a budget of $9,000 for this year. The town of Trenton gives an annual grant of $3,000 to the branch and some money is realized from public teas, but as the latter fluctuates with the patients' ability to pay VON service is never denied. Some patients pay the full fee charged for home services; some pay half or what they can; others are not able to pay for the service.

Included in the budget are such things as the salaries and upkeep on the nurses' cars, supplies etc. Miss Anne Stewart is in the head of the nursing services in Trenton and she is assisted by Mrs. H. Russell and Mrs. Ida Pringle. During the summer months, a student VON nurse quite often accompanies the nurse on her visits and rounds, assisting where possible. This year, Miss Patricia Hayman, a student nurse from nursing student, spent approximately a month in Trenton, observing VON nurses at work and assisting. During the three summer months, 477 home visits were made by the local VON nursing staff.

Mrs. A. A. Vanderwater and Mrs. Jean Williamson head up the campaign for funds this year. They are assisted by zone captains, who guide the canvassers of door-to-door canvassers; eight for the residential area of the town, Frankford, Glen Miller and Batawa. Mrs. Vanderwater has sent a personal appeal to heads of industry. Letters, pointing out the need for volunteer donations, will be sent out to a special mailing list.

VON nurses, besides carrying out home nursing visits, also conduct well baby and pre-natal clinics in the VON offices and the old CNR station in downtown Trenton and assist at the town's immunization clinics or special emergency clinics.

Other VON activity includes part-time nursing and preventative services at the town's two separate schools and at Hinde and Dauch Paper Company plant.

Gananoque Pastor Heads Presbyterians

By Mrs. M. B. Weese

The Synod of Toronto and Kingston in the Presbyterian Church in Canada meeting in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week represents one of the largest Synods in Canada, includes presbyteries of Prince Edward County to the south, as far as Gananoque to the east, and east and west Toronto; Galt, Kitchener, and Guelph to the west, and from Peterborough to the farthest north as Temiskaming.

Favored with glorious bright October day, the delegates were registering at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, corner of Church and Victoria, with its early century architecture surrounded by tall trees in all the coloring of late autumn.

As hosts to the Synod, which had not met in Belleville for over 30 years, the congregation went all-out in planning the reception and throughout the sessions served fine meals and lunches.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON SESSION

The session opened with a worship service led by the moderator, the Rev. J. E. Waldie, M.A., B.D., assisted by the Rev. S. A. Putnam, moderator of the presbytery of Kingston. Mr. Hayek, organist, presided for the hymn "Breathe on Me, Breath of God."

In a most inspiring address, the moderator dwelt upon the historical progress of the Presbyterian Church in Canada since 1875, which included its building and extension work; its missions in Africa, and the north lands; its work in educating young men and women; exerting influence in the homes and schools for the Master.

He closed with, "Let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author of all good." He urged all members and adherents to be builders of the Church, of which Christ laid the foundation. With more leisure, shorter hours for work, yet the church is neglected. Young people must enlist in church work, with faith, hope and intelligence.

MODERATOR ELECTED

After the qualifications of each nominee were read, the vote was taken, with the Rev. M. C. Young, B.A., of Gananoque, being elected. He was nominated by the Presbytery of Kingston, east and west, Toronto, and Peterborough.

Mr. Young graciously accepted, and installation was extended to Mr. Waldie for his service during his term as moderator.

The Rev. M. C. Young is a graduate of the University of Western Ontario and Knox College, Toronto. He began work in Sarnia and later in Gananoque. He is the son of a minister and became clerk of both Lindsay and Kingston Presbyteries; served on Knox College Board and on several Synod committees, and, is, at present, convener of budget and stewardship for the Synod — a co-op.

EVENING SESSION

The evening session opened with a worship service led by the new moderator, assisted by the Rev. Norman Hutchinson, minister of St. Columbus Church, Belleville. Both gave stirring messages and closed with prayer.

GUEST-SPEAKER

The guest speaker for both is the Reverend David J. Cranston, B.A., S.M.T., minister of Greenhills Community Church, Presbyterian, of Cincinnati, Ohio, who was introduced by Mr. A. C. Muir.

Mr. Cranberger was born in Rochester, New York and is a graduate of Wesleyan University, of Middletown, Connecticut, and of Yale Divinity School. In 1955 he was ordained and became assistant pastor in charge of Christian Education at Bryn Mawr Park Presbyterian Church, Yonkers, N.Y., in 1957. He received the degree of S.M.T. from Union Theological Seminary, and served for a number of years as pastor of a new Presbyterian church which he organized in Saginaw, Michigan, until last spring when he moved to his present charge.

He took as his subject, "An Educated Ministry of the Laity", saying in part: "A church must have young, active workers who must be trained mentally, morally, and physically. It must have men and women who are trained as business; in social adjustments; who learn how to live and be happy with others.

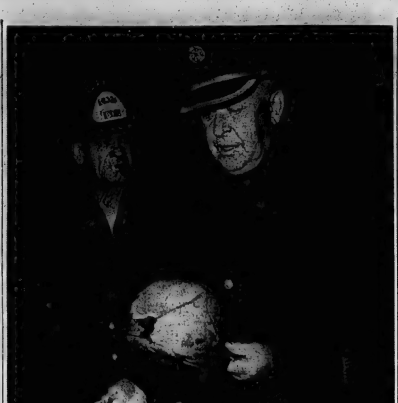
"A church must have men and women and young people who are democratic in thought; must train parents in right living. A church needs trained members to direct programs; and to counteract bad. We must have more love one to another".

The above lecture will continue on Wednesday.

The Mission Committee led in a short devotional period, followed by inspiring messages by the Reverend Malcolm A. Mark, superintendent of missions, and Mrs. Paul Newton, of the W.M.S. synodical, Toronto, which expressed the thought that there is great urgent need for recruits in missions; for men educated in trades and professions to teach those in foreign lands to help themselves.

Mrs. Newton was thanked by several.

After several recommendations were discussed and received, the meeting adjourned to meet on Wednesday at 9.00 a.m.



HIDDEN MEANING

It was the biggest field ever to contest the Cambridgeshire, first run in 1839. The previous record was in 1851 when Breasley steered his way through the thundering hooves and jostling jockeys to win on Fleeting Moment.

The judge called for a photo to decide second and third places. The photo showed that Hasty Cloud had taken second place by a short head from Bewildroom.

After a flash fire and explosion at the Bakelite plant in Belleville last night, Fire Chief Gerald Vance of the Belleville Fire Department inspected the flame crumpled safety helmet of the man closest the explosion. Captain Stan Pomeroy of the Belleville Fire Department looks on. At least six people were injured in the mishap, four of them seriously burned.

Four Employees of Bakelite Plant Badly Burned in Flash Fire Early Today

Four Employees of the Bakelite plant on No. 2 highway just east of this city, were rushed to the Belleville General Hospital early this morning when a fire, which was reported to have caused an explosion, broke out on the bottom floor of the plant. Reports of an explosion however have not been confirmed by plant officials.

Taken to hospital was Donald Clarke, 37, Terry Hedges 26, Merle Brant and Joe Langevin. All but Mr. Langevin have been transferred to the Toronto General Hospital.

Reports this morning indicated Brant suffered burns to about 95 per cent of his body, while another man was said to have received 35 per cent burns.

A plant official said the flash fire had been caused by a spark which flew from a piece of electrical equipment being used in the area. He said there was no damage and that the department was back into operation within a half of the fire. There were about six employees in the department at the time.

The plant manager, Mr. G. A. Bradford, in a statement to the press early this morning, said a reactor in the resin department caught fire. The latest report from Mr. R. C. Wilkes, production superintendent said inflammable material being removed from the reactor or still, caught fire. He stated there was no fire in the reactor.

The four men were thought to have been working in the area of the reactor when the fire broke out. Several other employees were injured but did not require hospitalization.

THREE FROM CITY

Three of the men are from Belleville, and the fourth is a resident of Deseronto.

The plant, a division of Union Carbide of Canada Limited, manufactures phenolic plastic, a type of resin used for manufacturing purposes.

They were met on the outskirts of Toronto by Metropolitan Toronto police who escorted the three ambulances to the Toronto General Hospital. A nurse accompanied each of the injured men to Toronto.

One ambulance, preparing to leave Belleville caught fire and two ambulances from Trenton were sent to take its place.

The alarm was turned into the local fire department at approximately 12.20 a.m. men and four trucks responded to the call.

The plant has about 160 employees.

First of Safety Seminars Is Held by Highways Dept. With Provincial Police Here

Although it has been proven repeatedly that the human element is responsible for the high majority of motor vehicle accidents, safety officers of the Ontario Highways Department are working in closer co-operation with the Provincial Police as they seek out suggestions that could reduce the ever-increasing accident rate.

To that end Department safety experts plan to hold traffic seminars with provincial police officers in the various districts.

The idea is to hear suggestions from officers regarding highway conditions and signs which might reduce the accident rate.

FIRST SEMINAR HERE

The first of such seminars was held at the Belleville Provincial Police Headquarters yesterday with senior traffic officers from detachments at Belleville, Picton, Madoc and Bancroft being brought in to discuss highway safety with department safety officials.

From Mahony, highway safety officer with the Ontario Department of Highways, headed up the meeting, with Kenneth Williams, regional traffic engineer from Kingston, leading the discussion.

Other highway officials attending included Tim Garthshore, department traffic analyst at Kingston; Alan Hay, Kingston district highway engineer, and Ronald Thompson, county engineer for Prince Edward County.

Mr. Mahony noted that the work of his department had formerly been carried out from Toronto headquarters, but now regions had been set up in Kingston and in Western Ontario.

This would result in safety engineers working in closer relation with police. The move was expected to be beneficial.

If the Belleville seminar proves successful it was expected such traffic safety meetings would be held in other parts of the province.

ACCIDENTS INCREASE

Mr. Mahony told the meeting that the number of August this year highway accidents were increased 8.1 per cent and fatal accidents were up 8.7 per cent over the same month last year.

The number of drivers in the same period was up 7.4 per cent and the number of vehicle registrations was up 2.5 per cent.

He noted that the biggest increase in auto accidents was on county roads. Higher speed on main highways was cited as a factor in the accident rate as most accidents occurred in 50-mile zones.

It has been proven in approximately 30 per cent of accidents that drinking had been a factor.

"It is still a matter of education if accidents are to be reduced," stated Mr. Mahony.

Placement of stop signs for "yield" signs for "yield" and "merge" signs on controlled access roads and highway markings were some of the subjects discussed at yesterday's meeting.

STOP AT WRONG SPOT

Emerging from the discussions was the fact that a great many motorists have the habit of stopping at the "stop" sign rather than at the intersection which the sign is intended to protect.

Accident frequency at certain intersections and dangerous highway sections were also discussed with the opinion of officers being asked as to what they felt would help in eliminating some of the mishaps.

The advantages of the recently introduced "kink" in secondary roads as they intersect provincial highways was discussed.

Contrary to the general opinion the "kink" was not placed primarily to slow down traffic but to bring the intersecting road in to the intersection at a right angle, to provide visibility both right and left.

Slowing down the traffic as it approached the intersection was an added benefit.

Winter Works Program Given To Commitee

Belleville municipal projects, portions of which may be approved for subsidy under the municipal works program, were outlined yesterday at a meeting of the city and district winter works committees.

Attending the meeting were chairman George Whitman, Cecil Hiuser and Vernon Munroe from the employment office, City Manager J. R. Reynolds, Fred Barton and Herbert Pelmer.

The committee is in the "plan now" phases of its winter works program which gets underway at the end of October.

Projects listed by City Manager Reynolds, portions of which may be approved under the winter works program, included the proposed North Front Street vehicular bridge, sanitary sewer laterals and other miscellaneous items.

Former Pastor Anniversary Preacher Here

Victoria Avenue Baptist Church observes its 75th anniversary this Sunday, October 21, with the former pastor, Rev. Keith Daniel, now of Kingston, as guest preacher. Mr. Daniel will preach at both the 11.00 o'clock and 7.30 o'clock services.

Baptists first organized a church in Bellville in 1826 with twenty three members. The first church building stood on the corner of Moira and Coleman Streets and was dedicated in 1875. The present structure on the corner of Pinnacle and Victoria avenue was completed in 1908.

There will be on display in the vestibule of the church a line drawing depicting Belleville in 1876. The picture includes a directory to the public buildings of that day and is of considerable historic interest.

ROME (Reuters)—Four light earth tremors were felt in the Spoleto area of central Italy today. No casualties or damage were reported. About 20,000 people spent the night in the open after a shock rocked the area of Ariano Irpino in southern Italy, where an earthquake caused deaths and serious damage last August.

Well Out of It

Events of the last few months in connection with Cuba, says Jack Best, Canadian Press writer, have strengthened the hand of those who want Canada to stay out of the Organization of American States. Membership, these opponents argue, would embroil Canada in the seemingly endless squabbles in Latin American countries. Proponents of membership argue that Canada will be involved in any case, and might as well have a proper say in determining OAS policy.

We think the latter argument weak. Canadian influence would be slight, if not nonexistent. What would actually happen would be we would weaken the possibility that, at some later date, we may be able to fill a useful role. Hon. Howard Green, Canada's Minister of External Affairs, has gone on record as saying that Canada will join the OAS—some time. There can be no quarrel with such a policy—providing the move is not made for a long time, which is precisely what Ottawa observers now predict.

Great reforms are needed in South America. There extremes of great wealth and the direst poverty exist in most countries. There is scant evidence to promote the hope these reforms will be achieved peacefully. Revolutions appear inevitable. But as long as the U.S. and Russia are engaged in an ideological struggle for world supremacy, the U.S. is likely to favor the status quo in these lands, to oppose revolutions, while the communists will support and, indeed, actively promote them. Neither side will be acting primarily from a real concern for the welfare of the Latin American masses.

If the Cold War ever ends, the U.S. may change its attitude. Then, in spite of the fact that its business interests are a target for the radical movements, the U.S. Government may follow a policy of picking and choosing between revolutions, providing some backing for, or at least not opposing, those it believes led by people of high principle, while helping to check the ambitions of would-be exploiters. Then will be the time for Canada to join the OAS and endeavor to influence decisions. To join today, though, would provide us with the dilemma of quarreling with our great neighbor or blindly following its present policy which, in spite of its great and generous program of economic aid, is almost more a liability than an asset in the hemisphere, at any price, than in helping the peoples of these lands to achieve their rights, by whatever means may be necessary.

Would Raise Improve Service?

A seven-year-old Toronto girl drowned Thursday, in seven feet of Lake Ontario water, with a Toronto police constable watching. The constable could not swim.

Friday, the Metropolitan Police Association published a half-page advertisement in the Globe and Mail, asking the people for the salary raise of about 45 per cent the policemen had been refused by Metro. In its advertisement, the Police Association mentioned the formula used to determine a first class constable's worth in England. It was based on the average wage of skilled tradesmen, with additions.

The Toronto constable who "couldn't swim" may or may not have been a first class constable. He was certainly not a skilled tradesman, in a city with two rivers and many miles of lakefront, if he could not swim.

The Police Association thinks policemen deserve a raise, and they may be right. But they would have a better platform on which to base their claim if they made certain, first, that all their members were fully trained in all the skills that might help them, someday, to save a life.

"The Welsh in London keep their identity and ensure their solidarity by frequent reference to, and indulgence in, the Welsh emotions. There are two of these, and their names are hwyl and hiereath. Hwyl is a kind of fervor or controlled hysteria. It is a noisy emotion, and a man in the grip of hwyl can be recognized by his glittering eyes, his tousled hair, and his frantic fists beating rhythmically on the table or some other convenient object . . . Hiereath is a kind of maudlin, blown-up nostalgia, and is very commonly found in the London Welsh because it is their own emotion. You have to be away from Wales to feel it, and it takes the form of a generalized yearning for anything and everything Welsh, from Caernarvon Castle to lava bread. (Lava bread is the only true Welsh food. It is made from seaweed)."—Andrew Davies, himself a Welshman, speaking on the BBC about his efforts to avoid enthusiastically "national" fellow-countrymen in London.

Russian Policy

New York Times

The cold war originated June 5, 1944, the eve of the Normandy invasion, when Stalin told a Kremlin dinner party: "This war is not as in the past; whoever occupies a territory also imposes on it its own social system. Everyone imposes his own system as far as army can reach. It cannot be otherwise." This may still be considered a keystone of Soviet foreign policy whose methods have been "destalinized" by Khrushchev but whose essential philosophy remains.

Strictly Personal

To Be Human Full Time Job For Men

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The great difference between all the rest of the animal world and mankind has nothing to do with the opposable thumb, the gift of speech, or the ability to change the environment.

What is profoundly and basically different is that becoming "human beings" is not natural to us; it is a lifelong task, requiring constant discipline, practice, and sacrifice. It means surmounting ourselves.

Ortega y Gasset, one of the seminal thinkers of our time, has put it well in his long essay "Man the Technician" when he points out that "to all other entities of the universe, existence presents no problem . . . A bull, if he exists, exists as a bull."

On the contrary, "for a man to exist does not mean to exist at once as the man he is, but merely that there exists a possibility of what he will succeed, accomplishing this. Who of us is all he should be and all he could be? . . . In contrast to the rest of creation, man, in existing, has to make his existence."

What each of us calls "my life," Ortega says, is a pure task, "a thing inexorably to be made. A thing that is not as a present; I have to make it."

It is only in the light of this concept that we can believe it to be a true one — that much of human behavior and human history can be understood. For most of what we call "human history" consists in the refusal to be human.

Wars, tyrannies, persecutions, corruptions — these are the traditional ways in which society lies as a group resist humanization. On the personal level, we as individuals resist it by indulging in our appetites as ends in themselves, and not merely as means to a human end.

We will do anything rather than become truly human, because it is the hardest job we can imagine. Unlike the bull, who is finished when he exists, we have an immense capacity to rise above the biological level, to spoil it, to pervert it, to fail, to be passive; but this task frightens us, and we retreat into passivity and prejudice, as the Germans under Hitler cast off a thousand years of intellectual growth and withdrew into the zoological slime.

Man is not a "natural" creature in the sense that all others are. His existence is problematic; he is what he does. And his whole life is a program for action: to find those possibilities which most fully express his human condition.

History, whether in Munich or in Mississippi, reveals how mankind shrinks away from becoming human. It is easy for us to believe in God; what is hard, devilishly hard, for most people is to believe in humanity.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 17th, 1942

Fish were really biting over the weekend, if reports of local fishermen who experienced some of their best luck of the season are any criterion. City Engineer Charles Mott reports that he and his wife hall comfortably heavy limit stock, while on a fishing trip in the Bay of Quinte near Deseronto, hooked several nice pickerel and bass and topped their afternoon's performance by landing a 23 pound lunge.

Killing two birds with one stone may be an old adage but getting a brace of partridge with one shot is a literal fact for Mr. W. J. Oliphant of Toronto who spent a few days here doing some bird hunting. Seeing a plump partridge strut past an old stump and halt at what appeared to be a stick, Mr. Oliphant let fly with his shotgun. Walking around the stump he was surprised to note that two partridge lay dead. Apparently the stick that he had seen was the 'mate' of the first bird.

Local friends of Flying Officer J. M. S. Crichton of Chapleau, Ont., recognized his picture in the Saturday night's edition of the Ontario Intelligencer when it appeared included as a group of Canadian and United States flyers grouped around a Kittyhawk fighter plane stationed in the Middle East. Flying Officer Crichton is a brother-in-law of Miss Shiels of Ann Street, Belleville and attended the Belleville Collegiate. He is a member of the RCAF serving with the Shark-tooth Squadron in the Middle East.

We were informed today by a local butcher that meats are dropping in price and he predicted a further slump in prices. Beef carcasses bring seven cents in nine cents per pound and "critters" sell for three cents to four cents per pound. It is expected that hogs will be down another fifty cents in a day or two. Mutton is off to thirteen cents to fifteen cents and lamb sixteen cents to eighteen cents. Poultry is included in the drop. Four-pound birds bring eighteen cents and five-pounders bring twenty cents per pound.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack O'Brien have taken up residents here and he will be the manager of the J. A. McNabb Company's women's ready-to-wear store which is now opening here.

North East Frontier

Welland Evening Tribune

India and Red China are at odds over the North East Frontier Agency, the political designation for a strange, wild area bordering Bhutan, Tibet, mainly-held Tibet, and Burma.

The Agency covers some 33,000 square miles in Indian state of Assam. Indians charged recently that Chinese Communist troops have made incursions into it. The Chinese claim large sections of the region, where dense forests and mountain ranges hamper the fixing of a boundary.

Tucked between the plain of the Brahmaputra River and the Himalayas are subtropical jungles where sunlight barely penetrates, fertile mountain valleys, foothills, and peaks. The National Geographic Society says. Some hillsides still bear scars from the tremendous earthquake that rocked the area in 1950.

Much of the Agency is a huge game preserve, abounding in buffalo, elephant, tiger, leopard, and various deer. In one of the few remaining haunts of the Indian rhinoceros.

* * *

The North East Frontier Agency also is the homeland of more than 30 primitive tribes that have lived in relative and undisturbed for centuries in the same hills and valleys. Anthropologists say that several unknown tribes dwell in the more remote parts of the Agency.

The hill people hunt, fish, and practice a restricted form of cultivation called jhoom, in which forest growth is burned and seeds scattered in the warm ash. The only implements are axes and daggers.

Such simple agriculture is insufficient to feed the aborigines; they seldom have enough food to last them through the year. Thus they lead a semi-nomadic life, moving on to new off new plots and plant crops.

Many tribes are ruled by women in which men have equal status with their husbands. Polyandry, a great Indian epic written 2,000 years ago, described the tribesmen as practicing polyandry well — among the mountains of the east — who live on wild fruits and roots and are clad in the skins of beasts, proud of the bows they bear and cruel in their deeds."

* * *

Among the gentler peoples are the Apa-Tanis, who live in valleys among the Daflo Hills. The men often put on ceremonial tails made of split cane dyed a brilliant red. The women tattoo their faces, force bamboo plugs into their nostrils, and wear large bamboo earrings. By primitive standards, the Apa-Tanis are good farmers. They grow rice in irrigated fields, and cultivate millet-and fruit trees.

The Apa-Tanii price white cloth, a kind of shell bowl, which they offer as sacrifices to their gods. The accepted bridal gift often kidnap mithans and hold them for ransom. The warlike Daflas raid Apa-Tanii and enslave the peaceful Apa-Tanis.

Another group of hill people, the Akas, have been cut off by Indian good-will mission several years ago. Their neighbors, the Mikirs, believe in reincarnation, except for anyone unfortunate enough to have been killed by a tiger.

The Indian Government is helping the tribesmen improve their agriculture, develop permanent villages, build roads, and establish markets. At the same time, the Government hopes to preserve the unique character of each tribe.

New Car Look Is Massive

Ottawa Journal

Now that the 1963 cars are being unveiled — any lesser prediction than a massive revolution would be unkind — the public learned that the big cars are a great success. Mammains and Marinets of auto fashion have decided that should be the year of the "massive." That means cars that are massive in appearance but are designed to look longer and wider with fins and protruding fenders. Trends being what they are in automobiling, we may assume it will not be long before the illusion of size is eagerly sought, is supported by actual steel, nickel and glass, painted, glittering and shining.

A lot of us were pleased and said so, when the big cars began to fall in their long year or two ago. Cars became women in appearance. Journalese so much that they threatened to command the market. Packing suddenly seemed easier. New owners boasted more about gasoline mileage than the space in the back seat.

A year ago it seemed a reasonable investment to put away a few examples of king size cars into cold storage, on that future generations could see the lengths to which we were prepared to go. What is in prospect now is a burst of even bigger ones. Compacts and midgets will continue to sell, no doubt about it, but our car modesty was just an interlude and while we are very proud of being Canadians we have an appetite for cars that is more often Texas size than Lilliputian.

Sees Leisure As a Plague

Gait Evening Reporter

The president of the British Medical Society has taken a long look at human illness, and it leaves him melancholy, reports the Hartford Courant. Ian Fraser is a leading surgeon, but is it not so much the trophies of the flesh that disturb him. Speaking at a conference of his colleagues he was able to recite a heartening list of advances in medicine. But he also finds man sickliest o'er is in moral health. Though physicians study how to add to the span of men's lives, men's ethics and manners are pushing them to earlier graves.

"Much of what Mr. Fraser deplores has burdened the cure of souls long past the writer continues. "Selfishness, uncleanness, indulgence, a host of disloyalties between men and against their Creator, are sickest sickness." The glamor of the world tempts men to rationalism, delinquency, broken homes, disdain of religious beliefs, including the more modern sound as Mr. Fraser tells them off. But an ailment ever more prevalent it will affect more people than ever before, is the plack plague of leisure. Too steadily relishing work week will mightily contribute to what Mr. Fraser calls the number of leisure-stricken, and it affrights him.

"The British doctor is not so worried about the influence of executive or management illness, or the philosophers, beatniks, and tramps. It is the complaints of the over-tense neuroses leading to breakdown. There is a peculiar sadness in such prophecy. The compulsion to work can often be seen as a mystique, embodied in the old Puritan ethic. And as Mr. Fraser sees, leisure will pull the house down about the head of such a man."

Histoplasmosis Thought to Be Rare

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Was Once

Dear Dr. Molner: My ten-year-old daughter has histoplasmosis. It was found through an X-ray after an accident. Our doctor says there is no treatment for it, that it is a fungus disease. Could you tell me more about it?

Mrs. J. D.

Your doctor is quite right. In severe cases in which the lungs show cavitation similar to that from tuberculosis, damaged areas may be removed surgically.

In most cases, however, histoplasmosis heals without treatment.

It is of more interest to medical and public health researchers than to the general public, since there isn't much to be done about it yet. We have rarely recently learned that quite a lot of people have the disease unknowingly.

A skin test is available to detect the disease, and this has helped greatly. In a study in Michigan, 3.5 per cent of children in a particular school area were found to have histoplasmosis. Now, we have to find out exactly where and how it is spread, before we can almost completely solved.

Francis and Rebecca Van Tassell came to Messengers Point from Pittsfill, N.Y., in the early 1800's. Eight of their children were born in or around Bellville: John, Frank, Rebecca, William and so on. I need information on them and names (twins) to complete my family tree. John was my grandfather.

Using them in any form causes severe pains in my arms and shoulders. What can be done for this trouble?

R. E.

Many doctors have had experience with this sort of problem. Whether it's nylon, or rayweed, or cow's milk, or nickel plated metal, or brown bandles, or eggs or wheat or strawberries, something is allergic. I could name a thousand or several-thousand other things, because there are millions of people, and thousands of materials, and millions of cases in which somebody is allergic to something.

The usual results of allergy are redness, rash, itching or swelling, rather than pain. If you wear Nylon shirts and your shoulders hurt, I suspect that an idea, or intuition of some sort, is at work, rather than a true allergy. But the actions of allergy are not very predictable.

Wear clothes that are made of silk, cotton, wool, or linen. (Some of these, especially wool, can cause allergy.) Then you can pinpoint any particular fabric, if you have your problems at least half solved, and maybe almost completely solved.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A new-Canadian friend of mine is an expert carpenter and cabinet maker who is having a little difficulty with the English language.

His favorite topic is "remodeling." He has just finished an excellent trade in "remodelling" some of his older houses in town. Actually, he does an expert and imaginative job. But his best effort, I suspect to me, has been in introducing a dandy new word into our contemporary vocabulary. For when some of our town planners go to work to remodel old houses, and when our traffic experts proceed to remodel our principal thoroughfares, they succeed only in "remodelling". And certainly not a great many of us have been faced with the job of remodelling our summer cottages, most of which require drastic—surgery after a few years, come up with some remarkable muddles.

A newspaper colleague recently bought a summer cottage of the vintage of about 1920. He got it at a very reasonable price, figuring to remodel it to present-day standards. But the more he remodelled, the more discovered, was going to cost him to get it back to the beginning. So he is going to spend his vacation doing the "remodelling" of it, and it is now to be a masterpiece.

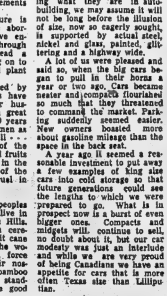
No Age Limit



Charlottetown Guardian

Love knows no age limit. Of the estimated 4,000,000 marriages in the United States in 1958, there were about 2,000 in which the bride, the groom, or both were 65 years of age or older.

The figures, reported by the U.S. department of health, education and welfare, also show a surprising tendency toward an increasing age difference with advancing age." Ten per cent of the over-65 grooms married women 25 or more years younger.

Annual Trek To Toronto Much Enjoyed

About sixty members and wives of the local ANAF unit boarded a bus and cars for their annual trek to Toronto with high hopes in their hearts of winning a goodly share of the trophies presented for the various events.

It was a lovely fall day and old Mother Nature had clothed herself in the glorious colors of autumn. The members really enjoyed the scenery and themselves on the trip and entered the city in optimistic spirits envisaging a successful and pleasant weekend with their hosts.

Due to unavoidable absence of president Cec Brown, vice-president Stan Melbourne, who is also sports chairman, led the Belleville contingent. The cordial president, Jimmy Brennan, of the 48th Club and the members gave all an enthusiastic welcome and after getting rested and cleaned up, the serious business of the trip was started. It was a well organized affair and everything ran smoothly but as return after return rolled in the faces of the Belleville teams assumed a rosy hue. After the smoke of battle was cleared it was clear that our teams had been clobbered in no uncertain terms, the worst in the history of these annual sporting events since they were started a number of years ago. Out of approximately a dozen trophies we had only won one and that one was won by a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Helen Branton, for high three darts.

However, after a refreshing pause and a sumptuous banquet, the members' spirits started to bounce back and vows of vengeance for their defeat were heard on all sides. After the presentations were made Stan Melbourne congratulated the winners and told Jimmy Brennan to keep the trophies well polished as they would look nice next summer when they would grace our trophy case after the 48th had played their annual return engagement with us.

Comrade Charlotte Clark presented the Charlotte Trophy to the winner and expressed the hope she would be able to present the trophy next year. To show she was not disheartened, when the dance started after the banquet, she danced the twist with 48th President Jimmy Brennan, amidst the applause of the spectators. She will be 88 in November. Music and entertainment was supplied by the 48th Pipe Band who had been doing the same chore for the Toronto-Boston game, assisted by a great Judy entertainer. Events of the day were ruled by Bob Nicholson, sports chairman of the 48th. President Jimmy Brennan said they would certainly keep the trophies in good shape as they expected to take them all back to Toronto after the meeting next summer, which was received by good-natured ribbing from the Bellevillians.

All good things must come to an end, though, and after a thoroughly enjoyable weekend our contingent embussed for home, slightly chastened but looking forward to being hosts to the 48th next summer and determined it would not be so one sided in the matter of winners next year.

Stan Melbourne thanked one and all for their friendly and hospitable time shown to the visitors and hoped we would equal it when the 48th visited us.

The defeated but not dispirited sportsmen arrived back in Belleville with the resolution to go into serious training for the coming summer so as to get revenge for their stunning defeat.

Six-year-old Mark Albert, of Belleville, reaches for another candied fig during the children's party in honor of Jacob Synagogue Succah, yesterday, to celebrate the Festival of Succoth. The fruit is symbolic of the harvest time, and all the fruit at the feast yesterday was grown in Israel.

Picton — Will Dredge Harbor at Premier

PICTON — The harbor used by fishermen and pleasure craft at Point Traverse is to be dredged, Douglas Aikenbrack, M.P., stated yesterday. The tender of McIntosh Bros. of Milford has been accepted. The low bidder tendered on 3,000 wards at $1.32 per yard.

It is important that dredging be done in this harbor as it is the centre of an important industry, Mr. Aikenbrack stated. He pointed out that, increasing numbers of pleasure craft use the facilities there, as cottages are being built by many.

Mr. Aikenbrack also advised that he had been informed by the Department of National Defence that, contrary to rumors, the training area at Point Peter will be retained. New ranges are being built there.

A small group of 1st Canadian Guards has arrived in Picton and Mr. Aikenbrack stated that by the end of November, most of the 800 men would be at Camp Picton, after service in Germany.

Hebrew Children Feasted In Temporary Tabernacle In Celebration of 'Succoth'

The Hebrew High School, and the afternoon Hebrew School students of the Sons of Jacob Synagogue, yesterday feasted in the "Succah," or temporary tabernacle, on the synagogue grounds, in celebration of the Festival of the Succoth.

The eight-day holiday began Oct. 12, partially in commemoration of the Israelite march out of Egypt, partially as a harvest time festival and partially as a Season of Rejoicing.

The Succah itself is a partial shelter, reminiscent of the tabernacles built at encampments during the exodus. One distinguishing feature is that the roof is composed of tree branches, tightly interwoven, to symbolize man's dependence on God for protection.

Of the eight-day holiday, the first two are full scale Holy Days. The four following days are half holidays. On the seventh day, Hoshana Rabbah, special prayers are recited for rain in Palestine, and the eighth day is another full Holy Day.

The whole holiday will be over for adults after Oct. 20, but the feast provided for the children at the synagogue, in the Succah, yesterday, was the high point for the children.

401 Road From Napanee to Odessa to Open

Contrary to early season expectations, only the Odessa to Napanee section of the 401 highway "missing link" between Markdale and Odessa will be opened this fall.

Alan Hay, Kingston division engineer, engineer, said in Belleville yesterday that the Odessa to Napanee section of the highway would be opened this fall, but that the section from Wyman's sideroad to Napanee would have to wait until next year.

To allow for by-passing of Napanee a temporary access road is being prepared west of the town along what is known as the drive-in theatre road.

Only the south lane of 401 between Napanee and Odessa has been paved.

"You are wrong," replied Mr. Bank.

Mr. Justice Norris added:

"I suppose we must accept the proposition, as you put it, that disaster would have to happen before you do anything about it."

1859 Penny Found in Olive Street Garden

Money gets lost, and money gets found, but in most cases, decline and the finding of it occurs in the same century, at least. W. Rymer, of 11 Olive St., Belleville, proved the rule yesterday when he dug up an 1859 penny in his back yard.

Two days returned from a family visit in Great Britain, Mr. Rymer, a retired CNR engineer was digging in his garden, preparing it for the winter, when he found a coin. Old as it is, the penny is not very valuable. (there were more than nine and a half million of them minted), but the find is unusual. To Mr. Rymer finding was "as much fun as finding pirate gold."

HEALTH PROGRESS

There were only 93 cases of diphtheria in Canada in 1961, of whom five died.

CLUB

hearing Oct. 11, but this was adjourned indefinitely because of Mr. Cudney's presence at the inquiry. Police report it is a hangout for gamblers and thugs.

6. The file on Toronto's Acme Card and Social Club, closed this year for illegal gaming, has been missing from the provincial secretary's department since February, 1960.

Following a motion of Mr. Cudney, Liberal party counsel Willard Estey declared there has been "fundamental misuse" of club charters. Licences which had fallen into disuse had been revived by new owners—sometimes with the purchase price becoming known to the police.

However, he said, instead of using its power to cancel charters which had become subject to forfeiture through disuse, the authorities had allowed them to be placed in operation until gambling convictions eventually rendered them liable to revocation again.

Mr. Estey said it was apparent "various pressures" had been brought to bear on officials, either to slow down cancellation procedures or to issue letters patent.

'Goof Ball Addict Loses All Sense of Moral Values' States Quebec Medicolegal Expert

The September meeting of the WCTU was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Coulter, who presided. The meeting was opened with a prayer of dedication to the work of this country and for help to do according to the will of the Heavenly Father. Mrs. Coulter hoped the WCTU would not lose heart if its efforts were not rewarded. Scripture was read from Isaiah 5:20 and Proverbs 23:6.

The clip sheet, "Drug Addiction," was presented by Mrs. Way, assisted by Mrs. Pearson worth, Miss Barnum and Mrs. Hubbie.

The World Health Organization defines drug addiction as a state of periodic or chronic intoxication, produced by the repeated consumption of a drug (natural or synthetic). A more simple definition may be "An addict is a person who feels 'normal' on drugs."

Food is one of nature's sedatives, plus, like many wild and domestic animals, become relaxed, drowsy and relatively inactive following a good meal. Some people eat in attempt to relieve anxiety, and become addicted to food.

The oldest and still most common chemical used to relieve anxiety is alcohol. It provides a relief of tension; gives a feeling of warmth and relaxation that spreads throughout the body. This can be an extremely pleasant feeling. Habitual users of alcohol as a Sedatiliizer, become alcoholics, with all the physical, social and economic complications of that condition.

WONDER DRUGS

As time went on man discovered more and more compounds to enable him to shut out the terrifying results of the world. Each was called "a wonder drug" and had debirable qualities: relief from pain and anxiety and the production of sleep.

In the 19th Century such anxiety allaying drugs as a substance of bromide and chloral hydrate were discovered. When added to alcohol the result was known as a "Mickey Fin."

The barbiturates, which are the most common sleeping pill today, were discovered in the 20th Century. These have contributed to medical advance greatly. They are also sold illegally at 10 to 25 cents a capsule and are called "goof balls."

SERIOUS PROBLEM

The use of "goof balls" has become a serious problem and concern in some Canadian cities among teen agers. Strict control over these drugs is needed to protect them. The government introduced a law against them in May, 1961.

What really are "goof balls?" They are capsules of drugs that are innocent in the normally prescribed quantities, violently intoxicating in larger amounts. Some are made of barbituates commonly sold as sleeping pills. Others are amphetamines, stimulants of the nervous system, like benzedrine.

GOOF BALLS

Two drugs that sound like opposites and medically are. The Doctor will prescribe them for precisely opposite uses; sedative and stimulant. Some "goof balls" are a mixture of the two while others contain tranquilizers. Almost always they are taken by mouth. In order to enhance the effect, some addicts first take an aspirin.

Dr. Jean Marie Roussel, medicolegal expert of the Quebec Provincial Government says: "The goof ball" addict loses all sense of moral values and this effect is even more marked in juveniles than in adults".

H. David Archibald, executive director of the Ontario Government Research Foundation said: "We simply do not know how widespread the addiction to barbiturates is, but I believe it is a very large problem which should be tackled immediately".

Police attempting to cope with this spreading menace, have been hamstrung by a lack of Legislation. Goof balls did not come under the Narcotic Act. The police did not have authority to handle it. This gap will now be plugged to a certain extent at least, by the new amendment to the Food and Drug Act.

PENALTY FOR TRAFFICKING

Henceforth anyone found with possession of either barbiturate or amphetamines will have to prove that he came by it legally. Trafficking in the drugs or the possession of them for the purpose of trafficking will carry a penalty up to ten years in prison. Whether this will be sufficient to put a stop to a very widespread and immensely profitable business remains to be seen.

Many of these drugs become so widespread that an occasional druggist is willing to commit a crime for a high profit.

According to T. D. E. Greenfield, Chief Inspector of Ontario School for Psychopaths, supplies are often obtained by cleverly forged prescriptions.

Inspector Greenfield states that customers include 'steel fiend' addicts, who buy the tranquilizers as baby - sitters. Several children have been admitted to the hospital suffering from barbitric poisoning.

The recently "goof ball" plague, as Montreal officials see it, is education of both the addicts and teachers. Families should have some anxiety when their children come under some strange influence.

"If citizens would become concerned", says Social Welfare Judge J. J. Penverne, we might get somewhere".

Ontario WHA To Hold 52 Convention

The Women's Hospital Auxiliaries Association of Ontario will hold their 52nd annual convention at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, October 29th, 30th and 31st in conjuction with that of the Ontario Hospital Association of which it is a special section.

The full program, arranged by Mrs. W. Smolkin, program convener, included, Round Table discussions for many aspects "of 'Volunteer Work', 'Joint Meeting' with the Ontario Hospital Association as well as 'Counselling Sessions'. The Belleville General Hospital Auxiliary will participate in the project parade, Mrs. M. Jones, Mrs. E. Beeby and Mrs. J. W. Cavers are putting on a skit, "No Nudes is Good News at this time". Mrs. R. E. Bentley will also attend convention as a member of the Public Relations Committee. There will be a W.H.A.A. Exhibit in Salon A, Convention Floor.

Although the Association is only '23 years old, Auxiliaries have been active in Ontario since 1865. Since World War II, their numbers have increased with astonishing rapidity, as hospitals grow and their services increase to provide better patient care, the invaluable value of hospital Auxiliaries becomes more and more important.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

THE PROS AND CONS OF INTRODUCTIONS

When one man is introduced to another, automatically they shake hands. With a woman it's different, and often, whether meeting a man or another woman, she's not quite sure whether she should shake hands or simply acknowledge the introduction with a nod and a sultable greeting.

A very effersevent, out-going woman might prefer to give a warm handshake to everyone she meets. But for those who are a little more reticent and tend to be more cautious in their approach to new acquaintances, here's a simple rule of thumb: Generally, when a man is being introduced to a woman, the decision of whether or not to shake hands depends on the woman. When acknowledging the introduction, she usually smiles and bows slightly, but she may offer her hand if she wants to. However, if the man should offer his hand first — and this happens quite often — the woman should graciously shake it so that he won't feel embarrassed or rebuffed.

When one woman greets another another indecision is added, and there's a matter of age for starting to be considered. Correctly, a younger woman is presented to one who is older, in this manner, thus is an improper for the younger woman to offer her hand first. Instead, she should be the first to take the actions of the woman who is her senior. If she extends her hand, the younger woman then clasps it. But if she just bows or nods, the younger woman follows suit.

By the same token, a woman who is introduced to another woman who is an important personage, even though she may be about the same age or younger, should take her cue from the actions of the woman VIP.

When a woman is a hostess in her own home, there's no problem involved. As each guest arrives, she extends her hand to both men and women as a welcoming gesture before ushering them in to meet the others.

A woman on a receiving line — even if she's not actually the one who is giving the party, but is acting officially — is still an acting-hostess in some respect, so she correctly shakes hands with each arrival. If, however, a feminine member of the receiving line is also acting as a real Pamilla Bear were shown, also 'Tibetan refugees. On to the New Delhi where they met the elephants and dromedary camels.

When a woman is being introduced to a group, she smiles her greetings and doesn't offer each her hand, since this prolongs the introductions and can become quite cumbersome for everyone involved. .

If table manners are concerned, it's not necessary for a woman to remove them before shaking hands, and she definitely should keep them on when going through a receiving line.

Delightful Travelogue Viewed At Anglican Church Hall

ROSLIN — On Thursday evening an interesting travelogue was given by Mrs. Jack Parrott, of Belleville, in the Anglican Church Hall, sponsored by the Women's Institute.

Last fall, Mr. and Mrs. Parrott took a 75 day conducted tour around the world, via air. Leaving Toronto, they travelled westerly 40,000 miles. They were up and down 35 times and on 20 different airlines.

Their first stop was in Hawaii, where they saw many banana trees which are cut down after they produce fruit; pineapple plants; 16,000 to an acre, with two crops grown every three years, and sugar cane.

Visitors are given leis on arriving. Wake Island is all military. Then on to Tokyo, which is nearly all a new city as 80 per cent was bombed. There were pictures of rice fields and tea plants in Yamuraga Shrine and a number of beautiful Temples. Of interest was a rope of human hair which was used in the building of these temples, before they had the heap rope of steel. Also a bell, 1,200 years old at Nepal; a bronze which has stood 500 years in the open. To Formosa, Hong Kong, where 2,000,000 are living on tops of buildings, and a new apartment building where one room will be given to each family of 11 to 15, to help the terrible shortage of an old walled city.

SHOPPERS PARADISE

Hong Kong — shoppers Paradise. The rickshaw is still used as a means of travel. The Japanese, where 20,000 live in one small harbor. A sampan is a small houseboat.

In the Philippines, there are the water buffalo, which have the United Nations building where east meets west.

On to Calcutta, India. There are no burials here, everyone is cremated and the ashes put in the Ganges River.

Nepal, Mount Everest and the Temple of Stages, 700 years old, coins and pictures of and a real Pamilla Bear were shown, also 'Tibetan refugees. On to the New Delhi where they met the elephants and dromedary camels.

The TajMahal which was started in 1631 and which took 17 years to build is mostly marble.

The Mogul Gardens and Emperor's Gardens at Kashmir are centuries old: Madias is much like Miami. Scenes were shown of Ceylon some rice planting; the Botanical Gardens, the man-made lake, at Candy and the American Embassy and president's palace in India.

They also saw Madam Pandit and spoke with her and looked over the mountains of Cashmere; over Bombay and the TajMahal Hotel, one of the most beautiful in the world.

Next Cairo and its museums were visited and some of the places were Old Cairo; Mahamid Ali Church; ex-King Farouk's summer home; many camels and drivers; the pyramids and sphinx and on to Jerusalem.

As they had been in Arab country they could not go straight into Israel but had to stay on the Jordan side. They saw the Mount of Olives and crossing to the Jerusalem side they visited the garden of Gethesamene the Golden Gate which the Crusaders closed 500 years ago and St. Stephen's Gate which is the only one open to traffic; the Judgment House; Dolorosa, the way of the cross and Christ's tomb.

They saw Jesus ass are still used and a wooden plow. The trip to Jericho showed Eliaha's well; the Jordan; water from Jericho; the River Jordan; the Dead Sea, which is salt and the lowest point on earth. 20,000 scrolls were found and also Jacob's well.

They went on to Lebanon and by bus to Damascus, which is both an old and modern city, with the United Nations and Turkey where they saw a museum which is 1,400 years old. They visited Toledo and saw its white buildings, the Alcazar Prison; also Lisbon and Portugal said to be the nicest in the world and visited the room where the book of Corinthians was written. From here they visited Albens which is a very clean city and also saw the Olympic Stadium built in the 1800's.

They travelled by plane to Geneva and then on to Madrid and from there to Toronto where they motored back to Belle.

Following the travelogue lunch was served and a social time was enjoyed.

'Your Voice Is You' Topic At BPW Meet

On Monday evening, at the Belmont Club Rooms, the Belleville Business and Professional Women held their monthly meeting.

This week has been proclaimed "Business Women's Week" in the city of Belleville. Members of the local club had just returned from the 17th annual conference held at the Royal Edward Hotel in Windsor, Ontario.

Miss Florence Fitzgerald, president, and Miss Jean Stephenson gave an interesting commentary on highlights of their trip and the conference.

GUEST AND SPEAKER

Miss Hazel Smith introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Miss Margaret Bakay, assistant chief operator of the Belleville Bell Telephone Company. Miss Bakay's topic for the evening was "Your Voice is You". How does one sound when using the telephone? Not only way you are known over the telephone is by your voice.

Change your voice just as you might change your dress or hair style to impress people. Put your best voice forward at all times.

Mrs. Bakay played voice recordings and pictures with the picture persons behind the different voices. Simply let your voice betray your emotions. Mrs. Bakay pointed out the proper way one should speak into a telephone; where to be clearly not with a shrill voice and have the mouthpiece in the proper position at all times.

Mrs. Irene Haig, on behalf of the club members, thanked Mrs. Bakay for speaking on this interesting topic.

Weddings

WHITE — WANNAMAKER

Calvary Temple, Belleville, was the scene of a recent very pretty wedding when Elizabeth Anne Wannamaker, of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. Ross Wannamaker, of Belleville, and the late Mr. Wannamaker, became the bride of Lloyd Everett White, of Corbyville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett White. The Reverend Laurie Price, pastor of the church, officiated before a lovely background of pink white and blue gladioli. White satin bows marked the guest pews.

The Reverend Joseph Tubby provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Keith Goodman, who sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer," and during the signing of the register, "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Ray Maxwell, of Belleville, was radiant in her nylon taffeta bridal gown featuring a fitted bodice with scalloped neckline of Chantilly lace accented with sequins, and long, lily-point sleeves. The full skirt was enhanced by an overskirt of Chantilly lace points. She wore a coronet of sequins and seed pearls and elbow length veil of silk illusion tulle, and carried a bouquet of red carnations mingled with fern, and tied with white satin streamers.

She was attended by Miss Diane Wolfe, of Belleville, as maid of honor, and by Miss Sharon Wannamaker, of Belleville, and Miss Janice Pyrz, of Plainfield, as bridesmaids. All were gowned in nylon lace over taffeta, with white accessories, and matching headdresses of carried bouquets of yellow mums tied with white streamers. Single strand of pearls, gifts of the bride, completed their ensembles.

Mr. Melville White, of Stirling, attended the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Ian Ifield, and Mr. William Vanderveer, of Belleville, were ushers.

The bride's table was appointed with white cutwork linen beneath cascading streamers of pink and, white and wedding bell. The three-tiered wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom, centred the table, and was flanked by the bridal bouquets.

The bride's mother received, wearing a beige three-quarter length sleeve gown with lace bodice and full chiffon skirt in shades of beige. Her accessories and corsage of rust-colored 'mums. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, wearing mint-green floral print under white chiffon in sheath style with contrast white accessories and corsage of white chrysanthemums.

Reports were given by Mrs. Ross Jeffs and Mrs. Kenneth Weaver. Mrs. Robert H. Hoard read invitations from St. John's, Stirling; St. Andrew's, Stirling and Tabernacle English Line for future visits.

Mrs. Harry McAdam read a stewardship paper and Mrs. Burton Sharpe outlined plans for the tea and bazaar next Thursday.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen presided over the program and read a poem on "Thanks," written by Louise Townsend, devotional, based on Thanksgiving, was taken from the booklet entitled "Beginning Again." It opened with "The Lord of the Harvest." Mrs. Stanley Williams read the Bible lesson as found in Deuteronomy and Mrs. Robert H. Hoard read the meditation and prayer which was followed by the Rev. and Mrs. Blair Colborne of Shelburne, Nova Scotia. Mrs. Marguerite Mc-Mullen contributed a vocal solo on the theme with Mrs. Kenneth Weaver as accompanist. Mrs. Norman McConnell gathered the offering. Mrs. Hoard MacMullen synopsized chapter six of the study book entitled "Old and New Canadians." She gave the immigration picture in Canada and read the various items of interest written by Dr. Dorothy Rose, missionary doctor in Korea. Mrs. Elgin Fairclough, minister of citizenship and immigration, and other folk of note in Canada and the Rev. Howard Clark, Anglican Primate of all Canada. The immigrants to Canada are invited to start a new life with fresh opportunities. Mrs. MacMullen read excerpts from letters written to "The Community Courier," "Citizen," "Herald" and other periodicals.

Mrs. Weaver told of ten women's organizations of United Churches in Calgary who provided meals for 200 Indians who had gathered from seven Indian agencies in Alberta. These people came from Cold Lake on the Saskatchewan border northward to Edmonton and Cardston on the south near the U.S. border.

The dinner was a project of the Christian citizenship program of the United Church. The Calgary Council of the AOTS Club also contributed their parcels towards expenses. The Indian Association of Alberta held this annual at the village of Morley, Alberta.

In Windsor, Ontario, conversation classes for new Canadians were held in the various homes. The newcomers learned English and also learned about Canadian homes. In turn the Canadian hostesses were invited to the homes of the newcomers where they were served Hungarian Goulash, German weiners or Swedish sausages.

A common interest is the need for an exchange of ideas and the unity of purpose in what is said. If the United Church of Canada were to take a new approach of mission to New Canadians a new era of real spiritual revival might open itself to Canada.

Mrs. Herbert Smith, co-convener of the program graphically presented "Christ Among themums Transplanted" as written by Jessie L. Beattie in her book, "Master the Days." This was the sad story of the days of World War Two when the Japanese population of British Columbia were uprooted and moved to other sections of the country. More than half were Canadian-born and many of them were naturalized citizens yet they were ordered to move. Canadians of Japanese descent have proven their capacity to endure and to emerge triumphant. However the older generation has dearly paid the price but it does find a happy fellowship in United Church.

The meeting closed with prayer that all may have grace and power to fulfill their various duties as stressed in the booklet.

The refreshment committee, Mrs. Garth Joslin and Mrs. Norman McConnell, served a variety of tarts with tea and all enjoyed a short fellowship together.

Canadian Girl Is Making Bid to Crash Man's World Of Film Directing in Italy

TORONTO (CP)—A 25-year-old Canadian girl is making a bid to crash the man's world of film directing in Italy.

Actress Morgan Battaglia of nearby Unionville, the wife of an Italian director and now living in Italy, is already a graduate of Rome's Centro Sperimentale di Cinematografia, a film school.

That's the first big step, Mrs. Battaglia said during a visit home, but the next hurdle will come back in Rome when she tries to break into the extremely competitive film industry.

What does she think of her chances?

"I don't know why I should feel optimistic but I do," she says. "I am beginning to have a few good contacts both here and in Rome. Maybe a co-production would be possible. And I have had many vital experiences in the last few years that I must express somehow for my own sanity."

Astrid got into films in a roundabout way. After working for the Vancouver Film Festival, she took art and archeology at the University of Toronto, designing sets for Robert Gill at university's Hart House on the side.

"I didn't learn much there. All the students were dressed to the nines. They'd come in, do a little drawing and then troop out for coffee."

She turned down the offer of a second year, deciding instead to try for degree courses at the Rome film centre. To her surprise the director there encouraged her to try the exams for the director's course.

She was admitted with the highest standing of the non-Italian applicants and maintained this level throughout the course. For her diploma, she was required to make a short feature from start to finish in two days.

One of the problems she faces in breaking into the directing class in Rome is that producers, already hesitant about trusting money to any new director, are doubly wary of giving the job to a woman.

She says she has received a number of offers of work as an actress or scriptwriter. In addition, it would be easy to work as assistant to her director-husband. The ideas are tempting but she has her heart set on directing.

Club Activities

(Y.P.U.)

The Young People's Union held their meeting recently in the church with 14 members present. The singing of some favorite choruses opened the meeting.

Mary Montgomery opened in prayer. Gail Ann Burns read the Scripture taken from Romans 5: 1-21.

Mr. Earle Wannamaker was called upon to show his slides on the Rockies. Next meeting is to be held in the church on October 28.

Sarah Cross welcomed everyone and thanked Mr. Wannamaker. Lunch was served.

Leaves Her Standing on Dance Floor

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—When we go to a dance, my husband will ask other women to dance and leaves me standing alone on the floor. Yet other men have told me that I'm a wonderful dancer. In fact one man told him that he should dance more often with me.

When we were down east, he took a single girl on his knee and kissed her in front of me and the people at the dance saw it. He kissed her more than once. He told me he doesn't remember that he did this and he only had two drinks that night. What makes him behave like this? I could tell you many more things like this.

Hope you'll help me. What grounds does a woman need for a separation? At home he treats me perfectly. It is at the dances that he acts as if he is there alone or single. — READY TO QUIT.

DEAR READY—Do you plan to leave or just to threaten?

Take stock first. Life is humdrum. To him you represent duty; not fun. You have to change this with good cheer and a New Look.

You'll never keep him by attaching a ball and chain. And if you leave him, you lose your life-partner—remember? Flirt with him, love him, be so sure of him he can dance with all comers with your blessing.

I don't believe you are ready to quit!

* * *

DEAR DORIS—Are boys scared of pretty girls? At a farm boys and girls social dance, most of the pretty girls were on the bench while the less pretty girls were on the floor. — GERALDINE.

DEAR GERRY—No, unless the pretty girls are appearing snobbish. Boys are shy too. If you want to be up there dancing instead of a pretty wallflower, develop the art of friendly conversation.

* * *

TO FRAN—Your problem is somewhat unusual, but understandable. Please write again, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a private reply.

Women's Institute

FOXBORO WI

FOXBORO — The Foxboro Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. L. Carter recently under the convenership of the home economics and health group, with Mrs. L. Lewis in charge in the absence of Mrs. Bamber. There were 13 members and one visitor in attendance.

The motto "Seek the 'high' way of life, and happiness you will find", was dealt with by Mrs. J. S. Hyton. Mrs. L. Trupp, leader of the senior short course "The Third Meal" gave a short summary of the course and asked for the names for those taking the course. It was decided to delay the matter of the donation to the Retarded Infants' Home over to the November meeting. Mrs. P. Kilpatrick reported that firm of the Institute members had spent a most interesting day on September 27 visiting with friends at the County Home.

Mrs. Trupp took charge of the meeting for the health program giving five good rules for health — eat well balanced meals; get plenty of fresh air; proper exercise; proper rest; proper amount of sleep. "The Moon and Your Moods" was read by Mrs. L. Lewis, after which a scrap book on "How I Keep Healthy" was made by the members, with each member pasting pictures on a page. A social hour was spent during the serving of a delicious lunch by the hostess and her committee.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mr. H. F.: Just because we're footing the bill, they don't have to invite an army!

Mr. A. R.: Our children aren't married yet and we've all arguing already! Let's behave.

• • •

Mr. H.F.: Our daughter is engaged to marry Mr. and Mrs. B's son. In looking ahead to the wedding, we asked the B's to draw up a list of the people they'd like us to invite. Maybe it's just a practical joke but they mailed us 200 names! The list looks like a page out of the telephone book.

Just because the etiquette books say the bride's family pays for the wedding, the groom's family needn't behave like hogs and pay off all their social obligations at my expense. The etiquette books don't cover that angle.

We like our prospective son-in-law very much and we'd like to be friends with his family, too. All we ask is that they be considerate. If Mr. B. were paying, how many of those 100 couples would he invite at $30 a couple.

• • •

Mr. A. R. — As an already "broken-in" in-law, I'm in a position to offer Mr. F. one basic tip: In-laws must be friends. Nothing's worth getting mad about. Everything can be worked out.

We did exactly what we did when our other son became engaged: that is we drew up a list. But naturally it's a maximum list and can be pared down, depending upon what sort of a wedding the bride's family is planning. The other wedding party was held outdoors in a large garden. There was plenty of space and plenty of beer for the 200 people who turned out.

Just let them calm down. Whatever they wish, we can go on operate. But Mr. F. acts as though just because we'll be in-laws we'll be enemies!

The Council: In our culture we haven't yet gotten around to sitting working on the buttering-up of the parents of the affianced, in the interests of family solidarity. We don't even have a word in the English language to designate the future relationship of Mr. F. to Mr. B. We've told this such a term does exist in Spanish and in Yiddish — a word denoting "related by marriage." And since it's a necessarily close bond, one in which these two men will share the same grandchildren, we trust that they'll see themselves on the same side, rather than opposite ones, of the family fence.

Perhaps it's fortunate that each dad has been able to speak his mind so early in the deal. At this point the parents of the couple are still merely "symbols" figures in the family background. As they emerge through the years and shape up as rounded human beings, they can become friends to each other in their own right.

As Mr. R. says, the matter of the invitation list can be adjusted. He isn't adamant and considers himself misjudged, whereas Mr. F. feels himself "put upon" as the fall guy in the marriage.

Since we are certain that this particular grievance will be settled pleasantly, now that it's honestly aired, we'd like to use our space to describe a wedding we've heard about. It may give these people a clear view of what they can mean to each other.

After the prescribed ritual, the officiant said, "This husband and wife and their families desired to give visible expression of their purpes to support and sustain each other." He then asked that all six principals join hands as a pledge, and he recited, "I now pronounce you a new family. Your unity will be established as you show each other forbearance and understanding, and offer appreciation and solace in good times and bad."

This innovation was described by the bride's father, Dr. Lester A. Kirkendall, Professor of Family Life at Oregon State University.

MARMORA — Marmora Branch of the Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Percy Carman, North Marmora on Wednesday evening, October 10th with 14 members and 17 visitors present. Mrs. Carman gave a paper on citizenship and instead of the monthly draw on an article she provided bags of buttered popcorn which were sold.

A discussion was held on a bus trip and the Ice Capades in Toronto won the favor of the members. Goods given out at the September meeting returned in the form of lovely aprons to be sold at a bazaar. A contest on advertisements was won by Mrs. D. Bailey.

A date was set for a quilting to be held at Mrs. Percy Gordon's in October.

Lunch was served by the hostess and the meeting closed.

Women Have Difficult Time Adjusting to Motherhood

By JANET KASK

MONTREAL (CP) — North American women have a difficult time adjusting to motherhood because they are "brought up to accept masculine values," a professor of pediatrics at Yale University told a group of nurses Tuesday.

Dr. Louis Gluck of the Yale School of Medicine, speaking on a panel discussion at the conference on obstetric, gynecologic and neonatal nursing, said the "basic fact that her role as a woman was being fulfilled" when she became pregnant "just doesn't occur" to too many women today.

"This should be a worry to all of us."

Girls should be brought up to think less about being competitive, he continued, and more emphasis should be put on the deal of bearing on the child's early emotional behavior. If a woman had fantasies and fears during pregnancy she would probably have a fussy child with feeding problems.

Fathers in particular should be educated on emotional and physical changes that accompany changing pregnancy. The common complaint "we were getting along fine until my wife got pregnant" would become less frequent if the husband were better informed, he added.

Some 300 nurses from New England, New York, the Maritime provinces and Quebec are attending the three-day conference sponsored by the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

Toronto French School Has Enthusiastic Teacher

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP) — Petite 22-year-old Nicole Corbi is one person who dare not trudge into work after the weekend with the traditional Monday morning blues.

Her 15 kindergarten pupils, aged three, four and five, must be greeted with a big smile and enthusiastic "bonjour!" every morning of the week.

"If I lose my enthusiasm, they will lose their interest," says Miss Corbi, teacher at the Toronto French School.

The school was started in September by three Toronto couples who want their children to be bilingual. But the idea originated two years ago when these same parents decided their three - year - olds were ready to learn a second language.

After three sessions a week for two years with private tutor, the children, now school age, can speak a halting French.

In regular English school they would forget the French they already know, says Mrs. Harry Giles, whose lawyer husband arranged for incorporation of the school.

$30 A MONTH

Twenty children are enrolled —15 in kindergarten and five in Grade 1. Tuition is $30 a month at present but as the school expands more teachers will be needed and the school intends to apply for outside help.

The organizers hope that eventually the school will cover all eight elementary grades and perhaps even extend into the high school level.

Except for the occasional explanation in English to a kindergarten pupil, Miss Corbi speaks only French. In guessing and cooking games and while engaging in bouts of cowboys and Indians in the garden of St. Leonard's Anglican church, where classes are held, the teacher gradually builds up her students' vocabularies.

A new French word is slipped into the conversation each day and is repeated in various contexts until the children are themselves using it. At the same time words introduced previously are used over and over again.

To keep the pupils interested, Miss Corbi may get them to pretend they are eating apples, kissing their parents or going shopping.

And I look for opportunities every day—a red dress, flowers, anything about which I can comment enthusiastically in French, even the pouring rain."

After morning sessions with her kindergarten pupils—during which she may end up romping on the floor with them—she gets down to more systematic teaching with her Grade 1 students, all of whom have had some French training previously.

In half a day they study reading, history, writing, geography and arithmetic from French texts and work books used in Quebec schools.

Egyptian - born Miss Corbi, who speaks English, French, Italian and Arabic, says learning a language follows the same pattern as personality development.

"To try to construct a personality after 35 is a lost cause. Training of vocal muscles in an older person is almost the same thing."

She received her baccalaureate in teaching and a type A certificate from the University of Sherbrooke in Quebec last year and during the summer took training in Toronto day nurseries.

"Every day I have to ask myself if they are learning enough," she says. Occasionally, and usually quite unexpectedly, she gets her answer. "The other day one of my pupils made a whole sentence in French. I was so excited."

Pakistan Embroidery Seen by Slides

ROSLIN — On Wednesday evening in the Anglican Church Hall, members of the Woman's Auxiliary entertained ladies from the United Church, the Presbyterian Church, St. John's Church, Moneymore, Christ Church, Thomasburg and the Ladies' Guild of St. Paul's Church.

The president, Mrs. Everett Geen, was chairlady and welcomed the guests to a varied program with members of each organization taking part.

Slides were shown of the Pakistan embroidery and the comentary was read by Mrs. Geen.

Mrs. Kafka, of Trenton, Diocesan vice-president of the WA, had a display of embroidery.

After the program lunch was served and all enjoyed a social hour.

EMOTIONAL MOTHERS

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS, B.C. (CP)—Young mothers who don't develop interests outside the home run the danger of suffering emotionally when their children grow up, says Dr. J. E. S. Boulding, deputy medical superintendent of the provincial mental hospital at Essondale, B.C. He told the British Columbia Medical Association annual meeting here that work in politics and church organizations would be beneficial for both the young mother and the community.

Fondue Bruxelloise are French fried cheese fingers—hot hors d'oeuvres that will be the talk of your next party. Mary Moore gives you the recipe for these easy-to-make morsels today.

Cheese For Festivities

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu by Mary Moore

Chili con Carne (see Tuesday—Mrs. R. McK.'s); Fineley Shredded Cole Slaw; Rye Bread; Orange Sherbet; Date Drops (see Tuesday); Coffee.

Late this Spring we were invited to the award-winners dinner by the National Dairy Council of Canada. Awards are given to retailers who create the finest merchandising displays of cheese.

All of the food editors enjoy this dinner for one thing, our secretaries are made welcome and another, the food is quite unique. The planning home economists are famous for their new cheese dishes and new uses of cheese.

These new recipes are designed to create an increased demand for, and consumption of cheese, which is constantly on the upgrade in Canada. These are featured each year during Cheese Festival month — October.

One of these items which I thought was delicious and well worth passing on to my column sisterhood is called Fondue Bruxelloise. These are French fried cheese fingers. They are a hot hors d'oeuvre. They were passed to us piping hot from the kitchen of The Old Mill in Toronto, with little serviettes and we ate them from our fingers. All of today's offerings are succulent little morsels that any cook can make and are extra economical for such exotic party items.

FONDUE BRUXELLOISE:

3 tablespoons butter, 6 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, pepper, 1 cup milk, 1½ cups grated Cheddar cheese, 1 egg, beaten, flour, fine sifted bread crumbs.

Melt butter, remove from heat. Add flour, pepper and salt; blend until smooth. Add milk, slowly, stirring constantly to avoid lumps. Cook, stirring until smooth and thickened over low heat. Add cheese, cook stirring until cheese melts. Pour into buttered pan approximately 9 x 2" so that fondue is ½" thick. Chill in refrigerator. Cut into fingers 2 x 1 x ½". Roll in flour, then beaten egg, then bread crumbs. Fry in deep fat at 375 deg. Fahr. about 2 minutes or until golden brown. Drain. Serve hot. Makes 16 fingers.

CHEESE BALLS (Makes 18):

1 4-oz. package white cream cheese, 2 tablespoons Canadian blue-veined cheese, 2 teaspoons grated onion, 3 tablespoons finely chopped parsley, 1-3 cup finely chopped walnuts.

Cream cheeses together. Blend in onion and parsley. Shape mixture into small 1" balls between buttered palms; roll in walnuts to coat. Chill and serve as an hors d'oeuvre or with a crisp green salad.

CHEESE CHUTNEY CANAPES (1½ cups of spread):

1 8-oz. package white cream cheese, (room temperature), ½ cup chopped chutney (a hot bottled relish), ½ cup chopped toasted almonds, 1 teaspoon curry powder, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard.

Mix all ingredients well to a creamy consistency and chill for 2 hours. Spread on tiny toast rounds or canape crackers.

Canadian Women Can Earn Money by Selling Hair

VANCOUVER (CP) — Now that wigs are back in style, can Canadian women turn a profit by snipping and selling their natural tresses?

Yes, says Adam Derry, whose company deals in wigs and hair pieces.

Possibly, but they can't be bothered, says Mrs. C. J. Westall, whose late husband's family has been in the wig business here for years.

Mr. Derry and Mrs. Westall are two persons with a difference of expert opinion on a novel subject: The quality of Canadian hair.

Mr. Derry says it is "just as good" as European stocks, long a major source of wigs.

For years he has been running an advertisement in a Prairie farmers' newspaper and getting good results.

He asks for hair 10 to 12 inches long. Farm women, urban housewives and career women alike are his suppliers, earning about $1.50 an ounce for their raw hair. Some heads have four to five ounces, depending on the coarseness.

GREY SELLS BEST

But some hair is worth more than others, and supply and demand enter into it as well. Silver - grey hair is your best friend if you are in the growing-selling market. It is followed in value by light and drab blondes, with mid-browns the least popular.

Combined with the domestic supply, huge crops from Syria and India will take care of the new wave of wig-wearers, says Mr. Derry.

Mrs. Westall buys all over the world, and is finding it tougher to acquire supplies. Dollar standards and barriers under the European Common Market are adding to the problem. But she won't buy in Canada.

She says North American women will not lead the kind of life necessary to produce a long head of shining, beautiful hair.

"No dancing, no partying, watching what they eat, no flirting. No, they wouldn't do it," she says.

TULIP TIME

Use a grater to scrape the bottom of burned biscuits without scrubbing the rest of the biscuit.

The Experts Say

Crepe Suzette Nothing More Than a Pancake

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP) — Gourmet dishes are not all as exotic as dives, freshly chopped parsley, chocolate - covered grasshoppers, humming bird tongues or shark fins, says a Toronto cooking teacher of gourmet cooking.

Mrs. Etta Sawyer says cooks who limit themselves to such delicacies are just going a bit too far. "If I prepare frogs legs, but that's as far as I'll go."

"Today, many dishes once considered European peasant fare are falling into the gourmet line—the omelet, for example, or the crepe suzette which is really nothing more than pancake.

Mrs. Sawyer, who for the past seven years has taught cooking in a Toronto evening class, learned the art from her mother and grandmother, the latter a registered chef for the house of Hapsburg in what used to be Austria-Hungary.

To prepare a full - course gourmet dinner, a women must be willing to spend her whole day slaving over the kitchen stove, she says. But it's not too difficult. "Just stop and think" ure some good judgment and advanced planning."

A menu she suggests for entertaining a party of eight — shrimp cocktail supreme, tournedos Madeira, sautee potato balls, asparagus tips au beurre, herbed green salad and cold sherry souffle.

This meal would not be extremely expensive, says Mrs. Sawyer. The shelled shrimp and cocktail for the shrimp cocktail, the Madeira wine and brandy for the tournedos, champagne for the salad dressing and sweet sherry for the souffle would be the most expensive items.

And tournedos, cut from the thick end of the fillet of beef, are the least expensive of the three tenderloin sections of beef.

The herbed salad containing romaine, chicory, Belgian endives, freshly chopped parsley, tarragon, chervil and dill and served with a champagne dressing would probably cost about $1.50.

"You could not expect to shop only at the local supermarket if planning to prepare this meal." Such items as romaine, chicory and Belgian endive would have to be purchased at a specialty shop and the tournedos would have to be ordered ahead of time from the butcher shop.

The salad, shrimp cocktail, Madeira sauce and the souffle could be made ahead of time to avoid rushing with the meat, vegetables and champagne hollandaise sauce at the last minute.

Mrs. Sawyer's favorite dessert, the cold sherry souffle is to make it, soften two envelopes of unflavored gelatin in one-half cup of cold water for five minutes, place over boiling water and until dissolved. Then remove the gelatin from the heat, add 1¼ cups of sweet sherry and chill for about 30 minutes or until the mixture begins to thicken.

Meanwhile, beat six egg whites until they are foamy, then add one-half cup sugar, one tablespoon lemon juice and beat until the mixture is stiff but not dry.

In another dish, beat the six egg yolks until they are frothy, gradually add one quarter cup sugar. When the yolks are thick and lemon-colored, slowly add the slightly thickened wine gelatin and continue beating the mixture until it is thick and light. Then fold in the beaten egg whites and one cup of heavy whipped cream and pour into a collared seven-inch souffle dish lined with lady fingers. Chill the dessert for three hours until firm.

Uniondale WI Hears Talk on 'Hydro Safety'

5th SIDNEY — The October meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Alton Sine, 6th. concession of Sidney.

Business for the meeting consisted of a letter from Miss Elizabeth Spouse, naming the course for the "Club Girls," which will be "Separates for Summer," the leader being Mrs. Milton Grills and Mrs Edison Sine assisted.

The Home for the Aged is having a bazaar at which Uniondale is to help with the afternoon lunch.

"A letter from "CARE" was read to the members and a notice of the opening of the Trenton - Brighton Retarted Children's home. A thank-you from Mrs. Lakeman for the gift of a baby spoon was read.

"Public Relations" was the topic for the night and Mr. Roy White of the Belleville "Hydro Safety," gave a talk on safety in the home. Hydro is safe if it is properly used. Electricity is demanding and one must not be careless. Never use a 25 or 30 amp fuse in a 15 amp socket, or try to mend a fuse with foil or a copper. Also watch the children cautiously while using kites in fields where hydro wires are near, like strong winds may carry them to disaster. All should be taught artificial resuscitation, so that one can be able to help if needed to save someone's life.

Mr. White was thanked for his talk on "Hydro-Safety" and a small gift was presented to him.

Mrs. Robert Burkitt gave a piano selection and Mrs. W. Rose read a poem on "Friendship."

Mrs. Morley Sine gave a report on the visit of some of the members to the County Home, which was greatly appreciated and hoped more could visit in the future.

Mrs. George Burkitt gave a brief report on her trip to Toronto when she attended the "Women of the World" gathering.

The motto was "Kindness is the oil that keeps the hinges of friendship from rusting," and was taken from a speech of Mrs. Barry of Australia, and "O Lord, God, let us not forget to be kind."

Lunch was served by the October committee and all thanked for their aid in making the evening a success.

November will be a visit from the district president and the motto "Friends are better than money, they last longer."

CUSTOMER SATISIFED

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—Food mart owner Maury Guy reported to police Monday that he had put $5,645 in a paper bag for depositing in a bank when some customers walked in. Guy said he put the bag by the check stand and waited on the shoppers. When he had checked out their bags, he found his missing.

Club Activities

AVONDALE N.A.

Last Thursday, the Avondale Neighbor's Aid held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Siewart Lough.

Mrs. R. Griffith opened the meeting with prayer and a poem on "Autumn Time."

Seventeen members and one visitor were welcomed to the meeting. Plans for the County Home Tea on October 17th, were explained by letters received, also by Mrs. C. Holmes. Many members offered to help in any way.

A nominating committee of Mrs. E. Hall and Mrs. D. Maclean were named to bring in the 1963 slate of officers at the next meeting.

The devotional was in charge of Mrs. W. Anger, and Mrs. D. Maclean. Opening with the hymn, "This Is My Father's World" followed by the Scripture reading from Psalm 21, and a "Thanksgiving Message," read by Mrs. Maclean.

Mrs. Anger gave a reading, followed by a prayer of thanks..

Several contests brought the meeting to a close.

Lunch was served by Mrs. C. Holmes, Mrs. E. Bush and Mrs. Wiley.

SABOTEURS STRIKE

ROME (Reuters)—An electric power pylon was blown up on Mount Gunchina, in Italy's Bolzano province on the Austrian border, the Italian Ansa news agency reported today. A wave of bombings wrecked many pylons last summer in the troubled area, accompanying demands for greater autonomy for the German-speaking population of the province.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1962

"Bambi," a buck fawn, was found last May by a farmer near Orono and given to game warden Doug Powell. Mr. Powell brought the deer to the Lands and Forests game farm at Codrington, where Mrs. Ted Mound, the keeper's wife, raised it. Bambi now lives in a fenced off section of the game farm with the ducks and geese.

These "colony houses" house the pheasant chicks at the Codrington Hatchery game farm, at Codrington. The buildings are closed for the winter, and the covers from the oil fired brooders are stored outside the doors, for cleaning. Ted Mound, keeper of the farm, estimates production at about 35,000 birds yearly.

Ted Mound, keeper of the Lands and Forests game farm at the Codrington Hatcheries, releases a Hungarian partridge in one of the pens. These birds, smaller and faster than ruffed grouse, were introduced to Ontario in 1925, but have not prospered, except in Kemptville district. The Department of Lands and Forests is planning to raise them for next year, starting with breeders trapped near Kemptville.

Ted Mound, of Codrington, likes pheasants, but he doesn't plan to go hunting this year. He already has thousands of the birds, alive and kicking. Mr. Mound is keeper of the Ontario Lands and Forests game farm, at the Codrington hatchery, which produces about 35,000 pheasants per year.

Mr. Mound took over the Codrington farm in 1939, from his father who came out from a job as a private gamekeeper in England in 1935 to take over both provincial game farms. The second farm, at Normandale, is now run by Ted Mound's brother, Stan Mound.

The Department of Lands and Forests owns the farm, and Mr. Mound is nominally an employee of the department. In effect, though, he is a contractor, as he is paid for his production of pheasants, rather than for the time he puts to the job. Also on the site is a fish hatchery, run as a separate operation by the department. Ducks and geese, and for the time being, a buck fawn live on the property, protected and fed by the department. The fawn was found last May by a farmer near Orono, and brought to game warden Doug Powell. Mr. Powell brought it to the hatchery, where Mrs. Mound raised it. Bottle fed at first, "Bambi" now lives with the ducks and geese, in a fenced off section of the farm. The water birds use the farm as a summer base and free food centre, but usually fly south in winter.

The pheasants are captive from birth almost to the day they fall before a hunter's gun. In the pens, the breeder hens do not make nests, they lay their eggs almost anywhere in the brush, or on the open ground. These eggs are collected, and mechanically incubated. The eggs are collected, and mechicks, when they hatch, are raised in special "colony houses" which are small huts with a mesh covered floor and an oil heater, with a back entrance to an open pen. Adults are kept in larger pens, with shelter at one end.

Business Briefs

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

WAGES DECLINE

The average weekly wage of Canadian industrial workers was $70.88 in July, 17 cents lower than in the corresponding week a year ago. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today that reduction of 61 cents in the weekly wages of the manufacturing industry contributed to the over-all decline.

APPROVES LOANS

The Industrial Development Bank approved 223 new loans in September bringing its total number of loans in the first nine year ended Sept. 30 to 2,685—an increase of 53 per cent over 1961. The bank's monthly report released Tuesday shows loans totalling $9,471,000 for September and $91,861,000 for the fiscal year.

REVENUES RISE

Canadian railway operating revenues rose 1.2 per cent in June from the corresponding month last year to $100,225,276. DBS reported today that operating expenses of the rail lines dropped 3.4 per cent to $86,450,754 for a net operating income of $3,774,622 — compared with a loss of $2,883,109 in June, 1961.

SENT TO GAME FARMS

But most of the birds are shipped as chicks, to co-operating game farms in the province. The farms will raise them, then set them loose for "pay-as-you-shoot" hunters. This is by far the cheapest way, according to Mr. Mound, of distributing the birds, and almost some will always escape the hunter, the system increases the natural game density of the province. Artificially reared birds are released in provincial parks, both for hunting under licence, and to populate game areas.

Next year, the hatchery will begin raising Hungarian partridge. These birds, smaller than the Canadian ruffed grouse, and faster, provide excellent shooting in open country. They were introduced to the province first about 1925, with a few pair and from Czechoslavakia, but the only place they caught on well in Ontario was around the Kemptville district. Several pair were trapped there this summer and moved to the Codrington farm, in hopes of raising them artificially. Next year, there should be some for release, in hopes of spreading them through more of the province.

At the density of population increase in southern Ontario, the hunter density increases and the game density decreases. In order that some game may survive, the hunters find targets more interesting than tin cans, the natural increase of game must be supplemented by game farms. The Codrington Hatchery is one attempt to provide targets for the hunting of next year and the year after.

Lawyer Given 3 Years for Conversion

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyer Murray Gruson, sentenced Tuesday to three years in penitentiary for thefts and fraud involving some $415,000, said he hopes some day to right some of the wrongs he committed.

Gruson, 38, pleaded guilty to a total of 28 charges. He said he lost $60,000 in a stock market transaction in 1958 and began to forge mortgages and convert to his own use money received from clients to discharge mortgages.

Defence counsel Edwin Goodman said some of the forged mortgages bore interest of 5 per cent and Gruson eventually reached the point where in 1961 he paid out $60,000 in interest and principal on the mortgages without reducing his over - all debts.

"He could never get ahead," Mr. Goodman said. "It was just a question of time. He was on a treadmill."

Magistrate Frederick Bastrem agreed: "He was flogging a dead horse."

RATE SUPPRESSES

The magistrate said he was surprised at the rate of interest and bonus in the mortgages. He said in his 30 years as a lawyer he had never come upon investments of the sort.

"I'd hate to have a mortgage like that. What was in their minds, these people, when they thought that such an investment could be carried through?"

In passing sentence, he said it appeared Gruson undertook an impossible burden in trying to pay up the mortgages, and not being a financial wizard was unable to accomplish the feat.

"If you look at the disappearance of the money," he said, "it would appear that he did not convert the money to his own use.

"He was robbing Peter to pay Paul."

HOLD AT AIRPORT

Gruson was arrested at Malton airport four weeks ago with $5,000 in cash, a recent vaccination certificate and a passport in his possession.

Mr. Goodman quoted Mrs. Gruson as saying a client had threatened to kill her husband unless the money was returned and she became very frightened. He said she woke her husband, who was under sedation, to see him over the back fence of their home, placed him in their car and drove him to the airport where she purchased a ticket for him.

Detective Leonard Simpson said that in some cases, a client came with money to discharge a mortgage and Gruson accepted the money but continued to pay the mortgage holder the regular interest and principal payments.

Echoes of Medicare Dispute In Sask. Heard as Board Renews Hearings in Ottawa

By JACK BEST

OTTAWA (CP) — Echoes of last summer's medicare dispute in Saskatchewan were heard Tuesday as the royal commission on health services began a brief round of rebuttal hearings here.

The president of the Canadian Health Insurance Association, D. E. Kilgour of Winnipeg, told the commission that the Saskatchewan Medical Care Act has caused a "dramatic reduction" in medical services available in that province.

Doctors still practising were overworked and "distinctly unhappy." Mr. Kilgour, also president of the Great - West Life Assurance Company, said he had been reliably informed that as a result of the dispute "there's not a urologist left in Saskatchewan."

Last week, he had visited a Saskatchewan community where there was one doctor to serve 7,000 people.

The Saskatchewan government, he charged, has created conditions under which doctors do not want to work.

The Canadian Health Insurance Association represents commercial carriers which write about 95 per cent of all the commercial health coverage sold in Canada. It is against state - controlled medical care insurance, and Mr. Kilgour was answering detailed questions from the commission as to some of the reasons why.

The Canadian Medical Association also harked back to the bitter Saskatchewan dispute in its summary submission to the royal commission headed by Saskatchewan's Chief Justice Emmett Hall.

It charged that both in that conflict and in the federal election campaign, "politicians and aspirants to political office—from one party—tried to use a political ideology to rationalize a complete takeover of medical services insurance by the government."

The reference apparently was to the CCF-New Democratic Party, though the CMA—voice of 16,000 English-speaking Canadian doctors did not say so.

Will Convert Teleprinter Signals Into Optical Image

AACHEN, West Germany (Reuters) — A world - wide hookup between Reuters offices from Moscow to New York and Singapore will be flashed on a screen here Friday through a new electronics device which converts teleprinter signals into an optical image.

Diplomats, top European newspaper editors and other guests will witness the demonstration, part of ceremonies here honoring the news dissemination, from the Julius Reuter, and highlighting 112 years in the development of news dissemination, from the pigeons used by Reuter in Aachen in 1850 to present-day space communications.

A ceramic plaque will be unveiled on the house in Aachen where Reuter launched a pigeon-post news service bridging a 75-mile gap between Brussels and Aachen in the then novel European telegraph system.

SALUTE TO REUTER

Their release will be a salute to the ingenuity of Julius Reuter, who with his pigeons cut seven hours from the time it took to transmit commercial news messages from Paris to Berlin and other German cities by mail-train.

Thursday, signals will be bounced off the U.S. space satellite Telstar to link Reuters in Aachen with a New York newspaper. Turner Catledge, managing editor of the New York Times, will talk by telephone with Aachen's chief burgomaster, Hermann Heusch, and Reuters news manager Doon Campbell in Aachen as Telstar orbits over the Atlantic.

Friday's hookup between Reuters offices, put into operation wherever major news is flashed round the world, will be screened on a new pre-developed projection printer which picks up the electrical impulses of the teleprinter transmission and projects them on to a yard-wide screen.

Law for Rich, One for Poor Says Berton

TORONTO (CP)—Pierre Berton, a columnist for the Toronto Star, told Canadian and American newspaper executives Tuesday that there is a double standard for rich and poor people in Canada involved in legal proceedings.

"There is one law for the rich and one for the poor," Mr. Berton told about 90 delegates to the Canadian Circulation Managers' Association convention.

The columnist said the Legal Aid Society does not work well enough in providing counsel for those who cannot afford to hire a lawyer.

"There is no efficient system whereby people can get legal aid to fight others who are simply using money," Mr. Berton said.

Audit Would Show Where Money Goes

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—If an audit were required by law to show where the money goes, some organizations would change the tune of their call for resumption of bingo games and lotteries in London, Crown Attorney G. G. Savage said Tuesday.

"How much of a $1 ticket on a horse draw goes to charity?" Mr. Savage asked. "Less than 10 cents. In some cases it's no more than eight cents." Much the same holds true for bingo, he added.

In refuting Mr. Savage's claim, Treasurer Robert Ford of the Lions Club bingo committee said that out of a total bingo revenue from Sept. 25, 1961, to March 12, the net income of $14,283 "was all turned over to the participating clubs. Not one dollar was kept out."

Mr. Ford suggested "a great many people would go out of business if they were required by law to show financial statements."

Mr. Savage was commenting on Monday night's announcement that John White, Progressive Conservative Ontario legislature member for London South, will head a three-man delegation to discuss resumption of bingo within the Interpretation of the law with Acting Police Chief Finlay Carroll.

Two Democrats Are Indicted On Fraud Counts

BALTIMORE (AP) — U.S. Representatives Thomas F. Johnson (Dem. Md.) and Frank W. Boykin (Dem. Ala.) were indicated Tuesday on charges of receiving money to use their influence for dismissal of a federal indictment against a Maryland savings and loan operator.

A special grand jury indicted them for conspiracy and conflict-of-interest involving the pleaded receipt of $24,918 by Johnson and real estate transactions of at least $3,200,000 involving both congressmen.

The indictment said the compensation was in exchange for trying to persuade the department of justice to postpone the trial of J. Kenneth Edlin, 64, of Miami, and ultimately dismiss his indictment of using the mails to defraud.

Edlin pleaded no contest and was sentenced in April to six months and fined $2,000. He was released last Wednesday from federal prison in Tallahassee, Fla.

TCA FLIGHTS

During 1961, Trans - Canada Air Lines aircraft flew 32,724,000 miles and carried 3,700,000 revenue passengers over its 39,000 air route miles.

SPACE AGE DEAN—Donald L. Mordell, dean of engineering at McGill University, looks over a model of the space vehicle a group of McGill engineering students and staff will shoot into the atmosphere from Barbados this year. The experiment is typical of the space-age thinking and practices the 42-year-old London-born professor has implanted in McGill's engineering faculty. (CP Photo).

Dean D. L. Mordell, McGill, Wants Engineering Students To Do Things for Selves

By GEORGE FRAJKOR

MONTREAL (CP)—"I regard myself as the oil can around here," says Donald L. Mordell, understating his role in the engineering faculty at McGill University.

"I think it my main job to make other people's work easier for them and to help things get going."

Since he took over as dean of engineering in 1957, things have certainly got going—mostly up. If a promising line of research pays off they may even get into orbit some time.

For the U.S. National Aeronautical and Space Administration the university's engineers are exploring the impact of meteors on the hulls of space ships.

They built their own hypersonic wind tunnel and are testing the possibility of winged flight into space using a plane that would burn fuel on the outside of its wing.

PLAN SPACE SHOT

In the Barbados, using heavy artillery donated by the U.S. Army, they are testing a simple, inexpensive but nonetheless radical method of gathering upper - atmosphere information by shooting an instrumented vehicle from a gun.

The first cannon shot is expected to be tried in November, taking the vehicle up 125 miles. In time, scientists think, it may be possible to send such vehicles into orbit, installing a solid fuel rocket engine that would be ignited at the 125-mile level.

In the lower speed ranges wind-tunnel tests on slow-speed airplanes continue. And at ground level, one research project for advanced students called for design of a bicycle that could break the world's one - mile record. That one caught the eye of a bicycle company which asked for all possible information on the project.

Work is the keystone of Dean Mordell's approach. He works himself; he expects his staff and students to work; and he expects what they make to work.

FIRES CURIOSITY

"I'm not interested in people who need to be guided," he says bluntly. "When I hire a watchdog I don't expect to do my own barking."

What he is trying to do is turn out students who are self-sufficient, fired with curiosity and there to succeed.

His faculty, he says, wants to make students realize that "engineering work is not completed until something has been made, and that although research is very important, it has got to be integrated and used."

To this end, stiff courses formerly taught in the upper years have been introduced earlier. Additional humanities courses have been extended to the first two years. The failure rate has been high but the quality of graduates has been high, too.

And in the face of a general decline throughout North America in engineering enrolment, McGill's freshman enrolment showed a slight increase last year while the graduate faculty tripled in the last four years.

CAMBRIDGE GRAD

A tall, slender man with thick hair, eyebrows and moustache gradually assuming the color of his habitual flannel suit, Dean Mordell speaks crisply and to the point, with occasional flashes of humor, in an accent that retains a soft trace of Cambridge.

Born in London 42 years ago, he grew up in an academic environment but acquired a practical outlook early. The son of a Cambridge University mathematics professor, he followed his father into the university and took his master's degree in 1941.

He cannot remember ever wanting to be anything but an engineer. As a boy he tinkered with Meccano sets and model planes and cars. As a youth he took to tinkering with real cars and engines.

He got into the field he knows and loves best—turbine engines and high - speed propulsion - simply because he was new. It was wartime and the Rolls-Royce company, which he joined after graduation, had its top engineers working on improving piston engines and superchargers for the war effort. New engineers were shunted into the comparatively unknown work on jet and turbine engines.

WANTED TO TRAVEL

"About 1946," he recalls, "I started thinking I would soon be 65—I was 25 then—and I would get my gold alarm clock for faithful service and I would never have seen the world. I thought I should like to see Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the Far East."

A McGill advertisement for an engineering professor inspired him. Here was a way to get to Canada for a start on the world tour. He got the job, came to Canada and liked it so much the rest of the tour was forgotten.

His first achievement at McGill was to design and build a coal - turbine engine, intended for use on railway locomotives. It could burn lumps of raw coal without trouble, something no other coal - turbine could do (other designs powdered the coal) and McGill ran the prototype for 210 hours non-stop, longer than anyone in the world had run any type of coal-turbine.

The operation was successful but the patient died. Canada's railways, unable to wait for a coal turbine to go into production, started using diesels.

Dean Mordell still feels the turbine would be worth producing. It would put some coal mines back in business and even show some economies on the long, straight-through hauls, stop-start operations.

Though his work has become more and more administrative as he became successively director of McGill's gas dynamics lab in 1949, chairman of the department of mechanical engineering in 1953, and dean of engineering in 1957, he keeps his hand in original research.

Recently Bristol-Siddeley of England snapped up Dean Mordell's patent for a jet engine that can operate from low speeds right through to six or seven times the speed of sound.

He was also actively concerned with the external combustion engine that McGill is currently working on in the hypersonics lab. This engine, in which fuel is burned under a specially shaped wing and ignited by the plane's own shock waves, could theoretically power a plane right from the ground into orbit.

SHOULD TAKE LEAD

Canada may never be able to afford to build a plane like that one but there is no reason Canadian engineers shouldn't take the lead in any field they can, the dean Mordell says.

"Canada is in need of daring engineering. We have been exporting raw materials too long. It's time we started exporting our brains through manufactured products."

The world's need for engineers will be great, he says. The biggest idea is a nuclear war, which would wipe out the need for anything. The great problems of the future would be feeding, housing and transporting the ever - increasing population.

His job is turning out engineers capable of solving them and he says, making it easier for them to do their work.

Dean Mordell is the type of person whose work is his life. He takes his work home with him to the pleasant Montreal suburb of Beaconsfield where he lives with his Scottish-born wife and three children.

"But I don't let it dominate me," he says. "I'm not one of those who sleeps only three or four hours a night. I'm unhappy if I can't get to bed by 11 or midnight as a rule."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Ninety feet away from a World Series.

One lone measly single away from making the haughty Yankees bite the dust of defeat.

An estimated 58 million fans from Formosa to Finnegan's Corners; from Bali-Bali to Bent Rib, Arkansas; from Land's End to Lucknow; from Tokyo to Timbuctu held their breaths.

The Giants, in the greatest comeback attempt of a dramatic rallying series held victory in a piece of wood in the hands of Willie McCovey.

And the difference between an estimated $7,000 and $10,000 per head also rested on hitting ability and pitching prowess in the few minutes that stopped the breath of the sports world.

Then it was all over. Terry beanstalked the Giants for the "Jack" and the second straight world triumph for another Ralph.

Our side lost but the prediction record remains at 100 per cent. It now stands at 876 wrong, none right.

Today was the day of reckoning. Yankee lovers went around palms upward. Giant fans dug deeply. Financial pools from puddle to lake size dropped into the hands of the lucky.

I had more losing quarters than the Toronto Argonauts. But I'm on the receiving end of a dollar forward pass because I bowed to the whims of a lady.

My favorite bank receptionist who takes a sports bet flyer occasionally, when asked what team she fancied in the series, almost hissed, "Anyone but those damyankees."

I went to her manager, borrowed a dollar, gritted my teeth and bet on the Houksters from the Bronx.

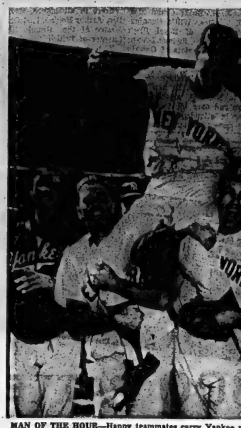
But it's only a matter of passing the buck. The O'Hearns, the Herriginos and others who hitched their dollar wagons to the Yankee star will be around for their financial pound of Giant flesh.

This crow diet is getting monotonous. I ate it roasted on the Chicago Black Hawk flyer to win the NHL. I gobbled the leftovers when the Leafs snatched the Stanley Cup.

I gulped it raw, for there was no time to cook it, when Sonny Liston first scared, then slaughtered Floyd Patterson with three scowls, two left hooks and a pair of right crosses.

I nibbled it in a fricassee'd state when the Dodgers failed to come out of a slump ensesthetic and bowed to the Giants. Today I had crow hash.

And if the Hamilton Tiger-Cats overnight quarterback sensation, young Joe Zuger, is not a passing flash-in-the-pan, it could mean a crow pie banquet when the Tabbies meet the Ottawa Rough Riders for the eastern conference title. Alouettes' fans please note and consider my prediction record.



But to get back to the super-dramatic finish of the world series' seventh game, I believe it will go down in the archives as the most pulse-stirring, heart-quickening finale in the history of the classic.

Never, I believe, has a series title hinged on a final pitch. Never has two series champions gone to the wire in such a breath-taking dash with a hit or pitch whisker deciding the issue.

Many seven-game series have been played. But I don't think the records will show a classic where two men faced each other with the title in their hands in the last of the seventh-game ninth.

Yankees' Terry Superb In Series Win

MAN OF THE HOUR—Happy teammates carry Yankee pitcher Ralph Terry off the field on their shoulders after he pitched a 1 to 0, four-hit shutout against the San Francisco Giants to clinch the Yanks their 20th World Series championship. (AP Wirephoto).

By JOE REICHLER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—New York Yankees, famed for their slugging heroics from the days of Babe Ruth to Mickey Mantle, Roger Maris and Co., won the 1962 World Series on pitching—and pitching alone.

While the hitters, for the most part, played dead, the pitchers—all who toiled in the seven-game series with San Francisco Giants—were magnificent. So were those of the Giants, who put up a valiant struggle, grudgingly going down to defeat but not until they had the potential tying run on third and the winning run on second with two out in the ninth inning of the seventh game.

The most magnificent pitcher of all was Ralph Terry, who had been living under a cloud ever since he became the "goat" of the 1960 World Series when he threw a series winning home run to Pittsburgh's Bill Mazeroski in the ninth inning of the final game.

Terry started three games. He pitched strongly in the second, losing 2-0. He pitched as well in the fifth game, winning 5-3. Tuesday, the 26-year-old right-hander was superb, limiting the Giants to four hits and winning 1 - 0. Jack Sanford Terry's mound opponent in all three games, was the victim of the heart - breaking defeat.

'HAS TO BE BEST'

"This has to be the best game Terry has ever pitched," said Yankee manager Ralph Houk, who set some kind of a record by leading a team to a world championship in each of his first two years as a major league pilot.

"I have never seen him with better control. He didn't walk a single batter and he had three balls on only one hitter. I don't think he made more than three or four bad pitches all day."

Terry agreed that he had never pitched better in his life. "I had a one-hitter against the Yankees when I was with Kansas City," the 6-3, 190-pound Oklahoman recalled. "And I once beat Camilo Pascual 2-0 in 13 innings in Washington, but this is the greatest game I have ever pitched."

Terry, relying mainly on a fast ball and slider, plus near perfect control, easily disposed of the first 17 batters he faced. Memories of Don Larsen's perfect game in the 1956 World Series for the Yankees must have been in the minds of the 43,948 Candlestick Park spectators at that time.

SKOWRON SCORES

The Yankees, in the meantime, had taken a 1-0 lead and it took a double play to bring the run home. The all - important score came in the fifth. Singles by Bill Skowron and Clete Boyer put runners on first and third with none out. Sanford, pitching carefully to Terry, walked the pitcher on four balls, filling the bases.

Sanford, who had blanked the Yankees on three hits in the second game and yielded only six hits while losing the fifth game, almost pitched himself out of the jam. He induced Tony Kubek to bounce into a double play as Skowron crossed the plate and retired Bobby Richardson on a foul pop-up to Orlando Cepeda.

Terry made the run stand up, never permitting the Giants to put two men on base in any inning until the ninth. Pinch hitter Matty Alou beat out a drag bunt and two outs later Willie Mays lined a double to the right field corner. Quick throw by right fielder Roger Maris and a fine relay from Maris to Richardson to the plate held Alou on third. Willie McCovey's line drive to Richardson ended the game and gave Terry his second series victory.

Sanford and Billy O'Dell, who hurled the last three innings, held the Yankees to seven hits, all singles. Mickey Mantle, who had gone hitless 13 straight, got one of those hits. Terry his second series victory.

The Yankees had a team batting average of .199 and hit only three home runs. The Giants batted .226 with five home runs. Obviously, it was a pitchers' series.

It was the Yankees' 20th championship in 27 World Series since they won their first pennant in 1921.

Petes Thump Flyers 9-2

Moves To Check Pros

TORONTO (CP) — A major rule change geared to stop professionalism in curling was adopted by the Ontario Curling Association Tuesday at its 89th annual meeting.

The OCA executive passed a motion by Jake Edwards of Kingston which prohibits more than one paid employee of a club from competing on the same rink in OCA competition.

Last season there was a controversy over the status of the Barge Sword Rink which won the Ontario championship. Sword and his rink members were employed by Toronto Tam O'Shanter Club and some Ontario members felt this made them professionals.

The first step taken to avoid a repetition of the Sword incident was to establish a residence rule which specifies that any curler must take up residence in the province he will represent by Aug. 1. The change was made by the Dominion Curling Association, which previously had a Sept. 1 deadline.

NOVY RETURNING

Second and his rink members are wheat farmers in Western Canada and cannot take up residence in Ontario before Aug. 1.

Also part of the new rule is a restriction against any curler who is a paid instructor. The OCA rules they are professionals and will not allow them to take part in OCA events.

McDonough says the foursome may compete in a few local events and plans to take part in a nationally televised curling series.

D. W. Currie of Toronto Granite succeeded Neil Gregory of Lindsay as president. Vice-presidents are C. E. McPherson of London, D. B. Carlyle of Toronto Circket, Skating and Curling Club, and H. Aylmer Elliott of Galt.

Briton Verdicts American

LONDON (AP) — Brian Curvis, British Empire welterweight boxing champion, narrowly outpointed Guy Sumila of Mobile, Ala., in a 10-round bout Tuesday night that brought a mixture of boos and cheers from the crowd of 14,000.

The spectators sang Dear Old Pals at one point because of the lack of action.

Curvis, No. 2 challenger in line for Emile Griffith's world title, grabbed a slim decision by taking the last round with attacks to the body and left hooks to the head.

Sumila was ranked seventh before Tuesday night's fight. Curvis weighed 146 pounds and Sumila 147.

DEFER RACE

NEW YORK (AP)—Kelso and Carry Back will not meet Saturday at Belmont Park in the $100,000-added Jockey Club Gold Cup, so their scrap for 1962 horse-of-the-year honors must be deferred for another day.

Jack Price, who trains Carry Back, said Tuesday that "after thinking it over, I don't believe it would be fair to the horse to subject him to such a hard race of two miles as soon after he got off the plane from France."

Kelso, owned by Bohemia stable of Mrs. Richard C. Du Pont, will be shooting for an unprecedented third straight victory in the two-mile Gold Cup.

Alouettes Seek Good Punter

MONTREAL (CP) — The search by Montreal Alouettes for a consistent punter is continuing.

The six-foot, 220-pounder was dropped by Minnesota Vikings about 10 days ago.

His punting average was 43.5 yards this season. Last year it was 38.

Although he was used strictly as a kicker by the Vikings, he also plays as a two-way end.

Coach Perry Moss of the Als has tried out five punters in workouts this season—Martin Fabi, Cam Fraser, Bobby Jack Oliver, Vic Chapman and Jack Kopenhip.

Apparently he felt none did the job satisfactorily.

LEAGUE SET

Under Canadian Football League rules, an NFL cut may attend five practices with a CFL club before a decision on whether to keep him must be made.

Meanwhile a Montreal spokesman announced that Ted Page, a halfback, may rejoin the club for Saturday's game in Ottawa against the Rough Riders.

Page suffered a severely twisted ankle in practice and was placed on the injury reserve list. He comes off Thursday.

Fullback Don Clark's 15-day extension on the list terminates Saturday but he will not play.

Clark suffered a severe kidney injury Aug. 16 against Ottawa here and it is uncertain whether he will see action again this season.

TWO-CAR HOMES

Eight per cent of all Canadian households had two or more motorcars in 1961.

Will Replace Jorgansen

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Quarterback Sonny Jurgensen, a record-setting passer last year for Philadelphia Eagles but sub-par so far this season, will be replaced in the starting lineup by King Hill on Sunday's National Football League game here against Washington Redskins.

The shakeup, announced Tuesday by coach Nick Skorich in efforts to bring the Eagles (1-4) out of the Eastern Division cellar, will mark the first time Jurgensen has been absent from the starting line-up since he succeeded Norm Van Brocklin last year.

Aces Whip Indians 4-3

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quebec Aces, who have spent most of their years in the American Hockey League struggling to stay out of the basement, hold a hefty four - point lead in the Eastern Division today.

The Aces, boasting a 3-1 record, have collected six points while all four other teams in the division have two.

In the only game scheduled Tuesday night, the Aces whipped the defending champion Springfield Indians 4-3—the second straight one - goal triumph the Aces have scored over the titleholders.

Danny Lewicki broke a 3-3 deadlock at 2:42 of the final period for the deciding goal. Guy Rousseau, Skippy Burchell and Bill Sutherland also tallied for the aces.

Jim Anderson, Ted Harris and Bruce Cline notched goals for the Indians. Cline's at 2:19 of the final period, tied the score and set the stage for Lewicki's winner.

WINS DECISION

HALIFAX (CP)—Burke Emery, Canadian light-heavyweight champion, won a unanimous 10-round decision over Marty Pellford of Jersey City Tuesday night in a dull non-title fight at the Halifax Forum. Emery, a former Sherbrooke boxer, now fights out of London, Ont. Pellford weighed 177 and Emery 165.

Big Five Fail To Score

NHL Top Stars Yet To Twinkle

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The five top point-scorers in the National Hockey League last season are off to a slow start.

None has scored a goal yet in the three-game-old season.

Bobby Hull, star left winger with Chicago Black Hawks and league leader last season with 50 points, has been held to one assist so far this season.

Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers and Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, second and third in the 1961-62 season, have no points.

Chicago's Stan Mikita,- who finished fourth last season, has been absent because of a sprained ankle. Frank Mahovlich, of Toronto Maple Leafs, fifth on the list last season, has one assist.

Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion and Jean Beliveau, big guns for the Montreal Canadiens, are also scoreless up to now.

The only players among the top 10 last season anywhere near the top in the new one is Claude Provost of the Habs, in fourth place with four points.

MASK AIDS SAWCHUK

Detroit's coach Sid Abel has credited the mask made by trainer Lefty Wilson for Terry Sawchuk's good goaltending. Sawchuk has allowed only two goals in three games.

Red Kelly of Toronto Maple Leafs is a doubtful starter for Thursday's contest against the Canadiens in Montreal. He is recuperating from influenza and the after - effects of a body check by Boston's Johnny Bucyk Saturday night.

Toronto's goaltender Johnny Bower was hit on the left cheekbone at a practice session Tuesday when George Armstrong's shot was deflected by Bobby Baun. Six stitches were required to close the cut.

Montreal goaltender Jacques Plante, out for the last two games, is not expected to resume practicing until next Monday. Plante's illness was described as an infectious allergy.

The Habs will go with Cesare Maniago, recalled from Spokane Comets of the Western Hockey League for Sunday's game in Detroit, won 3-1 by the Wings.

Reluctant Hero On Spot

Zuger Talk Of The Town

By PAUL RINSTEAD

TORONTO (CP)—Joe Zuger the reluctant hero of the Canadian Football League, is in an awkward position but he has no one to blame but himself.

He was so sensational in his first starting role as Hamilton Tiger - Cats' quarterback Monday night that he set a standard that will be tough to maintain.

The 21-year-old rookie from Arizona State University threw a record eight touchdown passes to lead the Ticats to a 67-21 win over Saskatchewan Roughriders.

"It was one of those once-a-season games," Trimble said in a telephone interview. "And it may even have been a once-in-a-lifetime performance."

Trimble, though, doesn't take a thing away from his new passing sensation.

"It was the finest show by a rookie quarterback I've seen in any league," he said.

Zuger will be Hamilton's starting quarterback for the rest of the season.

Trimble knew the youth had great possibilities as a passer but gave the starting role to Cosentino when regular quarterback Bernie Faloney was injured early in the season.

"I thought Cosentino could do the job as our quarterback and he left Zuger on defence. And remember, Cosentino was outstanding when he played against B.C. Lions.

What impresses Trimble most about his suddenly prominent quarterback?

"He leads his receivers extremely well. Sometimes it looks as if he's overshooting his man but he throws the ball so his receiver can float under it."

Zuger will continue to do Hamilton's punting and now has the second best average in the east—43-8 yards on 90 punts compared to 43.9 for leader Dave Mann of Toronto Argonauts.

Napanee CI Shades Moira 7-0

They dropped a 7-0 decision to Napanee Collegiate Institute in a close hard-fought game.

The game was won and lost in the first few minutes of play in the opening quarter when Napanee's Don Forbes crashed over the Moirs line for the only touchdown of the game. It was converted

The Moira youngsters fought back hard. Twice they were on the doorstep of pay dirt and twice they failed to make the touchdown hardage.

They carried the ball over the goal-line on both occasions but officials claimed the whistle blew on each attempt and called the play back to the one-yard line.

But the Napanee line held and Moirs failed to hit for the points.

Royals Nip Hawks 8-6

ST. CATHARINES (CP)— Guelph Royals spoiled St. Catharians an early 4-1 lead. then came back to defeat the Black Hawks 8-6 Tuesday night in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A exhibition game.

It was the first exhibition win for Royals, who lost twice to Peterborough, and the first loss for St. Catharines, who shipped the defending Memorial Cup champion Hamilton Red Wings twice during the weekend.

Borden Smith scored two goals for Guelph.

Will Probe Liston's Background

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—U.S. Attorney Drew J. T. O'Keefe said Tuesday he has asked the justice department to investigate the background and associations of heavyweight champion Sonny Liston.

O'Keefe, chief federal prosecutor in Eastern Pennsylvania, said he made the request last week at a meeting in Washington with Attorney General Robert Kennedy attended by U.S. attorneys from other big American cities.

O'Keefe said an investigation of Liston, a native of St. Louis who now lives in Philadelphia, is necessary to check alleged reports the Negro fighter may still have racketeer connections.

The Philadelphia Bulletin reports a source "close to the conference" said Kennedy was "very interested" in O'Keefe's request for an investigation, but did not indicate what steps, if any, he plans to take.'

Liston has been linked in the past with Frank (Blinky) Palermo, now free on $10,000 bail pending appeal from a 12-year prison sentence for conspiracy imposed in California.

Liston recently denied any present connection with Palermo.

Half-Sponsor Needed for Hockey Club

The City Hockey League, with four teams prepared to open the schedule two weeks from tonight, found itself with three and a half sponsorships the other day.

Joyce-Rollins, Trudeau Motors and the Pepsis are all set but a misunderstanding between one of last year's team managers and his sponsor was cleared up the other day when Vagden Mills announced that it would not sponsor a team this year.

Vagden's were listed as co-sponsors, with Welbank Motors, but now another half sponsor is needed to line up with Welbanks.

The league, under the chairmanship of President Cliff Belch, meets in Secretary-treasurer Bert Faulkner's office tonight at 7.30 p.m. and it is hoped the matter will be cleared up by then.

According to team managers and coaches, prospects for the league appear right. The Pepsi's practised Monday night and Trudeau Motors hold their opening workout tomorrow evening.

Opening games, slated for Wednesday, October 31, pit Joyce-Rollins against Welbanks and Trudeau vs Pepsi's.

Anyone interested in sharing the Welbank sponsorship is asked to contact either Belch or Faulkner as soon as possible.

TORONTO (CP)—Crafty Lace won Tuesday's featured Caledonia Purse by 4½ lengths over Royal Spirit completing the mile and sixteenth distance in 1.43. This equalled Hartney's track record set on Oct. 20, 1961 by Winsteo.

The quinella of Crafty Lace and Royal Spirit returned $18.10. Ron Turcotte, who rode Crafty Lace to victory, was registering his 63rd win of the current hall meeting, putting him 28 ahead of nearest rival Jim Fitzsimmons.

Lady Chess, under Paul Kalai, won the first and jockey Harlon Dalton brought home Plead in the second to set up a daily double payoff of $23.

MOIRA BEVERAGES BOTTLES CRUSH PRODUCTS FOR BELLEVILLE

BELLEVILLE, Ont.—Moira Beverages Ltd., Belleville, Ont., has signed a franchise agreement with Crush International Ltd., Toronto, to bottle and distribute Crush products in the Belleville area. These products include the world famous Orange Crush, as well as Grape Crush, Grapefruit Crush, Lemon-Lime Crush, Cream Soda Crush and Root Beer Crush, as well as the popular America Dry Ginger Ale.

Mr. Spinelli gained his first experience in Smiths Falls, Ont., where he started in the soft drink business during the 30's. He came to Belleville six years ago and founded his own company, Moira Beverages Limited. At that time he had a small plant and a delivery truck with a small fleet and only two trucks to cover the market area. Since then he has enlarged the size of his plant to 10,000 square feet, and his fleet of trucks has now increased to 24. Mr. Spinelli employs 22 people at his plant.

Quality and service are the two most important keys to the success of Mr. Spinelli's business. He is particularly careful of the quality of the products leaving his plant. Standards are exacting in the soft drink business, and extreme care is taken to insure that all ingredients that go into the product are of the highest quality. Clear bottle inspection is of the highest importance, and at Mr. Spinelli's plant this operation is taken place to make sure that these standards are maintained.

Service to customers has always been one of Mr. Spinelli's prime considerations and he has built a sound business reputation on this throughout his territory.

Clifford A. Drummond, vice-president, franchise division for Crush International, on hand for the signing of the franchise, remarked on Mr. Spinelli's manner in which Mr. Spinelli has conducted his business. "He is a hard-working and ambitious businessman and has one of the finest plants in this area. We are very pleased, indeed, to have him in the Crush family of bottlers," said Mr. Drummond.

In communities throughout Canada soft drink bottling plants play an important part in the growth of the area. Last year Mayor A. J. Haig of Belleville congratulated Mr. Spinelli on his company's contribution to the economy of his city.

Mr. Spinelli lives in Belleville with his wife and five children. He is a member of the Belleville Curling Club and the Crush, the Belleville Curling Club where he is an avid curler, the Canadian Legion and the Ad and Sales Club. Through the years he has been very active in sporting undertakings, and has provided active sponsorship of a number of sport teams throughout the area.

Karloff, Lorre and Price Together for First Time

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — They're having a summit horror conference at American - International.

Hop on your broom and drop over. You'll find that terror triumphirate — Boris Karloff, Peter Lorre and Vincent Price.

Karloff, Lorre and Price are oddly cast in their longtime typings as hucksters of horror. All three are men of the utmost gentility.

Karloff is a cultured English man who leads a quiet life in London, commuting here for acting dates. Lorre is a devotee of good food and wine and one of Hollywood's best raconteurs. Price loves art. He is collector of art for sale by Sears Roebuck.

When I visited The Raven set, all three were cooing an air of congeniality.

"Peter and Boris are dreams to work with," enthused Price. "I'm having a ball," declared Lorre.

"Such good company," commented Karloff.

'GOOD' TO BE TYPED

How did they get pegged in the horror field?

"I guess it was M that did it," said Lorre of the German made talkie in which he played a child-killer.

"It was House of Wax that did it for me," Price explained. "I've done only 10 of the thrill pictures, but the typing seems to stick. That's all right with me. This type of picture is good back to what Hollywood used to offer the public — entertainment."

Karloff got into the field with his monster in the original Frankenstein (1931).

"It's the best thing in the world for an actor to be typed," he declared.

"Shoe makers and other manufacturers struggle for years to establish a trade mark. When an actor can do it with one role, he is extremely fortunate.

FARM OUT JOHNSON

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Red Wings Tuesday farmed forward Al Johnson to their Pittsburgh club in the American Hockey League. Johnson appeared briefly in Detroit's first two National Hockey League games this season. Billy McNeill, who joined the Red Wings Sunday, will take Johnson's place in Detroit.

Houk Happy, Dark Proud Of Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—"I'm sure glad he hit that ball right at somebody," sighed manager Ralph Houk of the victorious New York Yankees, in the general jubilation of the winning dressing room.

"He couldn't have hit it much better. But I don't care how hard they hit them if they hit them at somebody."

Houk was talking about the rifle shot line drive that Willie McCovey of San Francisco Giants hit to Bobby Richardson to end the World Series, with the Yankees on top 10-and two Giants in scoring position.

"We made some good plays, (From) Tresh's catch on Willie Mays in the seventh inning saved the game. So did fast fielding by (Roger) Maris on Mays' double in the ninth.

"And the Giants didn't do anything that beat themselves either. They fought us right down to the last out of the seventh game."

TERRY DAZED

Ralph Terry, the shy, almost frail right hander who pitched his shutout for the Yanks, sat in his locker cubicle, leaning his head against the wall. He was dazed smile on his face, and said:

"It was the biggest thrill of my life, but oooh, Im glad it's over. What an ending. What a thrilling ending.

That's how close the teams were in every respect in this series.

"They are a great ball club."

Elston Howard, the catcher, said the Yanks had the toughest game Terry ever pitched."

"Were we nervous?" Howard said. "It's a shock of the hair-breadth victory wore off, the Yankees seemed to come to life.

"Terry gave them their Bye, Bye, Baby," shouted third baseman Clete Boyer, over and over.

Terry called for champagne, and a glass was handed to him.

With the glass in hand, Terry leaned back again, banged his head against the back of the locker a few times as if to make sure that he was awake and not dreaming, and said again: "What an ending."

Many of the Yankees wandered around the locker room, some of them undressed, others in partial uniform. All had sweet smiles on their faces. Even Roger Maris, the angry man of the year, smiled, although he was into the shower within 30 seconds after the game entered the dressing room.

Houk was asked if he thought of taking McCovey intentionally in the ninth inning, with Mays on second, Matty Alou on third and first base open.

WAS TEMPTED

"I was tempted to put him on," Houk said, "but I talked to Terry and he said he would just as soon pitch to him as the next man (Orlando Cepeda), and he thought he could get him out if he made good pitches."

Tresh's catch was the decisive defensive play of the game, however. He snagged a ball hit by Mays down the left field line that would have been a sure double. A triple by McCovey followed.

"I caught the ball in the web of my glove," Tresh said. "I was running so fast I grabbed it with my right hand to hold it in, because I knew I was going to hit the wall real hard and I didn't want to drop it."

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—"No, I don't think Matty could have made it home on Willie Mays' double in the ninth. He would have been out."

Manager Alvin Dark thus echoed the sentiments of the Giants that Matty Alou couldn't have scored from first on Mays' hit in the ninth inning as San Francisco lost 1-0 to New York Yankees in Tuesday's finale of the World Series.

Asked how he felt, the Giants manager declared:

"I feel like this club had a great year. I'm as proud of them as I can be of them. They played just great."

National League president Warren Giles came into Dark's office to say, "Alvin, you gave your league great representation you and your players. You could not have asked for better."

Losing pitcher Jack Sanford sat glumly. Asked if he were miserable with fast balls when he walked pitcher Ralph Terry in the fifth, leading to the Yankees' run, he snapped, "certainly I was, why do you think I walked him?"

Sanford had struck out Terry six of seven times he had faced him previously and in the walk filled the bases and the run scored as the Giants executed a squeeze play.

Third base coach Whitey Lockman said he held up Matty Alou in the ninth "because in my opinion, he couldn't have made it."

Matty agreed, saying "I think I would have been out."

Alou was on first base when Mays rifled a double to the right field corner. Roger Maris, the Yankee right fielder, made a quick recovery and fired the ball to the infield—and Alou stopped at third. McCovey came out to end the game two pitches later.

Sports Snapshots

By MARVEN MOSS

MONTREAL (CP) — People have been hurling a lot at Harry Murphy for 46 years.

Murph straightens his chunky five-foot frame, sets his jaw and stands impassive.

The ruddy-faced little guy with the fire-cut pate and thinning hair is a Montreal district baseball umpire, a flamboyant type who is likable and easy-smiling chap off it.

Murphy started as a teen-ager in 1917 and has brought he's never made it beyond semi-professional leagues he plans to keep at it "until they carry me off, one way or another."

"In the last few years—I'm getting on a bit myself—I talk about hanging it up at the end of each season. But come spring, I always change."

At work, Murphy makes a practice of his calls and invariably the fans agree with him taunts for the first few innings.

In a high-pitched voice he shouts his decisions, hands swinging in exaggerated gestures.

MISSES A FEW

But beneath the showman's flair is a man of baseball grounding who brooks no nonsense. The player who misbehaves is ejected with speed and authority, dispatched by a flip of Harry's thumb.

Murph makes a show out of it but there are few of his calls you can really dispute with honesty," says Bill Bennett, 23, a pitcher who is a veteran of 3 years played Junior ball in one of the many leagues where Murphy officiates.

Harry himself will admit in a weaker moment that he occasionally muffs one.

"None of us is anywhere close to perfect," he says.

"But one thing I'm always careful about. I don't ever try to conceal mistakes. That is, if I realize that I goofed, I steer clear of making my next decision favorable to make up for it. Once it's gone that's it. I'm not trying to make myself popular with everyone."

Murphy was assaulted once. That was back in 1947 and he's not sure whether it was the fans or the players.

HIT WITH BAT

The game was a city championship final in the junior category. Tempers exploded and the fans swarmed the field.

Somebody slashed me across the face with a blunt object, probably a bat. I took 16 stitches in the face and was in hospital for a month. But I still have my teeth."

As a kid, Murphy was a sandlot catcher. His short stature impeded his progress and he switched to umpiring early. He earns anywhere from 50 cents to $12 a game.

His regular job is in the planning department of an aircraft manufacturing firm. He joined there 30 years ago as a breakman with the CPR on the Montreal-Quebec City run.

Officiating takes him around the province to such centres as Sherbrooke, Joliette and Three Rivieres where there are thriving senior leagues made up with many of ballplayers past the junior age limit but not up to full professional calibre.

Caesar's Broad Slapstick On First Show Not Funny

By CYNTHIA LOWE

NEW YORK (AP)—Sid Caesar is known as a "comedian's comedian," admired for his inventive, convincing pantomime and brilliant dialect.

Tuesday night, Caesar returned to television after a long absence with a half-hour show on ABC. For some reason, he ignored his specialities and went in for broad slapstick. The opening of the show consisted mostly of ripping up the felt on a pool table. Another was a complicated sketch about a brain (played by Caesar) directing a sailor's romance. There was a long, silent argument to symphony music, and a hectic sketch about a man with some free tickets to a 250-stringed orchestra.

None of it, alas, was funny.

During the summer, words was carefully leaked out of ABC that there would be some changes in two of its characters: Bob Eliot Ness and Ben Casey, said the rumor, would be "humanized."

I've been watching eagerly for signs of change, but to date, I've been disappointed. It's the same grim, serious-minded nemesis of lawbreakers he has been in other Untouchable seasons, and his biggest gesture of relaxation is to take off his jacket coat—never his gun and shoulder holster.

As for Ben Casey, he remains a serious-minded, gruff surgeon and this week, didn't even have a decent part. He just stood around with his stethoscope while guest star Rod Steiger played a patient with a problem concerning three daughters.

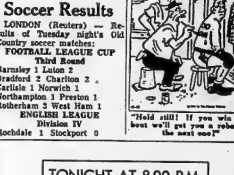
Nelson Eddy and Rise Stevens Star in "The Chocolate Soldier" Gay Romantic Musical

"The Chocolate Soldier," one of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's most felicitous musicals, stars Nelson Eddy and the lovely Metropolitan Opera star, Rise Stevens.



The Oscar Strauss operetta revolves about a married couple who are the musical comedy toasts of Vienna. The scenes they enjoy on the stage is unfortunately not repeated in their marital life, for Miss Stevens, cast as Maria, is a flirtatious wench, and Eddy, as Karl, is a husband consumed by jealousy.

It is not until Karl hits upon the resource of masquerading as his own rival that he is able to test his wife's faithfulness, a test which is fraught with hilarious complications.

Miss Stevens' rich voice is heard in such selections as "Gypsy Cafe," "The Trout," and an aria from the original French version of "Carmen."

Eddy's solos include "While My Lady Sleeps," and "Song of the Flea," while the two stars together sing, "My Hero," "Evening Star," "Seek the Spy," "The Presentation," "Chocolate Soldier" and the Finale.

"The Chocolate Soldier," coming to the Belle Theatre on Thursday evening for one presentation at 8.15, is the second in the popular Golden Operetta series, and is based on Ferenc Molnar's "The Guardsman." The screenplay was produced by Victor Saville, and directed by Roy Del Ruth. Heading the supporting cast are Nigel Bruce, Florence Bates, Dorothy Gilmore, Nycia Westman, Max Barwyn and Charles Judels.

"Hold still! If you win this bout we'll have a robe for the next one!"

Will Not Press Charges at Present Time

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Louis V. Taylor, a variety store proprietor, said Tuesday night he will not press charges "at the present time" against two police women for "an infringement of my private rights as a citizen," but the policewomen have asked two magazines from his store Monday, leaving a receipt, if the police department has current drive to rid the city's newsstands of certain literature.

Mr. Taylor said he is acting on the advice of his lawyer and the Retail Merchants Association.

Acting Police Chief Finlay Carroll said Tuesday police have no authority to remove magazines from city newsstands without a warrant.

However, he denied the department is infringing on citizens' rights, adding that "it's just a matter of co-operation."

Mr. Taylor said neither of the magazines is on a list of publications considered obscene by a committee of workers at the attorney-general's department.

The two policewomen have been described by the 30-year-old proprietor as "the finest scene" publications to London stores, police said.

"It's a definite situation," commented W. B. Common, deputy attorney - general, in Toronto. He said the department receives publications from time to time which are sent on to the city police.

However, "the whole question of obscenity is up to the courts," he concluded.

Mr. Taylor, in a letter of protest to Mayor Gordon Stanbury, said he agreed with the necessity of cleaning up the racks, but "I don't agree with the method."

Meanwhile, Very Rev. Angus J. MacQueen, past moderator of the United Church of Canada, described a suggestion for establishment of a period of thorities on literature in London as insightful, responsible approach to the problem of obscene literature."

Chief Carroll suggested the panel Monday.

Two Strikers Jailed, Five Others Fined

TORONTO (CP)—Two strikers were jailed Tuesday and five others fined as the result of picketing violence at the strikebound A. R. Clarke and Company tannery.

Magistrate James Butler sentenced Allan Engler and Apas Markoff to five days each for intimidating a driver at the tannery by grabbing him by the rms as he got off a streetcar to go to work.

Walter Rudnicki, 40, was fined $100 or five days for creating a disturbance and $50 or 10 days consecutive for watching and besetting. Stephen Fic and Myron Brodanyk were fined $40 or 20 days and $20 or five days, respectively, for creating a disturbance.

Marlo Shara, 27, was fined $15 or five days for common assault and George Cop, 31, $40 or 20 days for using a disturbance, the charges arising out of separate incidents.

Alteration in Alexander's Dispatch About El Alamein Was Made by Earl Himself

LONDON (CP)—The war office cleared up a mystery Tuesday by disclosing that an alteration in Earl Alexander's Second World War dispatch about the crucial El Alamein campaign had been made by Alexander himself.

(Alexander, who had apparently forgotten about the change, said in Rom that the war office report is correct.)

Publication last week of the memoirs of Lord Alexander, Governor - General of Canada from 1946 to 1952, had revised an old dispute about who planned Allied strategy in the battle of Alam El Halfa.

Alexander, who commanded the Middle East forces, was charged in his book that a sentence had been added mysteriously to the original dispatch. It made plans for the tide-turning desert battle in which the British 8th Army stopped the German Afrika Corps.

SUGGEST TAMPERING

A battle of words, mostly waged in letters-to-the-editor columns, followed. The writers who included British war historians, military commentators and politicians, said that if there had been tampering, the culprit had to be found because the reputations of famous British generals were at stake.

The issue, in fact, was whether the successful British battle plan for Alam El Halfa had been formulated by Field Marshal (then General) Sir Claude Auchinleck, or Alexander.

Tuesday's war office statement said: "Field Marshal Lord Alexander's original dispatch contained this sentence: 'I adopted this plan of defence in principle and, if the enemy should give us enough time, I hoped to be able to improve our positions by strengthening the left or southern flank.'

"As a result of discussions with the war office, Lord Alexander later himself amended the sentence to read: 'General Montgomery, now in command of the 8th Army, accepted this plan in principle, to which I agreed, and hoped that if the enemy . . .'

"This was the form in which the dispatch finally appeared."

NO IDEA OF CHANGE

Alexander, currently on a five-day visit to West Germany, said in his memoirs he had no idea who had made the change or why.

The war office examined the documents after Patrick Gordon Walker, Labor party defence spokesman, threatened to ask questions in Parliament.

Meanwhile Alexander's memoirs statement had brought comments from those involved in the El Alamein battle.

Montgomery said no one had suggested any battle plans to him.

"I made a reconnaissance when I arrived," he said. "Nobody suggested to me what I was to do, when I was to do it. It would have been quite improper for anybody to have done so."

And Auchinleck's biographer, John Connell, said Auchinleck had prepared plans to meet any new German offensive before he was replaced.

Connell said Tuesday: "I do not budge from my view that Auchinleck laid proper plans . . . for an offensive battle eastwards from El Alamein."

Auchinleck declined to say all he had no comment to make.

One of the new trends today is the comeback of a formal dining room. Traditional furniture by Victoriaville Furniture Ltd., Quebec, lends dignity and beauty for years ahead. (Photo Courtesy Canadian Home Furnishings Institute.)

Three-Year Furnishing Plan Is Advised for Newly-Weds

Wedding bells bring wedding bills — there is no escaping that fact! The average couple today may find that when the smoke of the wedding accounts has cleared and the honeymoon is behind them, they have piles of wedding gifts (many duplicates to be returned or exchanged), but not too much by way of the basic furnishings they require to establish an apartment dwelling or a home.

A home — like Rome — is not built in a day. This is obvious to anybody who starts to furnish from scratch. To the newlywed it may be frustrating to realize that the cold facts of price tags confuse the rosy mental image they have cherished of a well and comfortably furnished home to move into when the "Mr. and Mrs." partnership begins. Essential furniture for living is hard on the budget and not often will available funds buy everything at once. The answer begins with planning.

We suggest that newlyweds make a complete list of furniture they would like to own for a living room, a bedroom and a dinette within a three-year period. Do this without reference to immediate budget limitations, although it is well to keep in mind what the total three year expenditure is likely to be. Then check wedding gift items such as small tables, lamps, pictures and accessories and mark these as "already found". The remainder of his shopping list then comes in for close scrutiny.

BASIC REQUIREMENTS

Something to sit on — something to sleep on and something to eat on; these are the basic requirements. Storage cabinets are also important in the first scheme of purchasing. The important point to remember is that the essentials should be chosen in line with ideas for future planning, so that at the end of the three years there is an integrated furnishings look and not just an assortment of "bargains" picked up without reference to anything except the amount of money which may be available at some particular moment. Erratic buying can result in confusion of styles, upholstery, design and finishes and nothing which spells "homemaking" as an investment for the future.

A three-term plan can usually be broken down into definite areas. The first is that which is "essential" for beginning, the second is that which adds additional seating and storage and the third is the "finishing" decorative pieces.

For simplification, let's say that the couple find they can spend $1,000 to begin with and another $1,000 in each of the second and third years. The first $1,000 will have to cover items of good quality, chosen with a design format in mind, so that they may add to it without confusion. They will choose a good box spring and mattress and a chest of drawers (preferably in a style which may be used elsewhere eventually) for the bedroom. The living room acquires a good sofa, one upholstered chair, two end tables and a good-quality medium sized rug. The dinette furniture consists of a dining table, four chairs of good finish and design and a chest which doubles as a small sideboard. A good idea is to match this chest with that in the bedroom and eventually they may both be used as a pair in one room. Drapes may pose some problem, but it is well to keep in mind that side drapes only, in neutral shades, can be complemented by sheer glass curtains until such time as it is advisable to invert in wall-to-wall draperies.

LATER STEPS

The second steps for $1,000 involves adding another upholstered chair to the living room, a coffee table and a desk. The bedroom will boast a night table, a combination chest-dressing table and a small chair (we have moved the original bedroom chest to the dinette area) and two small matching rugs. The dinette has no additions, other than the matching chest from the bedroom.

The third and final step in the plan spends another $1,000 to provide a large rug for the living room, another occasional table, a mirror and an odd chair. The dinette claims the smaller rug from the living room and adds a serving table to match the dining set. The bedroom adds another night table, draperies which will tie the room together with a more expensive spread and a wall hanging.

This basic budget does not include television or stereo player, but if the budget permits the couple may be able to purchase a table model of one or the other which can eventually be used in a recreation room or as an "extra".

GIFTS HELP

Most wedding gift collections include linens, lamps and small appliances, as well as china and glassware, so that these have not been part of the furnishings budget.

Canadian furniture and furnishings today are of excellent quality and design. Deeply impressed in the minds of newlyweds must be the thought that what they buy today, must be good tomorrow. Settle for quality, rather than quantity, at the beginning and it won't be too long before those who did not plan consistently are asking "how could you afford to buy such nice things?" Check such points as finish, drawer pulls, upholstery sewing, padding on the chairseats, wood grain, fabric and supports; it is possible to buy something which looks nice, but which won't stand the strain of constant use.

Tie colors together into the plan, so that more interchange of pieces is possible as expansion of furnishings take place.

TRUCKER FINDS BODY

NEW YORK (AP)—A truck driver passing through a garbage dump found the smoldering body of a former mental patient who police said apparently had soaked himself with gasoline and set himself afire Sunday. Police said Joseph Gargano, 42, had threatened to kill himself earlier Sunday and actually stuck his head in a gas stove oven but was dragged away in time.

Lord Alexander Memoirs Cause Hot Debate

By ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP) — The Labor party's defence critic, Patrick Gordon Walker, has charged "political forgery" in the alleged insertion of a sentence into Field Marshal Earl Alexander's official dispatch after the El Alamein campaign of the Second World War.

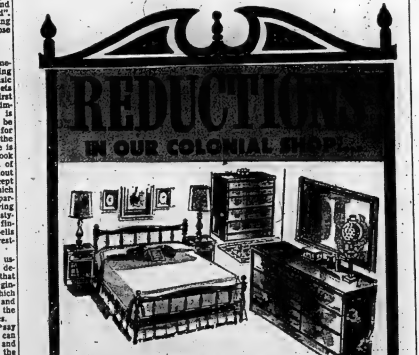
Questions will be asked of the government when Parliament reconvenes in two weeks, he said.

The memoirs of Lord Alexander, Governor-General of Canada from 1946 to 1952, were published here last week. They revived a dispute over who planned the North Africa battle of Alam El Halfa in which Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery's 8th Army repelled Rommel's Afrika Corps.

The official version of the dispatch, published by the British war office in 1946, contains a sentence suggesting Montgomery won with a plan drawn up by his predecessor, Field Marshal Sir Claude Auchinleck. But Lord Alexander, then commander-in-chief, Middle East, says the sentence was not in the dispatch he sent.

The disputed sentence is: "General Montgomery, now in command of the 8th Army, accepted this plan to which I agreed."

DOESN'T APPEAR



And Lord Alexander says: "This particular sentence . . . has been much quoted against Montgomery, but it does not appear in the original typescript of the dispatch, which I hold, and how it got there is, at this time of day, a matter for unprofitable surmise."

Gordon Walker and several military strategists both professional and amateur who have been bickering in the correspondence columns of The Times feel more strongly than does Lord Alexander about tracking down the source of the inserted sentence.

"I am no lover of Montgomery," said Gordon Walker, "but this looks like an attempt to do him in. We want to know who did this and why."

The war office, faced with Lord Alexander's original draft of the dispatch, admits the sentence was added later but refuses further comment.

"The war office's attitude is almost feeble and suspicious," said Gordon Walker. "Records are kept of those people who see such official documents and it should be perfectly easy to discover who was responsible."

Ontario Hydro Publishes Appliance Survey Results

Only one-third of the householders in Ontario can serve waffles for breakfast, but nearly everyone can eat toast with his early-morning coffee.

Why?

Because 32.6 per cent of the households in the province have an electric waffle or sandwich grill, and 93 per cent own a toaster.

These statistics are included in a report entitled "Hydro Appliance Survey" produced by Ontario's Hydro Sales Division and distributed to municipal electrical utilities in Ontario. The survey was carried out to determine reliable provincial saturation figures for a wide range of electrical appliances and equipment. Except for a few municipalities where such surveys have been conducted in the past, no statistics have been available for determining market trends and load-building potentials on the municipal level and on a province-wide basis.

INTERESTING SIDELIGHTS

The report contains interesting sidelights on the daily habits and way of life of the people of Ontario.

A total of 96.5 per cent of Ontario households have an electric refrigerator, the highest saturation shown, but only 1.6 per cent own an electric dehumidifier, the lowest saturation. Second lowest saturation—1.9 per cent—is for electric dishwashers.

Car-block heater ownership ranges from 8.5 per cent in the southern part of the province to 69.9 per cent in the northwest. On a province-wide basis, 75.3 per cent have electric ranges, 89.5 per cent own television sets, 95.4 per cent have radios, and 13.8 per cent own an electric blanket.

Although nine out of ten Ontario homes have an electric washing machine, less than three out of ten own an electric clothes dryer. More than half of the province's householders own an electric sewing machine or a floor polisher.

Survey results will provide utility management with the data necessary to assist them with their load building programs.

PROVIDES INFORMATION

Copies of the reports are also available to electrical appliances and equipment manufacturers, distributors, dealers and contracts, to provide market information.

In November, 1960, Ontario Hydro's Marketing Research Department sent questionnaires to some 100,000 householders selected at random from the 124 municipalities with more than 1,000 residential customers and from the customers served directly by Ontario Hydro. A high percentage, some 85 per cent, of the questionnaires sent out were completed and returned.

Ontario Hydro plans to conduct similar appliance surveys every two years. The results of these surveys will provide valuable information on where, what, and how many appliances are being used in Ontario.

SPACE SAVER

Lived on Fish for 3 Months, Guarded Fire Night and Day

SUVA, Fiji (Reuters)—A survivor from a shipwrecked yacht told today how he and his companions had lived on fish and shellfish for more than three months and guarded their fire night and day because they had only one match.

Two of the survivors drifted on a home-made raft 325 miles from the coral reef where they were wrecked and landed at Kandavu Island, 75 miles south of here.

The story the two Tongans told police here sent an amphibious rescue aircraft to the reef where 10 more men were picked up. Another man was found dead, and the two on the raft said a third man with them had been lost overboard.

The yacht's mate, Vetutu Paulini, described how the craft, Tuafkepan, with 17 persons aboard, ran aground on Kinoya reef July 7 and began to break up the following day.

The survivors headed for the wreckage of a Japanese trawler which had smashed on the same reef three years before.

DISTILLED WATER

They had only enough food and water for 10 days, he said, and after that they had nothing to eat but fish and shellfish. They distilled enough water from the sea to drink a cup each a day.

The mate said the survivors had only one match, so after they lit a fire they guarded it day and night to ensure it never went out.

After two months the survivors decided to build a raft. They found a hammer in the Japanese wreck but had no saw and had to use nails to cut the wood for it.

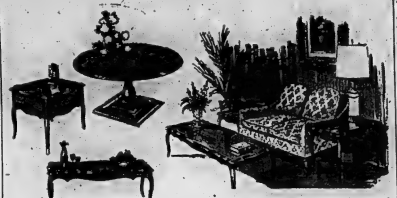
"First as we finished the raft, three of the men died," he said.

Three of the surviving 14 then set out on the raft to get help, carrying with them only four cups of water. One of the three was lost overboard.

Three of the 10 men landed here were brought in on stretchers, but the others seemed in good condition.

Provincial Is Not Same As Colonial

Provincial furniture is sometimes mistaken for colonial but there are marked differences Provincial furnishings cover some of the numerous designs and eras of French Provincial Empire, American Early Colonial, American Colonial, American Federal and American Provincial styles. This brings in an exciting range from comfortable formality to the rustic endeavors of our North American founders to reproduce earlier periods from memory. Provincial furniture is almost divided into two categories—French and American.



Early French Provincial furniture built by rural craftsmen was solid and functional, often stained with rich deep peasant carvings. Ladderback chairs with rush seats, simple turned legs and stretchers and trestle tables, were common. In many respects these early designs were not unlike our own styles of the pioneer era. Provincial cabinetmakers greatly simplified the more elegant styles of the preceding periods, often improving them as a result. Their versions were comfortable with many graceful curves, serpentine contours and more slender attenuated cabriole legs with little or no carvings. This particular aspect of French Provincial style has a timeless quality that makes it extremely popular in this country today. In addition, local cabinetmakers often combined features of two or more styles, injecting their own personal taste. Oak, walnut, chestnut and fruitwoods were employed a great deal. Upholstered chairs and settees stressed rectilinear lines, high backs, detached arm supports and concave rear legs. Commodes were simple, rectangular shapes. Decoration was mostly painted or carved.

FEDERAL ERA

The Federal era reflected the prosperity of the colonists Many consider this era the finest in North American furniture design. The cabriole leg sometimes carved at the knee or unadorned, and ending in scroll, ball or claw feet appeared on nearly all pieces — chairs, tables, high and low boys. Spoon shaped chair backs, slanted down, stretchers of all sorts, solid vase or fiddle splats, valanced aprons, carved shell, fan and sunburst motifs were characteristic notes. New pieces included corner and easy chairs, sofas and day-beds and drop leaf tables replacing gate leg and trestle types.

Every country has its Provincial styles. Frequently they are simplified rural copies of what is fashionable in the larger cities, the differences resulting from cruder tools, limited skills and resources. Typical pieces of American Provincial are highly decorated bridal dower chests, cabriolets, kneaded and harvest tables. Their furniture was well made, simple and thoroughly functional. The used maple and pine extensively. Slat back chairs with rush or cane seats, communal dining tables mounted on trestles chests and cupboards without feet, little tables designed for specific purposes such as sewing stands and trays for sorting herbs, were outstanding.

The true character of Provincial furniture designs is maintained in today's versions of this period. Manufacturers have added comfort through upholstery and chair shaping without damaging the essential design.

Furniture Trend Is to Richness

Trend is to richness and romance in furniture and furnishing collections for fall. Newest influence is Spanish, along with inspirations from other modern and ancient Mediterranean countries. French and Italian provincial continue their strong position.

Traditional early American modern and contemporary show a tendency to move closer together in style. Mixing of design ideas from many countries and eras is prevailing theme in home decorating offering opportunity for expression of personal tastes and interests.

Furniture is decorative, with display of fine woods, unusual woods, painted finishes, wrought iron and other metals all contributing to an heirloom look.

Personality for the kitchen is provided with a gay canopy and crisp cafe curtains in a print that adds "sugar and spice" to the decor. Print features spices, jams, jellies and other "sweet stuff." Counter space doubles as work area, breakfast-snack spot.

Medicare Makes Suicide Easier And Neater, Too

LONDON (AP)—A Scottish doctor says Britain's National Health Service has made suicide easier and neater.

Dr. Neil Kessell, of the psychological medicine department at Edinburgh's Royal Infirmary, said the reason is the easy availability of lethal drugs under the free health plan.

Writing in the doctors' journal Medical World, he says:

"Whereas gassing, throat-and wrist-cutting and jumping from heights used to be common, they come a poor second nowadays to drug-taking.

"Not only are such drugs frequently prescribed with a libertarian attitude amounting almost to abandon, but it is common for patients to retain stocks of medicines left over after a spell of treatment.

"The result has been to alter radically the previously existing ways of attempting suicide."

FIRE PREVENTION

It costs about $70,000,000 annually to operate all the fire departments in Canada.

"Talk" Radio Has Attracted Large Audience

TORONTO (CP) — A New York radio executive told the Association Monday that a return to older broadcasting ideas has produced a "renaissance of radio."

Martin S. Flissler, vice-president of independent station WOR in New York, told more than 350 broadcasters that "talk" radio has attracted a large audience and some radio stations are thriving because of it.

He said WOR switched to adult talk radio and in just five years increased its annual income to $7,000,000 from $4,500,000.

Mr. Flissler said news programming is of vital importance to adult talk radio. Local news in depth is an essential, he added.

CRITICIZES CONGRESS

Keynote speaker E. L. Bushnell, president of CJOH-TV, Ottawa, said Canada's private broadcasters have contributed to the welfare and progress of society and need not apologize for making profit.

Mr. Bushnell criticized the Canadian Labor Congress for its opinions of private broadcasting. He called the opinions "the biggest heap of verbal garbage I have seen."

The convention heard a report by Howard Caine of CHWO, Oakville, on plans for a museum of early radio equipment to be established at Signal Hill, Nfld., where Marconi transmitted the first overseas radio signal.

New CCRA president is Bill McGregor of CKCO, Kitchener; Gordon Keeble of CHIC, Brampton, Ont., is first vice-president, Karl Monk of CHOK, Sarnia, second vice-president and Frank Murray of CJRC, Belleville, secretary-treasurer.

Entertaining the Family

At-home entertainment, whether it's looking, listening or reading, has a growing importance in the life of the modern family. The big problem often is, how to find the time to enjoy all the many forms of entertainment that come into the home—television, radio, high fi and stereo, books, magazines and newspapers and, increasingly, painting.

Help is at hand with the suggestion that it's easier to find the time, once you've found the place. When all the forms of home entertainment are gathered together in one well-organized area, the added convenience usually results in time saved — and also helps make sure that each form of entertainment will get its share of the family's attention.

Thus, what used to be called the "recreation room" is now becoming the "entertainment centre." Whether it's an entire room or part of one, this centre can have charm as well as convenience, thanks to a growing variety of modular units and sight-and-sound cabinets.

Entertainment centre, library and art gallery combine to save space, produce pleasure. For listening and looking enjoyment, portable stereo, television, FM-AM clock radio and plug-in portable intercom mingle with books on mounted shelves. Paintings on plywood panels slide over equipment not in use. Listening-looking equipment by General Electric.

Shelves, cabinets, chests and desks for platform stacking or wall hanging can be arranged to suit individual needs and tastes, making room for family hobbies, too.

If the plan calls for concealing sight-and-sound equipment when not in use, attractive cabinets are available to house TV and/or stereo, in designs that fit home decor—Danish modern, early American, French provincial or the new Spanish influence, for example.

Personal ingenuity can be used, too, to create attractive camouflage. One idea is the placement of sliding panels to cover sight-sound equipment not in use. These serve a double purpose, as the outer sides can become a "gallery" for display of paintings and prints.

An addition to the centre might be an extension telephone or portable intercom.

Three Types of Mattresses Are Being Marketed Today

Sleep is more important than food! Research has proven that without sleep animals will soon numb much faster than when food is withdrawn. Living in a world of activity which tires physically as well as mentally, it is claimed that many ills would greatly decrease if people were properly rested to begin each day.

Ventilation, quiet surroundings, controlled temperature and comfortable bedding — all of these are essential to restful slumber. One of the most neglected articles in the home is the mattress; people who have celebrated silver wedding anniversaries are still using the mattresses which they bought as newlyweds. Now sentiment is worth valuing, but so is health and a poor mattress can affect your physical well-being in many ways. If the borders are sagging — if lumps stick into you when you turn over — if the centre looks like a saucer— If the whole thing looks thin and rundown — then it is time to shop for new bedding for the sake of that aching back.

Once you come to such a conclusion, it might be well to know something about mattresses or you could find yourself with a poor choice which would not be much improvement on the discarded one, outside of appearance.

Basically, there are three types of mattresses popularly sold today; innerspring, foam and solid upholstered. Innerspring is the popular favorite in the Canadian market, although there are many individuals who prefer one of the other types for some particular reason.

Innerspring construction consists of strong steel springs well covered with insulating material and padding on all sides of the coil unit. The coils may be sewn into pockets which are joined together, or the coils may be linked with wire. Good spring design makes a mattress resilient, while it provides a firm core of support. Better mattresses also have edge coils to prevent the ends of the mattresses from "bowing in," or developing a lean to one side or the other.

The second type, foam mattresses, consist of a pre-formed block of rubber or chemical substance, into which air bubbles have been blown during production. A foam mattress requires a firm under-support as it is made from a solid and is generally 4 to 6 inches thick.

The third type, solid upholstered mattresses, are made of layer felt which with proper care and good support will withstand years of normal use. They are less expensive than either of the other two types.

Box springs are certainly the most popular support for mattresses used today. They are firmer in construction, provide more level support for improved sleeping posture and it has been found that they usually prolong the life of the mattress. Because they are not rigidly held at the head and foot of the bed, as are the coil springs or slat springs popular in the past, they do not have the same tendency to "hammock" under the weight of the sleeper.

The most common and sought after tops today are either smooth-top or quilted. In the smooth-top type, all of the padding is attached underneath the ticking to the spring construction. This has the advantage of appearance, but some disadvantages if the ticking stretches or the coil fastenings are damaged causing the padding to slip. The quilted top, on the other hand, means that the ticking which the consumer sees covering the springs is actually quilted to the inner padding and both are attached firmly to the springs; nothing in the mattress is likely to shift position under these conditions.

CARE OF MATTRESSES

The life of any mattress will be extended if care is taken to turn it once or twice a month. Turning should be both ways; head to foot and top to bottom. This prevents the constant pressure of hips and shoulders from depressing the same spots.

Eventual breakdown of the edges, even on the best mattresses, will result if people sit on them while dressing, talking or resting. This is particularly true as it is usually the centre of the mattress which is chosen as a seat.

A firm cotton cover helps to protect the ticking and inner padding from dust. Homemakers are warned, however, to avoid plastic covers as they do not "breathe" and it is essential that air should circulate through the mattress. Additionally, plastic covers can endanger life, particularly for one who sleeps facing the mattress. Numerous infant suffocations have occurred for this reason.

Surveys of consumer requirements indicate that most buyers look for firmness, support construction, durability, price and brand (in that order) when shopping for new bedding. Despite a trend toward promotions most families are still willing to pay more to buy a better mattress for the one third of a lifetime which is spent in bed.

Finally, don't be embarrassed when you shop for a mattress; try out your prospective purchase by testing it for comfort in the store. Consumers owe their sleep and health to good judgment and it is not practical shopping to choose a mattress because it 'may have a pretty or unusual ticking.' The ticking will always be hidden under bedclothes, but the construction and design will be yours to enjoy — and appreciate.

Buying a mattress is an investment in health and comfort. Choose one carefully, try them out in the store—and buy from a reputable firm trained to answer your questions about design and construction.

CLOSE-QUARTER TIP

When a regular saw frame will not fit into a work area requiring a hacksaw cut, split a heavy dowel in half lengthwise. Insert blade and wrap dowel and sandwiched blade with friction tape, to provide a workable temporary handle.

HOME COOLER

Painting the roof of your house white or a light color will keep the second floor temperature as much as ten degrees cooler on hot days. Special aluminum-asphalt roof paints are available for asphalt shingle roofs, or water thinned latex paints are suitable.

Pictures Are Magic Wand In Effective Decorating

Choosing appropriate accessories for a room is like making the perfect dressing for a salad. The accessories are the spice which makes the dressing distinctive. The best loved accessory in today's home is art. Pictures, sculpture and pottery, some original but most authentic reproductions - occupy an important place in the scheme of today's living.

Canadians have a wide range of choice in accessories today. More and more the artisans of this country are producing distinctive accessories for both the custom and the mass markets. The most popular wall dressing is, as it has always been, a good picture which is properly framed. More and more people are realizing that this is a wise investment and that pictures are the magic wand of decorating. With a hook and the flick of a hammer they can transform bare walls into surroundings of warmth and charm.

The colors of a picture provide the scheme for a room, produce one decorative accent where needed, act as an expression of personality for family tastes and interests and hide or minimize architectural defects. Very few home items can do as much.

PERSONAL TASTE RULES

The primary rule of picture selection should be that of personal preference. The choice and variety available are endless and prices range from small amounts to large sums.

Prints, or reproductions as they are sometimes called, are not expensive and permit one to decorate a home according to the budget, and according to taste with other furnishings. Experts say that any picture can hang in any setting, provided the frame and mat tie the picture to the decorative theme of the room. Subject matter of pictures should be appropriate to the room in which they hang, however, so that landscapes, portraits, personal pictures, religious subjects and momentoes are not in one confused jumble.

A good frame heightens the attraction of a picture and an unsuitable or bad frame detracts from it. The better framing establishments in Canada believe that their craft is an art whose purpose is to compliment a picture, rather than to overpower or overshadow it. As Canadian taste matures in this direction, more and more Canadians will be conscious of the difference in frames and of the availability of unusual wall decorating at lower cost.

HOW TO FRAME PICTURES

The frame serves as a support for the picture, but also as the connecting link between the picture and the wall. Because every picture is different, so frames vary in treatment. Certain general rules may be followed, however, in properly selecting the best frame.

The frame should focus attention on the picture and draw the eye to the centre of interest, while it harmonizes in color and weight with the subject matter. Thus it follows that the frame should never dominate the composition it surrounds.

When necessary, the frame may be chosen to create an illusion of depth or size or added perspective to the picture.

Most frames may be classified as "traditional," "provincial" or "modern." Highly carved and elaborate frames, usually finished in gold leaf or metal, are part of the "traditional" group, which also includes formal styles in natural walnut and mahogany. Such frames suggest use with pictures having formal subject matter, such as the "old masters." "Provincial" frames rely on the effect of natural wood graining and coloring and are waxed, lightly stained or antiqued in finish; they are best with fruit and floral prints, still lifes and primitives. "Modern" frames, usually chosen for contemporary art with large bold color areas and abstract forms, are very simple in design, finished in solid tones and often utilize weather beaten or worm-eaten wood.

Manufacturers and distributors of reproductions in Canada claim that there is a wide variation of choice made, usually depending on geographic location. People in the Maritimes prefer square-shaped pictures, while other Canadians choose longer and narrower pictures which are more suitable to lower ceilings and modern furniture. Central Canada prefers seascapes or spring-autumn themes. The average retail price paid for framed reproductions in the medium range is twelve to thirty dollars.

Recent developments in wall decorations for Canadians are unusual and different. Ceramic designs, flattened on one side, being framed for wall interest, are placed against colored linen or neutral burlap mats and beautifully framed. Wood sculptures in natural grain effects are similarly treated. Crests of old inns are becoming popular for recreation rooms or dens and even coin collections are framed for wall interest. All of this trend seems to indicate that Canadians are reflecting personal taste more and more in their homes, so that decorating may be as different as the variation in home and furniture design.

Best Treatment For Burns Is Cold Water

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Cold water is winning more medical votes as the best treatment for burns.

It is credited with relieving pain faster and promoting faster healing.

Instead of putting grease on a hand or finger or other area burned by a stove, a match, or other heat, some recent medical advice has favored bathing the burned area with cold tap water or ice water.

This idea is not new, Dr. T. C. King of the University of Kansas School of Medicine said today. Ancient Hindu writings advised the same treatment.

Speaking to the American College of Surgeons, King described animal experiments in which quick local cooling resulted in far less severe general injury to the body.

Electric Clothes Dryer Makes Wash-and-Wear Care Easy Job

Wash-and-wear fabrics are a boon to the busy homemaker who has an electric clothes dryer.

By following these suggestions by the Hydro Homemakers' Service, the housemaker will find wash-and-wear garments require little or no ironing at the end of the drying cycle.

Wash-and-wear suits are "pressed" as they are dried in an electric clothes dryer. Unless your dryer has a special setting for wash-and-wear garments use the "medium" setting and dry completely. Remove suit immediately at the end of the drying cycle and touch up with an iron if desired.

DO NOT OVERCROWD

To avoid setting wrinkles in drip-dry shirts and blouses, do not overcrowd them in the dryer. Remove when damp-dry and hang on wooden or padded hanger. Touch up collar and cuffs with an iron.

Seersucker play clothes and pyjamas should be removed from the dryer as soon as the drying cycle stops. Smooth with hands, fold and store.

Before drying synthetic fibre knitted sweaters, preheat dryer for several minutes and place a few bath towels in the dryer to cushion tumbling action. Remove sweaters as soon as drying action stops.

TUMBLING METHODS

Blankets, sheets, pillow cases and feather pillows can be air dried after the final and exciting electric clothes dryer. Sheets and pillow cases may be tumbled together. Blankets should be tumbled one at a time. Only two pillows should be tumbled at once, however so that they'll have plenty of room to fluff up.

To raise the nap on velvet or velveteen dresses, or to steam out wrinkles in stored-away wool, gabardine or rayon cloth ing, place garments in electric clothes dryer with two damp towels. Tumble for about five minutes. Hang garments on non-rust hangers until dry, and press if necessary.

Dual-Element Water Heater Ends Problems

Some families are always running out of hot water.

Other families have a large enough tank to provide an average day's requirements, but not to provide extra hot water in a hurry.

A dual-element fast-recovery electric water heater is the answer for both types of problems. In approximately one hour the fast-recovery water heaters can provide about 10 gallons of hot water, enough for a bath or an extra load of laundry.

The ideal electric water heater for most families has a 40-gallon tank with a 1,000-watt element at the bottom and a 3,000 watt element at the top.

The tank is full of hot water and both elements are off. Then water is withdrawn rapidly for use in the home.

Cold water flows into the tank to take the place of the hot water as it is withdrawn. The cold water operates the lower thermostat which turns on the lower heating element only.

As the demand for hot water continues, cold water reaches the top of the tank is heated and ready for use, the upper element goes off and the lower element comes on automatically, staying on until the tank is once again full of hot water.

Classic Style In Furniture Is Described

Do you know the difference between Classic, Provincial and Modern furnishings? Furnishing a tasteful, comfortable home, whether it is modern or traditional, becomes infinitely more satisfying — and more fascinating - when one is familiar with the important styles in furniture.

Classic furniture stresses rectilinear lines, although curves were not banished completely, and was lighter and graceful in design. Legs were usually straight, slender and tapered, round, square, plain, fluted or reeded with turned, spade, block or thimble feet. Chair backs were open or filled, and took a variety of shapes - square, round, elliptical, shield, curving and sinuous lines. Decorative motifs included carved, lyre, urn, oval, heart and wheel shaped splats with flowery motifs, interlaced ribbons, rosettes, wheat ears, urns, swags, scrolls and other designs. Elsewhere, ornamentation followed classical (mostly Greek and Pompeian) character. These carved, painted and inlaid designs were used to embellish legs of tables, chairs, cabinets and breakfronts (often with glazed glass doors), pediments, mouldings, aprons, chair and sofa frames and case fronts. Notable pieces were the console tables and cabinets. Large, upholstered easy chairs, settees, and sofas had curved, outward rolled arms and straight legs, often joined by stretchers.

Odds Are Heavy Against Sales To U. S. Market

CHICAGO (CP)—The United States has made it difficult for Canadian industries to show greater interest in exploiting the potential of that vast market, Carl A. Pollock, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association said Tuesday.

Speaking to the Canadian-American trade and industry committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry, Pollock said U.S. tariff levels and, perhaps even more, the attitude and ruling of the U.S. Bureau of Customs "have been—and still are—major obstacles deterring Canadian manufacturers in many lines."

"Some companies have managed to run through but there are many more which, through no fault of their own, have found the odds impossible to overcome."

DON'T RUN AROUND

Pollock said that even where those Canadian manufacturers have been operating under U.S. tariffs, "they have run into all manner of obstructions and circumlocution. In short, they have been given the run around."

"One of the most serious non-tariff barriers to the export of manufactured goods from Canada is the ruling of the Bureau of Customs that Canadian manufacturers may not invoice their products for duty purposes but their parent or affiliated companies in the U.S. on the basis of the export value provisions of the U.S. Tariff Act.

"How can this kind of action against Canada—your biggest customer, closest ally and longtime friend—be reconciled with President Kennedy's urgent plea for trade expansion between nations of the free world?

"Do you wonder that some Canadians cry out to you in all friendliness to match words with deeds?"

LARGE U.S. CONTROL

Pollock said the significance of this kind of obstruction against Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. parent companies "will be apparent when I remind you that something like half our Canadian manufacturing industry is owned or controlled right here in the United States. That is why the Canadian government has been pressing Washington so hard on this point, so far, I regret to say, to no avail."

"Canada, for all her small population, nevertheless ranks as one of the leading manufacturing nations of the world. As such, our industries—and our living standards with them—must either go forward or slip back. Lacking the gigantic mass market that you enjoy, this means quite simply that our manufacturers must both enlarge their share of the home market and, no less important, sell more abroad.

"For many of us, 'abroad,' means the U.S. market. You are our closest neighbor and, at the same time, the one country above all others with which ar in and year out, we have a massive trade deficit, so massive in fact that it jeopardizes our whole national balance of payments position.

"Could there be a strong case for expansion of Canadian manufactured goods to you?"

New Designs Blend Yesterday and Today

The classic comment, "I may not know anything about art but I know what I like," is only half true when it comes to the art of home decorating, as practised by today's homemaker. She does know what she likes — but she also knows the whys and hows of choosing furniture and furnishings to create attractive, comfortable home surroundings for her family.

This more knowledgeable, more sophisticated approach to home decoration meets a ready response in the fall offerings of furniture designers and manufacturers.

The charm and romance of antiquity unites with modern practicality and convenience, in an abundant variety of versatile functional home fashions.

FURNITURE HAS HEIRLOOM LOOK

French and Italian provincial design elements are notable, while inspirations from Greece, Spain, Portugal and ancient Persia lead to a new force in home decorating — the Mediterranean influence. Elegant hand-carved effects, graceful wrought iron grillwork, colorful tiles and filigree detailing bring an heirloom look to much of this fall's new furniture.

The most important factor, however, is that no one period or type of design dominates. While many furniture styles reflect the heritage of other eras and countries, they are, most often, not line-for-line copies but creative adaptions suited to today's living.

Distinctions between styles are less rigid, as designs from yesterday and today blend the best of each. Traditional accents a more casual comfortable air, early American gains in graciousness; modern and contemporary take on more dramatic proportions and are softened by architectural detail.

Fall's furniture blends, however, are not bland. Diversity of design within coordinated groups assures ample opportunity for distinctive and imaginative decorating. The idea of the important accent piece, richly but tastefully ornamented, is given full play. Numerous furniture pieces effectively display fine woods in new, softer and lighter finishes.

PAINTED FINISHES GAIN IMPORTANCE

Intended to be used in conjunction with these, for a still more opulent effect, is a variety of furniture in painted finishes — notably white, antiqued rubbed or glazed with gold.

Parquetry, marble inlays or tops, handsome metals and vibrant, colorful fabrics with rich sheen or texture add to the look of romance and elegance

Fabrics in upholstery, curtains and draperies combine an elegant and colorful appearance with ease of care.

The trend to harmonious blending of furniture styles and periods is most of all a tribute to the good taste of the modern homemaker. The rigidly matched "set," the concern with confinement to a single design, the matching of finishes all give way to the concept of personal expression, and new furniture and furnishings give the homemaker full scope for reflecting the individuality, the character and preferances of herself and her family in her home decor.

WRIST SAVER

Stress Is on Color For Carpets, Rugs

Stress is on color for carpets, area and room-size rugs in fall '62. Blue and green take the lead — the blues, strong and clear, with the addition of peacock and turquoise tones; the greens, ranging from soft mint and apple to dark moss.

Prominent, too, are "hot" colors such as orange, russet and copper. When these more vivid tones are used, they're usually accompanied by heavy textures with a handcrafted look.

Pastel tints, such as pale blues, pink and yellows, show signs of popularity in floor coverage. Warm beige and brown rank as favored neutrals.

HITS FALSEHOOD

MONTREAL (CP)—It is a violation of social justice to accuse a political opponent falsely of being a Communist or an enemy of religion, a Roman Catholic philosopher said Monday. Abbe Louis O'Neill, a Laval University professor of social philosophy, told alumni of Montreal's Ste. Marie College that election campaigns should be conducted in a climate of truth and dignity.

People of Rome Blase About Bishops, Cardinals

By ALAN HARVEY

ROME (CP)—The people of Rome take a nonchalant view of the 21st ecumenical council. They are blase about bishops and cardinals.

It may startle a stranger, strolling in this beautiful city of terracotta, ochre and burnt orange, to see a magenta-robed prelate with field-glasses slung round his neck or a bishop squatting on the Spanish steps reading a newspaper, but the Romans pass by without a second look.

If they are walking, that is. Romans in cars moved more slowly. The number of automobiles registered in a community of narrow streets and 2,000,000 people has shot up sharply to 532,907, and traffic problems are worse than in London or Paris.

A new mayor, Glauco Della Porta, was appointed to do something about traffic tieups. Recently he confessed himself beaten.

"There just isn't anything I can do," he said. "In three years, maybe five, there will be one great traffic jam, nobody will be able to move, and everbody will die in their cars."

Restaurants are at least aware that a Vatican assembly is in progress. A French reporter spotted a menu listing "Artichauts a Larcheveque," or artichokes in the archbishops' style, and "Soles a la cardinale." The sole comes with a curry sauce, presumably sharp enough to turn customers' cheeks the color of a cardinal.

History is written in, around and under the Basilica of St. Peter's, where the holy fathers are holding their historic meetings. During recent excavations, a series of tombs dating to Imperial Rome was found near where Nero's circus used to be.

"Yes, I'm the one you see reclining here, just as I did all the years of my life, taking good care of myself and never going short of wine . . . friends who read this, do my bidding; mix the wine, drink deep, wreathed with flowers, and do not refuse pretty girls the fruits of love."

Speaking of pretty girls, only a near-sighted tourist would fail to realize that this half-pagan, half-holy city includes a high proportion of the most beautiful girls in the world. Roma puts Paris to shame.

In one of Gina Lollobrigida's films, her lawyer says that Italians, both men and women, are "physically important." Somehow this seems to ring true — as does the line in a travel book, roughly translated from the Italian, which says the people are of "outstanding physique."

A favored spot for visitors is the Spanish steps, designed by Alessandro Specchi. At its foot is the fountain, Barcaccia, built by Bernini's father, within sight of the house where "Tinglise poeta Giovanni Keats," better known as John Keats, died Feb. 24, 1821, at a youthful 26. A travel office is built incongruously into the ground floor.

Below the steps is the smart shopping street, Via Del Condotti, and the Cafe Grego, little changed from the days when Byron, Wagner and Liszt sipped coffee at marble-topped tables. The area is thronged with tiny trattoria, or restaurants, whose waiters will tell you that actresses Ingrid Bergman and Anita Ekberg are among their most frequent customers.

London Clubs Seeking Right To Hold Bingos

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A three-man delegation will meet with Acting Police Chief Finlay Carroll and Crown Attorney C. C. Savage this week to determine whether bingo can be played here under police interpretation of the Criminal Code.

It would take "months or years" to change the Criminal Code to permit the legal operation of bingo here, John White, Progressive Conservative Ontario legislature member for London South, told a meeting of 30 service clubs, fraternal and charitable organizations and citizens here Monday night.

"It seems unreasonable to ask the federal government to amend the Criminal Code when only a few municipalities are having trouble," he said.

Named to the delegation were Mr. White, General Manager Evan McGugan of the Western Fair Association and London lawyer Norman Brown.

TO REVIEW RESULTS

They are scheduled to review the results of the proposed meeting at another citizen's meeting in about two weeks.

Representatives of 10 organizations told Mr. White of their difficulties in attempting to organize bingo games.

A great many Londoners provided with glasses by the Lions Club during the 8½ years will suffer because of "this ridiculous situation," he said.

A police crackdown last March on bingo and raffles stopped them as a revenue source for most organizations.

Mr. White said last Friday he and Premier Robarts have a plan to legalize charitable bingo games under licensed supervision, excluding "professionals from out of town and "their friends here."

Canadian Colonial furniture is still an enduring leader in today's home decorating field. Because of its romantic link with furniture from our pioneer past, Colonial creates a charming atmosphere of easy livability. (Photo: Canadian Home Furnishings Institute.)

Colonial Furniture Classic Never Going Out of Style

Colonial furniture is very much like the classic tailored suit—it never goes out of fashion and it is equally at home in casual or formal living. Like the classic suit or the basic black dress, Colonial—depending on its design, its wood finish and color and its accessories—can create a formal atmosphere (fit suit you dress up for weddings and social events) or an informal one (the tweed suit that's a favorite for luncheons and meetings).

Colonial furniture has always been made and sold in Canada. The big news now is that there is more Colonial on the market in a wider variety of stylings and price ranges. Many furniture stores are grouping this kind of furniture into Colonial and Maple Village displays to "dramatize" the fascinating scope and romance of the past.

The importance of Colonial in furniture design and in home decorating shares in an interesting trend that's been developing strongly on this continent for the past five years or so—the new look backwards that we are giving to our pioneer heritage and our growing appreciation for things of the past.

CAN BE MIXED

The characteristics of Colonial—its traditional romance, simplicity, easy livability and cheery atmosphere—ensure its permanent place in the home decorating fashion field. It is easy to mix antiques, authentic or reproduction, with your Colonial decor. Colonial also mixes well—adds a "conversation" touch—with contemporary furniture. This means you can safely introduce a few Colonial pieces into your contemporary furnished home.

Where does Colonial furniture come from? In a broad sense, it's really "North American" and for this reason it is often known as Early American. Its design roots go back to the beginnings of colonization on this continent and are nourished by multiple period furniture influences—mainly French and English—that settlers and immigrants brought with them from 1600 to about 1800.

It is the grafting of these many influences that contribute to the charm, versatility and comfort of Colonial as it grew, changed and adjusted to each era. In its original form it was without pretense, made to last and to be practical; characterized by simplicity of design, homey livability and warmth. From this period comes the rustic, provincial or "country" Colonial as made by local craftsmen for the practical needs of early settlers. Later, as this continent developed, more sophisticated designs emerged, copies of European period furniture — Regency, Queen Ann and French Empire. But since these copies were also made by local cabinetmen, the designs were sometimes adapted, mixed and melded into an American version. All these furniture influences moved into French and English Canada, accompanied by furniture brought by early Dutch and German settlers.

PRODUCE NEW VERSIONS

By dipping into this wealth of historical tradition, Canadian furniture designers have created authentic copies of Colonial groupings or have borrowed here and there, as did the old-time craftsman, to produce new versions. One Quebec company makes a French-Canadian ladder-back chair, a copy of one found in an old barn; an Ontario manufacturer sought inspiration from a family heirloom of the United Empire Loyalist days; another went to a later furniture influence in Canada — Victorian — for a modern-day furniture group; another has reproduced the hand-painted stencil decorations of pioneer furniture, faithfully copying both color and motif. Individual pieces from the past have come to life for today's living, reminding many of us of the "old days." However, present-day Colonial furniture is better-made than in the past and has the important advantage, in most cases, of having a protective finish on the wood. Some of the interesting borrowings-from-the-past include the cannopy and four-poster bed; the china cabinet, what-not, corner cupboard, Welsh dresser, dry sink; brass and hurricane lamps; the candle table and cobbler's bench; the love-seat and the settee; the rocker in all forms and the high-backed comfort of Colonial sofas.

Just start browsing through Colonial furniture displays and you'll find a wealth of fascinating hints from the past to add charm to your modern-day living.

Furniture Has Radically Changed in Last Few Years

The simple fact that just about everything you see in quality furniture stores is "new" adds spice to your furniture-buying plans. — and it's "new" because furniture is something not purchased every day. It may be several years since you were a furniture customer. In that interval, Canadian furniture manufacturers have developed new approaches to furniture design, adapted its scale and size of individual pieces and come up with fresh decorating concepts to assure that you, the customer, will be able to find exactly what is wanted. A realistic view of "what's new" in furniture then, takes in all the exciting things that have come onto the market in the past few years.

When you take a fresh look at your home with the view to buying furniture and begin examining the selection of home furnishings in furniture stores, you'll be happily amazed — and delighted — at the wealth of bright new ideas for your home in furniture, fabrics lamps and accessories.

A sidelight on "what's new" today is the definite comeback of the formal dining room. It seems we've come full cycle from the casual dining area to a new respect and demand for a separate dining room furnished to match surroundings. Another sidelight is the variety of stylings available. The classic simplicity of contemporary design has been joined by more choice in traditional furniture . . . French and Italian Provincial, Colonial, French Empire and even Victorian.

There's one answer to "what's new" that may seem strange — it's "something old" by that it meant that the two personality important features of home living — comfort and convenience — have been newly researched re-interpreted and re-vitalized by Canadian manufacturers through new design ideas and development of new products and new processes.

Let's start with comfort and look at upholstery. The comfort that's built into any sofa can't be seen. It can only be appreciated by wear. Beneath that lovely exterior are construction improvements in better-grade furniture aimed at producing deep-down "marshmallow" comfort, as well as durability. Back cushions for example, are now "supersoft," yet resilient due to a combination of a new foam and a synthetic wrap-around material which gives the luxury feel of down. Some backs are higher and slightly curved for headrest comfort; arms are rounded for arm comfort; seating has softer cushion comfort teamed with firm suspension support.

Upholstery choice includes the long, long four-seater sofa and the short one, a version of the loveseat, which is often used in pairs for better conversational groupings in a room. There are so many variations in occasional chairs now that it is popular to buy these separately from your sofa and use them to introduce new colors into the room.

Convenience most particularly in wood furniture is pointed up. Design developments in bedroom and dining room pieces show that manufacturers are also in the "space race" — that is, making more versatile sizes and individual pieces to solve the storage-space problem. The practical china cabinet is more widely seen now in many variations such as large and spacious breakfast or more modestly scaled — with much storage space — as a cabinet with a hutch top. Long, low cabinets and small chests are designed for space versatility as well. This means they can be used separately in any room in the house or grouped together — even stacked one on top of the other — to take advantage of wall space when floor space is limited.

Forecast for popularity is the very tall, narrow chest, a somewhat modern version of the old chiffonier. Because it is narrow it puts "lost" wall space to use and its five or six shallow drawers are ideal for keeping accessories and small items in neat order. Also watch for: small cigarette tables that can be grouped in a threesome as a coffee table or used individually around the room; the round coffee table; more versatile room divider bookcases; a larger selection of desks; wrought iron bar stools, space-saving corner cupboards; pedestal - based tables; handy serving carts; "mint candy" table colors in kitchen furniture; chain "swag" lamps and pole lamps designed for modern decor.

Canadian furnishings are as up to date as today's needs. The abundance of manufacturing excellence is the retailer's window on the main streets of Canada.

POLICEMAN KILLED IN GUNFIRE BLAZE

Mr. K. Wants To See Kennedy On Berlin Issue

JFK, Gromyko Meet As Summit Preliminary

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy confers with Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko today for a White House meeting that foreshadows a Kennedy conference with Premier Khrushchev on the Berlin crisis next month..

Khrushchev has, in effect made known to Kennedy through Foy Kohler, the new U.S. ambassador to Moscow, that he is interested in a face-to-face discussion of the Berlin dispute with the president.

Kennedy already has decided to see Khrushchev if, as expected here, the Soviet premier goes through with the decision to visit the United States to attend the UN General Assembly.

Gromyko, who came here from New York Wednesday, is due at the White House in late afternoon. After seeing Kennedy he is scheduled to spend the evening with State Secretary Rusk at a working dinner attended also by U.S. and Soviet policy advisers.

The White House session here follows by two days a Moscow conference between Khrushchev and Kohler. It was learned that Khrushchev indicated to the new U.S. envoy that he considers more discussions on the Berlin situation to be desirable. He also clearly indicated that he considers a personal talk between himself and Kennedy to be advisable.

While Khrushchev underscored his long - standing demand for withdrawal of U.S., British and French troops from West Berlin, the atmosphere of his conversations with Kohler was reported to have been easy and relaxed and devoid of any sense of immediate crisis or imminent deadline. Kohler made a full report on the trip to Washington for the information of Kennedy, Rusk and advisers.

Promises Study Of Brief Against Industry Moves

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts promised a 1,000-member trade union delegation Wednesday to give careful consideration to their brief urging the government to prevent manufacturers from moving their operations from provincial cities to Toronto.

The 33-page brief was read to Mr. Robarts by George Burt, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers of America (CLC) during a two-hour session at Queen's Park.

The brief was drawn up by the UAW's Windsor Area Plant Movement Committee formed earlier this year after the Ford Motor Company of Canada announced its intention to transfer its parts and accessories department to Toronto from Windsor.

More than 1,000 union members met last June in the motorcade to Queen's Park. Some 300 cars left Windsor at 7 a.m. Wednesday, and other supporters joined the group along the way from Tilbury, London, Chatham, Woodstock, Hamilton, Oshawa and Brantford.

LOSE INDUSTRIES

Most of the towns represented have recently lost at least on industry. Chrysler Corporation earlier this year transferred its parts depot to Toronto from Chatham, and Brantford has lost several industries in recent weeks.

The brief suggested that public hearings should be held on the merits of plant transfers. If it was disclosed that relocation was not necessary, the full weight of government and public influence should be brought to bear on the firm involved.

Mr. Burt said the premier promised that officials of the the Ford Company to see whether the company could expand employment in Windsor.

Kingston Jury Finds Oshawa Man Deliberately Drove Into Harbor

KINGSTON (CP) — A coroner's jury found Wednesday that Robert L. Weir, 52, of Oshawa, killed his nine-year-old son David and committed suicide when he drove his car into 15 feet of water in Kingston Harbour last Sept. 30. The jury said death was caused by asphyxiation.

Mrs. Weir, widow of the dead man, said she and her husband, their son David and their 15-year - old daughter Barbara, had been visiting relatives in Kingston. She said they got into the car to return to Oshawa and instead of driving north on Highway 2 Mr. Weir drove south toward the harbor.

"He looked strange and his eyes were funny," said Mrs. Weir. "When I realized he was going into the lake I opened the door and fell out screaming."

Signalman Terry Britton of nearby Vimy Barracks, said he met Barbara Weir, who had also jumped from the car window, on the road at the foot of Johnson Street.

"She said something about her father trying to kill the whole family," Britton said. He said the girl also mentioned something about having an argument with her father the night before and it was her fault.

Constable Mel Marchant of Kingston police said the only money he found on the dead man was nine cents.

"The daughter mentioned something about her father's going bankrupt and that's why he had done it," said the policeman.

Mr. Weir was managing director of C-I-M Consultants Limited with offices in Toronto and Kingston. He was a metallurgical engineer.

HOUSE UPHOLDS 2 RULINGS MADE BY SPEAKER

Whole Sitting Used for Wrangling

OTTAWA (CP)—The war of nerves in the House of Commons raged on Wednesday as opposition MPs twice challenged rulings by Speaker Marcel Lambert amid noisy wrangles.

The freshman Speaker was upheld by votes of 147 to 85 and 136 to 103, but the feuding lasted so long that there was no time left to consider government legislation before the House rose at 6 p.m. EDT, the normal adjournment hour for the abbreviated Wednesday sitting.

In the three weeks since Parliament opened, MPs have been so busy with post - election speeches and procedural votes that only one government bill has been passed—a boost of $200,000,000 to $400,000,000 in the borrowing limit for underwriting export deals.

Today Finance Minister Nowlan was scheduled to table revised spending estimates for the current fiscal year. The new "red book" will reveal how the original estimates have been pared to fit the austerity drive.

WILL SLASH SPENDING

Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated June 24 that his government will slash spending by about $200,000,000 in this 1962-63 fiscal year which began April 1.

Wednesday's storm blew up when Paul Martin (L—Essex East) tried to ask Resources Minister Dinsdale whether the Woman Panics, Tosses Bomb Among Others

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Only rubble remains of an ammunition assembly building which was destroyed when a woman panicked and tossed a smoking simulated bomb on to a production line.

The bomb touched off all 500 of the bombs in the plant Wednesday in a chain reaction of explosions that shattered the building and had it flaming from end to end in a matter of minutes.

About 35 women employees moved swiftly out of the building seconds before it blasted up. They escaped injury, but three of them were treated for shock.

Damage was estimated at $40,000.

The bombs were the type used by the armed forces for training, and individually, are considered safe at a distance of 75 feet.

Cottage Owners Planning Own Municipality

TORONTO (CP)—A group of about 1,200 cottage owners, represented by the Haliburton Lake Cottagers Association, plan to set up their own municipality in Harburn Township.

Association President Arthur Bonner said Wednesday night the permanent population of the township is only seven families.

He explained the cottage owners pay more than $25,000 a year in taxes to the United Township of Dysart—of which Harburn is a part—though they feel not enough of the money is being spent in Harburn.

The united township has 2,826 residents in an area the size of Prince Edward Island. It is the largest area in Ontario under a municipal government.

The only facilities in Harburn are 20 miles of road and three street lights, Mr. Bonner said. Most of the cottage owners live in Toronto.

De Gaulle Plans to Resign If Balked by Referendum

CP from AP-Reuters

PARIS—President Charles de Gaulle made it crystal clear today that he will resign if he fails to win a solid victory in the Oct. 28 referendum.

The referendum, which calls for popular election of future French presidents, has turned into a bitter power clash between de Gaulle and old line French politicians.

De Gaulle laid it squarely on the line today in a radio-television address—either he gets a clearcut majority or he goes and will not return to French political life. The 71-year-old president told French voters:

"What you will reply on Oct. 28 to what I ask will pledge the destiny of France.

"For my reply is no, as all the old parties would like in order to re-establish their miserable regime, as would all the sedition - mongers to launch themselves into subversion, or even if the majority of the yes votes is feeble, mediocre, problematical, it is quite clear that my task would be immediately and irrevocably finished.

"For what could I do after that without the warm-hearted confidence of the nation?

"But if, as I hope, as I believe, as I am sure you again reply to me with a massive yes, then you will have confirmed me in the task I bear."

A public opinion poll forecast that would receive a 67-per-cent "yes" vote in the referendum, in which all parties except the Gaullist Union for the new republic announced a "no" vote.

Senator O'Leary Bitterly Attacks Macmillan Govt.

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the bitterest Canadian attacks on the British government since the late Sir Robert Borden delivered in the Senate Wednesday by Senator M. Grattan O'Leary.

Making his maiden address as a senator, the 72-year-old newspaper president criticized Prime Minister Macmillan and his cabinet lieutenants for "cynically disregarding" Commonwealth trade interests and British pledges to protect these interests.

He said British cabinet ministers had pledged themselves repeatedly to protect Canada's vital interests. But it was now evident that Britain would join the European Common Market at all costs.

He predicted that Canadian exports worth $700,000,000 annually will be "injured" when this happens. Canada would be forced to "find trade wherever we can find it."

Senator O'Leary, president of the Ottawa Journal and an influential Conservative for decades, said Prime Minister Diefenbaker had been the victim of "back-stabbing" in Canada and "scurrilous attacks" in the British Press that smacked of defeated Canadian exporters and workers.

The forthrightly, dark - haired senator, who joined The Journal 51 years ago as a $17-a-week reporter, began his address with this statement:

"I am a party man, I am a Conservative. I am a Conservative without prefix or qualifications."

Others called the last of the thundering editors, he declared:

"I think it is a sad thing that sometimes a British government should commit to this country over a period of a year and give it an impression that they gave to the government and people of Canada, and

Radiation Levels Increase Says Minister of Health

OTTAWA (CP) — Farmers may have to take their cattle off pastures and Canadians may have to drink powdered milk if radiation levels reach hazardous or dangerous levels, Health Minister Monteith said.

These are two counter-measures against radiation now under study for some months, he emphasized in the House of Commons. Wednesday. The measures have been under study for some months. He emphasized that the Canadian Radiation Committee has been rising it is "still substantially below those (levels) which would be considered dangerous or considered essential to public health."

In announcing a rise in radiation, Mr. Monteith, also said that the health department has boosted the number of radiation sampling stations to include Vancouver, Calgary, Saskatoon, Winnipeg, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.; London, Ont.; Ottawa, Quebec City and Halifax.

And sampling reports, he said, now will be made on a monthly basis instead of once every three months.

He announced the first of these monthly reports.

Average concentration of radioactive strontium 90 in skimmilk during September climbed sharply to 141 micromicrocuries per litre, from 111 in August and 9.4 in July. This short-life type of radioactivity loses half its potency within eight days.

The department said its presence in whole milk is largely dependent on the continuance of nuclear testing programs. The level of this type of radiation is expected to fall rapidly when dairy cattle are taken off pasture for the winter.

This is the key to one of the counter-measures under study. If radiation levels should reach the danger mark, cattle could be removed from pastures where they eat fodder exposed to radioactive fallout, and fed non-exposed fodder.

SOME IMPORT SURCHARGES ARE REMOVED

Twelfth of Goods Have Levy Lifted

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has lifted some of the special import surcharges it applied four months ago in the face of a foreign exchange crisis.

Finance Minister Nowlan told the Commons Wednesday that the five-per-cent surcharge on a variety of goods—chiefly industrial machinery of a kind not made in Canada—was being removed immediately.

He called it "a first major step" towards complete removal of the surcharges imposed June 24 to protect Canada's foreign exchange reserves against a run on the Canadian dollar.

The move affects surcharges levied on some $250,000,000 worth of imports — about one-twelfth of the total of $3,100,000,000 worth of imports affected originally by the surcharges.

The announcement was made just a week before the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade meets in Geneva, with the surcharge action expected to come under close scrutiny.

Land Secured For Seaway Says Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Land required for single locks along a "possible" all-Canadian seaway has been expropriated but studies on when these locks might be required are not complete, Transport Minister Balcer said Wednesday.

He made a written Commons reply to questions by Lucien Lamoureux (L—Stormont).

Asked if the government has decided to duplicate the St. Lawrence Seaway locks at Welland, Mr. Balcer said that the answer is given in the Commons still stood—expropriation of the land occurred last May 22.

Mr. Lamoureux also had asked about "building" seaway locks at Cornwall, where existing locks are on the American side, and where the seaway authority had all the land necessary for an all-Canadian seaway route.

Minuteman Off Course, Damages Base

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (CP) — A Minuteman missile, off course and headed for the Florida mainland, destroyed itself on signal from the range safety officer seconds after launching from an underground silo Wednesday night.

The spectacular blast rained flaming debris and flaming fuel over a wide area and a Jupiter missile was badly damaged. A photographer was slightly injured while racing to safety.

"The missile was far off course and—aimed toward the mainland a few miles away instead of out to sea as intended — when it blasted out of its 55-foot-deep hole. The range safety officer triggered a radio signal to destroy the rocket after eight seconds of flight.

It was the first time in more than three years that an exploding missile damaged another at the Cape. Wednesday's launch was being groomed for firing within a few weeks.

Battles Two Escaped Patients At Woodstock

Two Wounded, One Escapee Hit by Bullet

WOODSTOCK (CP) — A 23-year-old constable was fatally wounded Wednesday in a blaze of gunfire as police battled with two escaped mental patients in downtown Woodstock.

Const. Norman Black, father of three children, died in hospital Wednesday night of a bullet in the neck fired from his own revolver, which police said had been snatched from his holster.

Also shot, was Norman Rose and Bignell, 36, who was operated on successfully Wednesday night for two bullet wounds in the chest.

Under sedation in hospital was Sgt. John Hogg, with stomach injuries suffered in a scuffle.

The sudden eruption of gunfire from and around a police car—up to an estimated eight shots were exchanged by combatants running for cover on the city's main downtown street.

WITHIN FEW FEET

One of them, nearby store owner Wilson Fox, said he thought "one of the last shots came within a few feet of me."

The patients had escaped from the Ontario Hospital just outside Woodstock about an hour earlier. Suspicions were aroused when they tried to purchase tickets at the bus depot around the corner from the scene of the shooting.

As one of the men was put into the back seat of the police car, the other escaped to the opposite side of the street.

R. Forrest Telfer, who witnessed the battle, said it was Sgt. Hogg and Const. Douglas McGill five minutes to overpower the man, handcuff him and bring him to the waiting car. Sgt. Hogg was injured in the scuffle.

"Everybody was concentrating on getting the fellow in the car into the door," Mr. Fox said. Then the shooting started.

"I saw Black jump forward and — McGill got into the doorway of the Capital Theatre and Hogg darted around for cover." Sgt. Hogg collapsed from the strain of the scuffle, then got up and staggered into a doorway.

SEES HIS FALL

David MacKenzie, owner of a nearby store, saw Const. Black get out of the car and fall with an "awful thud."

"They're shooting," an onlooker said unbelievingly.

"It was all confusion and excitement," said Mr. Telfer. "People were shouting 'Get an ambulance' and everybody running for cover. Everyone just seemed to disappear."

During the battle, which

Algerian Chief Denounces U.S. Squeeze on Cuba

HAVANA (Reuters) — Algerian Premier Ahmed Ben Bella headed home today after denouncing the United States economic squeeze against Cuba as a "blow to the sovereignty and independence of a country."

During his 28-hour visit Ben Bella and Cuban Premier Fidel Castro ratified a 1961 Belgrade agreement of the non-aligned nations calling for the evacuation of all foreign bases in countries, including the big U.S. naval base at Guantanamo on Cuba's southeast coast, the Cuban foreign ministry said in a communique.

The communique said Ben Bella "underlined Cuba's unalienable right to choose the path of national development which it deems most appropriate to its needs and aspirations."

"He expressed furthermore that any attempt to impede or hinder this right constitutes a violation of the United Nations charter and norms of international law gravely jimperilling international peace and security."

Lawyers Ask Passengers Get Right to Sue

TORONTO (CP)—Changes in Ontario automobile accident legislation to provide more comprehensive protection for car passengers and for persons injured through their own negligence are recommended by the Law Society of Upper Canada in a submission to a select committee of the legislature.

The committee is inquiring into the present system of compensating accident victims.

Main law society recommendations are that a driver who is injured passenger, who in Ontario cannot sue his negligent driver unless the vehicle is for the passenger - carrying business.

The society suggests the re-institution of passenger liability through amending the Negligence Act along with a provision that insurance coverage be extended to passengers on a driver negligence basis. It said this would cost drivers between $7 and $9 a year.

Seventh Year Students Will Be Excused From Fees

Students now in their seventh year at Belleville high schools are going to be excused this year from paying student fees as had previously been indicated by the Board.

Members of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board this week rescinded a former motion calling on seventh - year students to pay fees and decided the regulation would not be put into effect until next September.

The ruling had been that although seventh-year students would be assessed fees, these would be returned if the student passed his examinations.

Hubcaps Being Stolen From Parked Cars

Since June 19th of this year, over 20 hubcaps have been reported stolen from cars in the city to the Belleville city police department.

Most of the thefts occurred from cars parked in the owners driveway, while one was reported to have occurred at a used car lot. Others took place while cars were left parked on the street.

Mr. Arthur J. Braden of 86 MacDonald Gardens, reported to police on Wednesday, the hubcaps from his white worth somewhere in the neighborhood of $40, had been stolen.

Police are not sure if the hubcaps were removed from Mr. Braden's car while it was parked downtown or while it was parked in his driveway.

Inspector J. B. McLauchlan of the city police department said they have a rash of such thefts periodically and arrests are made.

Stewardesses From Guinea Visit Trenton

TRENTON — Yesterday, 18 trainee air stewardesses from Guinea (formerly French West Africa), at present studying at the Canada Air Career School in Toronto, were guests at RCAF Station Trenton.

The girls who have been attending the school since December, 1961, were welcomed to Trenton by Wing Commander R. K. Trumley of Toronto, Officer Commanding No. 4 Operational Training Unit, and were introduced to some of the RCAF Air Transport Command flight attendants prior to commencing a tour of the station.

Squadron Leader Bob Rush of 437 "Yukon" Squadron briefed the trainees on the differences and similarities between the Yukon aircraft and the Russian-built "Ilyushin 18" the aircraft which the Guinea girls will serve as stewardesses.

S-L Rush said that while the Yukon has a wing span of 142 feet, the Ilyushin had a span of 122 feet. Other differences, with which the trainees were concerned, ring the Yukon's dimensions, are: length, 136 feet, 117 feet; gross weight, 220,000 and 110,000 pounds; range, 6,000 miles, 2,700-3,000 miles; max. flying height, 34,000, 22,000; cruising speed in both cases is around 405 mph.

The girls listened to other lectures on such things as radio distress signal equipment and search and rescue procedures. At the station swimming pool proved to be informative.

Most of the trainees landed in Canada, they spoke French. Now each girl has a working knowledge of English.

The trainees were accompanied on their visit to Trenton by Mrs. Jean Woods of Toronto, Mrs. Shirley Bowerland, instructor, from the Toronto school.

School Board Obtains Option On Private Land

TRENTON — The Trenton Board of Education has taken an option on property said to be being directly north of the playground area at Queen Elizabeth School in east Trenton.

For some months the board has been trying to acquire a piece of town-owned land lying east of the school, but the town's asking price, $4,000 was thought to be too high by board members.

The new land under option, is, according to one board member "better and cheaper" than the town-owned land.

Anglicans Of 2 Deaneries Will Meet Here

Upward of 100 laymen are expected to assemble at Christ Church (Anglican) in Belleville on Saturday to participate in a combined Prince Edward and Hastings Deaneries conference.

Starting at 2.00 p.m., the keynote address will be given by Mr. Eric G. Freeman of Toronto, secretary of Anglican Lay work for Canada. Discussion groups will then form to discuss the conference theme: "The Layman's Responsibility."

Consideration will be given to topics such as "How can the work of a laymen's group in a parish be improved to better serve the church" and "What is a layman's responsibility to his home, his work and his social relationships", as well as a discussion of "stewardship" as it pertains to a layman's time, talents and treasures in Christian service to the church. A summary of the discussions will be presented later at dinner.

A service of Evensong at 5.30 will be conducted entirely by laymen.

The conference dinner at 6.30 will be highlighted by an address by Mr. W. B. C. Burgoyne of St. Catharines, one of the great supporters of the Brotherhood of Anglican Churchmen.

Laymen from the area to Bancroft on the north, Picton on the south and Trenton to the west, as well as from the local Anglican parishes will attend, along with visiting clergy. Rt. Rev. Kenneth C. Evans, Anglican Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, will also attend with Major Ed Watts of Kingston, president of the Diocesan Laymen's Council.

This conference is an initial undertaking for the Anglican Laymen's Councils in this area and it is hoped that it will be a prelude to similar conferences on an annual or bi-annual basis.

Rev. M. C. Young (centre) of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Gananoque, named new moderator of the Toronto and Kingston Synod held at Belleville this week, is seen with clerk of the Synod, Rev. Donald McQueen (left), Glebe Presbyterian Church, Toronto, and Rev. N. Hutchinson of St. Columba Church in Belleville, host minister for the Synod held here for the a quarter of a century.

Presbyterian Synod Meeting Concludes Here Wednesday

By MRS. M. B. WEESE

Over 120 delegates and guests silently and reverently seated in the sanctuary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church for the last day of the Toronto-Kingston Synod meeting, while the Reverend W. C. McBride conducted a memorial for departed brethren and friends. As the long list was read one realized that very few were without sorrow and loneliness.

The speaker spoke to all the congregation but the Anglican laymen's Councils in this area and it is hoped that it will be a prelude to similar conferences on an annual or bi-annual basis.

The speaker spoke to all the assembly as a family beyond. "There is nothing superficial in death. Even in sadness, common to all races and creeds, we know 'God is Love.' There is a life beyond, for now in Christ risen from the dead that we might believe that there is a life beyond."

This memorial closed with the hymn "Praise the Everlasting King."

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered by the newly elected moderator, the Reverend M. C. Young, of Gananoque, assisted by the Reverend M. V. Putnam, interim moderator of St. Andrew's Church, Belleville. Also taking part were other ministers and laymen.

A short business period followed.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker, the Reverend David Ernsberger, of Cincinnati, Ohio, was called and resumed his lecture on an "Educated Ministry, of the Laity," saying "the church must be nourished with new ideas, thoughtful research, and willingness to change." The church needs everyone, for over half of the world does not believe in Christ. Let us refer to the Word of Council of Churches!

"Keep good relationship with pastors; they lead, but must educate laymen how to take over. Pastors must keep informed in civil and international matters. If a pastor tries to run things alone, he fails.

Each needs the help of the other, and the church needs both. We must increase the ministry a hundred-fold by educating the laity.

"In family life one must learn to give with others; to make a home, forget a Shelter; to make good, make contacts.

Parents must leave homes to work, and the church, the social worker, takes over. Parents depend on teachers at school, but they should learn for themselves."

GIVE ALL WORK

"Give all members of families some work in the church; often a special vocation will help in a student class in church school. Parents must be willing to part with girls or boys to help fill vacancies in the pulpits. Try group discussions.

"Examples we must not ignore the moral laws; honesty in business of our professions. We are not all gifted for church work, but the call is great and opportunities for laymen are many. God is calling; we must keep aware of our responsibility."

Thanks were expressed by the new Moderator, the Rev. M. C. Young.

A question period followed with interesting discussions.

A committee was formed to strike standing committees; make corrections, and decide terms of office. All committees met and later gave reports which had to be accepted by the Synod.

Dr. L. H. Fowler had in a strong discussion of Presbytery minutes.

AFTERNOON SESSION

The afternoon session opened with a devotional, led by the new moderator, assisted by the moderator of the Presbytery of Temiskaming. No arrangements were made for next year's Synod.

The auditor's report was given by Mr. T. P. Geggie. Other reports were given as follows: special committee, Dr. H. Jack; Synod committee, J. M. Milroy; Synod corporation, R. J. Stanbury; treasurer's report, Mr. McQueen; secretary's report, Mr. McQueen; Christian education, A. C. Muir; business committee, Rev. J. R. Walker; evangelism and social action, J. L. Self; finance committee, J. D. C. Jack; Presbytery minutes, Dr. L. H. Fowler.

Resolutions were dealt with. Rev. M. C. Young thanked all for row otkhrigua-.¼L for work through all sessions and closed with the benediction.

The ladies of the Guild provided a complimentary dinner served most bountifully, which was greatly appreciated.

Foxboro L.O.L. No 3 Holds Banquet to Commemorate 75th Year of Its Founding

Away back in March, 1887, a small group of Foxboro district men got together and formed the Foxboro Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 3.

There were but ten charter members of the lodge, which yesterday observed its 75th anniversary at a banquet held in the Foxboro United Church Sunday School rooms.

Approximately 150 persons, including visiting lodge dignitaries, attended the anniversary banquet. The lodge now has a membership of 294.

Despite the small beginning Foxboro L.O.L. has won recognition in Orange circles throughout Ontario. Five of its members have been county masters, and three are past Grand Masters of Ontario East.

And back in 1937 the Foxboro degree team took top honors for all of Ontario.

The late Hugh Collins was the first master of the Foxboro lodge, with the first member to be initiated being the late Perry Thompson. Douglas Shaw is the present master of the lodge.

BOUGHT LOT FOR $50

In the early days Foxboro lodge members held their meetings at private homes but in 1888 they paid out $50 for the lot on which their present hall was later erected. The hall was completed in 1896 but lodge records fail to note the cost.

Several of the fixtures still being used in the lodge hall were hand built by the original members.

Back in the early days the 12th of July Orange walk was a "dress up" affair. Standard dress called for black trousers, white vests and shirts, black ties and white straw hats. The first "walk" at Foxboro was held in 1892.

Honorary members with over 50 years service included George D. McCullough, who is also the oldest continuous member; Joseph Gallinger, E. G. Clarke, Ed. Montgomery, Stanley Hayton, George McColl, Frank Howes, Percy Carter and Clifford Wilson.

Lodge rooms which have been county masters are George McCullough, M. C. Reynolds, Frank Howes and Stanley Hayton. Garfield Evans, is the present county master.

OFFICERS OF LODGE

Present lodge officers include, Douglas Shaw as master; Earl Dafoe, deputy master, F. Pringle, chaplain, Jesse Chapman, secretary; Garfield Evans, financial secretary; Stan Hayton, treasurer and C. Dafoe, marshall.

Head table guests at last night's anniversary banquet included Fred Bateman, Murney C. Reynolds, J. Arthur Holden, and Morgan Brown, all past masters for District East; Lodge Master Douglas Shaw; Lorne Hagerman, deputy G.M. for Ontario East and Mrs. Clarence Holmes, L.O.B.A. Grand Treasurer for Ontario East.

Head table guests were introduced by Lodge Master Douglas Shaw with county master Garfield Evans acting as chairman. Grace was said by Mr. Earl Wannamaker pastor at Foxboro Presbyterian Church, while Rev. Robert Reid, pastor of Foxboro United Church, expressed welcome.

The history of the lodge was read by James Reynolds. The toast to the Orange Association was proposed by Lorne Hagerman with response by Morgan Brown. The toast to the Royal Black Chapter was proposed by Murney C. Reynolds, past R.B.P. grand master for Ontario East with response by J. to Arthur Holden, immediate past G.M. of British American.

Senior Citizens Plan Parties

The regular semi - monthly meeting of the Senior Citizens Club of Belleville and district was held on Wednesday evening in the recreation rooms on Pinnacle Street.

The president, Mr. C. L. Hyde, opened the meeting as usual with the National Anthem followed by several selections by the club choir, including a solo by Mrs. W. Haley with Mrs. A. T. Bromley at the piano.

The president reported recommendations from the executive committee regarding arrangements for the Hallowe'en party and the annual Christmas turkey dinner to be held in December.

The main feature of the evening was a euchre party in which all participated, under the direction of Mrs. H. Vickers. Prizes were won by Mrs. H. Taylor, Mrs. Mark, Mrs. Irene Reid, Mrs. M. Wannamaker, Harry Robinson and Jack White. The door prize winner was Mrs. Murray.

The refreshment committee served delicious refreshments.

HOUSE UPHOLDS

minister would defend "a distinguished civil servant under his charge . . . who has been maliciously attacked by a member of this house, the member for Bow River."

This was a reference to J. R. S. Coleman, director of the national parks branch, reportedly criticized outside the House of Eldon Woolliams (PC — Bow River) and two other Alberta Conservative MPs.

Speaker Lambert ruled the question was out of order because it contained opinions. Mr. Martin said it is a well-established practice that ministers should defend civil servants under attack, since civil servants have no right to speak in their own defence.

As Mr. Dinsdale was rising to reply, the Speaker reiterated his ruling. Mr. Martin appealed to the house and the division bells rang for the seventh time in the young session.

All parties but the Liberals supported Speaker Lambert and the ruling was upheld 147 to 85.

DENIES ATTACK

Mr. Woolliams then rose to deny that he had personally attacked Mr. Coleman. He said he had merely criticized the government policy restricting private-owned tourist developments in national parks.

Mr. Woolliams challenged Mr. Martin to cite any malicious words he had used, but the Speaker broke in to say that "challenges" are out of order.

Douglas Fisher (NDP—East Arthur) then asked Mr. Dinsdale what he was doing to meet the criticism expressed by Mr. Woolliams.

Speaker Lambert ruled this question out of order, saying it was "too wide" and not urgent enough for the daily question period.

Mr. Fisher appealed the ruling and this time only the Conservatives and Social Credit MPs backed the Speaker. But their 130 votes were enough to turn back the 85 Liberals and 18 New Democrats in the House.

Mr. Dinsdale said outside the Commons earlier that Mr. Coleman will be fully exonerated. But he said parks administration is being decentralized and new tourist accommodations are planned.

BLOOD TESTS

Is This The Same Man?

Dr. A. D. Kelly, general secretary of the Canadian Medical Association, addressing the Canadian Club at Toronto on Monday, described the medicare situation in Saskatchewan as "an uneasy truce."

This surprised us because, seconds before we read this report on The Canadian Press wire, we had clipped a short editorial from the Windsor Star which reported Dr. Kelly had said "that the chances are good for top-quality medical service if both sides continue to co-operate."

There is nothing diametrically opposed between what we have quoted of Dr. Kelly's speech to the Canadian Club and the Windsor Star's paraphrase of those previous address by Dr. Kelly. It does seem to us, though, that there is a distinct difference between the atmosphere created by Dr. Kelly's Canadian Club address and that which the Windsor Star detected in some earlier address, the time and place of which were not stated in the Star's editorial. This difference gives rise to an opportunity for editorial comment, and we do not propose to be deterred from seizing this chance by Dr. Kelly's evident low opinion of editorial writers in general.

Dr. Kelly does not like editorial writers because "remote from the scene (they) undertook to chastise us (the doctors) from their ivory towers." He does not like press, radio and television reporters because they pursued "relentlessly the rumor, the chance remark, the assertion of the opposition, on the possibility that it might produce a story." (What a picture, here, of the ideal reporter, checking on rumors, remarks and assertions to discover whether they were true.) He does not like organized labor, since "every-hod-carriers' union in the country" sent "abusive messages." (Hod-carriers, too, sometimes need a doctor's services.) He does not like "intellectuals or egg-heads," since a "mixed bag" of these gentry "became so concerned at what they read in the newspapers they felt it necessary to express pained surprise doctors should disregard the Hippocratic Oath."

We have Dr. Kelly's assurance that the Hippocratic Oath "has not the remotest application" in a situation such as the Saskatchewan medicare dispute. This is an assertion of which we suggest that all right-thinking reporters, hod-carriers and intellectuals take note, though whether it will make them Dr. Kelly's admirers, instead of critics, is a moot point.

What we would like to know, however, is exactly what Dr. Kelly said on a previous occasion to move the Windsor Star to observe that his "positive attitude, only four months after the dispute ended, seems something of a miracle." He apparently paid high tribute to Lord Taylor, the British peer who brought the doctors and the Saskatchewan Government together in an agreement. No such tribute appeared in a 450-word Canadian Press report of his Canadian Club address. Did the Canadian Press overlook this tribute—or, perchance, had Dr. Kelly read the Windsor Star's editorial and concluded that instead of repeating this tribute he would liven up proceedings?

A Difficult Decision

Robert Thompson, the "official" leader of Social Credit in the House of Commons, does not like cats and dictators export poultry. Sales have been made on credit to communist countries, amongst them Red China. Mr. Thompson expressed doubts "whether we should be assisting a way of life which is in such bitter contest with us."

We have sympathy for Mr. Thompson's position. It would be intolerable if our sales of wheat, on credit, permitted China to divert resources or manpower from food production to military undertakings against our friends. But it is almost impossible to determine whether this is the effect of the sale of food to communist lands. And surely we cannot let people go hungry just because they are ruled by a communist government. If our government is erring in its wheat policy, it errs on the side of Christianity. It may not love its enemies, but it is feeding them.

The development of skilled people who can translate the natural resources of the country into something productive and something that can advance their welfare will, I think, prove to be the most important aspect of the decade of development.—Richard N. Goodwin, United States Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs.

Nature knows no pause in progress and development, and attaches her curse on all inaction.—Goethe.

Ottawa Offbeat

All Parties in Unique Parliament Treading Softly

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Parliament has been in business three weeks now, and if those uncertain first 15 working days have proved anything, it has been that in this "House of Minorities", the Government has no monopoly on problems.

The three Opposition groups — Liberals, Socreds and New Democrats alike — have discovered that while it's easy to agree that collectively they have no confidence in the Government, it is practically impossible to agree individually why.

Not only can't they get together on a reason they all believe that makes support the Government — or even wants it — but they are as far apart as ever as to just how much or how badly they want to toss it out.

It is a situation that makes for some pretty awful frustration.

With the minority Conservative Government seemingly at their mercy, they are at wide odds on what tactics and strategy should be employed to exploit, with political profit, what has been described as a Heaven-sent opportunity.

The way things have been turning out, the three Opposition groups are more concerned with each other than with the Government.

All of which makes it a whole lot cozier for the Conservatives than they ever dreamed it could be that dark day after the election.

HOUSE OF SUSPICION

There is worse blood politically than between the Socreds and the Liberals than between either of them and the Conservatives.

It is almost a "personal" thing.

The Liberals bitterly blame the Socreds for taking those 28 seats in Quebec and robbing them of what would be a big victory and Federal power in June — and Social Credit is not forgiving that hurt nor forgetting it that astounding bid for a stunning majority of the French-Canadian vote.

But this acid antipathy between the Grits and the Socreds is sheer exhilaration compared to the contempt, even naked hatred Social Credit has for the New Democrats — an emotion heartily reciprocated by the NDP.

All how do the Liberals feel about the New Democrats and vice versa?

Wary, worried.

Happy House, what?

It is about got to the point of absurdity where the three rival Opposition groups are almost than a caricature of Parliament, so intensely do they despise each other.

Consolidating their already immensely difficult problem of closing ranks against what, after all, is their common enemy, the Government, has been the necessity of avoiding any impression that they are interested exclusively in the defeat of the Conservatives at any price and under any circumstances.

NOTHING BUT TROUBLE

Political parties which have appeared as power-hungry as a hound in the grass, will, while they might win the battle of Parliament itself, have lost the war of the next election.

Not only can't they appear to be in any hurry to topple, but they must be sure that they don't look as if they are ready politically and financially.

Can the Socreds duplicate or better those amazing 28 Quebec seats next time out — can the Liberals be sure of holding or improving their ground in Ontario — can the NDP hope to avoid another squeeze—can the Liberals recapture French Canada—can the Conservatives protect those Maritime and Prairie majorities ?

Until those questions can be answered, all the marching and counter-marching in the Commons is so much political face-saving.

Nobody can go too far in trying to overthrow the government . . . for they just might, by sheer accident, succeed . . . and what a mess that would be!

But then, nobody can appear to be snuggling up too warmly to the Government, either . . . not even Social Credit, which, on occasion already, has voted against the Conservatives, and presumably will again.

The trick is to live dangerously—giving appearances of opposing the Government, but not too strenuously — and hope that everybody is keeping careful count of the vote.

The idea seems to be to rock the boat without sinking it.

U.S. Humor Vanishing

Poet Arthur News-Chronicle

Conscious humor is fading from the American scene, Arthur P. Duden, history professor at Bryn Mawr College in Pennsylvania, told the Mississippi Valley, Historical Association, Mr. Duden cited a number of developments to explain "the dismal circumstances." They included: The tension of the times. Scarcity of reels in the book industry which have made publishers wary of new humorists rode to prominence.

Mr. Duden also cited fear by "potential diviners of the ingenious" of "offending friends and foes alike" because of uniform concepts of virtue and mass standards of living. "People venerate their political institutions too defensively at the present time and the political leaders to be serious in the face of weighty problems," the professor complains.

H. L. Mencken and Will Rogers were the last of a proud breed of political humorists, in Professor Duden's opinion. Mencken, of course, was the great illiterer, and Rogers was much more gentle as a political satirist. Will Rogers is supposed to have made a lot of politicians who boasted that her ancestors had come over on the Mayflower, "Mine met on the boat."

Mencken roasted many a famous person but truly made pigs weikin ring with his savage comment on the Inaugural address of President Harding.

The speech, Mencken said, "reminds me of tattering washing on a line; it reminds me of stale bean soup, of college yells, of dogs barking idiotically through endless nights. It is so bad that a sort of nausea overcomes one."

"It drags itself out of the dark abyss of pish, and crawls inanely up the top-most pinnacle of posh. It is one long, sonorous bore. It is flap and doodle. It is baldness and dash."

It must be admitted that even the most vitriolic of our present day commentators fall far short of the Mencken bite. Yet less than a century ago, newspaper, political writers were dealing with the "other side" in something quite similar to the Mencken style.

Denied Right To Cull MLAs

Le Soleil, Quebec

One after the other, Mr. Jean Lesage of the Liberals and Mr. Daniel Johnson of the National Union have declared that the members of their parties who sat in the last Legislature are not obliged to be candidates at convention to be recognized as official candidates.

It was Mr. Lesage who reached and announced this decision first. His action scandalized and even revolted a group of Liberal supporters who had believed in their party's new democracy. They will not easily accept, one can be sure, finding themselves thus deprived of the first chance of their freedom themselves to choose, democratically, the candidate of their choice.

About a week later Mr. John son, despite the reaction Mr Lesage's decision had provoked in the Liberal camp, decided in his turn to follow the anti-democratic step, despite all the assertions of his party's democratic renewal.

Thus is the space of a few days Quebec has seen the heads of the two main political parties tinging under foot the most solemn promises made to their own followers.

The parties are depriving their supporters of a sacred right. They are preventing a needed clean-up in their own ranks, for not all those elected are of equal value and live up equally to the hopes placed in them. Some disappoint their electors, who would like to replace them with somebody more competent and more energetic. How can they do this, sort of going over to the other side?

Overtalking Characteristic Trap of Liars

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejud i ces: When a man tells a woman that he wants her to "listen to reason," what he custom arily means is that he wants her to be unreasonable in a male way instead of his unreasonable in a female way.

It is a mistake to believe that the "spoiled child" is one who is given too much, for a child cannot be given too much of the right things; a spoiled child, rather, is one who is given too many other things as substitutes for affection, attention, understanding, respect and joy. It is not the magnitude of giving that spoils the child, but the symbolic meaning of the gifts.

Nobody makes me feel as gauche and provincial as a dining companion who orders an imported cheese and crackers for dessert while order a hunk of berry pie with ice-cream on it. (I wonder if Stephen Potter has included this Continental gambit in his Lifemanship?)

Whenever I meet a suspicious minded man who is trying to be openhanded, I am reminded of Amiel's shrewd observation that "He who is too much afraid of being duped has lost the power of being magnanimous."

While it is possible to be bored with one's environment, the most overwhelming pervasive form of boredom is boredom with one's self; and such media as television and the lecture large audiences, not because people like trash, but because they are bored with books, is preferable to confronting one's own lack of inner resources.

No person has room for more than one "major theme" in his autobiography. The moment someone has remarried and still bears active hate and resentment for his former wife, the new marriage is not a happy one — it it were, the happiness would be cut off the ancient grudge.

Best and briefest description of a prig was given by Oscar Wilde, when he observed of a fellow colleague, "He hasn't a single redeeming vice."

The liar always talks too much and too convincingly about himself into disclosure; there is something in the nature of a lie that makes it impossible to over-elaborating it until he is no longer believed. Th truth (in life as in art) is always terse. To achieve an increase in knowledge without a corresponding increase in wonder is to let the mind become rotten before it becomes ripe.

A Few Words on Needling For Users of Insulin

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

Here are a few words on "needling":

"Dear Sir: Is there any way to sterilize needle and syringe other than by boiling? I take insulin, and wonder what, to do when I am on a trip away from home. — A. V."

Kits are available with compartments for syringe, alcohol, cotton and insulin. Once sterilized, the syringe can be kept in the compartment and merely wiped with alcohol before use.

Or you can get (at medical supply houses or many drug stores) a case just for syringe and needle. Kept in the case, they would remain clean.

Another method is wrapping the needle in cotton soaked with alcohol.

If needle and syringe are rinsed in alcohol, be sure the fluid is pumped out of the barrel and needle with the plunger. A small electric sterilizer for syringes and needles is also available. It would not cost your insurance.

Dear Doctor: My husband gives me insulin shots and they cause a welt or lump on my arm. Please tell me what he is doing wrong. — Mrs. K.

"Maybe he's not going anything wrong. This sort of thing occurs with many patients, especially those who have just started using insulin, but the trouble tends to clear up in time passes.

It may also be a reaction to the particular type of insulin you are using, so mention this to your physician. He will advise kind eases the trouble.

"Can't you give the shots to yourself? It is a very desirable experience to know how to give them to another person. It's not nearly as difficult to learn to give them to oneself.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it unusual for a person in the 40's to begin having epilepsy? My sister has blacked out twice although it has not been determined to be epilepsy. She has been under many emotional strain; her husband is an alcoholic. — M. J.

Convulsive seizures resembling epilepsy do occur after 40, and may be related to some old brain injury (or infection) or to some new brain disease. Profound emotional reactions can be a factor, though epilepsy can become more acute with age. The best course in a case like this is to begin with a good physical examination, including skull X-rays and an electro-encephalogram.

Dear Dr. Molner. How much would plastic surgery on my nose cost? I have given a good deal of thought to the idea, and am sure that if I can possibly afford it, the surgery will be worth my money. I have conferred with a surgeon because I would like to get a give me a little information as to what to expect first. Only a line or two, stating the approximate cost. — Miss M. J.

I'm a little tired of this question, and tired of saying that the way to find the answer is to talk to the surgeon who can gauge the cost after seeing how much has to be done. Some cases are more difficult than others. Hence the "several" is small or large depends on the case.

Engineering Loses Appeal

Minneapolis Star

Engineering, only a few years ago considered one of the glamour fields for men, is losing its large-scale appeal for students. Although college enrollment in general are rapidly increasing, the number of students entering engineering schools is dropping, while the demand for graduate engineers keeps rising.

One important factor is mismanagement of the talents of many trained engineers. Too many young men, in the field find themselves doing routine chores which technicians with less training could handle. As a result, the word gets back to potential engineering students that the field does not always offer the challenging professional work and opportunity for creativity they would like to find . . .

The nation needs a constantly increasing supply of expert engineers to cope with a multitude of technological problems. But they should be selected as students, well advised, well trained and effectively used.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

This is the time of year when a strange uneasiness enters the mind bones and tissues of men who live in city and town. They are restless, impatient, with the need to stand and stare, in free space. They leave heavy signs.

Country men don't suffer from these vapors. The farmers are weary with the last of the harvest, they are full of the contentment with the large die one. They know the score. It has been a good crop or a bad. It does not matter. They have performed their function. They have provided.

The trouble with city and town men in October is that they are the descendants of countless generations of men before them who, until quite lately, a mere fringe of time compared to the vast expanse of the past, had lived and died on their ground consciousness the desperate need to provide in autumn. The city man whose providing is done week by week, all year through, does not feel it in the matter with im when these ancient stirrings start to tankle within him.

That is why going hunting affords a mysterious peace of mind to those whose subconscious instinct finds them out into the wilds. For that is where all mankind went, century and century, a hundred thousand years.

Those who didn't, didn't leave any descendants.

'Are Headed for Victory' Dr. Boyd Upper Declares At Liberal Annual Meeting

"We are on the march once again and we are headed for victory," declared Dr. Boyd Upper, guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Belleville Liberal Association yesterday evening at the Kiwanis Centre. To justify this assertion, the former Bellevillian, who is now executive secretary to the Hon. John Wintermeyer, leader of the Ontario Liberal Party, outlined various events which have taken place recently.

In five provincial by-elections held earlier this year, three were won outright by the Liberal candidates and the other two seats were lost by the narrow margin of less than 300 votes, the speaker said.

In the recent by-election in Huron - Bruce riding the Liberal candidate won what was considered a strong Conservative seat, he said. It was especially significant that the riding concerned was one with a stable population and the victory indicated that people were changing their minds in favor of the Liberal Party, said Dr. Upper.

SWING TO LIBERALS

Another indication that more and more people were accepting Liberal views and programs on both the federal and provincial level was the latest Gallop poll results which indicated a change of 2 or more percent difference between those favoring Liberal to Conservative policies with the last federal election to a difference of 15 per cent in favor of the Liberals as of yesterday evening.

People are looking for a stable government and more and more people who were undecided as to what to do at the last election are deciding in favor of the Liberal Party's policies and programs, the speaker declared. At the provincial level the Liberal Party is recognized by the people as standing for something concrete in all fields of provincial activity, he said.

Dr. Upper stated that the Conservatives were "old, tired and dull" and had "not a new idea in ten years." They appeared incapable of providing leadership and were following the Liberals' ideas, he suggested. "They have to be pushed and they eventually will be pushed right out of office," Dr. Upper said. The statement was applauded by the 70 people present.

To support his statements, Dr. Upper noted that there was no full-time minister for one of the province's most important and challenging fields of activity—that of the Department of Education. Premier Robarts had assumed this portfolio on a part-time basis, a situation which is hardly suitable in a province where school facilities are constantly being overwhelmed and new measures are urgently needed to meet the needs of Ontario's people, Dr. Upper said.

The speaker also noted that although many prominent Conservatives had threatened to sue John Wintermeyer "for millions" when he made his speech which eventually caused the Royal Commission to probe crime in Ontario, none had sued yet.

It is also important to note that not a single one of Mr. Wintermeyer's statements has yet been disproved by the findings of the crime commission investigation, Dr. Upper said.

That the Conservatives were following the lead of the Liberals was indicated, he said, by the fact that a 200-page brief was presented on a proposed medical plan by the Conservative government following the Liberal's publication of their medicare proposals. That they were not producing any new ideas was significant when one realized that the brief contained over 180 pages dealing only with the history of the Ontario Department of Health since the last century up to the present time, Dr. Upper observed.

The Liberals proposed 25 dollar exemption for provincial sales tax was indicative of careful research which the Liberal party had been doing on the needs of the people of Ontario, the speaker said. He stated that the Conservatives had called the suggestion foolish and impractical but, in a special session called to study the plan, had not been able to point to a single point or break down the soundness of the plan.

"Leslie got out when the going was good," said Dr. Upper making reference to former Premier Leslie Frost.

The next provincial election, which could be expected within the next 12 months — possibly as long as ten months' time, will be a victory for the Liberal Party in Ontario, Dr. Upper predicted. This will take hard work, he advised, and it is especially important to choose a good candidate and to choose him as soon as possible.

FAVORS YOUNG CANDIDATES

He emphasized the suggestion that a new, young, inexperienced candidate should be chosen in favor of some old, party worker because there was much work to be done and it could not be done by those who would adopt the attitude that their candidacy was more of a reward than a challenge, or by those who, if elected, would be content to sit in the back benches and let others do the work of running the province.

"The people of Ontario want action," concluded Dr. Upper, and the Liberal Party, he said, can give them the action that is needed.

Dr. Upper was introduced by Alderman Robert Temple, the Liberal candidate for South Hastings in the last federal election, Mr. Temple thanked the good attendance as a sign of both the interest in the Liberal Party and the popularity of the speaker. He expressed his delight with the advanced which the Liberal Party had made in this riding in the last election and indicated that he looked forward to the next election, which could come at any time due to the "explosive" situation in Ottawa created by the Social Credit Party.

Frank Folwell thanked the speaker, saying that it was certainly evident that thinking Liberals were swinging to Liberal policies at both the federal and provincial levels. He cited the current crime probe as being especially revealing of a need for a change. Mr. Folwell thanked Dr. Upper "for coming home to speak to us."

3 Men Burned At Bakelite Still Critical

The condition of the three men rushed to Toronto after the Wednesday explosion at the Bakelite plant here remains critical, according to reports received here. The three men, Donald Clarke, 37, Terry Hedges, 26, and Merle Brant, were given emergency treatment in Belleville, then rushed to Toronto General Hospital by police-escorted convoy of ambulances.

Merle Brant of Deseronto, who was considered to be the most seriously injured, receiving burns to 95 per cent of his body.

Donald Clarke and Terry Hedges were brought to have received about 40 per cent burns.

Joe Langavin, 36, of Kimwood Drive, Belleville, was the fourth man hospitalized by the fire. His hands were badly burned, but according to authorities at Belleville General Hospital his condition is good and he should be able to return to work within five weeks. His wife has visited him at the hospital but other visitors are not allowed.

Want Federal Candidate Selected Soon

A motion to the effect that the Belleville Liberal Association urged the South Hastings Liberal Association's executive to call a nomination convention at the earliest possible date to nominate the Liberal candidate for the next federal election was passed enthusiastically by the 70 people present for the annual election of officers held by the Belleville Liberal Association yesterday evening.

Jack Lundberg was re-elected president of the association. Elected as vice-presidents were John O'Flynn, Louis Manahan and Mrs. Harry Langabeer. Terry Wheeler was elected secretary and Rod Cameron was re-elected as treasurer.

Hospital Personnel to Tour U.S. Institutions to Study Progressive Patient Care

Representatives of the Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors, the medical staff, and hospital administration, are leaving Friday on a four-day study tour of hospitals which have successfully applied the principles of progressive patient care in their institutions.

The group will study hospitals in Lansing, Michi- Chicago, Ill., and in Rochester and St. Paul, Minn., to determine the success of their programs and to determine the ways in which similar benefits can be achieved in planning the proposed new facilities for Belleville hospital.

The study being undertaken on behalf of the Belleville hospital is being underwritten by a grant from the Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Michigan.

Hospital officials point out that the medical care needs of patients differ widely and are met in a variety of ways.

The needs of a patient immediately following critical surgery or a serious heart attack differ markedly from those of a patient with diabetes who is receiving medical care.

A number of hospitals feel that under Progressive Patient Care they have improved the quality of their care given patients by planning and organizing hospital facilities to meet the specific needs of the various types of patients.

PLACED IN AREAS

An example of progressive patient care is that the seriously ill patient is cared for in an area where all of the resources required for him the best possible care are immediately available.

On the other hand, the patient with diabetes, or any other ambulatory patient is cared for in an area in which living conditions are similar to those found in his home with living and dining rooms facilities.

The reported advantages of improved quality of care for patients and the economy in building, staffing and equipping a hospital according to this plan has led the medical staff, the board of governors and the administrative personnel of the Belleville General Hospital to further investigate this plan for the new facilities that are being planned.

A study of this concept is being undertaken with all aspects to be carefully considered.

As noted above the study is underwritten by a grant from the Kellog Foundation of Battle Creek, Michigan. It is the first such grant that the Kellogg Foundation has given to a Canadian hospital.

United Appeal Fund Reaches $25,143.62

Belleville United Appeal officials have issued an urgent request that canvassers complete their calls and turn in their results as quickly as possible. The campaign headquarters in the Victoria and Grey Trust building will be maintained for only one more week as a convenience for all canvassers in making their returns, it was stated.

As of last Tuesday evening $25,143.62 had been collected. This amount included the early but not all, returns from the residential - blitz held Monday. Returns from this section of the campaign were down somewhat from last year despite the increased objective for this year. There are still some areas to be heard from, however, and this may bring the amount up to last year's figure of $4,000.00

Early returns from the payroll giving section were most promising. One major local industry showed an increase of over 30 per cent in the amount of contributions whilst another local factory improved their employee donations by 100 per cent over previous years.

Returns from the central business district have been slow in coming although it is known that a great many calls have been completed. Once again the United Appeal officials have requested that canvassers turn in their kits and results as soon as they have completed them.

Four District Men Join as Officer Cadets

Question: We enjoy YOUR column very much, and have been taking the paper. It appears in locally for years. The reason I'm writing is because we have a small argument going on in our home concerning a certain matter of etiquette.

When one receives an invitation for a bridal shower and, later, an invitation to the wedding, is it proper to bring a gift to both? We are friends of the couple, and I intend accepting both invitations. The wedding invitation also includes the reception.

Are gifts actually required on both occasions, or are they just considered optional? Thank you so much. Mrs. O.J.S., Niota, Ill.

Answer: The purpose of a bridal shower is to give the bride-to-be something for either her trousseau or her future home. A gift is required, and it should be in the category specified by the hostess. Guests usually bring them to the shower already gift wrapped, unless the hostess asks that they be sent in advance. Shower gifts generally are fairly inexpensive, especially when the donor only intends sending a wedding gift.

Acceptance of an invitation to the wedding, alone, usually rules out the necessity for a wedding present. But a gift usually is given when one is invited to the reception as well, and accepts. All wedding gifts, incidentally, are sent to the bride-to-be at her home before the wedding date. They are not given to the couple at the reception.

Question: A close friend of mine is being married next month. It will be her second marriage. The first ended in divorce two years ago, when she was twenty-five. I'd like to give her a bridal shower, but my mother feels it would be in questionable taste, since this is not the first time my friend has been married. Should I go ahead and plan the party, anyway, or do you, too, think it would be incorrect considering the circumstances? — R.P., Miami, Fla.

Answer: When a bride-to-be has been married before, the wedding and shower parties that precede it, usually are less elaborate and involved than for a first marriage. A shower is not customary. Instead, close friends and relatives often entertain the couple with small luncheons or dinners before the wedding. Gifts may be given, but this is quite optional. Relatives and intimate friends often give gifts or presents, but they are not expected of other guests, especially if they sent presents to the bride-to-be at the time of her first wedding.

Question: My sixteen-year-old daughter wants to invite a group of girls and boys for a Saturday afternoon party at our house. She will make and serve the refreshments herself, and says it's not necessary for me to stay home to help, since it's not an evening party. I disagree, and would like to know if I should be present for a group of youngsters to have a completely unchaperoned party, even though it's in the afternoon.

Mrs. R. D. S., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: Regardless of the hour, an adult should be present. Frequently the mother of the hostess should help greet her guests after that, she may retire to another room and let the youngster handle all other party details. Her chaperonage doesn't have to make her presence obvious, but it's wise to be in the background for the sake of appearances, and just

Three weeks ago I promised Terry MacK. that I would give her some curry recipes "shortly".

Since then I have made three curries. I used leftover duck and leftover lamb. In the other I used fresh frozen shrimp.

The rarity of good curries on Canadian tables is deplored by me. Such an excellent means of using leftover meats should be prized by all thrifty and good cooks.

The general rule for making a curry is to add the curry powder to the melted fat to "crack" it, then begin adding the vegetables and fruits, gently sauteing meanwhile. Then add meat and liquid and correct the seasoning and serve on rice.

The specific recipes which I have made up recently follow.

DUCK CURRY (serves 4 to 6):

This is a real beauty — worthy of your epicurean friends. 2 cups well-packed coarsely cut roast duck, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 or 2 teaspoons curry powder (I used 1½ teaspoons), 1 teaspoon salt, ½ med-large mild red Italian onion, chopped, 1 green pepper, chopped, 1 small apple, pared, cored and chopped, ½ cup halved and seeded Emperor grapes or 2 tablespoons chopped candied ginger, 1 medium peach (or pear) pared and chopped, 1 cup duck-giblet gravy (or 1 cup water seasoned with 2 chicken bouillon cubes, see below), ¼ cup water.

Melt butter over low heat in large frying pan and add curry powder and salt. Add all of the fruits and vegetables as they are prepared but do not brown them, just let them gently saute. It takes about 15 minutes to prepare the 5 fruit and vegetable items. Add the duck meat and gravy and water and bring to boil. If you use water and chicken bouillon cubes instead of gravy you will want to thicken the curry with a paste of 2 tablespoons each flour and water stirred together until smooth. Serve on fluffy boiled rice.

LAMB CURRY (Simple):

1 tablespoon butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon curry powder, ½ teaspoon (or more) salt, 1 cup mild Italian onion, chopped, 1 tart apple, 1 large tomato, 2½ cups cut-up roast lamb, ½ to ¾ cup water.

Melt butter over low heat, add curry powder and salt, then add onion, apple and tomato as you prepare them, sauteing gently. Add cut-up meat and water. Heat through. Thicken if desired — see Duck Curry above. Serve with rice.

SHRIMP CURRY (for guest occasions):

3 tablespoons butter, 1½ teaspoons curry powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon powdered ginger, ½ mild Spanish onion, chopped, 1 pear, pared and chopped (or ½ pared and chopped cucumber), 1 large tart apple pared and chopped, 2 medium tomatoes, peeled and chopped, ½ cup raisins, 7 14-oz. package fresh frozen shrimp, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ cup water.

Melt butter over low heat, ad curry powder, ginger and salt. Add vegetables and fruits as they are prepared, sauteing gently. Add raisins, shrimp, lemon juice and water and bring to boil and cook gently covered until shrimp is defrosted and hot. If desired thicken curry with method in Duck Curry recipe). Serve on rice, passing Ipdia Chutney and grated raw coconut in separate dishes.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

MRS. T. E. — I'm the last one she invites to accompany her anywhere.

HILDA N. — I have never felt the least bit close to my mother.

* * *

Mrs. T. E. — My husband and I had four daughters. Hilda is the youngest. Now I'm a widow and the other daughters live in other cities, naturally I'm drawn to Hilda and expect to be treated like a devoted mother, which I've certainly been to her.

But something's wrong. I see other mothers enjoying the company of their daughters in restaurants, out shopping and at the movies, Hilda, however, calls up her friends to accompany her, or even neighbors who are my age. Imagine her asking other grandmothers to babysit for my grandchildren Hilda's sons! I seem to be at the bottom of her list when it comes to people she likes to see. I don't deserve this coldness.

* * *

Hilda N. — It's rather late in the game for my mother to expect me to feel close to her. All through my childhood she made me feel like the fifth wheel on a wagon. She needed to run around! She had three daughters and then along came me, Hilda, to make it four. If I'd been a boy, well, that would have been another story.

I was always happier among friends than with my family. In school the kids liked me. At report-card time if I did well there was no comment at home, but when my marks slipped my mother bawled me out for days. She seemed extra severe with me. My sisters got her smiles and her special services. But when it came to shortening a dress for me or helping me prepare for a party she begged off. Even though she's my mother we have little in common.

* * *

The Council: Here's Hilda saying that because she never felt close to her mother she's not going to start now. It's like refusing to look out of a window on the other side of the train. Why shut out the possibility of a pleasant visit?

There are many factors which can interfere with a mother and daughter "hitting it off right." As the yourself Hilda may have drawn the most tired mother. And there was a father on the scene who unconsciously may have treated Hilda as "my baby girl," championing her as against her mother. The inevitable "comparing" of treatment among four little girls can also contribute to a "case" against the mother by one who feels bested, ignored and frustrated. Rightly or wrongly, Mrs. T. is the scapegoat in Hilda's life.

To Hilda we say: Isn't it the thought that having a scapegoat is an evasion, an excuse, and that she would do well to look further than her mother for the causes of her malaise and pique.

And to Mrs. N. we bring a reminder that one cannot force love. It doesn't grow likeMoon at the push of a button. It begins with tiny strands of gentleness which gradually interweave into a soft caressing fabric. At present Hilda does not feel that her mother turns to her because the other daughters have had. I'm like the "ugly port in a storm" which shipwrecked travellers turn to, she thinks. So Mrs. N. cannot hope to replace those from whom Hilda is now deriving comfort and reassurance. But she has an inside track toward respect and friendship from her daughter.

Naturally neither woman has given us the whole story behind her feelings. Even, so, the future is what counts now. And Hilda would do well to bear in mind that little eyes — her children's — and little ears are around, recording impressions of how to treat a mother. Now's the time to summon whatever good feelings — gratitude and sympathy — may be lying dormant.

Mother's Helper

SWADDLING a distressed baby may comfort him with the resultant secure feeling. Fold a receiving blanket into a triangle, lay the baby on it with his head at the long side. Turn the ends firmly over him, the bottom up. Tuck the point underneath the crossed top, to hold your little bundle tight.

Full Gospel C.A's View Graham's Film

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel C.A.'s was in charge of Mr. Alex Nyyssonen of KPBC on Friday evening. The meeting was opened by prayer, led by the Rev. Lyle Corbett of Castleton, Ont.

The Rev. J. Turner, Dr. Billy Graham's Crusade Association helper, read the Scripture reading from St. Luke 23: 33-38, and showed the lovely colored film, "Jerusalem."

The service closed in prayer.

U.C.W. Meetings

MELROSE U.C.W.

Melrose United Church Women met at the home of Mrs. Newton Demille for the October meeting with an attendance of 18.

Mrs. McLaren presided, and led in the meditation, "O Give Thanks Unto the Lord". The Scripture, taken from Deuteronomy 8, was read by Mrs. Russell MacFarlane and Mrs. J. McLaren followed by a prayer.

Mrs. McLaren conducted the business session and read the correspondence. Several invitations to bazaars at neighboring churches were received. October 24th was the popular date for each of three invitations to Hallowe'en Tea, Cannifton and Front Road.

Plans were made for the Melrose bazaar which will be held in early November.

"Thanksgiving" was the theme of the program prepared by Mrs. Kenneth McMechan. "All should be thankful that we live in Canada, for the autumn beauty of Ontario; for health, our families and finally at sometime during the day and at each meal do we say, "Thank You God."

Readings on "Thanksgiving" were given by Mrs. J. McFarlane, Mrs. Ronald Grahame, Mrs. J. McLaren and Mrs. A. English.

Mrs. McMechan closed with some inspiring thoughts written by Padre Young.

She also conducted a contest on the New Testament, and assisted by Mrs. S. Demille, held another social musical contest.

After the roll call and receiving of the offering the meeting was closed by prayer.

Attractive Anniversary Tea, Bazaar Held at County Home

A delightful birthday anniversary tea and bazaar was held yesterday afternoon at the County Home, Trent Road, and, in spite of cloudy skies, many patrons and guests were present.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. Clarence Holmes, president of the Auxiliary, assisted by Mr. R. Holmes, County Home superintendent, and Mrs. K. H. York, County Home matron, who graciously extended a cordial welcome to all.

At the right of the entrance hall were the gift table and the table of the homecooking, both of which were festooned with streamers of red and gold in autumn motif colors.

FINE GIFTS

The gift table was laden with an assortment of fine articles, suitable for either Christmas or birthday remembrances. Among these were a round yellow organdie confection; various aprons, oven mitts in black with gold-toned braiding, sunflower cushions, bottles of lavender perfumed face powder, pretty bathroom slippers in pink and blue, floral pictures suitable for bedroom, cute aeap turties, pieces of driftwood, niceley varnished in brown; crocheted edged bath towels; attractive fine green bamboo place mats; white china salt and pepper strays and cups and saucers. In charge of this was Mrs. William Waterhouse and assisted by Mrs. Harry Hitchion.

The homecooking table was presided over by Mrs. F. Aikens, assisted by Mrs. M. Hinchcliffe, Mrs. D. Douglas and Mrs. W. Wiley. Here there was a large array to choose as every article was most delicious looking: sweetsmelling cakes, tasty cookies, bread, chocolate loaf cakes, sugar-coated coffee rolls, ginger cookies, fruit cakes, pastries, sugar cookies and tempting pies of cherry, apple and pumpkin, completed the display. Cakes, a whole roast chicken and jars of pickles, just to mention a few, by and large, were practically all had been sold.

MARVELLOUS DISPLAY

In the therapy room was a marvellous display of the handiwork of the residents of the Home. 'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart B. Rosenberg

Three tortoises went out for a walk. Said one to the others, "Let's go have a cup of coffee." After some discussion they finally decided to follow his suggestion. No sooner had they entered the restaurant when it commenced to rain. The oldest tortoise turned to the youngest and asked: "Son, would you mind running home and getting my umbrella?" Whereupon the little one replied: "Certainly, I'll be glad to get your umbrella if you promise not to drink my coffee." Again they discussed the matter and finally they agreed.

So the two tortoises entered the restaurant and sat down. Two years later the big tortoise said to the middle one: "Well, I guess he's not coming back. Might as well drink his coffee."

Just then, a tiny voice was heard from the front door, calling:

"If you do, I won't go."

The attitudes of many people are caught up in this simple but devastating story. But here some whose biographies reflect the story's telling punch-line. They never say they only want!

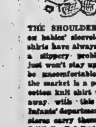
Consider the man who sits comfortably on the sidelines refusing to "dirty" his hands during the messy work of running organizations, attending to committees, or managing the budgetary problems of public-spirited associations. He doesn't "go" for personality politics or to criticize those who do. In the name of democracy he bellows forth his candid, "honest opinions." He is quick to offer uncalled-for advice, ready to tell "them" how wrong "they" are.

His concerns of course, are unreal, self-centred and plainly distorted. He claims to be more sincere than the "others" and often succeeds in making even himself believe this arrogant nonsense.

The plain truth is that he is fundamentally suspicious of everyone else's motives, and trusting no one ,he cannot be trusted either. He leans heavily to the side of analyzing, weighing and evaluating the purpose and proprieties of programs for action. But when the job has to be done — after the brawling is over — he's very much the lightweight, a feathery will-o'-the-wisp.

There's a special delight some folks take in tearing apart people in public life — the elected officials, presidents of organizations, heads of committees, leaders of religious groups and political parties. It is so easy to hide in the comfort of the woodwork and burrow like a termite, when you don't have to worry about building or maintaining structures. They just keep hacking away at what the other fellow's doing and enjoy the sound of their own voices eloquently "telling off" everyone else! Instead of doing their share, trusting that others will also do theirs, they do nothing, because "you can't trust anybody." Like the tortoise, long after the coffee's gone cold and the rain has stopped falling, they hide in underbrush waiting to pounce upon a mistake that no longer matters.

This business of suspiciously waiting to see what the other fellow will do before we act ourselves is, of course, a stultifying and degrading matter.



What meaning to love if we refuse to invest our emotional capital until we are certain of being repaid — and with interest? Can a child be loyal to his parents, a man to his mate, or worshipper to his God, if he lacks the faith and the commitment which urges us to risk and to give unto with a trust that does not require prior proof of merit?

What significance to our ideals and our humane concerns is nobody is moved to do what is right until everyone else also does? Does a true friend require guaranteed repayment of friendship before doing a kindness? Does decent and civilized behavior need the applause and the agreement of the crowd for its justification?

What price charity, if we fail to give until others give, or refuse to do our share until others do? Do justice and mercy depend upon a weighted consideration that "he's not doing enough, so why should I?"

Spontaneous action, not sulking reaction, is the key to a more abundant, more fruitful life. Indeed, spontaneity can sometimes make us over-impulsive and may lead us into doing much that we shouldn't have done. Better to err on that side however, than never to enjoy the risk of doing, or the adventure of acting when no one else dares.

Communist China's Press Turns Attention to Birth Control, Family Planning

By ADAM KELLETT-LONG

PEKING (Reuters)—After six WOMENS ACTIVI CTI geo most complete silence on the subject for more than two years, Communist China's press is once more turning its attention to birth control and family planning.

In recent articles and correspondence columns, mostly in publications aimed at youth, young people have been advised that early marriages and large families are told about birth control methods with a clinical frankness that makes no attempt to spare the blushes of the modest.

But most foreign observers here say it is still too early to talk about a new full - scale birth control campaign similar to that which was conducted throughout 1957 and they quietly dropped.

For one thing, the main Communist party newspaper — the Peking People's Daily—had not yet entered the discussion. There has been no official pronouncement on birth control.

The articles appear to be the development of a movement against early marriages which started in late spring.

In the Peking press, the leader in the campaign against early marriages was Prof. Yeh Kung-chao of the Peking Medical College who recommended 23 to 27 as the best age for girls to marry and 25 to 29 for men.

Even if she marries at 23, the professor said, no girl should have children before she is 26 and there should be an interval of three to five years before the second.

A third child—but no more—could be recommended after another three to five years "if conditions allow."

Kung-chao said the advantages of late marriage and careful family planning are that "in the short run they guarantee the good health of the parents and the children as well as the well-being of the family, in the long run they create conditions for the orderly growth, training and education of the next generation."

The same reasons were given by the Communist government during the 1957 campaign, which appeared to be the direct result of a 1953 census showing a total population $74,000,000. More recent estimates put the present total at 680,000,000 with an annual increase of more than 10,000,000.

How to Make Corsages Is Shown

The highlight of the evening was a demonstration by Mrs. Charles Vance re arranging and making corsages from flowers in the garden such as asters, marigolds and others. This was most interesting and informative and the group learned various ways of preparing their flowers for special occasions.

The president and Mrs. Frank Harding each read informative articles on gardening.

Plans were completed for the Horticultural bus trip to the Royal Winter Fair on Saturday November 10th.

The hostess and her daughter, Mrs. William Morgan served fresh baked buns, cheese and coffee and all enjoyed a social half hour.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Feels Inferior With People

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I'm a widow and have only a grade nine education which I completed nearly forty years ago. My problem is that I'm afraid to strike up a conversation and feel inferior and nervous when around other people.

As children we were taught we should be seen and not heard and no matter how we did a thing, we were told we were stupid. My parents were brought up the hard way and I suppose they thought they were doing what was right by us, by holding us down and belittling us. God bless them!

When I think of going to a new place to work I just get sick and I've fought all my life to overcome this. Do you think a psychiatrist would help and does your doctor have to send you to one?

I'm not very strong physically and am used up with arthritis, but feel God put us all in this world for some purpose and it seems I haven't found my place.—NO CONFIDENCE.

* * *

DEAR NO CONFIDENCE—Your parents really sold you on the idea that you were stupid! So (you think) why try?

Yet more poised women than you have quaked at entering the world of work again, when their husbands passed on.

A psychiatrist could help, but try a self-improvement program first: evening classes in a hobby or book-study course; a lift in clothes, hair style, make-up, diet. Make a new friend, who needs and admires you (this could be a child or a sick person.) Most of us feel inferior some of the time and by encouraging someone else, you can improve yourself.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—When I go to a dance most of the boys I don't care to dance with ask me for a dance, but the boys I'd like to dance with ask other girls. I worry about all this quite a lot. I am also quite shy. What could I do to attract them? I will be fourteen next month.—LENA.

DEAR LENA—You and thousand of others want the boys they haven't got. But many can get any.

So can you. Be happy with fun in groups right now, while you are getting used to the boys. Learn some dance steps. Learn how to apply make-up so it flatters instead of disguising.

Learn how to apply a smile which is friendly, and words to go with it. And let nature take its course.

* * *

(What's your trouble? Write to Doris for help, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Managing Editor of Montreal Star Pleads for More U.S. Attention to Canadian News

DETROIT (AP) — Walter O'Hearn, managing editor of the Montreal Star, Wednesday urged United States newspapermen to stop treating Canadian news as a no-man's land between foreign coverage and domestic coverage.

O'Hearn in a speech to the Detroit chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, a journalistic fraternity, recalled the Montreal hockey riot of 1955 as an example of a Canadian story that was misunderstood by the U.S. newspapers and radio.

He told the gathering:

"This wasn't an ordinary case of sports fans booing the umpire. It was racial and political. Rocket Richard, one of the folk heroes of French Canada had been suspended by a National Hockey League president named Campbell and some of the younger fans went off the rail.

"They weren't the best representatives of their community, but neither were the crowds at the Bastille or the rioters in Oxford, Mississippi."

O'Hearn said that a New York newspaperman of his acquaintance dropped into his office just after the riots. He said he explained the background of the rioting to the New Yorker be-and that he filed three stories to his office on them.

DISCUSS POSITION

The Montreal editor said that when the stories arrived in New York, the newspaper editors discussed whether the items belonged on the sports pages or news pages.

Commenting O'Hearn:

"That is not the sort of thing that would happen if Canada were treated as an area of news coverage as distinct as Latin America or Europe or the Far East. As things are ordered today, we fall into a no man's land between foreign coverage and domestic coverage. Since we are not quite either, we often do not get covered."

The gathering of Michigan newspapermen, radio and television newsmen and public relations men was told by O'Hearn, "if you explored us in a little more depth you might find how fascinating we can be."

Gillis Purcell, general manager of The Canadian Press, was among the gathering which heard O'Hearn's talk on Canadians are People Too.

O'Hearn urged United States newspapermen to take a closer look at news events in Canada and try to do a better job of presenting them to the American public.

He said Canadian readers were greatly interested in happenings in the United States.

"You impress us, but not by sheer size and wealth or by your omnipotence," he said, adding, "I find you interesting. We don't compare with you in that respect but as people who make news, we have our moments too," he added in a plea for more detailed States attention to events in Canada.

Vicious, Dangerous War Raging in South Viet Nam

By CARMAN CUNNING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The shooting down of two, and possibly three, United States aircraft by Communist guerrillas this week has embroiled Americans that they are involved in a vicious, dangerous war in South Viet Nam.

American troops have been in the Southeast Asian country for almost a year, contending with heat, mud, mosquitoes, leeches and hostility on the part of their hosts—as well as the Communist Viet Cong rebels.

There now are some 8,000 to 10,000 Americans acting as advisers to the 180,000-man South Vietnamese forces. At least 16 Americans have been killed in action.

The story of the war has been one of hit-and-run raiding, ambushes, intimidation of the civilian population and the kind of cruelty that often seems to go with civil war.

VICTIMS BEHEADED

Last summer a U.S. congressman, Democratic Representative Robert Kastenmeier of Wisconsin, protested to President Kennedy over alleged torture and brutal treatment of Viet Cong prisoners. A dispatch from Viet Nam told of one government unit beheading slain rebels to prove it kills. Only this week Saigon newspapers reported the arrest of 25 youths who said the Communists persuaded them to cut off fingers in a way conscription into the South Vietnamese forces.

The war is a crucial test of U.S. policy in Southeast Asia and of its "special warfare" forces. Yet it seldom achieves prominence in U.S. news media and there is little public debate on the American role.

This apparently results from a variety of factors, including a U.S. policy of self-pacifying its own part; difficult reporting conditions in Viet Nam and the shifting nature of the war itself.

Most recent dispatches indicated a more and more prominent American part in the fighting.

An Associated Press report quotes a South Vietnamese anti-guerrilla agent as saying of the Americans: "They don't advise. They command . . ." Another quotes Saigon estimates that American pilots carry out three of 10 combat missions flown by the Vietnamese air force.

Other dispatches report attacks by new U.S. helicopters armed with rockets and .30-calibre machine-guns. A U.S. defence department spokesman admits that "because of increased attacks on our helicopters it has become necessary to give them additional means of protecting themselves."

The U.S. continues to insist, however, that its forces are non-combatant advisers.

A statement issued by the U.S. forces in Viet Nam this week said:

"There is no change in the status of American advisers in Viet Nam. They remain as advisers, not as combat troops. They are authorized by the president of United States to return fire to protect themselves or other Americans when fired upon. This decision can be made only by the individual on the spot . . ."

The apparent U.S. aim is to keep the struggle localized as much as possible until the revolution can be broken. Two U.S. generals, including the commander in Viet Nam, last week reported that the tide was turning against the Viet Cong. But even the most optimistic American leaders concede that complete elimination of the guerrillas will be a long and costly job.

High School Activities

QUINTE
By Martin Szcfjella

Since the opening of school on September 4th, life at Quinte has been crowded with many and varied activities, for both students and teachers.

The first major, and certainly the most exciting event of the year was the election of a new student government. Quinte is one of the few high schools in the country that uses the parliamentary system of Canada as a model in organizing its student council, which is consequently called Student Parliament. Therefore we vote not for the person, but for the party, the two that vied for power this year being the Protean and R.G. (Better Government) parties. Who knows why one is better points, more original slogans, more pep, more publicity? Well, whatever the reasons, the R.G. party won all but two seats. The opposition is going to have to make a lot of noise to make itself heard this year.

The Keyette Initiation is also an annual event that we all participate eagerly. Anyone who was down-town on that rainy Friday afternoon of September 28th, will no doubt remember seeing some of those outlandish-looking creatures with signs reading, "Will I live to be a Quinte Keyette?" It was hard to decide who enjoyed it more, the girls being initiated, or the spectators looking on from a safe distance.

The dust had just settled from the initiation dance, when our world of ordinary school routine was turned upside down. We were literally inundated by all types of construction machinery and equipment. The plans for enlarging Quinte, making it the largest school in Eastern Ontario, were being put into effect. During the coming year, we shall see these rough beginnings develop into a building of which we can all be justly proud.

Meanwhile, the limited eating space, due to the closing down of the cafeteria, has necessitated a longer lunch hour. This allows more students to go home to eat. So for the next six months or so, classes will go on until four o'clock in the afternoon. The activity period is thus in the second part of the lunch hour.

Activity-wise, this school is as busy, or even more so, than in previous years. There are about twenty clubs altogether, that are a vital part of school life in general. The Russian Club, which has been underway for some weeks now, is a very important organization in the eyes of many people. It has been formed for the purpose of teaching the Russian language to interested students, and is quite unique in this respect. Quinte has a newspaper, the Quintaglot, that is being produced every month. It provides the students with a medium of expression through which they can let their views be known. The school band has started the year off well, as any spectator at some recent football games can be witness to. The band, incidentally, always performs exceedingly well.

Speaking of football, or sports in general, a great amount of activity has been surrounding this aspect of school life since the start of the fall term. Interform sports, including volleyball, football and baseball are being played daily, with almost everyone busily taking part. Our football teams have proven themselves to be very strong this year, the three regular games they have played, the seniors have won each time, against Moira, Trenton and B.C.I. The juniors have won one and lost two, but have kept the opposition's score to a minimum. Quinte's first soccer team has also been outstanding so far in the season, having won both of the two games played.

Looking into the near future, it should be noted that Quinte's Commencement exercises and Graduation dance of October 19th, will be held in the Moira Secondary School gym, due to the inconveniences caused by the building of the new addition wing. On November 16th (and to look that far in the future is not really necessary) Christmas exams begin.

All in all, it looks like an eventful exciting year ahead for Quinte and all concerned.

Pope, Cardinal Suddenly Face Political Issues

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Roman Catholic ecumenical council wound up its first week Wednesday with controversial political questions playing an unexpected role in the discussions of the prelates from around the world.

Two of the issues involved the disputed Oder-Neisse line, dividing East Germany and Poland, and the trial of students in Spain on charges of terrorism.

The Pope held a general audience in St. Peter's Basilica during the day attended by 15,000. He told them not to worry if things went slowly at the council because, "he who goes carefully goes far."

The pontiff figured in the centre of the Oder-Neisse issue which cropped up after a reported leak of an address by him to Polish bishops.

REPORT PRAISE

The Pope was reported to have praised Poland's struggle for independence and to have referred to the western Polish territories, including Wroclav (former German Breslau) as regained by Poland after many centuries.

The alleged statement was followed by two calls to the Holy See by West German Ambassador Dr. Hilger van Scherpenberg at the gpd of which the embassy decided itself satisfied that the Vatican position on the border line was unchanged.

The Vatican's position is that it will not make a formal decision on the German-Polish border diocese until the border finally is fixed by international treaty.

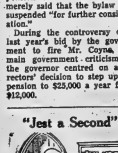
On Oct. 7, the cardinal, acting on an appeal from Milanese students, appealed to Spanish head of state Francisco Franco for clemency for the students on trial for terrorism.

Montini issued a statement Tuesday clarifying his position after meeting with Spanish Foreign Minister Fernando Maria Castiella.

He said his intercession on behalf of the students was "falsely interpreted" in the left-wing press and had nothing to do with Communist propaganda against Spain.

Pension Rights Of J. E. Coyne Are Discussed



OTTAWA (CP)—Declaions by directors of the Bank of Canada about the pension rights of James E. Coyne, former governor of the bank, are "not a matter of public record," the government said Wednesday.

In a written Commons reply to Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur), the government added that it has not received any communication from Mr. Coyne on pension matters.

The reply, filed in the Commons with no indication which cabinet minister supplied the information, stated that a section of the bank's pension by laws was suspended by the directors. Apparently it was the section involving Mr. Coyne's pension.

But the government declined to reply to Mr. Fisher's question about whether such a suspension remains in effect. It merely said that the bylaw was suspended "for further consideration."

During the controversy over last year's bid by the government to fire Mr. Coyne, the main government criticism of the governor centred on a directors' decision to step up his pension to $25,000 a year from $12,000.

"Jest a Second"

"Have a look in the collection plate for a button like this, Charles."

Bill Mackintosh, a Toronto customer of Wingsaway, a private shooting preserve near Codrington, bagged his four-bird limit during a day's hunting. After tagging the birds, to prove their origin, Jack Mound, owner of the preserve, returns to their owner. Normal bag limit on a day's hunt is three birds, but on a licensed private preserve the owner sets his own limits.

Taking time out for some shooting himself, Jack Mound, owner and operator of Wingsaway, a private shooting preserve, near Codrington, brings down a large cock pheasant with a long single shot. Mound uses a lighter gun than most hunters, but makes up for it with better-than-average shooting.

Survivor Says He Heard Boy Shouting for Help But Wouldn't Take Chance

SUDBURY (CP)—A 62-year-old Kitchener man described Wednesday how he had stayed on an island, too afraid to attempt to rescue a boy who clung to an overturned boat for more than 24 hours before drowning.

Karl Lang said he had two life preservers and could hear the 10-year-old boy shouting for help, but "I wouldn't take a chance."

The boy, Daniel Schweitzer, his father, Harvey, 42, and John Holawachs, 62, all of Kitchener, drowned when a 12-foot boat was swamped Sept. 3 on Lake Donnegana, about 70 miles northwest of here.

Lang, the only survivor, described the tragedy at an inquest Wednesday into the death of Holawachs.

He said that at the start of the weekend fishing trip "the party had made two trips in the boat to carry all the equipment to a campsite on an island.

But on the return trip Holawachs insisted they load all the equipment—plus the 24 pike they had caught—into the canoe boat. The boat was only three inches out of the water before anyone climbed in, Lang said.

WATER FLOWS IN

As they were heading across the lake about 3 p.m., with a 5½-horsepower motor, water started to flow over the bow.

Holawachs shouted at Schweitzer and his son, who were sitting in the middle, to bail, said Lang, but as they stood up the boat capsized.

All four clung to the boat and then Lang, a non-swimmer but the only one wearing a life preserver, started dog-paddling to an island about 1,400 feet away, but not the one on which they had camped.

He collected one of the party's other three life-preservers on the way.

Lang said he heard the boy yell that his father and Holawachs had gone down, but he kept on going.

"I pulled myself out and lay down on the island. I heard the boy again. I heard him yelling the next day too, close to evening."

SHELTER OF LOGS

Conservation officer T. J. Carmichael of Gogama said Lang made a shelter of logs on the island.

"The logs could have been used to make a raft," he said. "But if a man is in a state of shock it's hard to say what he'll do."

Mr. Carmichael said two persons without equipment would be an adequate load for the boat.

Lang spent two nights on the island before being rescued by police after the overturned boat had been spotted by the pilot of a lands and forests department plane.

The jury found death was caused by carelessness and negligence.

It recommended that the wearing of life-preservers be made compulsory.

RECEIVES CALL

Provincial Police Constable G. B. Workman said his first intimation of the tragedy was a telephone call received from Holawachs' son at noon Sept. 5. The son said his father and the rest of the party were expected back at Kitchener by Tuesday morning.

The car used by the party was located from the air at Westree, 20 miles south of Gogama, at lands and forests plane sent over Lake Donnegana spotted the boat and picked up Lang from the island.

The bodies were recovered in a dragging operation the next day. Condition of the boy's body indicated it had not been immersed as long as the other two.

Const. Workman said a number of articles from the boat were found floating in the lake.

He said there were no regulations governing the use of small boats nor has this one. The small vessels regulations of the Canada Shipping Act specifies the capacity and motor power of different sized boats, but it applies only to craft of 16 feet or over powered by motors of 10 horse-power or more.

FROM SMALLER BOATS

"I think it is wrong" Const. Workingman said. "Practically all our trouble comes from smaller boats. We have warned people about these portable canvas boats. I don't think they were designed for a motor."

Blood samples taken from the bodies of Schweitzer and Holawachs showed a "very low level" of alcohol, coroner Dr. J. A. Pidutti told the jury.

Board Asked To Reconsider Its Decision

SUDBURY (CP)—The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) officially asked the Ontario Labor Relations Board Wednesday to reconsider its decision on bargaining rights for workers at the International Nickel Company plant in Sudbury.

The board awarded bargaining rights for the more than 14,000 employees Monday to the United Steelworkers of America (CLC).

In Wednesday's application, the ousted Mine-Mill union asks that a new certification vote be held.

The union stressed that one member of the three-man board filed a "strong" dissenting opinion, and pointed to his objection that the Steelworkers violated the 72-hour no-propaganda period preceding the last vote.

Meanwhile, Mine-Mill members decided at meetings held Tuesday night and Wednesday to circulate a petition among workers at Inco and Falconbridge Nickel Mines calling for a new certification vote.

STILL AT FALCONBRIDGE

The union had held bargaining rights at Inco for 17 years and still is bargaining agent at Falconbridge.

Mine-Mill plans to present the petition to the labor board within a few days.

Mine-Mill officers told the meetings that certification of Steel by the labor board, violated and contravened the boards own rules and ignore its own practices and precedents.

Tom Taylor, pro tem president of Local 598, said the Oct 24 election of regular officers for the local would proceed as planned, and this was endorsed by the meetings.

Canadian Mine-Mill President Ken Smith also addressed the meetings. The labor board is not going to wipe out 20 years of Mine-Mill effort and progress with the stroke of a pen, he said.

PREDICTS FLU OUTBREAK

CHICAGO (AP)—The American Medical Association said Wednesday there are strong indications that an epidemic or Asian flu will hit the United States in the winter just ahead. The association said the disease has been making its way slowly but surely from Asia since January.

305 Divorce Bills Nearly Re-introduced

OTTAWA (CP)—The 305 divorce bills which were blocked in the Commons last session by the New Democratic Party and died with the dissolution of Parliament, were almost reintroduced in the Senate Wednesday.

But Senator Jean - Francois Pouliot (L—Quebec) objected to the Senate move and it was put off for at least a day.

Senator Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario), chairman of the Senate divorce committee, moved the introduction of the petition from Quebec and Newfoundland couples, but Senator Pouliot refused his assent because he said he "missed" part of Senator Roebuck's remarks.

Senator Roebuck offered to repeat his brief statement but Senator Pouliot interjected: "Next sitting. I want to read it quietly."

The 305 bills were passed by the Senate during the last session, but they died on the Commons order paper at dissolution. Senator Roebuck said the bills are unchanged except that the petitioners recently added affidavits saying they still wish to obtain a divorce.

Quebec and Newfoundland do not have divorce courts and Parliament is responsible for divorces granted to couples from the two provinces.

Full Federal Budget Coming Says Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Nowlan said Wednesday he thinks anyone with reasonable intelligence will have understood his statements about when the next federal budget will be.

Financial critic Walter Gordon of the Liberals said he takes that to mean that Mr. Nowlan "doesn't know when he is going to bring in a budget."

E. J. Benson (L—Kingston) had asked the finance minister if he would bring in a supplementary budget before Christmas and Speaker Marcel Lambert said it was a repetitive question.

When Mr. Nowlan Monday told the Commons he will bring in a budget "at an earlier date than has happened before in this House, at least since I have been here." It would be a full budget, he said.

In 1960, the government brought in a baby budget before Christmas—not a full - fledged one.

Pheasant Hunting Preserve At Codrington Providing Excellent Sport for Nimrods

More birds per day, and a longer season of guaranteed good shooting is the main reason private shooting preserves, such as Wingsaway, owned by Jack Mound, of Codrington, are popular with hunters. Legal in Ontario since 1955, Wingsaway was one of the first to operate in the province). The preserves are stocked by the operator, and the hunter can shoot as many birds as the operator will permit. All birds shot are tagged before they leave the preserve, to provide proof of their origin.

Most shooting preserves obtain their stock, (only pheasants are allowed, under present laws), from the two provincial game farms, at Codrington and Kemptville, as chicks, and raise them on the farm. They are then turned loose daily, for hunters who pay an average of $25 per day to hunt them. Because the birds are replaced at the operator's expense, the legal season on a private preserve is from Sept. 1 to March 31, and there is no legal limit to the day's take.

Wingsaway operates with a difference. Because pheasant raising is a Mound family tradition, (Jack's brothers, Ted and Stan, operate the two provincial game farms, and their father was a gamekeeper in England before he came to Canada in 1935).

Jack keeps his own breeding stock, and incubates his own eggs.

MUST BE GOOD STOCK

The quality of the stock is one of the main concerns of the shooting preserve operators, and it takes good management to keep pen-raised birds in as good physical condition as those accustomed to the dangers of natural life. If the pens are bare, for instance, the birds will eat their own, or each others' feathers. In pens, pheasants have been known to mob and kill weaker birds, eating them afterwards. Cover crops, corn and oats, grown in the pens provide a vitamin supplement to prevent this. Correct feeding keeps all the birds in good physical condition, ready to run and flush in a hurry.

The quality of the hunters is another problem, one not so easily controlled. Poor shots can leave wounded birds spread over the property, and poor sports could leave wounded hunters behind. But because the hunters are never allowed out without a guide, until the operator knows them well and trust them, there has yet to be a hunting accident on a shooting preserve in Ontario, according to Jack Mound. Wingsaway has been exceptionally lucky, he adds, in that he has never had a customer he didn't want to see return. The feeling seems to be mutual, as most of the customers do return, year after year. Some, in fact, return week after week, during the same year.

FULL OF PEP

At Wingsaway, shooting starts about mid September, and continues until the snow flies. The birds, at the start of the shoot ing, are about 26 weeks old, full grown and full of pep. No more than two parties, of three guns each, are allowed on the preserve at any one time, and in the morning, Jack puts out six and it takes good management to keep pen-raised birds in as distributing them evenly on the 600 acres of property.

When the hunters, booked in advance, arrive, the hunt begins. Jack himself will guide groups of up to three guns, with his favorite bird dog, Jet, a large black Labrador. If there are more than three guns booked for the day, Bob Blythe, of Cobourg, guides the second group, with one of the other dogs. For $25 per gun, the hunters are guaranteed plenty of shots and they can shoot up to four birds each. If they choose they can continue shooting after their limit, at a set price of $5 per bird, but the birds are so fast that it takes unusually good shooting to bag more than the limit.

MANY GOOD SHOTS

The hunters who shoot at Wingsaway range in age from about 20 years to an 84-year-old who recently downed three birds in a few hours. One of the best shots, in fact, among regular customers is a 76-year-old ex U.S. Marshal, now living in Toronto, who comes several times a year, and usually wears out both guide and hunting dog before he is willing to rest. He hits almost everything he shoots at, but to prolong the hunt, he doesn't shoot at every opportunity. The preserve, on the edge of the Murray Hills, is a wild and beautiful area, and he considers the hunt worth while even without the pheasants as a dividend.

Home from the hunt, Jack Mound and his star retriever, Jet, bring in a pheasant for dinner, at Wingsaway, near Codrington, Mound's private shooting preserve. There are plenty of birds, but the country is rough, and the hunting is still tiring.

Control of Communicable Diseases

By MATTHEW B. DYMOND, M.D., Health Minister for Ont.

"Prevention is better than cure" is a well-known, old adage and a particularly true one when thinking in terms of communicable diseases such as smallpox, diphtheria, whooping cough, poliomyelitis, venereal diseases, etc. The person afflicted with such an illness of course needs treatment leading to a cure. But even more important it to prevent the outbreak of these diseases in the community through effective controls.

The earlier forms of control used and which are still effective today, include isolation and quarantine, and such important development as protected water supplies, pasteurization of milk, the use of antiseptics and aseptic techniques. But even these were seen to provide only partial control of these communicable diseases.

It was with the development of vaccination techniques that far more effective control could be realized. Vaccines and toxoids were rapidly perfected as the new science of immunology developed. Diphtheria toxoid, whooping cought vaccine, tyhoid fever vaccine, tetanus toxoid, Salk poliovirus vaccine and many others have become available over the years, and are being consistently improved and refined. Their use was quickly developed by both private and public health physicians in a concerted attack on some of the more serious communicable diseases.

With the widespread use of these vaccines the occurrence of the diseases concerned fell rapidly, epidemics became a thing of the past, those immunized who did catch the disease had much milder attack and there were considerably fewer deaths. It then came to be realised that the complete first series of vaccinations could decline in value over the years and that "booster" injections could bring back the original level of immunization, or even improve it. Modern immunization schedules take this into account and "booster" injections are provided at stated intervals after the main course is administered.

Your own doctor or your local medical officer of health should be consulted regarding the present state of immunity of you and your family. Your Ontario Department of Health provides free stocks of all vaccines and toxoids in its attempt to achieve complete control of all communicable diseases. You are urged to accept and take advantage of these immunization programs. Help Your Department of Health to prevent the spread of disease and to keep Ontario healthy.

Mystery of Sherlock Holmes Still Rampant in London

By ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP)—James Phillimore stepped back into his house for his umbrella and was never seen again.

What happened to him? Only the spirit of Sherlock Holmes knows.

Muffled in deerstalker hat and Inverness cape, the wraith that was — or is — the world's most famous detective still prowls London's foggy streets amid Victorian gaslights and hansom cabs.

Hints of cases like the Phillimore disappearance fill the chronicles of Holmes' faithful companion Dr. John Watson. But they are never explained and readers have always speculated on what Holmes was doing during various gaps in his life.

What, for instance, is the story of Isadore Persano, "the well-known journalist and dyspeptic, who was found stark staring mad with a matchbox in front of him, which contained a remarkable worm, said to be unknown to science?"

What of the "giant rat of Sumatra, a story for which the world is not yet prepared?"

STILL GETS LETTERS

Dr. Watson stored the secret reports "somewhere in the vaults of the bank of Cox and Company in a travel-worn and battered tin dispatch-box" but they were, of course, never found.

Many readers believe the tall, lean sleuth with the piercing eyes still putters with chemicals in his 221B Baker Street room. Certainly Sherlock Holmes pub gets mail addressed to the detective and publican George Irwin answers most of it.

"If the writer is a youngster, I tell him Sherlock is in Europe solving a special case and won't be back for a while," he said. "It all helps to keep the illusion alive."

A replica of Holmes' room built for the 1951 Festival of Britain now is in Irwin's pub and visitors from all over the world gather to stare at his array of weapons, his coal scuttle filled with cigars, the violin he played to calm his nerves, his cocaine kit for the same purpose and the gun (for Victoria Regina) laboriously punched with bullets into the wall.

Jackknife is lodged into the mantel impales unanswered correspondence. Tea and toast remain half-eaten on the table, awaiting the return of Holmes and Watson, suddenly called away on some fascinating case.

NEAR SCOTLAND YARD

Irwin's giant bloodhound wanders about the pub, trying to be as fierce as Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's hound of the Baskervilles—"an enormous coal-black hound, but not such a hound as mortal eyes has ever seen" daubed with luminous paint that frightened Sir Charles Baskerville to death.

His son Sir Henry Baskerville, who went to Hershey for help, was supposed to have stayed at the Northumberland Hotel, now the Sherlock Holmes pub. Not far away is Scotland Yard where Holmes' rival Inspector Lestrade sought himself by bungling cases to the point where Holmes"" rival Inspector mord.

In a recent "biography" of the famous criminologist, William Baring-Gould deals with some lacunae in Holmes' career. During the winter of 1888, Jack the Ripper was butchering women in Whitechapel. Why did Sherlock Holmes not enter the case? Surely he could not sit in 221B when his talents were so desperately needed.

Of course, Holmes must have captured the Ripper, says Baring-Gould. He quotes Holmes telling Dr. Watson:

"It is a pity that while you have all the facts in your possession, the public will never know of them. Scotland Yard can whose Sherlock Holmes pub contains a room furnished according to descriptions of the one in which Holmes lived. Here Irwin stands by the mantel.

Unanswered letters are piling his life's work, the old man died, with the name of Irene Adler on his lips.

For him, she was always THE woman.

St. Ola

ST. OLA — Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Baragar of Minto, visited their cousins, Mrs. Gordon King and Mrs. Thomas Ham on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker and Mrs. William Baker drove to Trenton and back to visit Mrs. Anne Fitzgibbon on Sunday.

The monthly meeting of the United Church Women's organization was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Palmateer last Wednesday. The president, Mrs. Oscar Phillips, was in the chair.

Plans for a Hallowe'en party for the children of the community were discussed, also plans for a potluck supper to be held after the children's party on the night of Hallowe'en. Other business was discussed and after the conclusion of the meeting, Mrs. Palmateer served lunch.

The Sunday evening service was anniversary Sunday at the St. Ola United Church. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. John Griffen of Coe Hill. His subject was "Compromise." The Scripture reading was from Revelation 2: 18-29, "Unto the Church of Thyatua." The text was I Kings 18: 21, "How long halt ye between two opinion? If the Lord be God, follow Him, but if Baal, then follow him.

Mr. Griffin stressed the need of a separated, clear-cut Christian standard of conduct and emphasized the danger of compromise in all areas of life, especially in the spiritual life of all followers of Christ.

The choir was composed of boys and girls from Gilmour and St. Ola. They sang effectively.

Two outstanding features of the service was the christening of the seven weeks old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Phillips of Steenburg, and the dedication of the new church carpet. A delegation from the Gilmour church helped to fill the St. Ola church to capacity.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Holland of Madoc, visited Mr. and Mrs. Edward Longmuir over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Topping of Toronto, spent the weekend at their cottage and returned to the city on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Sprackett, Tony, Danny and John, visited Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Thompson over Thanksgiving weekend.

Mrs. Leslie Robbins and Mr. Ross Palmateer called on Mrs James Phillips on Sunday.

Mrs. R. J. Wood expressed her deep appreciation for the numerous kindnesses shown her during her recent illness. The many cards, gifts and personal visits have helped speed her recovery. She hopes to reply personally to those whose kindnesses helped alleviate her stay in the hospital and her convalescence at home.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Art Casterton, an OHA whistle-tooting hombre of Kingston, fifty miles east o' here, has been selected to join the reskin ranks of the charmed circle of National Hockey League officials.

Art, for many years a member of the amateur friendless fraternity, was scouted last year by NHL scouts during a tooting tenure in the pro ranks—and made good. He was one of three, I am told, to be picked from a field of whistle and sweaternen from the eastern neck of the hockey woods.

During this city's somewhat meteoric blaze across the amateur hockey horizon, it ran the gamut of hockey arbiters. Some should have been disinfected before donning the sweater and skates. Others rated almost top billing.

In the balmy days of senior hockey in this eastern district the OHA used the one-referee-two-linesmen system. Local aspirants to official gold and glory were used as linesmen. I always preferred the two-referee idea. It seemed to handle the "old-pro" situations much better, if you know what I mean.

Out of the parade of those aspiring to become referees two men stood out. They were Art Casterton and Vera Goyer. Both were highly recommended by the hockey-powers-that-be of the district at the time. Both have proven the hockey men were right. They rated high with the OHA.

With the advent of professional hockey in Eastern Ontario, Casterton got his chance to work with the moulded boys. He was scouted by the Eastern Pro League's head referee and included in the dozen selected by the NHL to try out in exhibition games.

I understand he worked games in which the Montreal Canadiens and minor pro clubs played. He made good. I believe the coming season will see Art "work" the Eastern Pro League and the American League.

Hockey officiating is not the beer-and-skittles life it appears to be. There is much more to it than blowing a whistle; thumbing players, taking abuse and drawing a pay cheque.

Officials, like players, have to get in shape—and stay there. They, like players, need exhibitions to ready them for the tough league games ahead.

NHL referee-in-chief Carl Voss points out: "One of the things we check first is whether a candidate can skate. He's not much use if he cannot keep up with NHL competition. Position on the ice is important as is the ability to control a game. We take it the candidate knows the rules."

Voss says a man has to be keen. He points out a case in Toronto of a school teacher drawing $5,000 a year who was ready to accept the NHL contract minimum of $5,000 to work his way up to the NHL.

The NHL likes younger fellows who are single, without responsibilities and have the time to work their way up through the minor pro leagues.

A hockey game is as good as its officials. Voss feels the continued success of hockey in the pro ranks is due in no small way to the work of officials.

He says: "There is no other sport which lays so much responsibility on the referee as hockey does. I feel our officials are doing well. They are competitors just as much as the players."

Salary-wise NHL referees are paid in proportion to the average salaries of players which was $12,400 last year. "It is the fairest way," he says. "They are not underpaid from the rookie, or paid more than the big stars."

Not a bad profession. If a fellow has the physical and mental strength to do the job. With a little overtime, one of the NHL officials made nearly $15,000 for seven months' work last season.

So a nice future opens for Art Casterton. I think he possesses the necessary qualifications and has had a long and valuable experience. Art has a lot of friends here who, I am sure, will wish him the best of luck in the big venture.

McFarland Sponsors Club

Botly to Coach Picton

PICTON — Picton has officially entered the Lakeshore Intermediate Hockey League, Walt Fraser announced Tuesday.

Fraser will be managing the Picton entry which is sponsored by Mayor H. J. McFarland. The club will be called the Picton McFarlands and will have an intermediate B rating. It will compete with three other clubs in the four - team league, Trenton RCAF, Bowmanville, and Uxbridge.

The Mags will hold their first practice this Sunday morning at the County Centre and the public is invited to attend. An exhibition with the RCAF Globetrotters is scheduled for October 28 at the Air Force base with the Trenton crew back in Picton on Tuesday, October 30.

The Picton team will have Lionel Botly as its playing coach and will feature such names as Keith MacDonald, Davy Jones, Ron Hull, Tom Holloran, Ron Weese, Lewis Garrison, Bob Fawcett, the Stacey brothers and others.

Picton will also have a junior OHA team and practices are to begin this weekend. For these games it is planned to have subscribers' seats for the season.

Hawks Win First, Thump Rangers 5-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago's million - dollar line doesn't seem to be worth a plugged nickel at this stage in the National Hockey League season, but the Black Hawks are getting their money's worth out of less expensive players.

The Hawks big line of Bobby Hull, Murray Balfour and Bill Hay hasn't caused much damage up to now. Only Hay has scored a goal.

Chicago won its first game—the only NHL game played—Wednesday 5-1 against New York Rangers with rookie Chico Maki scoring his second goal of the season, putting him among the top seven in the league's scoring race.

Ron Murphy, Len Lunde and Eric Nesterenko have also joined the big seven by chalking up a goal and two assists each against the Rangers. Pierre Pilote got the other Black Hawk goal, his first this season.

STOPS 34 SHOTS

The other NHL teams will be active tonight. Toronto is playing in Montreal and Boston at Detroit.

Kelly has influenza and Johnson picked up a knee injury in a practice session when he was nailed by Billy Hicke.

Cesare Maniago again will replace ailing Jacques Plante in the Montreal nets.

Four Dodgers Make All-Stars

What, No Mick, No Maris?

NEW YORK (AP)—Los Angeles Dodgers players dominate the 1951 Associated Press major league all - star team with four players named to the 10-man squad announced Wednesday.

The Dodgers' quartet selected in the annual poll of members of the Baseball Writers Association includes shortstop Maury Wills, outfielder Tommy Davis, left - handed pitcher Sandy Koufax and right-handed pitcher Don Drysdale.

San Francisco Giants, who defeated the Dodgers in a playoff to win the National League pennant, placed two players on the team—first baseman Orlando Cepeda and outfielder Willie Mays.

Syracuse Nips Wolves, Fronts Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Syracuse Braves finally got to tackle a lower - place club in the Eastern Professional Hockey League Wednesday night, and they finally picked up a victory.

The Braves entered the league for the first time this season and the schedule pitted them against Hull - Ottawa Canadiens, last season's champions, for the first two games. They lost both.

Wednesday night Sudbury Wolves, fourth - place finishers last season when the league had six teams, visited Syracuse and lost their third straight game, 3-1.

In Kingston, the Frontenacs, who lost out to Hull - Ottawa in the finals last season, defeated the Canadiens 5-3.

The victory put Kingston on top of the league with six points, two ahead of Hull-Ottawa. Syracuse is two points behind Canadiens and the Wolves pull up the rear with no points.

Close Hard-Hitting Game

Baby Habs Tie Comets

In a close-checking hard-hitting exhibition tilt the Montreal Junior Canadiens and Clinton Comets played to a four-all tie here last night.

A sparse crowd saw the OHA Junior "A" representatives come from behind four times to tie the score with the United States Eastern Hockey club.

The teams were tied 1-1 at the end of the first period and 3-3 going into the final frame. Clinton led 4-3 with seven seconds to go when the Baby Habs knotted the count in a mass ganging attack.

Al Boudrais, the junior "A" scoring champion last year scored three of the Canadiens goals. His third, a beauty, snatched the tie from what looked like certain defeat. Charlesbois scored the other Habs tally.

Len Speck, Pete Babando, Skip Teal and Roland Roy were the Clinton sharpshooters.

The Comets sprinkled with "old pros" and other iceland veterans played better organized hockey than the Montreal youngsters who flashed the typical junior "A" shoot-and-skate brand.

Coach Claude Ruel's juniors showed lack of finish around the nets and their shooting was off at times. Their power plays with a man advantage were more unorganized ganging attacks than the style the Comets favored.

Both clubs hit hard, heavily and often. But it was clean hockey with the Comets drawing six of the eight penalties.

Speck shot the Comets into the lead early in the first period with Boudrais getting it back twelve minutes later.

Babando picked up Teal's rebound to put the Comets one up after 47 seconds of the second period. But Comets Jack Kane was heaved and on a mass attack Boudrais again tied the count with Ingles and Gagnon, the best Habs line on the ice.

Teal and Babando again gave the Comets into a 3-2 lead but again the Habs roared back to square the issue.

Roy gave the Comets a 4-3 lead early in the third period and it looked like victory until the dying minutes of the game when Boudrais got his third and game-tying counter.

The Canadiens outshot the Comets 30-37.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—high school freshman died Wednesday of injuries suffered Monday in football tackling drill. Hospital authorities said Frederick Brawley, 14, died of a brain blood vessel at the base of his skull.

Roberts, Shaw Runners-Up

Koufax, Aguirre Top ER Hurlers

NEW YORK (AP) — Hank Aguirre of Detroit Tigers, a journeyman southpaw who became a full - fledged starting pitcher the past season, won the American League earned run title in 1962. Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers, another left-hander, captured the National League championship.

Figures compiled by The Associated Press disclosed Wednesday that Aguirre yielded 53 earned runs in 218 innings for a 2.21 average. He is the first Tiger pitcher since Hal Newhouser in 1946 to win the ERA crown.

Aguirre, who did not make his initial 1962 start until May 26, won 16 games and lost 3. He has two shutouts, both against Baltimore.

Koufax gave up 52 earned runs in 184 innings for a 2.54 mark. He was sidelined for two months with a finger injury, but managed to win 14 games while losing 7.

ROBERTS RUNNERUP

Robin Roberts of Baltimore, former National League star with Philadelphia, was the runner-up to Aguirre with 53 earned runs in 192 innings for 2.77. Roberts finished with a 10-9 won-lost mark.

Whitey Ford of New York Yankees, ERA leader in 1956 and 1958, was third with a 2.90. He was followed by rookie Dean Chance of Los Angeles 2.96, Ed Fisher of the Chicago White Sox 3.10, Jim Kaat, Minnesota 3.14, and Ralph Terry, the Yankees' World Series hero, 3.18.

Bob Shaw of Milwaukee Braves was second in the National League with 2.60. He followed 70 earned runs in 223 innings while winning 15 games and losing 9. Shaw obtained on an inter-league trade with Kansas City last winter, and threw a shutout game against St. Louis, San Francisco and Houston.

Bob Purkey of Cincinnati, a 23-game winner, was third at 2.81. Then came Bob Gibson of St. Louis 2.85, Don Drysdale of Los Angeles, a 25-game winner, 2.92, Ernie Broglio of St. Louis 3.00 and Dick Farrell of Houston 3.01.

Barons Bow To Bears

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A length - of - the - ice overtime scoring drive by veteran Les Duff Wednesday night brought Hershey Bears a 3-2 triumph over Cleveland in the first official American Hockey League game scheduled.

The victory gave the Bears sole control of second place in the early scrambling in the AHL's Eastern Division, both points back of leading Quebec and two up on Baltimore, Providence and Springfield.

Duff took a pass from Marc Reaume near his own goal behind centre ice, raced down the boards, bounced the puck off the sideboards twice in eluding Cleveland defence and capped it with a rising 40-foot slap shot at 7:02 of an overtime period.

Reaume and Duff previously got Hershey started with his fourth goal of the season in the opening period, but the Barons tied it and went ahead on goals by Terry Gray and John Ferguson. Trevs Locas sent it into overtime with his goal for Hershey at 6:44 of the final period.

No games are scheduled in the league tonight.

Robinson Mantle Top Sluggers

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Mantle of New York Yankees was the 32d fourth American League slugging crown and Frank Robinson of Cincinnati captured his third straight National League title in 1962, final figures compiled by The Associated Press revealed today.

Last year, the two also won slugging championships which are based on total bases accumulated on all hits and official times at bat.

Mantle slugged .605 this season. In 377 at bats, he collected 121 hits including 15 doubles, one triple and 30 home runs for 228 total bases. The switch-hitting centre fielder had a .357 mark in 1961. He also led in 1955 and 1956.

Robinson produced 330 total bases in 609 trips for a .524 average. Among 206 safeties, he had 31 doubles, two triples and 39 homers. Robinson finished on top in 1960 with a .595 mark and in 1958 with .611.

Kidd, Crothers Star

Blues Win Track Title

HAMILTON (CP)—The University of Toronto track team, led by the brilliant Bruce Kidd and Bill Crothers, swept to first place Wednesday in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association track and field championships at McMaster University.

U of T collected 84 points in the 17 events to McGill University's 68 and Queen's 29. Queen's university of Kingston had 18 points followed by University of Western Ontario with 15, Assumption University of Windsor four, and University of Montreal three.

Kidd and Crothers each collected two victories in their specialities, Kidd in the mile and three miles and Crothers in the 440- and 880-yard events.

Kidd's victories both broke meet records he set last year. His time in the mile of four minutes 11.7 seconds broke last year's mark of 4:13.8 and in the three-mile his time of 13:47.3 seconds broke under the old mark of 14:31.1.

BREAKS RECORD

Crothers' time in the half-mile of 1:52.1 broke an old meet record of 1:52.5, also set last year.

In all, eight meet records were broken, two by Gino Aspata of Ontario Agricultural and Veterinary College of Guelph, which had only two athletes competing. His leap of 24 feet two inches in the broad jump broke the former record by 4½ inches and was nine inches off his also set a year ago. In the hop, step and jump of 47 feet 5¾ inches.

Relay records broken included the 100-yard dash (9.8 mark by Gerry Brown of Toronto in the 4x440-yard relay (won by University of Toronto with a time of 43.8) and the 440-yard hurdle (56.3 seconds by Bill White of Queen's).

Jordan's Licence Revoked

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Welterweight Don Jordan's licence to fight in California was revoked permanently Wednesday by the California State Athletic Commission.

The commission heard a report from referee Jimmy Wilson that Jordan "took a dive" in his fight Oct. 8 with Raymondo Torres at Los Angeles.

The referee wrote the commission he had warned Jordan "you had better fight, Don," but that Jordan fell after being punched lightly and refused to get up and continue the fight.

The commission also had concurring statements from the judges.

Jordan's purse for the fight was ordered withheld permanently.

The boxer was given the right to appeal the decision in person before the commission.

British Race Bid Rejected

NEW YORK (AP)—Commodore H. Irving Pratt of the New York Yacht Club said Wednesday the New York club had refused a challenge from Lord Mountbatten of the Royal Thames Yacht Club to compete for the America's Cup in September of 1963.

He refused to give a reason why the challenge was rejected. However, it is known that the Americans, who kept the cup in last month's series with the Australian challenger Gretel, did not want to race again until 1964 at the earliest.

Lord Mountbatten, uncle of Queen Elizabeth, sent a cabled challenge to the New York club early Wednesday.

In the September series off Newport, R.I., the United States 12-metre yacht Weatherly defeated Gretel in four of the five races held.

GOES TO CALGARY

CALGARY (CP)—Cec Hoekstra, a forward with Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League, has been acquired by Calgary Stampeders of the Western League in a straight trade for forward Bert Fizzell, it was announced Wednesday.

Als Count On Clarke Return

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Alouettes are apparently counting on the return of fullback Don Clark by the end of the month.

Clark's 15-day extension on the injury reserve list expires Saturday and Dan Pickett, Montreal's director of development, said the club does not plan to put him back on the list.

This indicates the club feels virtually certain the 25-year-old backfielder will be fit to play again this season.

His return to the active list would give the Als 16 United States imports, one over the maximum allowed under Canadian Football League rules.

Someone would have to be cut, a move coach Perry Moss would hardly consider unless he was reasonably confident Clark could fill the spot.

Pickett said, however, that Clark will definitely not play Saturday in Montreal's game at Ottawa with the Rough Riders.

Yankees Seek Pitchers

NWE YORK (AP)—New York Yankees are prepared to sacrifice some of their strong bench so they can shore up an undermanned pitching staff for 1963.

Neither general manager Roy Hamey nor field leader Ralph Houk was in the mood to discuss the matter following the Yankees' hard-fought World Series triumph over the stubborn San Francisco Giants.

However, it has been learned that such skilled operators as catcher Johnny Blanchard, left fielder Hector Lopez and shortstop Phil Linz will be used as bait this winter to lure a top-flight pitcher and an experienced relief pitcher to the Yankee staff.

Houk laughed off reports that Baltimore has offered right-hander Milt Pappas for Blanchard and Lopez but the rumor persists. St. Louis Cardinals are reported to have offered Ernie Broglio, star righthander, to the Yankees for Linz.

Dodger Manager Wants Durocher

Alston Retained, Bragan To Braves

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers — apparently convinced it takes all kinds — will string along another year with manager Walt Alston, who seldom raises his voice, and coach Leo Durocher, who seldom rests his.

Alston, retained Wednesday for a 16th season, said he wanted to retain Durocher despite reports Leo had second-guessed him after the Dodgers lost the National League playoffs.

Durocher, asked whether he would return, said he had no comment. "I'll let Mr. Bavasi (Dodger general manager Buzzie Bavasi) make all the statements," Durocher said.

"There is no doubt in my mind," Bavasi said later, "that Leo will be back."

Bavasi, who called a press conference to announce Alston's contract renewal, seemed to think the collapse of the Dodgers this year was more attributable to the team than to the manager.

"It took a team effort to lose it," Bavasi said.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Braves, a placid fifth last season, have hired a new manager—bouncy Bobby Bragan.

That guarantees that no matter where the Braves finish next year, they'll do it with some easophony.

"The players and the fans will know I'm around. I'll be in sight a good deal of the time," said Bragan as he took over the job Wednesday with an introduction from Milwaukee president and general manager John McHale, who said, "I like the mouthy type of manager."

Bragan is the third Milwaukee manager since 1958, when Fred Haney quit.

Charlie Dressen couldn't get the club above fourth in a month less than two seasons and under Birdie Tebbetts last season they were fifth, their lowest finish since moving from Boston 19 years ago.

JOINS SUDBURY

TORONTO (CP)—Ed Babiuk who has been practice goaltender for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, left here Wednesday to join Sudbury Wolves of the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

The 23-year-old native of Edmonton, who last season played for Calgary Stampeders of the Western Hockey League, was in the EPHL in the 1960-61 season when he played five games for Sudbury and 20 games for Kingston Frontenacs.

He had a 4.20 goals-against average for Sudbury, 3.95 for Kingston and 3.70 last season in 66 games for Calgary.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—First Minister easily captured the $14,500-Challenge Stakes at New Woodbine Wednesday.

A length and a quarter behind came Shogun, with Coup d'Etat third.

Starting as a 5-2 favorite with a crowd of 5,078, First Minister registered his third consecutive victory and his fifth of the season. Winner's share of $6,700 brought First Minister's 1962 bank balances to $23,935.

In the first two races, Explaris and Palmon combined for a daily double of $33.30.

Big Deal With Cubs

Cardinals Get Altman

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis Cardinals completed a trade with Chicago Cubs Wednesday for George Altman after turning down a similar deal that would have brought them the power-hitting outfielder last summer.

The 26-year-old left - handed Altman, key man in the swap, comes to the Cardinals with pitcher Don Cardwell and catcher Moe Thacker.

Going to the Cubs are pitchers Larry Jackson and Lindy McDaniel and catcher Jim Schaffer.

A similar deal substituting pitcher Bob Anderson for Cardwell was reported to have been rejected by the Cardinals earlier although approved by the Cubs.

Altman was the man the Cardinals were trying to get, to the extent giving 16-game winner Jackson, 31, and one-time relief ace McDaniel.

Altman hit .318 and had 22 homers and 74 runs batted in during the 1962 season.

'Team Without Stars'

Russian Tour Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — A "hockey team without stars" will represent the Soviet Union in a tour touching Montreal and Ontario centres which opens here Nov. 15, a Soviet embassy statement said Wednesday.

But it probably will be the best team in Russia—and Jack Rosburgh, immediate past president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and now Liberal member of Parliament for Norfolk, agrees.

Mr. Rosburgh said Wednesday he subscribes to the theory that the Russians, who started taking hockey seriously in 1947, may be close to harvesting the fruits of an extensive rebuilding program. New legs and ability to exchange hard knocks are indicated.

Gone are the stars of previous world and Olympic hockey tournaments including Big Nikolai (Sally) Solegubov, the first Russian who learned the art of the crunching bodycheck and who was voted as National Hockey League defence timber.

The Russians will also play in Montreal, Toronto, Kitchener, Hamilton, Windsor and Timmins before departing from Halifax.

NEW CHESS CHAMP

LONDON (Reuters) — Nona Caprindashvili, a 21 - year - old Georgian, became the new women's world chess champion when she beat Elizabeth Bykova, the Soviet news agency Tass said Wednesday.

Griffith Verdicts Wright

VIENNA (AP)—World welterweight champion Emile Griffith of New York outpointed Teddy Wright of Detroit Wednesday night in a 15-round bout billed for the world junior middleweight title.

The organizers wound up the only ones recognizing the fight as for a title. The European Boxing Union refused recognition Tuesday and the World Boxing Association (formerly the U.S. NBA) said it would recognize indeed a bout between Denny Moyer and Joe Glambra scheduled in Portland, Ore., Saturday.

Under Austrian Boxing Association rules the points were not disclosed.

Griffith weighed 148¼ pounds, Wright 153½.

Opening Date Changed

City Hockey League

The opening games of the City Hockey League were set back one week from October 21 to November 7, at a short league meeting held last night.

A request to change the opening date came from Memorial Arena and the teams quickly agreed, feeling that October 31 being Hallowe'en, it might be a bad night to open the schedule.

Joyce-Rollins will meet Welbanks at 7:45 and Trudeau Motors will take on the Pepsi's at 9:15 on the November 7 doubleheader.

Prices for all double-headers, to be played every Wednesday night, were set last night at 50c for adults and 25c for children.

Secretary Bert Faulkner announced that a Belleville Front Street business man had shown interest in taking over half of the sponsorship of the Welbank Motors team. Definite word on this matter is expected today.

The loop decided against accepting an offer from five local referees and appointed Gerald "Chief" Fisher as referee-in-chief. Fisher will approach a number of officials and report back to the league's next meeting on Tuesday, October 30.

Russ Soule, league vice-president, was put in charge of handling all advertising for the league. Posters will be made up and ads will be run in this newspaper.

Two of the league's four teams will hold their opening practices tonight. Trudeau Motors were out from seven to eight and Joyce-Rollins take over from eight until nine o'clock. The Pepsi's held their initial practice on Monday last and Welbanks take to the ice at six o'clock Sunday and next Tuesday from ten to eleven. All practices are "open" and players are urged to turn out.

Western Hockey

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Edmonton Flyers, defending champions of the Western Hockey League, finally broke the ice Wednesday night to win their first game this season in three tries. The Flyers edged the visiting Los Angeles Blades 3-2.

Portland's Buckaroos opened the home season on a happy note with a 3-1 win over San Francisco in the league's only other action.

Scorers for Edmonton were Doug Mesnier, Warren Hynes and Sid Finney. Los Angeles goal-getters were Bob Solinger and Eddie Stankiewicz.

Portland scorers were Bill Saunders, Tommy McVie and Gord Fashoway. Len Haley counted San Francisco's lone goal.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Billy Byo, five-year-old pacer owned by Sheldon Atmore of Parkhill, Ont., captured the featured $600 C3 pace Wednesday night at Western Fair Raceway.

With Atmore's son Johnny in the sulky, Billy Byo followed Lucky Stone, reined by Marshall Moore, in the early stage of the race, with Barbara Grattan K, piloted by Jiggs McFadden, who collected a second four wins the last night out, in close pursuit.

Atmore let go at the three-quarter mark, winning by a length over Barbara Grattan K, with Sheila F third.

Overlooked in the betting, Billy Byo—pacing 2:08, fastest mile of the season so far—paid $22.20.

Two drivers drove home double victories. Fred Goodreau of Dresden, Ont., clicked with Duke Day Brooke in 2:14 4-5 for a $4 payoff in the third race and Mary Elign Lee, 2:12 2-5 for $4.80, in the fourth. Marshall Moore of Glanworth was seventh with Janice Primrose, 2:17 3-4 for $7, and the ninth with Miss Lady Michief, 2:17 1-5 for $6.20.

FERGUS HORSE WINS

OTTAWA (CP)—Piney Boy, a six-year-old roan gelding from the Fergus, Ont., stables of Ruff Macquarrie, Wednesday night won the featured C-1 pace at Rideau Carleton Raceway. Haley Mills Likes Boys But Parents Are Fun Too

By BOB THOMAS

Hayley's dating slacked off after that. Now she is 16 and like all 16-year-old girls, has more than a passing interest in boys.

"But I'm not utterly desperate about dates," she says. "I don't mind if I'm boy-less on a Friday night. I'm perfectly happy to go out with my parents. They're fun, too."

In that regard she may differ from other girls of 16, who as a class are inclined to consider their parents square. True, Hayley has unusual parents—British film star John Mills and his authoress wife, Mary Hayley Bell. They have done a good job of keeping their daughter fresh and unspoiled despite international fame.

AT THE PARK — Plotting well-merited retribution for a fancied wrong, Robert Mitchum stars as Sheriff Jim Wilkinson in the Technicolor Cinemascope western, "Rampage," co-starring Gregory Peck and Foni Brengelmann. The film is a Robert Taylor production opening Monday at the Park Theatre for its three Belleville and district showings. On the same program as eternity of "Rampage" is Jean Simmons in "Love Has Many Faces" co-starring Hope Lange, Wendy Cook and Cay Forester with Pedro Armendariz and Virginia Mayo.

GETS AUSTRIA POST

MONTREAL (CP)—Larry Regan, 32, the 1956-57 rookie of the year in the National Hockey League, left by air Wednesday for Austria where he has signed as player-coach of the Innsbruck team. Regan, a native of North Bay, Ont., played with Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs in the NHL. His rookie season, when he scored 19 goals with the Bruins, was his top year.

Hayley's achievement is remarkable. She is unmistakably British, yet she has been adopted by American teen-agers as their favorite young actress. The Disney films, Pollyanna and especially Parent Trap, established her in the top rank.

"It's a bit more casual here," she remarked. "In England we don't have the facilities you have here—the beach, drive-in restaurants—and so forth. A date generally means going to the theatre and then returning to someone's house for a group party. Dating is done more in groups over there; it's not so much of a pairing off.

"Everything is much more casual here. I like it, although sometimes I think the close can be a bit too casual. I see girls out in public with curlers in their hair, and I think that looks dreadful."

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Nelson Eddy, Rise Stevens in "The Chocolate Soldier," and Strauss operetta. Night Nurse, Florence Nolan, 8.30 p.m.

AT THE PARK — All Color Show—"Rampage" and "Fridays" Guy Williams, Don Durrett, 7.00-11.15 — "Savage Guns" Richard Basehart, Don Taylor, Alex Nicol, Fernando Rey, Color.

REGINA (CP) — The president of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons says the college's governing council will meet with government officials in an attempt to eradicate troublesome outgrowths of the July dispute surrounding the province's compulsory Medical Care Insurance Act.

Dr. H. D. Dalgleish of Saskatoon told a press conference Wednesday two of the main points of friction mentioned at the college's current annual meeting here were dissatisfaction of radiologists and pathologists in being excluded from the plan and dissatisfaction with the operation of community clinics.

D.O. Reynolds Re-elected As Commission Chairman

PICTON—The County Centre at the Fairgrounds has been a wonderful aid in the promotion of winter sports. It would seem that the grounds might well be developed to make possible a summer program of activity," said D. O. Reynolds, who was re-elected chairman for a second term, of the Prince Edward Centre Commission, which operates the Centre eight months of the year under an agreement with the owners, Prince Edward Agricultural Society.

Mr. Reynolds mentioned, especially, that the Centre provides an opportunity for hundreds of the younger generation, not only in skating, but minor and juvenile hockey. With junior and other hockey, curling and other events, the Centre has filled a long-standing need, he felt.

Another successful season is indicated by reports, said the chairman, when he felt that this is due in large measure to the splendid co-operation of municipal and civic organizations, as operators of the canteens, and as sponsors of hockey teams. He paid tribute to these, and also to members of the Commission, who continue to serve without remuneration.

Tuesday night, the commission was re-organized for the 1962-63 season. Representatives of organizations that have invited to send representatives and four directors were elected by ballot. These were Edward Rolston, Avis Head, Donald Walker and Willis Sills.

Others serving on the commission, these groups naming them annually, are: D. O. Reynolds, Reid Atherton, Chris Lockyer, Agricultural Society; Mike Flanagan, Wanis; Phil Newton, Rotary; M. J. Mason, Curling club; Roy Roobottom, Hockey club.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Members as Board of Governors are Mike Flanagan, Phil Dodds and Arthur Hamm, with one change each year.

Sixteen organizations are asked to send representatives from which four are elected to commission.

President of the Business and Professional Women's Association, Miss Ida Ostrander, presided for elections.

Elected as vice-chairman was Sheriff H. J. Collins, with Miss Avis Head as secretary, and A. Hamblin as treasurer.

Appreciation to Sam Gentile, retiring secretary, was expressed. He has filled this office since the commission was formed.

It was decided that all organizations be notified of commission meetings and invited to attend, without voting privileges, and invited to express opinions. It was felt this would make for better understanding of the Centre's operations. Next meeting was set for Tuesday night, Oct. 23.

The commission agreed to divided gate receipts for junior hockey, 60 per cent to the club and 40 to commission, and provide ice time for practise as well as Thursday nights (and a few Saturdays) for the games. Reserved season seat tickets will be sold.

Intermediate OHA hockey will also be featured this season. The club was given permission to build a portable cupboard in one of the dressing rooms.

Members learned that ice making has started but its use will be dependent upon the temperature.

Cadet Corps Starts Fall, Winter Season

PICTON — Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps "Hallowell" has commenced the fall and winter season. A change of command featured the initial meeting. Former executive officer Lieut. Bert Price becomes Commanding Officer in succession to Fred Rose who has filled the position for the past four years.

William Hobson becomes Executive Officer while Brian York continues as Division officer and Jack Cooper as Stores Officer.

An inspection of the corps and a march past were included in the ceremony.

Since its beginning in 1956, the Picton Corps has won numerous honors. In 1958-59 it was judged second best corps with a complement under 50 in Ontario and the following year was first in the under 50 and also first place for under 100. In 1960-61, it was again top corps under 50 and second corps under 100. It won the general efficiency cup at Acadia, N.S., that summer. There are 33 corps in Ontario and Picton Corps now has a complement of 42 cadets.

Boat Operator Fined; Towed Skier Alone

PICTON—Convicted of operating a boat when the sole occupant at the same time a water skier was being towed, Ronald Miller, 40, of Adolphustown was fined $25 and costs in Magistrate's court here Wednesday.

Pleading not guilty, Miller said he was unaware of the fact that two people must be in the boat used to tow skiers.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills stated "ignorance of the law is no excuse. The government is under no obligation to give you a handbill of all its regulations. There has certainly been plenty of publicity concerning water safety.

Society Wants Historic Spots, Places Marked

PICTON — Greater effort to have historical buildings and places in Prince Edward County marked as historic spots, was stressed as a need at the annual meeting of the Prince Edward Historical Society here.

Mrs. Malcolm Love reported on steps taken to renovate the Rose house at Waupoos and turn it into a museum. The old Dutch burying ground there is another project of the North Marysburgh committee.

Mrs. Love has uncovered history of an old Lutheran church at Waupoos, and Dr. J. H. Walmsley has compiled a record of the Old Church of St. Mary Magdalene in Picton. These are to be presented to the Ontario Archaeological and Historic Sites Board in support of efforts to have plaques erected.

David Taylor was named president to succeed Capt. Jack Rogers with Roy Downes as vice-president, Mrs. D. Taylor, secretary, and Jack Christie as treasurer. Executive members are L. A. Calnan, G. T. Walmsley, Carl Reid, Willis McCaffe, James Bird, Neil Ferris, Mrs. A. Hennan, Mrs. M. Love, Mrs. L. F. Carter.

Accused Found Guilty of Theft From Garage

PICTON — Charged with theft of goods valued at $58, from Morton's Garage at Redhersville on August 30, Sidney George Gaudred was found guilty and remanded one week for sentence by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in court here Wednesday.

OPP Constable Earl Graves said none of the loot had been recovered. The guilty accused was read and revealed three previous convictions of theft, one resulting in a three year term in a Manitoba penitentiary.

Commons Speakers Have Had Rulings Challenged in Past

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Speaker Marcel Lambert has joined a growing company of Commons presiding officers who in not seeing eye to eye with MPs a has had rulings formally challenged.

Speaker Lambert met his first experience of this regard Wednesday. But the two formal votes of the Commons which upheld his interpretation of the rules were far from being unusual.

Every speaker since the Second World War has undergone similar experience, except Speaker Lambert's predecessor, Hon. Roland Michener. Mr. Michener, speaker from 1957 until last spring, had only one of his rulings put to a vote.

Even two votes in one day of Speaker's rulings have been the rule rather than the exception.

Perhaps no Speaker in modern times has run afoul of challenges of his rulings as frequently as Hon. Gaspard Fauteux, who was speaker from 1945 until 1949.

In one session, out of 43 recorded votes in the house 12 involved rulings by the Speaker or his deputy. And in another, 10 out of 20 votes involved presiding officers' rulings. Both sessions were during the term of Speaker Fauteux.

Speaker Fauteux also quall-fied in two separate sessions for the two - challenges - in - a - day class. He set a modern record in the 1947 session when the first two votes held in Parliament that year were on challenges of his decisions.

Senator W. Ross Macdonald, Commons speaker from 1940 until 1953, had a fairly tough time during his first year in the chair. Six of the 16 votes held in that session were on challenges on the chair's rulings, including two in one day when Speaker Macdonald ruled two opposition amendments out of order.

Speaker Rene Beaudoin, who occupied the chair from 1953 until 1957, had a fairly easy time until the disastrous pipeline debate of 1956 when rulings were challenged right and left and recorded votes — both on the challenges and on the legislation—had Commons bells ringing continuously.

And there is another point of similarity among these records —the Speaker always was upheld.

Economy Drive Cuts Millions From Budget

Payrolls, Equipment And Building Sliced

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's economy drive has trimmed some $228,000,000 from this year's federal spending budget, with heavy cuts in construction programs, equipment purchases and payrolls.

These three fields accounted for nearly two - thirds of the reductions announced Thursday by Finance Minister Nowlan as he handed the Commons a revised basic spending budget of $6,048,214,560 for the 1962-63 fiscal year ending next march 31.

The new "blue book" of spending estimates has been shaping up since the government's emergency austerity measures were announced June 24 to halt a heavy drain on foreign exchange reserves.

It takes a 3.6 - per - cent slice of the former $6,276,211,594 spending program for the year, presented last February.

Excluding is a forecast $680,000,000 in pension payments from the old age security fund —not counted as part of budgetary spending—which over a bring total spending to $6,671,-965,560. Extra outlays certain to be met by the treasury progresses could push the budget close to the $7,000,000,000 mark.

GIVES NO HINT

Mr. Nowlan gave the Commons no hint of how much of a crop will be reaped in the $745,000,000 deficit forecast last April 10 by former finance minister Fleming.

To reporters afterwards, the minister said he wouldn't try to compute the "many shifting factors" affecting the eventual size of the deficit—"you have the figures used against you later on."

The economy knife cut deepest in the defence department, where $25,000,000 was pruned from its $1,350,750,000 budget. This included $10,100,000 from its civilian employee payroll.

Trimmed $9,400,000 from armed forces pay and allowances, and a heavy $44,000,000 from defence spending on equipment, construction and repairs.

Another $20,000,000 was sliced from the $1,340

Medical Uses Of Electronics Told IRE Meet

The Institute of Radio Engineers (IRE) Bay of Quinte Section meeting on Wednesday evening at Ellis Hall, Queen's University, featured a talk on "Electronics In Medicine" by Dr. Wilson Greatbatch of Wilson Greatbatch Inc., Clearance, N.Y., A highlight was a short film showing an actual surgical implantation of a "Cardiac Pacemaker" in a human body. While the film showed clearly and completely the details of the operation on the heart, the speaker explained the technical points in concise layman's terms.

Following implantation of the pacemaker electrodes, a distinct change in heartbeat rate was observed. The audience which consisted of engineers, doctors, teachers and students, all appreciated Mr. Greatbatch's gifted ability to describe the medical and electronic aspects in easily understandable language.

Mr. Greatbatch stated that, to his knowledge, the cardiac pacemaker represents the first time a physiological function has been replaced by an electronic device completely enclosed in the body. This electronic heart timer replaces or augments the action of the nerve tissues which normally stimulate and regulate the heart beat. A surgical operation is necessary every five years to replace the batteries or the unit.

The speaker explained that a high level of team work between medical and electronic specialists is necessary for the successful development of suitable biomedical electronic devices. He demonstrated a 14-channel transmitting device which may be used to monitor various functions of the body, such as blood pressure, breathing, heart beat, body temperature, etc. Similar devices are used to monitor humans in space and in hospitals. By attaching the transmitter to his own body, Mr. Greatbatch showed that while he was moving to various parts of the lecture room, the signal indicating changes in breathing could be viewed on an electronic oscilloscope screen located on the stage.

Samples of electronic packages which had actually been implanted in humans, were passed among the audience and examined with keen interest by all present.

Keen participation by the audience during the question period following the address indicated that the speaker's subject was of vital interest to all present.

Mr. A. E. Robb, chairman of the IRE Bay of Quinte Chapter announced that Dr. M. J. Marcus of the Bell Space Guidance Centre will speak at the next IRE meeting, November 16, 1962, at the Northern Electric Belleville works. The subject will be "Motivation of Electronic Engineering Groups."

EDMONTON (CP)—As many as 23 aircraft are trying to solve another mysterious disappearance in the northern wilds of the Nahanni River Valley.

Henry H. Busse, 68, a Yellowknife photographer, set out aboard the Cessna 185 single engine aircraft which is the object of the search.

The plane disappeared after leaving Fort Simpson, N.W.T., about 630 miles north-northwest of here, Sept. 29. The pilot, Harold Hilchie, 32, planned to make a three-hour picture-taking flight over the fog-covered valley. The plane also carried Yellowknife miners Gunther Gertz and Victor Hudon.

The plane apparently went down in area 650 miles northwest of here where Blake Mountain, 47, and Edmonton pilot, disappeared last Jan. 8.

Searchers found the wreckage of Mackenzie's plane said lush tree and brush growth made the crash nearly impossible. They found 52 notches in a tree near the downed plane, indicating Mackenzie may have survived the toughest weather of the winter.

DISTANT PILOT

But the pilot never was found and he was "presumed dead" by court order last month.

Among the many civilian pilots who have joined the RCAF in the latest air search is Chuck Lindbergh of Asbestos, Que., who rescued two survivors of an ill-fated Nahanni expedition in 1956.

Dean Rosworn, 55, a Yellowknife prospector, and John Richardson, 24, were dropped off in the valley by aircraft in the fall of 1956 with their companions.

Food ran out the following March and soon after one of the companions died. Richardson was blown to pieces by a stick of dynamite.

Ernie Koppas and Orville Webb set out in April to try to walk more than 100 miles from the valley to the first white settlement. Neither has been seen since.

FIFTH HEADLESS BODIES

Tales of similar disappearances in the area, often referred to as the Headless Valley or the Headless Valley, have been circulating among northerners since the turn of the century.

Charles McLeod of Edmonton went searching for his brothers and a search party, who disappeared in the valley in 1905, and found the headless bodies in a campsite on the Nahanni River bank in 1907.

He narrated tales of a lost tribe of seven-foot tall Indians or cave dwellers in the area and blamed the deaths of the McLeod brothers on a quarrel over gold.

Caves there are, however, having been explored from top to bottom in places to 3,000 feet above the river, according to a report by archeologist W. L. Bliss of New Mexico.

And photographers who wintered in the valley two years ago, barely escaping starvation, returned with pictures of mountains like forms hewn in stone and towering over the falls and cathedral-shaped caves.

Busse was 50 years old and working as a pipefitter's helper at Port Radium, N.W.T., about 850 miles north of Edmonton, when he became interested in photography.

Since then, Busse photographs have appeared in newspapers, magazines and exhibits throughout North America and Europe, winning many awards for excellence.

"I have a sense of drama. I know the right moment," he says to explain his skill.

Curling Club Ready to Start Another Year

A large number of members of the Quinte Curling Club were on hand last evening to attend the semi-annual meeting at the clubhouse in preparation for the coming curling season and some lively discussions took place before adjournment was made. After the business was attended to the locker room there was quite lively debates with some of the issues still unsettled. Most of the discussion settled around the location of the rinks that will compete for the Bill Gould Trophy. The competition that will continue all season with the same rink.

The meeting was chaired by Ev Gowsell in a most capable manner and the president had called a difficult situation in an efficient way. Despite the little debates the members agreed it would be one of the best seasons in the history of the club.

Due to increase in insurance rates, increased cost for ice because and a caretaker of the locker room, it was necessary to raise the rates to $50 from $40 with the rent of the lockers remaining at the same fee as in previous years. It was noted that some repairs were made to the ceiling and the side of the women's section of the club was given funds to buy more furnishings for the lounge room and to make the viewing area clearer.

James Walker, who is chairman of mixed curling, stated he had received many replies from the members and that week ends would be given over to this league. William Riley, chairman of the open bonspiel of the three district clubs, Quinte, RCAF's and Trenton, stated that entries already had been made and that those rinks who wanted last year will have until December 15th to signify their intention to curl again and if they do not enter, the waiting list will get a chance.

The season will be opened with a mixed spiel starting on November 5th and running until November 10th. The sportsman's spiel, one of the most popular events on the calendar will again be played this season with prospects of it being bigger and better. The Sales and Ad. Club, the Victoria and Grey Trust company spiels will again be played. Junior curling will play a prominent part in the program outlined at the meeting. It was a most successful meeting and the members are eagerly awaiting the ice. A number of new members were introduced and welcomed to the club.

Ministerial Trade Meeting With U.S. May Be Held

OTTAWA (CP) — President Kennedy has suggested a special ministerial meeting in February or March of members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, Prime Minister Diefenbaker informed the Commons today.

The suggestion was contained in a reply by the president to Mr. Diefenbaker who had proposed a conference of like-minded nations" on trade expansion.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he is instructing the Canadian delegation to attend a GATT meeting in Geneva to take action which would result in the convening of a special GATT meeting early next year.

Opposition Leader Pearson said he welcomed "this last-minute conversion" by the Canadian government to the declaration of co-operation with the United States.

He added that a good time to have begun ministerial consultation would have been next week's GATT meeting when Canada would be represented by officials only, not a cabinet minister.

PRESIDENT REPLIES

Mr. Diefenbaker read Mr. Kennedy's letter in reply to his proposal for a conference proposing a meeting of "like-minded nations."

In the president said he is "gratified to have your pledge of close co-operation and full participation and support of like-minded nations."

Mr. Diefenbaker said in the last paragraph of his letter that he looks forward "to your being able to deal with the remaining surcharges" on imports.

"This would be a most useful forward in our attack on trade barriers," the president concluded.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Kennedy "has proposed on the basis of suggestions from Canada and the U.S. should join forces in recommending a special meeting of the contracting parties of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade to be held early in 1963.

The prime minister said he feels many countries of like-minded trading nations will have the "most far - reaching and beneficial effects through out the free world."

Hospital Head Tells of Work With Retarded

The Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children held its October meeting in the school on John Street with the president, Mr. Al Parkhurst presiding.

After reports were given on school, adult and recreational activities during the summer, Dr. C. Donadie reported on the highlights at the 15th annual conference of the Canadian Association for Retarded Children held in Halifax, both he and Mrs. Donadie attended.

The guest speaker for the evening was Dr. A. Jones, superintendent of the Ontario mental hospital at Kingston. Dr. James is a specialist in psychology and has served for 37 years in the Department of Health in Ontario.

Dr. James related that the Kingston hospital has 1,500 patients with the section housing about 500 mentally retarded adults. The majority of these "allowed up" people were added since the war. Only half the number of people are placed in groups of 50 under the supervision and guidance of a resident nurse and one assistant. Excellent results have been obtained with these groups, even though the supervisors are without training. They are hired in the field. One group, having owned only half the number enlisted and untrained in even the simplest tasks, were found after one year to be quite able to do ordinary work with little or no supervision. In the boys' training section of building and landscaping the hospital grounds, they are taught with interest and continued to completion.

Some 40 of the mentally retarded female patients have been trained for the nursing service who do ward duty. In this work" they become both proud and happy in their duties and some of them have even been disappointing. The laundry and kitchen are two many of these workers, as well as certain chores and training and as cleaning helpers.

Dr. James listed four main points that should be kept in mind regarding adult retarded people.

1—They learn much more slowly, and therefore adapt themselves more slowly to their own kind.

2—Supervision must find his or her own level, and progress usually stops when his mental ability reaches its capabilities.

3—Once a standard of work is set for these people, it should be kept up at all times, regardless of circumstances.

4—The small amount of limitation shown by this type of person should be overcome at all times.

The address concluded his address with the statement "Moral and social adjustment in any group is the key to everything to work for and attain the best results."

Dr. James was thanked by Dr. Charles Donadie.

The meeting ended up on rather a sad note when it was announced that the mentally children's Cub park had not commenced this fall because only 3 children had attended through illness. If leaders can not be found in a few weeks the pack will have to be disbanded.

Unemployment Insurance Case Brings Fines

Fines totalling $125 plus 3.50 costs were levied against Ralph Wilson of Tweed who pleaded guilty yesterday in magistrate's court in that village pleaded guilty to five offences under the Unemployment Insurance Act.

The court was told by Eric Naylor, inspector for the legal branch of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, that Mr. Woodcock, as an employee of the village of Tweed, failed to disclose all earnings over an eight week period during which time he drew $168 in benefits.

Magistrate R. C. Jackson imposed a fine of $25 for each offence and in lieu of payment of the fines the accused will spend one month in jail.

In passing sentence Magistrate Jackson reprimanded Mr. Woodcock, stating that offences such his were one of the reasons for the depletion of the Unemployment Insurance fund. The magistrate warned that in the future more serious sentences would be imposed against such offenders coming before him.

FROST DENIES

Frost said Thursday Attorney General Kelso Roberts has told him this will be "put right" promptly.

Mr. Frost, who came out of rural retirement at Lindsay, Ont., to make his second appearance before the commission after reading of the Phillips incident, also offered—but was not taken up — to testify publicly or privately about:

1. Why he created the Ontario racing commission and put Toronto Magistrate S. Tupper Bigelow—the toughest guy around" — in charge of it.

2. Why for years he maintained a ban against night horse-racing in Ontario "against all sorts of pressures" and with millions of dollars involved until it was lifted last year. ("It probably wouldn't have stood the test of the courts.")

3. Cooperations with Michigan and New York authorities on crime and dope rings.

4. Discussions with RCMP Commissioner C. W. Harrison about "people and affairs."

5. The current resurrection and amalgamation of ancient harness-racing charters to provide major new track operations in the Ottawa and Windsor areas.

ADJOURN SITTINGS

Mr. Frost did no more than mention these points, and after his testimony Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, the commissioner, adjourned the public sittings until Monday for questioning of provincial Secretary John Yaremko on evidence he gave earlier in defence of his department's administration of social club charters.

Under present plans, Mr. Yaremko will be the final witness of the public sessions that started March 26.

There may be brief further private sittings on the final inquiry aspect of crime in Ontario generally — one was held Wednesday, after which the commissioner was expected to start preparing his report. There has been no indication of when this distillation of some 1,000,000 words of evidence will be delivered.

Before Mr. Frost appeared Thursday, the commission concluded 30 days of testimony by Mr. Cudney with these developments:

1. The deputy secretary, who has testified to evident manipulation of club charters by gamblers, said he has never been under "coercion" by politicians, though he has had "representations" on a variety of subjects.

2. Mr. Cudney said social clubs have a "buyer" market of his department for 30 years, with gambling or betting as the "chief" incentive.

3. New Democratic Party counsel Patrick Lawlor, examining the deputy, said the evidence indicates there has been "trafficking" in at least one club-charters, though commission counsel Roland F. Wilson said he was not sure.

The other witness Thursday was Sam Saltzman, treasurer of the Society of Seven of Toronto, who said the club constated of seven descended group and permitted no gambling on its premises. According to earlier evidence, it was given its licence through the intervention of Allan Grossman, now a minister without portfolio, in the face of unfavorable police reports.

"Nothing Mr. Grossman did for his constituents was wrong, and there is no evidence of bookmakers as of this social club masquerading for a gambling club," said club counsel R. E. Hall.

Former premier Frost, who read of the Chinese Club incident while on a hunting trip said he hadn't been having good luck on the trip and "this didn't contribute to its success."

He said that the stiff clause barring gambling "accumulated a considerable antipathy" towards it. Mr. Frost thought the former secretary—who left the cabinet in 1960—may have believed it affected only Chinese groups.

Mr. Frost had told him to try his hand at a better regulation if he could produce one, and Dr. Phillips did so. It was rejected by the cabinet July 30, 1958. Meanwhile, the minister had put through the relief for the two clubs about two months before.

"But the original policy stands," Mr. Frost said. "It is not perfect. It is capable of injustices. But no one has been able to improve on it."

He had not heard of the Phillips ordered change until it came out before the commission.

"I disagree with it entirely," he said. "But I suppose Dr. Phillips thought a few little Chinese were being pushed around."

Mr. Frost also expressed puzzlement that Dr. Phillips should have written him in July of

LOADINGS UP

Revenue freight loaded by Canadian railway lines in the first week of October totalled 76,914 cars, an increase of 7.1 per cent from the corresponding month last year. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today that this brought the total for Jan. 1 to Oct. 7 to 2,747,445 cars, a boost of 2.5 per cent from a year ago.

INTEREST DROPS

OTTAWA (CP)—The interest on government bonds dropped Thursday to 4.22 per cent from 4.72 last week when the sale of $105,000,000 in 20- day bills. The bank announced also that the average price of the 91-day bills sold was $98.960 for an average yield of 4.22 per cent.

DEPOSITS UP

OTTAWA (CP) — Government of Canada deposits increased $9,638,000 to $21,863,000 in the week ended Oct. 17, the Bank of Canada reported Thursday in its weekly financial statement. Chartered bank deposits decreased $5,343,000 to $701,901,000 and notes in circulation decreased $9,652,000 to $2,162,245,000.

Dymond Says Epileptics Free to Wander

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Matthew Dymond said Thursday epileptic patients such as those involved in a fatal gang battle in Woodstock often wander downtown.

"We don't look at their wandering downtown as a great crime, even though it is a breach of their privileges and privileges at the hospital," Dr. Dymond said.

Woodstock Policeman Thomas Black, 33, died of wounds suffered in the epileptic in a gunfire exchange in the downtown area. The battle started as police moved to apprehend two epileptic patients who escaped from the Ontario Hospital an hour earlier.

Dr. Dymond said there "has been an open-door policy 100 per cent in the epileptic institutions for some time."

"Epileptics are not mental cases as such," he added. "The main danger is that they may be subject to certain seizures that may affect their own welfare."

He said the patients suspected in the shooting of Const. Black had been at the hospital for 14 years and were not violent.

"There is no need for an investigation as far as the hospital is concerned, but perhaps there is need for more study at the open door policy. Personally, I think it is right and it is going with the trend throughout the world."

1959 — as earlier evidence showed—asking for advice on what to do about the Chez Cino Club in Toronto's Chinatown establishment, which the police wanted closed because of gambling.

The former premier said he had no recollection of getting the letter and could not understand why the minister would write him if he had no intention of about a routine departmental matter.

The charter eventually was cancelled the following December. Then Club counsel up in Mr. Cudney's testimony, whether Mr. Lawlor noted that department officials showed their wells before the cancellation, police had informed the government that the club officers admitted charging for the use of gaming tables, an action that calls for charter forfeiture.

'WROTE MEMO'

"I wrote a memo about that," the deputy said. However, this was not acted on, and the charter eventually was cancelled for other reasons.

Mr. Frost also told the commission he never received a letter in any way on behalf of the Italian Niagara Frontier Club of Niagara Falls. According to earlier evidence, when the club was seeking to get one of its licences over police opposition, Mayor F. J. Miller of Niagara Falls had stated that the then premier favored the original incorporation of the club.

Mr. Frost said it was probable the mayor may have mentioned the club to him at some time, but "everybody comes to you when you're premier" and he had a standard brushoff procedure.

Sheila Hunter, 1961-62 "Miss Quinte Credit Union Chapter," places the crown on this year's beauty queen, Miss Dianne McGrath of the Norlecto credit union, Belleville.

Town Clerk Says Europe Further Ahead in Social Welfare Than Canada

TRENTON — Clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry outlined his impressions of local government in Europe when he spoke to Trenton Kiwanians at their annual rural dinner in Consecon last night.

Mr. Larry was one of some 65 municipal officials from Ontario who went on a recent four-week study tour, sponsored by the Institute of Local Government at Queen's University and the Ontario Municipal Association, of which he is the immediate past president. The group spent the first two weeks in England, then split into two groups, the rest going to Holland and Denmark and the other group touring Germany and Sweden. They all reassembled in London during the final week, before flying home.

Mr. Larry said many European nations, and England in particular, have already experienced the trend in rural population to urban centres which is now taking place in Canada. He said he wished to observe first hand how local government in the countries he visited was tackling the problem of education and housing which are now "aggravating" authorities in Ontario. He said he felt that planning overseas is more rigid in the broader aspects but more flexible in detail.

Mr. Larry told the Kiwanians that heavy population and shortage of land has resulted in Europe being further ahead in social welfare than Canada but this country shared many common problems with the overseas countries. However, he said he was not coming back with any magic formulas for reducing the local tax rate.

Mr. Larry, who said he was briefed in the same Whitehall room from where Sir Winston Churchill addressed the crowds outside on V-E Day, said London is comprised of 22 boroughs (suburbs) under the jurisdiction of the London County Council. Many areas were seriously damaged during the war but the LCC has done a wonderful job of planned redevelopment. Many persons have left London and other large centres for re-location in "New Towns," situated in the country, designed to fill the need for accommodation without resorting to further sprawls of the larger cities. These new towns have their own industries, shopping and social centres.

BIG COUNCILS

One local council Mr. Larry visited had 146 members, comprised of aldermen, councillors and a mayor. The health committee had more than 60 members whose job was to define policy and to see that it was executed. A typical agenda consisted of enough pages to fill a good-sized book.

The mayor is invariably a Justice of the Peace, held in high esteem by the community, not exercising less authority in municipal matters than his counterparts in Canada. Councillors are elected for three-year terms, aldermen for six.

Off the continent, the term is usually longer, sometimes stretching as long as eight years.

English officials have the opportunity to improve their knowledge of local government through recognized courses in civic administration. They are often members of a union and wages are determined on a national level.

Property evaluation is undertaken by the Department of Inland Revenue, a government agency, once every five years on a national level. Mr. Larry said this procedure eliminates much local criticism, although an individual is always free to appeal something of which he disapproves.

Turning to Denmark, Mr. Larry said that if Canadians wonder at the European interest in culture, it may be due in no small measure to such places as the Tivoli Gardens in Copenhagen, a large park where open-air concerts are held free of charge.

Finally, the clerk-comptroller paid a special tribute to the Netherlands. He said the Dutch have done a remarkable job" of re-developing Holland since the war, evidenced by ultra-modern buildings and wide highways throughout the country. He said the city of Rotterdam is unsurpassed by anything in Ontario and that, in his opinion, the highway linking Rotterdam with Amsterdam is better than the 401. All this in spite of the fact the country is constantly battling against the sea.

Mr. Larry said he came away with a respect for the Dutchman and was sure that the same spirit that had made The Netherlands a "throbbing pulse of activity" would help bring about greater development of the Quinte district in the years to come.

Credit Union Day Observed At Banquet

TRENTON—Close to 300 men and women attended the Quinte Credit Union Chapter annual dinner in the Trenton Legion Hall last night. Guest speaker John Homer, a volunteer worker with the credit union movement refer to the movement as a "helping hand to the common man."

Mr. Homer said that credit unions were endorsed by churches, social agencies, and, in a great many cases, by employers.

He said that many young couples had been given a start in their married lives by being able to borrow needed cash from the credit union at a low rate of interest. In fact, said Mr. Homer, many a home had been virtually "saved" by the credit union solving financial problems for the man and wife.

Mr. Homer traced the history of the movement from its earliest beginnings in Europe through its appearance on this continent through the agencies of a French Canadian (1901), to the present day, when $60,000 persons in Ontario alone, belong to credit union chapters.

Credit unions are truly democratic, said Mr. Homer, recognizing no bars of race, colour or creed, and one way to stop the ideal of communism out of the "have-not" countries, would be to introduce the credit union movement system of "caring for one's neighbor" in these countries.

Mayor James MacDonald brought greetings on behalf of the town to the credit union members and their guests.

Following the dinner, Miss Dianne McGrath of Norlecto, Belleville, was chosen for "Miss Quinte Credit Union Chapter, 1962" from a slate of nine candidates.

FARM PROBLEMS

High School Activities

BCIVS

On Oct. 26, one week from now, the 'dance of the year will be held in the BCI gym as part of a last homage that the school will pay to last year's graduates.

It is also the occasion for the graduates to migrate en masse to Belleville, rally together and shed a black, scarlet and indigo tear for "alma mater".

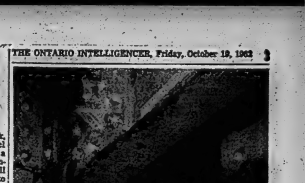
For this auspicious event the Club Commodore group will be there, to provide more sophisticated dance music than that which the graduates, in their recently cope-by sopnistication, would dismiss as "that abomination — rock and roll".

The gym will be decorated by the art club in catch the turbulence and gaiety of the Mardi Gras in New Orleans. The decorations thus far completed promise to be bright colorful and capably handled to portray the excitement of that festive occasion. Tickets will cost but $1.50.

There has been but one football game since last week between our juniors and Napanee's. This game unfortunately was lost 13-0, though not entirely through any lack of effort.

The student council has issued the report that the UNICEF collections thus far this year have totalled 530 This in three weeks is considerably better than last year and the student body is to be congratulated for its response to so urgent and deserving a cause.

Also to be congratulated are the Band and Glee Clubs which together put on a show for the assembly. Usually good, these two groups outdid themselves, producing an excellent and varied program.



For the most part the material was culled from the Negro spiritual, with other excursions into the music of the theatre and elsewhere. Particularly noteworthy was the solo performance work of Dave Murphy which, with the ensemble and the leadership of Mr. Temoler made this the best assembly so far this year.

Swing Portion Of Bay Bridge Being Repaired

Off-hour traffic on the Bay Bridge, linking Belleville to Prince Edward County, has been disrupted during the past few days, by work on the swing portion of the bridge. Department of Highways men are replacing parts of "the wedges", which hold the moving section of the bridge in place when the bridge is closed. Operated by an electric motor, controlled from the bridge house, the four wedges are driven between the bridge and four steel blocks, on the footings, after the bridge is closed. Without them, the bridge would wobble under vehicular traffic.

The parts being replaced are the arms connecting the individual wedges to the driveshaft along the centreline of the bridge. This is the first time since the bridge was built that this job has been required.

For the job, the bridge is partially opened, and the two man DOH crew works from a temporary raft, moored to the bridge footings. The work was to have been completed today.

Off-hour traffic on the Bay Bridge has been slowed during the past three days by work on the wedge mechanism, which locks the bridge in place when it is closed. Don Billings, of Fort Hope, and Doug Istead, of Bloomfield, Department of Highways employees, check the alignment of the mechanism during the job.

Scientists' Political Duties

Dr. L. V. Berkner, one of the world's top scientists in the field of electronics, geophysics and space flights, says that scientists must create a stronger international organization to promote research, or lose control of their destinies to international political leaders.

That a scientist should make such a statement is significant. That his reasoning should appeal to many as fine reasoning is more so.

Here we have the assumption that the scientist should be above the politician, removed from the latter's sphere of influence.

Much that has happened of late years provides backing for such a view. The manner in which the possession of the "secret" of the atom bomb prompted efforts to shut off the free flow of scientific information hampered scientists in many fields of endeavor only incidentally connected with the destructive effects of nuclear fission and fusion.

It is not difficult to make out a strong case for freeing scientists from the control of national political leaders.

From there it is but a step to argue, as Dr. Berkner does, that scientists should be free from control of international political leaders, for what are they but the more powerful of the national leaders?

But, in the final analysis, these international leaders must have control over all phases of man's activities, insofar as this control is necessary for the orderly and efficient government of world affairs. The very fact that science is playing a constantly larger role in determining man's social and economic environment enhances, rather than diminishes, this necessity for ultimate political control of scientists.

The scientists already have an international organization, the International Council of Scientific Unions. It has been suggested, and the suggestion has been made that the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization should take the lead in organizing world-wide scientific co-operation. But the majority of scientists, says Dr. Berkner, feel that international science programs should be "governed by scientists without superimposed supervision of the non-scientific international political leaders who of necessity must govern UNESCO."

Dr. Berkner's objection has ridden within it the key to the only workable solution to this problem. Non-scientific international leaders must govern UNESCO? Why must international leaders be "non-scientific?" The answer, of course, is that there is no necessity for this condition, except the reluctance of top-flight scientists to enter the field of politics.

If they dislike having their affairs controlled by men who know little or nothing about science, then scientists must enter politics. Indeed, regardless of how they may feel about this control, it is their duty and responsibility to interest themselves in political affairs. The ever-increasing importance of science in almost every field of human activity makes it essential that the men we elect to control these activities should include some with first-hand knowledge of the relevant scientific facts.

There is lots of room for scientists in politics. They can replace many lawyers. These played a supremely important role while man was devising the codes which would make possible the achievement of law and order without unnecessary infringements on individual liberties. But, in large measure, their work has been done.

What we need today are political leaders who have an intimate knowledge of all the latest discoveries of science, an appreciation of the implications of these discoveries, an awareness of probable developments in the immediate future and the ability to make political decisions in conformity with the present and probable future state of scientific knowledge.

Then international science programs could be supervised by scientific international political leaders.

Other things being equal, I believe a good novel should be built up from good sentences and good paragraphs and that individual sentences and paragraphs should give pleasure to the reader as individual lines and stanzas of poems do; and that they should be good enough to make the reader stop and linger over them and read them again for the inherent pleasure they give. It's by making the reader pause and re-read that a novelist can reveal or intimate a deeper meaning than that of content alone. Sentences are not like bricks, to be placed one after another, but are much more like chords in music: they condition both what has gone before and what is to come after.—Novelist and critic Walter Allen.

Cannot Eat Atmosphere

Orillia Packet and Times

In the search for an exotic decor that will bring patrons flocking through their doors, Toronto restaurants and night clubs have produced some appalling atrocities and bizarre mistrys.

It is possible for a discriminating diner to pay a princely sum for an atmosphere of devil masks and toothed war clubs, to take his meal in the decoyed atmosphere of the golden age of the Australian Empire, to enjoy a snack in ancient Athens or a highball in an authentic London coffee shop frequented by Dr. Johnson. Will Shakespeare and Charles Dickens.

He can have his food served flaming on a sword, set to the accompaniment of a haunting gypsy violin, or sip tea brewed in a Russian samovar.

He can, if he is that a meal or consume a convivial drink in just about any atmosphere that happens to appeal to his mood of the moment and the degree of his purse to which he chooses to indulge.

Next month his horizon will be even broadened and he can, if he chooses, walk straight into a scene from the Middle Ages for his dinner. The opportunity to do this is being provided by one of Toronto's night clubs which plans to open something called "The Black Knight" supper club.

According to the prospectus this lately visited by the promoters will feature a stimulation of the interior of a Norman castle, presumably with musketry, draughts, fireplace smoke and odor of roasting meat, hacks, and the floor covering of rushes and decaying bones.

Patrons will enter the room are to be greeted by hostesses wearing long velvet gowns and all conical hats with streamers. They will be served by pageboys in silken tights and jackets and tunics, a pleasant thought perhaps to those of altogether authentic medieval touch.

The prospectus does not enlarge upon the menu to be served, or whether the guest for authenticity is exacted through in these important fields. It seems unlikely that customers will be seen indulging in haunch of venison, a pigeon pie or slice of boiled badger. Nor is there any great likelihood of mulled ale replacing the cocktail or a spiced posset eliminating the highball, but there is always hope that something of the sort will come about.

It will be of interest, come Grey Cup time, to note whether or not this new restaurant remains open or is closed for the weekend. The thought of a group of Western and Eastern supporters coming to blows in a room equipped with muskets, battleaxes, longswords, crossbows, Greek fire and other assorted items from the mediaeval armoury is more than a little diverting, and no more than they would deserve. It is, however, unlikely to come to pass.

This whole trend toward rarefied atmosphere for night clubs, bars and restaurants is one that can easily get completely out of hand. To date no one has opened an Eskimo igloo cafe serving whale blubber and seal flippers, nor has been no move toward a Moonshine bar straight from the Kentucky mountains and complete with still and revenooers.

But some day soon some genius will become inspired and undertake something of this sort. It may take the form of a Hottentot hut with a cannibal stew of the fat-tailed sheep eaten by hand from a common pot. It could be the premiere production of a Hogarth drawing of one of the popular gin-mills of Gregory, Bedlam. It might even take the form of a Pinian steam bath serving beaker of aquavit.

In fact it may be anything at all.

The big danger, of course, is that if things go on as they are, with more and more restaurateurs vying with one another to provide more and more rarified atmospheres for the public, that a time may come when it proves impossible for a hungry man to find any place at all where he can sit at a counter and order a hamburger or find a plain, ordinary table and chair and a menu not printed in Sanskrit from which to order a simple, uncomplicated meat of steak and mashed potatoes.

Public Figures Can Be Human Too

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

As a corollary to my recent piece about people not wanting to become human beings, and using every device to reject their essential humanity, there is a contrary process that we continually use with large public figures.

At a luncheon recently, two men I know were arguing bitterly about Franklin D. Roosevelt. One of them was an implacable Roosevelt-hater; the other was a passionate Roosevelt-idolator.

Despite their diametrically opposed positions, what these two men had in common was a refusal to admit that Roosevelt was a human being—both viewed him as much larger than life, as something almost close to the Devil incarnate.

Actually, of course, Roosevelt (like other men) was a mixture of mixed motives and conflicting tendencies. He was bold, idealistic and tricky, honest and devious, determined and irresolute, sentimental and ruthless, humorous, clear-eyed and fuzzy-minded.

But we will not permit him—and other figures of his type—to be the checkered human being he really was. After his death, we carve him in monolithic marble to suit the portrait in our minds; and we place flowers at the foot of this statue, or splatter it with rotten eggs.

We ourselves retreat from our humanity by making ourselves smaller than life—by subordinating ourselves to one passion, one appetite, one narrow band of the spectrum of human possibilities.

But, turning to our public figures, we distort their humanity by—making them bigger than life—by glorifying or debasing them all out of proportion to their actual merits and defects.

This, apparently, makes us feel more emotionally comfortable; it gives us a deity or a devil to use as a rigid frame of reference for our own beliefs and prejudices, and, of course, it obviates our need to do any further thinking or revaluating on the subject.

The chief value of history, of course, is that it rectifies such contemporary distortions, and places such figures in their proper proportions. It often takes a century or more for society to arrive at a fairly dependable estimate of important public men; it is as hard to achieve a good perspective on public figures of our time as on the art of our time.

The political expects.—even the political truths — of the Roosevelt regime are still interest me here; what interests me is the need we have for a mythology, the psychological drive to turn mere men into gods or devils, and to cregit them for all the ills or blames them for all the droughts. When will we accept the humanity of ourselves, and of our leaders?

Meeting with public approval at every conceivable turn the Kinsmen National 'Milk for Britain Fund" was able to double its objective when one hundred milk even in the initial year of operation. In August of 1941 the National Council of Associated Kinsmen Clubs in Canada agreed to provide two million quarts of milk within a period of twelve months. The plan met with instantaneous response with the result that at the end of the first year of operation, four million quarts of powdered milk had been sent to Great Britain, and distributed in hospitals, charity institutions and homes where milk was vitally necessary for basic nourishment for little children.

Besides carrying on their duties at drill and attending motor mechanics courses at the Collegiate Institute, members of the Canadian Women's Service Corps have been finding time to raise money to send Christmas boxes to Belleville soldiers overseas. They will receive none from other sources. A substantial sum has already been raised, and the girls are now busy packing and preparing boxes for shipment overseas.

For protecting from fire the glass tubing of all Neon signs in Belleville is being removed and stored for the duration. With restrictions placed on electric power, and store signs being abolished by government order for the duration of the war, the Neon Sign Company is removing all glass tubing for protection purposes only.

The building of the club house at the Bay of Quinte Country Club is nearing completion. After all, it was a simple thing to obtain the much needed timber from the farm as it was purchased, was a large barn which had been built in the shape of the letter T, and this building has been utilized. Moved to the desired location, this building has been transformed out of all resemblance to its former self, fresh siding and roof were used and the interior was outside is being succeed at the present time. Mr. George E. Graham has generously given much of his time in supervising the remodeling of the building. The interior of the club house is most attractive; the designer certainly had a succession of brilliant ideas. The greens are coming along well, but much still remains to be done on them.

Male Sterility Operation Is Not Always Perfect

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son-in-law had an operation several months ago so he and my daughter would not have any more children. His doctor has told him three times that he is sterile, but my daughter is now pregnant and he threatens her with divorce. — Mrs. C. S.

That's one of the dangers of such an operation. It sometimes cutting or tying the vas or tube through which the sperm, or male reproductive cells, must pass. Usually it is completely successful — but . . .

The following possibilities may occur, however. First, there can be an accessory or extra passage, which is a quirk in development. If this was not detected by the surgeon and cleared off, a wife's pregnancy would be possible.

Second, there is a reservoir of sperm cells called the seminal vesicles. The cells can live there for several months and pregnancy could result from this source even though the operation was successful.

Third, the pregnancy could have occurred before the operation.

The son-in-law, in this unhappy case, should be set right on these possibilities before he undertakes to destroy a marriage.

I've had a number of other questions on this same operation — called a vasectomy. "Does it affect one's health?" "Does it unsex, or make the man effeminate?" are person asked. The answer is no.

In fact, aside from the inability to reproduce, there is practically no detectable difference.

Another question:

"Is it legal in the state where I live? And who should I see about having it done?" Ask your doctor, because I don't know whether it is legal in your particular state.

I try never to mention this operation without emphasizing the danger of changing your mind about it later.

I know beyond doubt that this happens because I keep getting letters from readers saying, "We have changed our mind now and would like at least one more child. Can the operation be undone?"

Perhaps at times it can, but success is entirely unpredictable. In many instances there is no possibility of undoing what has been done. It should therefore be regarded as a step from which there is no turning back afterward.

Dear Dr. Molner: What's the difference between a migraine headache and a real migraine? — N. R.

Which kind of "regular" headache? There are several kinds. Your question, you see, isn't as simple as you thought. I've tried to round this up briefly but intelligently in a booklet, "How to Tame Headaches". This devotes a good bit of space to migraines, among others. (This booklet is available in return for an unstamped, self-addressed envelope and 25c in coin to cover printing and handling costs. Address requests to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Tribune Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner; My 12-year-old daughter has a yellowish vaginal discharge. I have taken her to doctors but nothing helps. Could a small suppository do the trick? — Mrs. J. J.

The cause must be determined. It could be infection, or a fungus, or even possibly a foreign body. Smears, cultures or direct examination should reveal the cause. Have you taken the youngster to a gynecologist? Suppositories are merely a means of conveying medication. You have to know what you are treating before you can choose the right one successfully.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble" is the title of my booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is, and encouraging sinus sufferers to do something about it. For a copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sunday Tribune, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

It is now disclosed that Dr. C. J. Hastings, director of Ontario mental hospitals, ordered the drug thalidomide withdrawn from sale after reading in a German-language medical journal of its possible side effects. This was in January, three months before federal authorities ordered it withdrawn from the market. Did Ontario authorities perceive their Ontario counterparts? If not, why not? If so, why the delay in Ottawa?

Opposes Reduction Of British Imports

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

IMPORTS - BUT WHERE

Through its current "Trade Crusade" the Government of Canada has set itself three tasks:

a) to promote Ontario exports, b) to encourage more manufacturing in the province and c) to discourage imports.

Objectives (a) and (b) ought to be warmly supported by all, but objective (c) should be carefully qualified.

Clearly the Provincial Government cannot do this because such qualification would be tantamount to adopting a policy of discrimination, but it certainly is incumbent upon the representatives of British industry in Canada to explain the issue and take up the problem where the Ontario Government has failed.

Discourage imports. It really depends on their source and it must be said most emphatically that when that source is Britain the Ontario consumer is the greatest export market there is.

Canada (and Ontario) trade with over 120 countries and with every significant one of them (including U.S.A., and Venezuela, a favorable trade balance is enjoyed.

In no case is this balance more favorable than with Britain which, apart from the fact it Canada's largest export market, is the one where practically all Canadian goods can enter duty and quota free. Britishers are also buying at a rate close to $900 million, whereas Canadians are purchasing $200 million a year. For the past ten years this country has thus accumulated a surplus of no less than $2.7 billion in its trade with Britain and so it can be stated without any shadow of a doubt that, in terms of the Canadian economy as a whole, Britain is Canada's best customer by far.

Of all countries it is Britain which has contributed the most to the strengthening of the Canadian dollar and again it is Britain which has recently taken her part in helping Canada to realize the balance of payments problems through a credit of $100 million provided by the Bank of England.

The Canadian public must be made fully aware of these facts and every Canadian must be made to realize that when he buys a British product he is not in any way being unpatriotic, but is in fact contributing to the ability of his counterpart in Britain buying Canadian.

We are convinced that the Ontario Government would endorse these views.

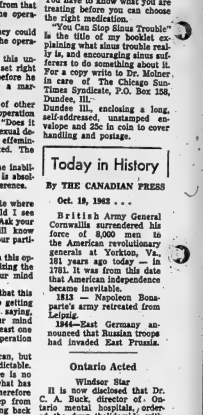
THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK



A couple of blocks north of us is a horse chestnut tree that is a matter of local pride. In spring, when it is lit with a thousand candles of bloom, we neighbors walk around to see it in the evening sunlight. Now in autumn it turns a barely credible virgin gold, as of nothing in beauty or when the last sunlight touches it, that it makes the heart stand still an instant. One day in late October or early November, it will perform a ceremony of disrobing that has to be seen to be believed. Without warning, and at no forseeable time or temperature, it will suddenly dropped at its feet.

start to shed its golden leaves. Not a dozen leaves will have fallen in the weeks before, when all the color and majesty of the neighborhood were shedding day by day.

Then, as if in response to some inner decision, the chestnut will simply let go. It is magical. The leaves begin to fall. First a few, then dozens, then hundreds. They stream down, making great mounds on the ground. In four hours, the branches are bare and stark. It is as if a garment, a golden mantle, had been loosened and dropped at its feet.

budget, which will review the forecasts made by Mr. Fleming last April.

In his last budget Mr. Fleming forecast 1962-63 budgetary spending at $6,525,000,000, not counting the $623,650,000 in old age security pensions.

The new spending program shows a re trimming of government research expenditures by a total $6,900,000 in four areas: National Research Council, atomic energy, defence research and fisheries research.

Hospital construction and other healthy grants are cut by $3,400,000, most of it in the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

New Pathology Laboratory to Open in Kingston

KINGSTON (CP)—Sir British and United Kingdom officials were to present papers today to the 25th anniversary conference of the Ontario Association of Pathologists.

The three-day conference, attended by more than 125 specialists in degenerative diseases from across Ontario, opened here Thursday.

Highlight of today's activities was the official opening of new pathology laboratories of Queen's University and Kingston General Hospital. The labs, among the best in Canada, are the result of $1,435,000 in renovation and construction work undertaken jointly by the university and the hospital. The laboratories specialize in work against cancer and heart disease.

At Thursday's sessions, Dr. David H. Carr of the University of Western Ontario in London, Ont., showed proof of a link between mental retardation and chromosome abnormalities. He said the link was known in plant life but never precised as a human affliction.

Dr. J. C. Wyllie, pathologist at the new joint centre in Kingston, read a paper written by himself and two other researchers on causes of hardening of the arteries, or atherosclerosis. The study, which made use of fluorescent material in the blood stream, found breaks in the tissues of the arteries accompanied by thickening of the coats of the arteries and inflammation.

The fluorescent technique enabled researchers, of course, a whitish insoluble protein which ordinarily forms part of the blood but is hidden in artery tissue if there has been a break in the arterial wall.

Rod and Gun Club Annual, Presentation Dinner Held

PICTON—Prince Edward Rod and Gun Club's annual presentation dinner proved a most enjoyable event on Wednesday evening. As for the past number of years it was staged at Cherry Valley Hall with upwards of seventy sitting down to the well filled tables. The ladies of the Bliss Bird Class came in for many well deserved compliments on the quality and quantity of the food served. Trestmats, depicting Ontario game fish in colour, were provided by the Department of Lands and Forests and added to the attractiveness of the tables.

Club president Bert Price presided for the after dinner program and in his opening remarks welcomed all present.

TRAP SHOOT TROPHY

Presenting the Dr. A. H. Walton trophy to the handicap trap shoot winner was Delville Allan Marvin. Major Ray Young explained that the trophy had been donated to the club by the late Dr. Walton, having been originally won by his father in trap shooting competition.

Major Young also presented a miniature trophy to County Constable Earl Marvin, this year's trap shoot champion and a flashlight to Harry Leavitt as runner-up this year.

RIFLE SHOOT TROPHY

Presentation of the fine new trophy, emblematic of the large bore rifle shoot championship, was made by President Bert Price to Russell Mitchell who was also the trophy winner for 1961, and received a miniature marking that occasion. The president told those still interested in the sport that they would be pleased with the new running deer target and he felt it the best shoot yet.

As runner-up, Eugene Kean Fry was the recipient of a flashlight. He took occasion to thank all who helped with the moving target, stating that he personally felt it was the best type of shoot ever.

PRESENT GIFT

On behalf of the Club, Mr. Kearsley presented a set of game bird plates to Ray Cutler for his untiring work in perfecting the mechanism for the moving deer target. He expressed the hope that the equipment could be put up on a permanent basis at the club trap range or some other suitable site where it could be used and enjoyed by members.

DOOR PRIZE

A lady's door prize was won by Mrs. Betty Byford in a draw from the admission tickets.

Mr. W. W. Bittle of the Department of Lands and Forests, wildlife division, Trenton District, spoke briefly. He regretted the fact that the Waupoos Island pheasant shoot had fallen by the wayside this year, but said birds from the coops of its revival next year. He asked that all sportsmen work together and make sure an early agreement is made with the Islanders. Above all, he declared, be sportsmen and realize the farmer has rights.

Prof. De Vos, wildlife lecturer at Canada Agricultural College, was introduced by Mr. Bittle and gave a short talk. He explained that with Paul Dean, a university student, he was making a study of the jack rabbit population in Prince Edward and desired to enlist the co-operation of sportsmen. He felt the county constituted an isolated district with habitat ranging from dense cedar to good agricultural land. The jack rabbit, he pointed out, is becoming more and more popular as a game animal and the time is coming when management will be required.

MOTION PICTURES

To complete the evening's entertainment three reels of motion pictures were shown. A Carling Conservation Club film on pheasants, a fishing film and a Gregory Clarke-Pete McGillan trip through the Sportsmen's Show.

Cheese Prices Remain High On Exchange

The same top prize — 37½ cents — was received this week for first grade white and colored regular cheese and for colored new make square cheese as a total of 24,999 cheese was offered on the Belleville Cheese Exchange.

Country Woman Has Decided Advantages Over City Sister

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. James Haggerty of the farming area of Napanee, Ont., believes the country woman has decided advantages over her city sister.

Mrs. Haggerty, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, was interviewed here en route to the 10th triennial conference of the Associated Country Women of the World in Melbourne.

The country woman—"we're all the same"—has "just about as many labor-saving gadgets" as the city woman.

"But she doesn't have the same frustrations because she has more to do with her time.

"I think country women have more incentive to keep busy in their kitchens and gardens as well as in community affairs."

Since the end of the Second World War the organization has maintained information centres in Ceylon, Korea and Rhodesia.

"No matter what clothes we wear or what language we speak, we're interested in the same things—our families and farms," Mrs. Haggerty said.

Mrs. Haggerty also founded lies of Stoney Creek, Ont. and the first meeting when her baby carriage died after being fed impure milk.

She founded the Institute for the purpose of teaching other country women how to avoid home tragedies," Mrs. Haggerty said.

"She wanted rural women to be educated to cope with their every-day problems.

"We have promoted adult education by short courses, conventions and I think fewer farm women now are ill-informed or isolated."

Mother's Helper

THERE'S NOTHING like baking preliminary preparations when children decide to have a painting or sculpturing session. Especially effective in this department is a preserved square of oilcloth, to be used as a table cover or on the floor under an easel. The same square can be used almost indefinitely, with a bit of wiping. Hint M for aberrant.

Women's Hospital Aux. Hears Talk on Dietetic Dept.

Mrs. M. F. L. Jones presided at the October meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary held Tuesday afternoon in Edgecliffe Hall. Mrs. F. A. Beeby stated that paid-up membership now total 184. The "Op Shop" under Mrs. J. B. Casey, reported a successful month for September.

The convener of the puppet group, Mrs. P. Allcorn, thanked her assistants for all the help they had given. Mrs. Allcorn is leaving on an extended vacation and will be greatly missed. Mrs. J. Lennox Smith will take charge of the puppet group temporarily.

Plans for the forthcoming Fashion Fiesta on November 14, are well underway. Tickets are now in the hands of the ticket captains and can be obtained from any member of the Auxiliary.

The new pink uniforms, worn by all the Coffee Shop volunteers present, added a colorful note to the meeting. Mrs. H. Farmer, convener, gave a brief outline of the Coffee Shop from 1954, its first full year of operation to the present time. In the beginning all work was voluntary. Now the Coffee Shop has a permanent staff of workers, plus over 30 volunteer assistants on the week-end. Mrs. W. Daschuk, the hospital administrator, thanked these ladies for the much-appreciated interest they rendered to the hospital.

The committee in charge of the Shop is grateful to the ladies of the Auxiliary for the fresh number of casserole dishes promised over the next few weeks.

Mrs. H. Weese, B.Sc., was introduced by Miss N. Merry, Mrs. Weese is a graduate of Acadia University and was on the staff of the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, and the Hamilton General Hospital before being engaged in the dietetic research in Toronto. After her marriage she moved to the Belleville district and now is head of the Dietetic Department of the Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Weese told the Auxiliary members that dietetics is a relatively new profession. The dietitian does a uniform similar to that of a nurse but works quietly in the background. Her university training gives her the scientific knowledge necessary to discuss intelligently the dietary, medical and social aspects of the patient in a hospital. A dietitian deals with diets, dishes and trays.

To give her audience a picture of the dietary department of the Belleville General Hospital, Mrs. Weese outlined a typical day in the kitchen. The first worker, a man to prepare the meals for the day, arrives at five and each morning. At six a.m. the night nurses in the cafeteria leave as other kitchen workers start their day's work.

Three staff commence their duties at seven a.m., as does the supervisor, who checks any special diets which must be prepared. In all, 37 persons are employed each day. These include three food supers, one baker who prepares all the pies, cakes and cookies for the hospital, one storekeeper, and two men who wash the pots and pans, clean the refrigerators and the store rooms. Relief workers to take over when the regular staff is off is in the late afternoon, bring the total staff to 40. In charge of this staff is Mrs. Weese and her assistant dietitian, Miss Nora Greelis.

Mrs. Weese noted that last year the hospital served 277,000 meals to patients and 120,000 to hospital staff. She thanked her staff for the cooperation they give in helping to prepare the meals. Good food is as important to any other factor in the care and cure of patients.

Each day patients at the Belleville General Hospital are given a selective menu to choose their meals for the following day. Seriously ill and problem patients are catered to when the regular menu is not suitable. In addition to her administrative duties, Mrs. Weese makes out a master menu for each day, one week in advance.

In addition to considering color, texture and what foods taste well together, hospital dietician must be sure there are enough pans and oven space to cook everything on the menu. The work of food preparation must not fall too heavily on any one kitchen group.

The assistant dietician, Miss Gracilla, is in charge of special diets. She always visits each patient on a special diet, explaining the new diet to him. The assistant dietician also takes charge of the nutrition classes for the student nurses. A good basic knowledge of the nutritious foods is given the students as well as practical experience in diet therapy when they make up special diets to be served to patients.

On behalf of all present Mrs. A. Duffy thanked Mrs. Weese for her most interesting account of the dietitic department of the Belleville General Hospital.

Tea and cakes were served by the social committee in charge of Mrs. S. Kvarda.

Question: Could you please give me a recipe for a wedding cake? Our daughter is getting married and she wants me to bake her cake. She would like to have a one-layer groom's cake. I will have a baker decorate them. Could you also give me recipes for jellied shrimp and jellied lobster salads? The wedding is to be at 11.30 a.m. We will have caterers for the dinner, but I will prepare a buffet supper. There will be turkey, ham, salads, etc. for the supper. If you could help me out with these recipes, I would be grateful . . . Mrs. G.C.

Answer: I have mailed to you a sheaf of four releases prepared for mothers of the bride. They give information you need for the wedding reception and recipes for wedding cake and frosting and directions for applying.

GROOM'S CAKE

Bake one week in advance.

4½ cups currants, ½ cup medium syrup (see below), 4 cups all-purpose flour, sifted, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 1¼ teaspoons salt, ¾ cup shortening 1½ cups sugar, 5 eggs, ¼ cup apricot or peach brandy (or pinapple or apple juice), 1 cup coffee cream.

To make Syrup — Heat ¼ cup sugar and ½ cup water to boiling; boil 5 minutes. Add 1¼ teaspoons corn syrup and cool.

Wash and drain currants, then stir syrup into them and let stand 1 day to plump, stirring occasionally. Measure sifted flour, resift 3 times with baking powder, soda, cinnamon, nutmeg and salt. Toss plumped currants in 1 cup of the flour mixture. Use rotary beater to cream shortening, add sugar gradually, creaming thoroughly. Beat in eggs one at a time until light-colored and fluffy. Using wooden spoon stir in remaining flour mixture alternately with combined fruit or juice and cream, beginning and ending with flour. Stir in currants. Turn into one 9½x5½x2¾" pan lined with buttered brown paper. Bake 80 to 90 minutes at 250 deg. Fahr., having pan of hot water in bottom of oven. Let pan on rack 10 minutes, then remove from pan with paper snugly attached and cool thoroughly. Let cake stand 24 hours before decorating. Glaze and decorate like fruit cake or as desired.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Brenda T. — No matter how I word a remark he takes it as a dig.

Herbert T. — She can't hide the fact she considers me in the way.

* * *

Brenda T. — I'm at my wits' end with Herbert. He's so edgy that nothing I do is right. I'm silent he thinks I'm sulking. And if I speak he gets irritated.

How can you have a civil conversation with a man who takes every remark as an insult, or tries to find hidden meanings in an innocent word? The other day he coughed. I said, "You ought to take something for that." He glared at me and asked, "Why? Does it bother you?"

I know he's under a strain. He failed a civil service test and he's studying to take it again. But he has no right to jump on me like that. I'd leave him until the exam is over, but he needs me to keep house and typewrite his notes.

* * *

Herbert T. — I have a boring job I can't stand. After reducing eight hours of it each day, I drag myself home for an evening with a wife who really doesn't need me around at all. And the shoes I'd by making me feel in the way. She holds a big job in a department store and makes more money than I do.

One way I can make life happier for myself is to change jobs and that's what I'm determined to do. I was upset and badly prepared when I took the test for a government position, but I'm taking it again and this time I'm studying the manuals carefully.

Once my income picks up, I'll have things out with Brenda. I'm fed up with just being tolerated by her. I want some respect.

* * *

The Council: Herbert is first and last an angry man. Hostilities seem to be piled up within him from way back. May be he's still sore at his parents and teachers. Now he's at odds with his employer, and feels pushed around by Brenda. But behind these animosities we see a man who can't stand himself!

Herbert needs help. Someone — a teacher, a clergyman, a vocational advisor, a psychological counsellor — must help him first to like himself. At present he feels scorn for himself, for not earning much money, for failing a competitive test, for not making Brenda or himself or anyone happy. Once he is helped to appreciate himself as an all right guy, a battler against odds, a fellow with quite a list of talents and virtues (even though they're not readily redeemable in cash), he should be able to see the good in many other areas, even perhaps in his home.

Psychologically Herbert carries the unreasoning chip on his shoulder which, if allowed to proliferate, can lead to the mental illness called paranoia (delusions of persecution). A paranoid may hit the ceiling over a simple greeting like, "Hello there, fella." He'll look for a hidden dart anywhere. To nip this tendency fast, we must counsel Herbert to give Brenda's comments the very best interpretation possible. Certainly as his wife she's pro-him on his side, for there's no percentage in it for her if he's miserable.

A bitter self-pitying man can twist any remark into a hurt. In Herbert's hypersensitive state, even a line about the weather might start him off. "It stopped raining," Brenda might say. "Aren't you glad? Now I can go down for a walk and leave you alone" her self-deprecatory husband might reply.

Some quickie tips for Brenda: Bear in mind his fragile ego. Lubricate it, salve it, coddle it with soothing lotions of approval. Also, don't take his "venom" personally. He's not as irritated by you as he sounds. He's irritated by Life, and you're the one who's around to listen. That's the irritation to work on.

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

If there's a wedding in your near future — not your own, but someone, you know — answer True or False to the following to help brush up on your social etiquette before the major event:

5. All guests — even teetotalers — are required to toast the bride and groom with some type of beverage.

6. A guest who doesn't know anyone at the reception, except either the bride or groom, may leave shortly after going through the receiving line instead of waiting for the bride and groom bride and groom to depart first.

Highlights in Recreation

By B. JARVAH
Assistant Director

In fact, in law and in public opinion, recreation is recognized today as a suitable and essential function of government. Since most people must spend a large portion of their leisure in the locality where they live or work, the local point of their recreation is the local community. The primary responsibility for recreation is in the local community; and because recreation contributes to the welfare of the people, it is a primary responsibility of local government.

Following are some of the reasons why recreation is distinctly a part of the city's job and why the provision of basic community facilities and services should be a primary concern of local government.

1. Municipal recreation affords a large percentage of the people their only opportunity for forms of wholesome recreation. People of wealth can travel, belong to country clubs and own their own yachts. Those with moderate means can also, to a considerable degree, provide many attractive and satisfying recreation activities for themselves, but for great many people, recreation opportunities are very limited except for those provided by local government or semi-public agencies.

2. Only through government can adequate lands be acquired. The municipality's essential responsibility in this respect was stressed many years ago by Walter Rauschenbusch, a noted public speaker, who said: "Public property is the only thing that can beat commercialized amusements. I am for taking the sewage out of our rivers and putting boys and girls into them to swim. I am for stocking the water inside the city limits with perch and rock bass. The spirit of adventure is essential to childhood, and nothing but public property creates freedom enough in big cities to invite adventure."

3. Municipal recreation is democratic and inclusive. Municipal recreation, unlike that provided by some other agencies, is for all the people. In large measure it is equally available for rich and poor; for people of all ages, racial backgrounds, social standing, creeds, opinions and religious preferences.

4. Municipal recreation is comparatively inexpensive. Through a pooling of resources, local government can furnish recreation at a much lower cost than would otherwise be possible.

5. Recreation plays an important role in the local economy. The recreation opportunities afforded by a community influence its attractiveness as a location for a new industry or for families seeking a home.

In the final analysis the services provided by local government are determined primarily by the expressed will of the people. The Hon. Joseph S. Clark, Jr. once stated: "No elected official could retrace our steps, eliminate recreation as a major function of local government, and then expect re-election. Recreation has become a governmental function, not from consent, but by the demand of the governed."

Predicts Birth of New Man Who Will Live Under Water

LONDON (AP) — Commandant Jacques-Yves Cousteau, pioneer of aqua lung diving, told the Second World Congress of Undersea Activities today a new man of the future to be known as homo aquaticus probably will develop within the next 50 years.

Homo aquaticus (water man) will eventually be born and live under water, he said, and there will be parliaments and probably new nations in the sea.

Cousteau told of a new village he proposes to establish under the sea. One or two dozen people will live in it, he said.

"It will be erected with small nuclear plants for energy to draw the necessary respiratory gases from the sea," he said. "It will have absolutely no physical connection with a land base. Settlers will come to make their homes at the bottom of the sea.

WILL RESIST PRESSURE

"This will cause the development of a new man. The man will be able, after the results of some experiments on highly developed animals, to resist pressures down to 1,000 or 1,500 metres."

Cousteau said the only difficulty with the new underwater man is that his lungs would have to be filled with a compressible liquid.

"But this can be done," he said.

Mr. William Holland of Prince Albert, Sask., and Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Tilley of Whitby, were Saturday tea hour guests with Mr. and Mrs. Blake Stickle.

"This new man will probably eventually be born at the bottom of the sea. He will have a surgery at his birth in the future hospitals. Afterwards this man will be able to walk on land and go along as well as to live under water.

"This birth of a new man is in the line of nature.

"We have an example of this type of man. We have good evidence to think that sea mammals are animals that have returned to the sea."

Successful Living

Spoiled Children: Sorry Now

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—About ten years ago I had a nervous breakdown, caused I think by no rest, a spotlessly clean house, four spotless children, etc. I did everything for them, washed them, gave them no responsibilities.

Now, this is my problem: How do I undo these things, get them to wash themselves, make a bed, or do dishes, without nag, nag? They quarrel among themselves almost constantly. Incidentally, I get no help with them from their father.

I figure we should be a happy family. Instead we all live in misery, and I've decided that at the age of 43 (that difficult age), I don't know how to raise children.

Do you know that there are times I have to tell the oldest (19) to wash his dirty neck? My 12-year-old is record crazy and boy crazy. She has never washed dishes completely in her life. When I ask the youngest to help dry, she flatly refuses.

I have been to a doctor and he said it was too late. The training should have been done in the formative years.—REMORSEFUL.

DEAR REMORSEFUL—Late—but not too late for improvement. People can change all their lives.

You spoiled their father too. He has been missing half his life, as you have, by being allowed to neglect his role. Neither of you has known the thrill of shaping small minds, teaching good habits. Love and discipline go together.

So line him up on your side. Then talk with the family as a group. Are they happy? No. Show them that if they share the work you will have more time to share the fun. Work out rewards as you plan assignments. And insist on good cheer.

(Talk it over with Doris, who is a trained social worker. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Mr. Art Duncan was guest speaker in the Monday dinner hour at the Rotary Club, Peterborough.

Helen Curlette of Bata Engineering entered Toronto General Hospital on Friday for surgery.

Mrs. Hazel Patrick has returned to work after a sick leave.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. G. Aquino in the death of her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Zarbatany, of Montreal, Quebec.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Duncan attended the Teacher's Association dinner in Peterborough on Friday evening.

APPROVES IDEA

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto planning board approved Thursday a long-range multi-million-dollar revitalization of Toronto's waterfront to include clusters of buildings in four huge plazas. The four plazas each have underground parking and the four areas will be connected by pedestrian malls and elevated ways. The plan now goes to the city's waterfront committee.

Library Corner

(By O.D.)

Store Hour at the Corby Public Library, last Saturday was a happy time. Instead of the usual stories and games, Mr. Rodger Greig gave a puppet display. Over 250 children attended — a great many more than expected. It was impossible to seat them all at the same time and Mr. Grieg kindly repeated his show a second time. The boys and girls joined in the little playlets, "Noah's Ark" and "The Jumblies" with much hilarity. They were spellbound by the antics of the various puppets.

Mr. Grieg teaches Art and English at Moira Secondary School. This is his third year in Belleville. He is a member of the Puppetry Association of America, and has put on shows for the Association in the United States. He feels that puppetry is an important form of creative art, and is of interest not only to children, but to people of all ages. Teen-age boys, he finds, are particularly interested in the making and construction of puppets.

How you can order prescription drugs often for 50% less than you pay now

Residents of Ontario who need medicines may now take or mail their prescriptions to a special Toronto pharmacy and have them filled by licensed pharmacists at as much as half the usual cost.

This service is mainly for the benefit of people with lasting or chronic illnesses such as Arthritis, Diabetes, Cystic Fibrosis, Heart Disease, High Blood Pressure, Overweight, Epilepsy, Ulcers, Kidney Ailments and others, who need prescription medicines regularly. However, any Ontario resident may have any prescriptions filled through this source provided they are prepared to allow up to seven days delivery by mail.

Orders are filled exactly as prescribed by your doctor and sent out on the day received. Deliveries are insured whether C.O.D. or Cheque with Order.

All brand-name prescription drugs are sold by this pharmacy at wholesale prices plus a service fee of $1.25 for each prescription filled, which, on the average prescription, works out to a saving of 1/3. And, if your prescription is written under its generic or "non-brand" chemical formula, savings can often be greater still. Sometimes 50 per cent or more than one half.

The high cost of drugs has recently been a matter of great public concern, particularly because of the hardship caused among people who have to buy medicines regularly. Consequently, the establishment of this special service has received considerable publicity, which you may have seen in your newspapers. It is the first major attempt by an Ontario pharmacy to find a method of supplying drugs and other medicines at near wholesale prices. Therefore, if you have relatives or friends who need drugs or other medicines regularly or frequently it is suggested that you make them aware of the announcement.

The name of the pharmacy is Vanguard. Their method of reducing costs is simple. They use the mails for delivery. They are not located in a main shopping district, they do not need expensive store fixtures. And, because they serve thousands of people, they are able to buy drugs in quantity.

If you wish to consult your doctor about this service, do not hesitate to do so. The proprietors of Vanguard Pharmacy (fully licensed graduates of the Ontario College of Pharmacy) would be glad to communicate with your doctor.

And if you wish to compare the price you are now paying with the price from Vanguard Pharmacy, all you need to do is send the name or full details of your prescription to Vanguard. You will be under no obligation and your prescription will be returned to you with a quotation. But when you wish a prescription to be filled you must send an original prescription signed by your doctor.

Do Not Wear a Mask On Hallowe'en Night

By JACK HUTTON

A word to the wise well in advance of Hallowe'en. Don't wear a mask this year. Your own face can be horrible enough.

Jack Hilton

That advice comes from doctors and safety experts all across Canada who every year see the results of tragic accidents in which a mask has acted like a set of blinkers.

Just a few moments before a mirror should convince you that an excellent disguise can be improvised with cosmetics and burnt cork rather than use a mask which obstructs vision.

And, remembering my own experience on the night of ghosts and hobgoblins, here are several more tips which I hope you and your friends follow the night of Oct. 31:

Make sure that your costumes are flameproof and light-colored enough to be seen easily by drivers. And don't wear anything which might trip you or catch on bushes or fences.

Never carry a sharp instrument which might wound you or someone else. And be sure your friends — particularly the younger ones — aren't carrying candles.

I still remember with a twinge of remorse frightening the daylights out of a much younger merrymaker with a particularly scary caveman outfit. Try to take it easy on our small friends.

Doctors warn that frightening very young children in "hails of horror" can have a bad effect upon them. So leave the small ones behind if you're going through something like that — and don't let them run on the streets after dark.

CENTURIES OLD

Where did Hallowe'en come from? Thousands of teenagers who try on disguises every Oct. 31 have no idea that they're continuing centuries-old practices which are older even than Christianity.

The business of Hallowe'en or All Hallows Eve —was a pretty serious business for the Druids an ancient religious caste in old England and Gaul who figured that Saman, the lord of death, was around that night.

They lit huge bonfires as a tribute to Saman and recited ancient magic sayings to soothe the powerful spirit. Black cats were both respected and feared since they supposedly were witches in disguise.

When the Romans came to ancient Britain they drove out of the Druids but adapted the October festival to their own ways. The first were to them symbols of the harvest.

We've forgotten most of this, of course, but it might be fun to try some of the other customs at your own Halloween party. Girls once believed that if they left a string dangling out of their window they'd see their future husband at midnight.

This led to fellows tying outside the houses for hours sometimes, waiting to see a string dangling from a window. How many I wonder, raced each other to get to the string(?).

APPLE STRIPS

Or you can have all your friends try peeling long thin strips from apples. If the strip is thrown over your left shoulder, it is supposed to shape the first initial of the person you will marry.

Even without a party, I trust you'll try carving a pumpkin as a reminder of the ancient harvest festival. Remember to drag the face first with pencil, then cut off the lid, and carry on from there.

ZERO QUERIED

I suspect Jack Harris, 17, of Vancouver had his tongue in his cheek this week when he wrote: "Every week's column on the seven-digit system fascinating. But could someone tell me who first invented the zero?"

As far as I know, John, no one can state exactly when the zero was invented. Its inventor, if one person can be held responsible will remain as obscure as the discoverers of fire or the wheel.

Zero was introduced as a "place-holder" about 1,000 years ago, but was accepted very slowly. As recently as 1250 the bankers of Florence were forbidden to use "That heathen symbol".

Can anyone shed, more light on this for John?

Why wear a mask on Hallowe'en? You can make your face frightening enough without obstructing your vision with a mask.

Sunday School Lesson

Believing in God

By ROY L. SMITH

No man makes a more solemn declaration than that one does who says, "I Believe."

It means much more than that the one who makes the statement is intellectually convinced. It means much more than merely saying we admit the facts to be facts. It means vastly more than if we were to say, "I think it is true."

To really say "I believe" means that we are determined to commit all our energies, interests, abilities and loyalties to the proposition we say we believe. If we really believe, we throw all the weight of our personality, conscience, abilities and powers into the struggle to make the thing we believe prevail.

NOT JUST MAN FROM NAZARETH

When we say we believe in Jesus Christ it means vastly more — or should mean more — than we believe such a person as Jesus lived in the city of Nazareth nearly 2,000 years ago. And it means that we believe much more than the fact that Jim Bell is the most beautiful and convincing life that was ever lived. Still more, it means more than that we are intellectually convinced that the things He said during the period of His public ministry were true.

Jesus was all that the foregoing paragraph suggests He may have been, but He was more. He was indeed, more even than His preaching, His parables and His healings.

He was a man-size portrait of God given to men to help them understand that God is merciful as Jesus was, that God is love as Jesus was, that God is forgiving as Jesus was. It means that Jesus came as a corrective for all the mistaken opinions concerning God, to clear up all the misunderstandings between God and men, to represent as far as that is possible, the character and concerns of God in the form of a human life.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 21: "THE SON OF GOD," Matthew 16: 13-17; Mark 10:45; Luke 19: 1-10; John 3:16; 6:35-40; Ephesians 3:

Philippians 25 5-11.

It would have been possible for God to have given to the world another book, such as He gave to Moses on the mountain and which contained the Ten Commandments. It would have been possible for Him to have selected such a man as John the Baptist, and commissioned him as a prophet, such as Isaiah was. Instead, He took upon himself the form of a man from Nazareth and lived among us for somewhat more than 30 years in order that never again might there by any misunderstandings as to what God was like.

NOT A SERIES OF DOCTRINES

Let there be no mistake about the matter. Religious doctrines are of very great importance. They represent the best efforts of dedicated minds and sensitive consciences to preferences and purposes of God. But Jesus was more than a doctrine. He was a life. He demonstrated what a doctrine might produce, once that it had become incarnate and was thrust out into the work-a-day world.

NOT JUST A SOCIAL IDEAL

It is a fact, of course, that Jesus of Nazareth laid down a series of moral principles designed to guide men in their relations with other men. But Jesus was not a system of social ideals . He was the ideal.

Just suppose for example, what this world would be like if all those who suffered injustices were to pray, "Father forgive them for they know not what they do."

And suppose that every one of us, caught in a sin, were to hear Ii said, "Neither do I condemn thee, but go, and sin no more."

And to suppose once more, suppose all of us who suffer unjustly should actually turn the other cheek, instead of fighting back?

What would be the social effect of all these attitudes?

There are 180,000,000 people in the United States of which number at least 100,000,900 are members of some Christian church. Suppose that one fourth of all these — 25,000,000 — were suddenly to take the injunction about the other cheek seriously? Or suppose that another 25,000,000 were to start out tomorrow morning making all their wrongs right as Zaccheus did in Jericho!

What a revolution would start up!

Priority Accorded Liturgy Pleases Reformist Group At R.C. Ecumenical Council

VATICAN CITY (CP) — Is there a "new wave" in the Roman Catholic Church?

The question is too complex for an easy affirmative, but new ripples of thought—if not a new wave — are creating a heady sense of expectancy at the second Vatican council.

Among some Canadian conformers representatives, there is a feeling that the assembly is poised ready to make a big advance, despite the fundamental conservatism of influential sections of the church.

During the last 20 years, a number of changes have been made in the sacred liturgy, or public worship, of the Roman church. There is optimism that these reforms will be carried another step forward during council discussions starting next week.

Encouragement is drawn from Pope John's opening speech to the council Oct. 11. One Canadian theologian was said to have been so elated by the speech that his colleagues refused him wine with his dinner —he was too "high" already.

STRESSES PRESENTATION

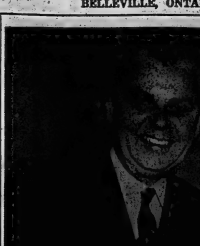
Participants said a key point is that Pope John, in effect, instructed the council that what is to be stressed is not the precise substance of doctrine but its presentation in a way that meets the pastoral needs of the day.

The fact that discussions on liturgy have been placed first on the council agenda is a sign that the papal directives have been taken seriously, these sources said.

Some observers go so far as to say that the priority accorded liturgy—in line with the wishes of North American and European prelates—is a major victory for the "enlightened reformers" over the traditionalists.

Those who would like to see some changes in liturgy, designed primarily to make meaningful ceremony, feel that there has been a historical tendency for official worship to become the "property" of the priest, custodian of what is sometimes called the treasury of the faith.

Through the years, the celebration of mass sometimes tended to become over-elaborate and formalized, losing in the process some of its power as a source of spirituality or piety. An example might be the overuse of ornate music, tending to distract the worshipper.



Just as architecture can become "frozen" in baroque forms that seem outdated to the modern eye, so church liturgy may no longer correspond to modern needs.

TEACHING TRANSFORMED

The move for reform seems strongest in western Germany, France, Holland and Belgium, where a biblical revival has transformed the teaching of religion in the seminaries.

The emphasis is on the pastoral rather than the doctrinal. If the council next week approves liturgical forms of a scholastic character, these churchmen would regard the move as out of harmony with modern needs in their countries.

Typical of the new and lively minds at work in Germany is Professor Hans Kueng, who recently published a book entitled The Council and the Church in which he criticized openly such things as "monarchical infallibility" in the liturgy, political conformism, episcopal bureaucracy and what he called the "pilgrimage racket."

CARRIER SEES PRIME MINISTER — Newspaper carrier Keith Eedy, 12, of Ottawa, yesterday received a plaque and certificate from Prime Minister Diefenbaker. Parliamentary Notebook

OTTAWA (CP) — A parliamentary precedent, once created, is like a skeleton hidden away in a closet. It can pop out at the most embarrassing times.

This is the analogy lurking in MP's minds as the Commons faced its first interim supply bill today.

Interim supply is the advance Parliament usually gives the government to pay its bills until the Commons and Senate get around to passing the annual appropriation acts.

So far in this fiscal year, Parliament hasn't passed a penny. Since April 1, the government has been paying its bills—including the civil service—on the authority of interim supply bills.

Finance Minister Nowlan Thursday tabled the revised estimates for 1962-63, totalling $6,048,214,560—an $227,997,574 from the $5,776,211,594 the government asked Parliament last February to vote for this year.

AUTHORITY RUNS OUT

Parliament may not get much money from the public much before the end of this year. Meanwhile, the government's interim supply authority runs out Oct. 31—Hallowe'en.

Interim supply is granted by the enactment of bills with distinguishing features of any money - spending measure. Trudeau has been the interim supply bills, however, go through the House of Commons in a matter of hours, taken debate, once the finance minister moves the appropriation, the issue of their right of debate will be curtailed.

Debating money - spending bills is one of the opposition's cherished rights, and embodies one of the basic principles of parliamentary government—that the Commons won't vote supply unless grievances are heard first.

In 1956 and 1957, however, debates were launched by the Conservatives then in opposition. In 1956, George Drew, then opposition leader and now Canadian high commissioner in London, came within a matter of hours from cutting short the government's spending authority—it was part of the Conservative tactics in the celebrated pipeline debate.

LAUNCH DEBATES

On two occasions in 1957, before the general election of that year, the Conservatives in opposition launched debates. Among the party's speakers were John Diefenbaker, now prime minister, and Donald Fleming, now justice minister.

After the 1957 election when the Conservatives first came to power with minority control of the Commons, and in 1958 when they had a sweeping majority, debates again arose on interim supply measures. Though Mr. Fleming as finance minister protested, the new Liberal opposition was quick to point out who established the precedents.

Now the government finds itself in another minority box in the Commons. If the opposition Liberal, Social Credit, and New Democratic Party members ever vote solidly together and against the Conservatives on a confidence issue, the government will have to call a new general election.

Attempts to negotiate a deal to let interim supply through quickly and quietly aren't being given much attention.

Considerable bone - rattling was anticipated over the interim supply bill. Debate was scheduled to open today.

Brooklyn Rabbi Dies of Beating

NEW YORK (AP)—A rabbi died Thursday as a result of a beating on the streets of Brooklyn Monday night. His death set off an almost hysterical demonstration by Jews.

About 10,000 mourners gathered in the streets of the Williamsburgh section of Brooklyn. The body was borne in a pine casket to a police station in protest against what demonstrators called inadequate police protection.

A sound truck moved through the area, the announcer repeating "We want our homes kept safe. The streets are not safe."

The victim, Rabbi Bernard Eisdorfer, 55, never regained consciousness from the beating which occurred in a residential district as he was returning from a Talmudic study meeting with worshippers.

A youth found him unconscious on the street and called police. Officers said an autopsy showed he suffered a fractured skull, brain damage and head injuries.

Wives Appeal For Better Deal For Hubbies

TORONTO (CP)—Three Toronto police wives went on television to appeal for a better deal for their husbands.

But police of all ranks said Thursday they disapproved of the women's attempt to show that their husbands were underpaid and overworked.

A high-ranking police officer said: "Their appearance on the program was in bad taste and will hurt the public image of the policemen."

Det. Sgt. Spokesman for the women on the Wednesday night TV-show was Mrs. Sid Brown, wife of the Toronto Metropolitan police Association's president.

Const. Brown was called into office Thursday but neither would comment on their discussion.

An arbitration board recently increased police pay by four per cent, giving a first class constable $5,200 a year. Police had asked for $7,500.

CRASH KILLS 10

BRISTOL, England (AP)—Ten persons died in a multiple car crash on the fog-shrouded Gloucester - Bristol trunk highway Thursday night. The vehicles involved were a bus, a minibus, an auto and a truck. Six of the dead were men and four were women. Seven others were seriously injured.

Ottawa Bishop Will Not Go To Montreal

OTTAWA (CP) — Rt. Rev. E. S. Reed, Bishop of Ottawa has declined his election as Anglican Bishop of Montreal diocese.

The 54-year-old bishop said he was "deeply appreciative of the confidence shown by the synod of Montreal" but that he could not conscientiously leave his duties in the Ottawa diocese at this time. He came to Ottawa eight years ago from Quebec.

The bishop phoned Very Rev. R. K. Maguire, dean of the Montreal diocese, to inform him of the decision.

Bishop Reed said he made his decision after two days of prayer and that it was with "some regrets" that he declined the move to Montreal where he had been a parish priest.

TO CALL SYNOD

The Montreal synod will be called on once again to select a successor to Most. Rev. John Dixon who retired Sept. 1 after 25 years as head of the Montreal diocese.

The majority vote is needed to elect a bishop and the person chosen must formally accept the position.

The Irish-born bishop was ordained a deacon in 1931 and became a priest in 1932.

Guantanamo Base Cubans Free of Food Shortages, Police-State Atmosphere

Fred S. Hoffman was on assignment last month at the Guantanamo Naval Base. The following story on Cubans living on the base is drawn from his observations there.

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cubans living on the Guantanamo Naval Base generally eat a cheery lot, free of food shortages and the political atmosphere plaguing their fellow countrymen outside.

Reporters who visited Guantanamo recently and spoke to many of them found few with any serious gripes and none who considered themselves prisoners.

The reporters have refrained from mentioning the roughly 350 Cubans who sought and received asylum at the base. This was because of the possible diplomatic consequences, but the U.S. navy now has acknowledged their presence.

The navy said Thursday it is sheltering the Cubans but not allowing them to leave the island because of agreements by Vice-Adm. U. S. G. Sharp, deputy chief of naval operations—"nothing in any treaty has given us a legal basis for establishing Guantanamo as a port of exit from Cuban citizens and this would be an issue in any legal consideration of our rights to use this base."

FREE AROUND BASE

The Cubans are allowed relative freedom of movement around the 45-square-mile base. The only places barred to them also are off-limits to unauthorized U.S. civilians or military personnel.

Like about 3,000 others who pass back and forth through the gates, these Cubans work in a variety of industrial, maintenance and service jobs necessary to operation of the huge navy installation.

At least two of them prepare and deliver Spanish-language broadcasts of news and sports over the base radio station, WGBY, and put out editions of the base newspaper in Spanish.

The radio broadcasts are heard as far as 60 miles beyond the base and serve to give the Cubans outside Guantanamo's perimeter the U.S. version of events in the world.

Govt Austerity Measures Blamed for Lag in United Appeal Drives in Dominion

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The red stripe is inching upward on scores of mock thermometers across Canada as the season of communal charity campaigns tries to warm citizens to the task of helping their neighbors through organized giving.

Residents of Cornwall, Ont., were showered with 20,000 tiny feathers from a plane to remind them that their annual Community Chest campaign is under way.

The 789 people in the Lake Erie village of Port Rowan are being asked for $28 in support of 12 welfare agencies sharing in the Norfolk County Community Chest.

Some 1,600,000 residents of Metropolitan Toronto have been assigned an objective of $17,717,000 to help out 83 services taking part in the local United Appeal.

RAISE BIG TOTAL

In all, 115 separate community fund drives in Canada this year aim to raise an estimated total of $35,125,000 for 1,918 regional and national welfare agencies.

Five years ago, some 90 separate appeals raised $29,000,000, and last year the total topped $33,000,000.

The name, size, method and result of the appeals vary from town to town, says the Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows.

Montreal's appeal is over areas ranging in size from small towns to a whole province. Its target is the area of Mainward Island, which is conducting its first United Appeal this month with a $27,681,000 goal. Newfoundland alone among the provinces has no communal fund drives.

Most of the campaigns now are across the board affairs with the majority running through all or part of October. Moncton was the first big Canadian city to reach its Community Chest target. The 43,810 residents raised $43,290 for 13 participating agencies in two weeks.

OTTAWA WORRIES

Appeals organizers in other communities report trouble. Ottawa aiming at $1,110,000, had raised more than half the target figure by the halfway stage. But publicity chairman Mike Roberts said he was worried because the drive was running two per cent behind last year's performance while the goal is $88,000 higher.

He blamed government austerity measures, which meant thousands of civil servants did not get expected salary increases.

Moose Jaw was 28 per cent off target after almost a month of campaigning. Local United Appeal officials said slow progress resulted from poor crop in Saskatchewan and a sharp drop in city business this year. This year's target was lowered to $95,000 from $100,000.

Of 35 cities in eight provinces checked at about the halfway mark 13 had raised 50 per cent or more of their objectives and 22 were below 50 per cent.

Advocates of combined appeals say they assist the agencies by taking some of the guesswork out of budgeting and at the same time spare the public a continuous round of tag days and fund drives.

Opponents argue sometimes that their own favorite charity could do better on its own. They say the emphasis on organized and instalment giving through payroll deductions limits spontaneity out of charity and exerts a subtle pressure on both givers and receivers to contribute.

LEVELLING OFF

Indications are that the appeal of the United-Appeal idea is levelling off in the centres after the boom years of the 1950s, when agencies joined up in dozens and contributions expanded year by year.

But in five years from 1956 to 1954, the number of community appeals increased by almost 30 per cent and total contributions grew by more than two - thirds. In the last five years the per-year cash campaigns has grown at about the same rate while giving has increased by less than half the rate of the 1950-54 period.

Of the 35 cities checked this year, five have topped their objectives at the same totals as last year and six have lowered their sights after repeated failures to reach increasing goals in previous years.

Sydney, Trois-Rivieres, North Bay, Saskatoon and Penticton have all fallen at last year's level while Toronto, Brantford, Brockville, Cornwall, Kingston and Moose Jaw all have lowered their objectives.

Sudbury has reorganized its Red Feather campaign into a United Fund, with 19 agencies instead of 12, and has bumped its target to $750,000 although the city last year raised only $72,000 towards a $141,000 objective.

English Speaking Quebecers Said Provoking Separatism

QUEBEC (CP)—Daniel Johnson, leader of the Union Nationale, has accused English-speaking persons in Quebec of provoking separatism.

He said Thursday night Quebec will become a separate state barring better understanding of the French-speaking people by their English-speaking counterparts. He spoke at Riviere-du-Loup in a Quebec election campaign tour.

Premier Lesage, meanwhile, has announced another federal - provincial program which will pump $30,000,000 into Quebec rural development in the next three years.

Mr. Johnson's "first lieutenant", Jean-Jacques Bertrand, has proclaimed that his Union Nationale in what was termed a "non - political speech." While French-Canadians must be masters of their own house, independence from Canada was not his aim.

HITS COMPANIES

Natural Resources Minister Rene Lafrance charged that the 11 private power companies the government of the Union Nationale were "inefficient and a penalty-ing factor in the economy."

Parliamentary Leader Lapalme called Opposition Leader Johnson "the most discredited" member of the Union Nationale.

Mr. Johnson also delivered a veiled threat to the federal government. Members had already spent all day Wednesday trying to embarrass Speaker Marcel Lambert.

"This "chapeens demiecray" and democrays of the Canadians in the parliamentary system, he said.

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's railroad workers Thursday night lifted their threat of a week - long strike and accepted an offer of peace talks with the British transport commission. Despite a nation-wide 24-hour strike Oct. 3, deadlock had continued over the commission's plan to close railway workshops as part of its bid to make Britain's nationalized railways pay their way.

House Debases Democracy Says Socred

VANCOUVER (CP) — Democracy has been debased in the House of Commons by the political manoeuvring taking placing since the new session opened last month, Socred leader Robert N. Thompson of the Social Credit Party said Thursday night.

"I have been ashamed of what has been carried on in Parliament since it opened," he told an election campaign rally in suburban Burnaby.

Members of other parties have tried to carry the election campaign "into the hallowed chambers where the laws of our country are made."

Mr. Thompson spoke to about 30 persons in the same hall where deputy national leader Real Caouette had addressed 750 persons 12 days earlier. Both meetings were in support of Rene Gamache, Social Credit candidate in the federal byelection in Quebec - Coquitlam where New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas seeks election. The vote comes next Monday.

Mr. Thompson said that in a week during the throne speech debate ended in the Commons, only one piece of legislation has been passed. Members had spent all day Wednesday trying to embarrass Speaker Marcel Lambert.

"This "chapens democracy" and democrays of the Canadians in the parliamentary system, he said.

Habs Tumble Leafs 4-2

Wings Whip Bruins, Undefeated In 4

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

By BRUCE STOVEL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Maybe it isn't just a flash in the pan.

The surprising Detroit Red Wings gave further evidence they are no longer one of the league's weak sisters when they dropped Boston Bruins 4-3 Thursday night.

The Red Wings are now unbeaten in four games, and in the unusual position of being in first place in the National Hockey League enjoying a comfortable three - point spread over Montreal Canadiens, Boston and Chicago Black Hawks, all tied for second place with four points.

Meanwhile, in Montreal the unpredictable Canadiens kept up their hot - and - cold record this year with a come-from-behind 4-2 win over Toronto Maple Leafs.

Canadiens fell behind 2-0 in a lack-lustre first period when they managed only three shots against Toronto goalie Johnny Bower, but turned hot in the third to pull away to the 4-2 win.

Detroit failed to make the playoffs last year. The big question is, why are they setting the league on its ear in the first four games?

VETERANS SCORE

One reason is the veterans are coming through.

The Wings' five goals Thursday night were scored by Norm Ullman with two and Alex Delvecchio, Marcel Pronovost and the indestructible Gordie Howe with one apiece. All are veterans of seven or more NHL campaigns.

Cliff Pennington, Ivr Spencer and Wayne Hicks scored for Boston.

Another reason for the strong Detroit showing so far is the play of goalie Terry Sawchuk, a 12-year man in the NHL, who has added an extra something to his usually solid play by adopting a face mask a la Jacques Plante.

Sawchuk didn't have much to do Thursday night, fielding only 18 shots compared with 31 saves for counterpart Bob Perreault in the Boston nets. Perreault continues to sparkle in his unusual role as a 35-year-old rookie.

In Montreal, veteran Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion scored the winning goal midway through the third period, and second - year centre Ralph Backstrom added the insurance marker.

BLOW LEAD

Henri Richard and Jean Beliveau had scored for Montreal in the second period after Dick Duff and rookie defenceman Kent Douglas gave Toronto a 2-0 lead with first-period markers.

Canadiens rate a close second to the Red Wings in early-season play.

They have won two of four games, got a big defensive achievement for last year's league champions in any event — the surprising thing is how they did get their wins.

Their previous victory came in the same unconvincing fashion. They let New York Rangers walk over them in the first period last Saturday and take a 2-0 lead.

Then the Habs roared back in the second period to score four goals and go on to win.

The Canadiens may hit the night's effort, but on the other hand they might sink to the level of some of their worst play —and that's been pretty bad.

Toronto's loss to the game left the Leafs in fifth place with three points. New York Rangers remain in last spot with two points.

In Saturday's games, Boston travels to Montreal and Chicago plays the Leafs in Toronto.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"I would like to have once," murmured the Dodger diehard, the tear stains still freckling his tie and shirt front, "our Manny Wills in action against the Damyankees."

A fresh tear rolled down a cheek and plopped into his coffee. "Manny would have run those guys ragged. Hell, they wouldn't have needed bibs. All they needed to do was get the fleetfoot on first and he would have done the rest."

His eyes brightened, "With Whitey Ford out there and Manny on first you would have seen more balls tossed to center field than at the plate."

"Manny has taken a lot of hunks out of baseball for the Bums," commented the diehard, shaking a silvery mane. "They don't need to bunt with him on first. By the time the batter gets the signal from the coach Manny is parked on second. Does away with a lot of potential double plays too."

Some of the experts are of the opinion that this springheeled Jack of the Dodgers with his fantastic sack-pilfering may make a great change in baseball, at least as far as the National League is concerned.

Birdie Tebbets, recently appointed manager of the Cleveland Indians, thinks Wills' sensational base-stealing will tighten defences, and change pitching styles because when he is stealing all those bases he is exploiting defensive weaknesses. But, he thinks, Wills nor any other player in the league will steal 90 bases again.

Wills' exploit in breaking Ty Cobb's record adds another of the time-worn sports cliches to the lengthy list of are modern day champions or record breakers as good or better than those of yesteryear?

The Wills-Cobb caper joins ranks with those of Dempsey-Louis, Ruth-Maris, Richard-Moreau, and other famous duos.

Al Schact, the famous clown princes of baseball, and a good pitcher in his day, says: "Wills is a fantastic base stealer—but Cobb was a base-runner."

The great Willie Mays drew some sort of a line when asked if Wills was the best base runner he ever saw. "Base runner or base stealer," said Willie. "The best base-runner was Jackie Robinson.

Schact said "the stealer runs when somebody else wouldn't. Cobb could take an extra base on a hit, steal, score from first on a single, go from first to third on a sacrifice bunt, score from second on an infield out. That's a base runner—and there's no comparison."

Since there are at least a few players who can run faster than Wills some find it curious that the little Dodger shortstop should be the one to break a base-stealing record that has stood for five decades.

Wills was playing for a team that used speed as one of its primary weapons. Says he, "Mays could probably steal as many bases as I do, but with the Giants he didn't have to. They've got the home run ball. Anyway if Willie starts stealing like I do, he's not going to hit so many homers.' All that running takes a lot out of you."

"I just happened to belong to a team that depended on speed. Next year, if Tommy Davis and Frank Howard should hit 40 homers apiece, you probably won't see me running so much. I won't have to."

Wills is a great student of pitchers. A movement of the hurler's head or shoulder or some other part of the body will tell him when the pitcher has committed himself—when he will deliver the ball to the plate or throw to a base.

"Every pitcher is different," he says. "You've got to know what to look for in every one."

Catchers treat him with respect. He was thrown out attempting to steal but ten times. He averaged nine steals for every ten base-pilfering attempts. He was picked off base only three times.

Western League Folds

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — Ernie Cook, president of the Western International Hockey League, announced Thursday that the league has ceased operations.

In a statement issued following a meeting of league executives with officials of Rossland Warriors, Cook said the decision to fold came after Rossland withdrew over managerial and player problems.

Nelson Maple Leafs left the league earlier, leaving only Trail Smoke Eaters, Kimberley Dynamiters and Rossland.

Cook said Dynamiters and Smokies had been notified that the league has ceased to function. He said the two teams have decided to continue playing exhibition games with each other and with other teams of other leagues.

Trail will represent Canada in the world hockey championships in Stockholm early next year.

SEES EXPANSION

HONOLULU (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick predicted "it is inevitable within the forseeable future that the major leagues will expand to 12 teams each." In Hawaii for a two-day visit en route to Japan, he told reporters 12 - team leagues probably would split into divisions playing interlock schedules. This would lead to divisional playoffs to determine who would meet in the World Series.

Vancouvers' Lloyd Swindells

New Canadian Pan-Am Coach

By PAUL RINSTEAD

TORONTO (CP)—Lloyd Swindells, coach of Vancouver's Olympic Track Club, will coach Canada's team in the Pan American Games next year—providing he is accepted at a general session of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada today.

Swindells, who managed the Pan-Am Games team in 1959, was chosen Thursday night by the national track and field committee at the AAU's annual meeting.

Earlier the track committee, headed by chairman Ken Twigg of Toronto, decided to certify officials for future national meets. A plan of certification will be studied by the national committee before becoming final.

It was thought the officials will be asked to attend clinics and write examinations before becoming certified.

ADDS BANTAM CLASS

Thursday night the track committee decided to add a bantam class for boys in provincial age - group championships and increased the number of events for bantam girls. Bantam age is under 14.

Two other committees, the gymnasts and boxers, made plans for a stepped-up program in international competition.

Al Decarie, named as the new national boxing chairman Thursday, said he is negotiating to take the Canadian team on a three-city tour of the British Isles this winter.

And the gymnasts, headed by Charles Sebestyen of Saskatoon this year, plan clinics for coaches and hope to induce top rate gymnastic teams to visit Canada for meets this year.

HOLD REGIONAL FINALS

Fencing chairman Jack Dales of Toronto announced that eastern Canadian championships will be held for the first time this year, June 8-9 at Toronto. On the same days, western championships will be held at Vancouver.

The national AAU championships at the Saskatchewan branch will be held the week-end of May 24.

The national handball finals which will be at Vancouver Central YMCA March 30.

To provide better competition in the national track and field championships, the track committee decided Thursday night to establish standards for indoor and outdoor events. Unless a competitor reaches those standards, he will not be invited to take part.

Effective This Year

Pension Plan For W.L.

SEATTLE (CP)—It's official that a players' pension plan will go into effect this year in the Western Hockey League. It already has three reluctant contributors, headed by voluble Coley Hall.

The plan calls for matching player and league contributions of at least $250 a year, but also builds up with each fine levied against players and management. That's how Hall got into the act.

The San Francisco Seals owner ridiculed game officials after Seals' first two games last week, and a $200 fine levied by WHL President Al Leader was added to the pot.

In Edmonton, flyer defenceman John Miszuk was fined $50 for shoving a linesman in the air and defenceman Bill Sheets of Spokane Comets paid $25 for a spearing penalty two days later.

Leader made the scheme official Thursday following a green light last May from league directors and enthusiastic response from players.

Players begin drawing from the fund at the age of 40. Contributions that older players would have made if the plan had begun sooner will be paid by the league.

Two other sources for the pension fund will be an extra 25 cent charge for all playoff tickets and net receipts from the annual all-star game.

The WHL is the first hockey league outside the NHL to launch a pension scheme.

ABC Will TV Grey Cup

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Football League is making a play for time on United States television.

U.S. fans will get a big sampling of what the CFL has to offer Dec. 1 when the annual Grey Cup game, the championship affair between the winners of the Eastern and Western Conferences, goes on the American Broadcasting Corporation network.

This, it is figured, may create a gateway to the profitable U.S. TV market.

Canadian football has been televised in the U.S. before. In 1954 NBC televised 14 league games, but the deal lasted only the one season.

In a CFL - sponsored venture to advertise in the U.S., a committee of three has been set up. They are chairman Jake Gaudaur of Hamilton, CFL president; George Terlep, general manager of Ottawa Rough Riders, representing the Eastern Conference, and Herb Capozzi, general manager of British Columbia Lions, representing the West.

Change In Strategy Pays Off

DETROIT (AP) — A little change in strategy is a major reason for Detroit Red Wings' happy start in the 1962-63 National Hockey League.

It's a change in attacking style, resulting in three victories and a tie in four games. The unbeaten streak has sent the Red Wings three points ahead of the pack.

"We're doing something different this year," coach Sid Abel said Thursday night after Detroit beat Boston Bruins 5-3. "We're passing back to the defencemen much more and letting them take the shots to start the play. This spreads out the defence and has paid off big for us. We got four of our goals against Boston on plays the defencemen set up."

Argos At Cats; Moss Silent

Question,-Can Zuger Do It Again?

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Frank Clair is his usual cautious self, but Perry Moss isn't talking at all.

Quarterback Sandy Stephens of Montreal Alouettes "has developed that rollout," says Clair, coach of Ottawa Rough Riders. "We have to be alert for that among other things."

In some quarters, that might be taken as an understatement. In the Als' last game, last Sunday, the Alouette rookie scored three, touchdowns and tossed pables for two more as Montreal whipped Toronto Argonauts 50-31.

HAS OWN REASONS

He has his reasons, and here's one of them:

Before a game against Ottawa a few weeks ago, Moss told how the Als were using Dick Schnell in workouts to simulate what the Montreal offence would face against the Ottawa defence. Schnell was outfitted in a white sweater with the number 25 and posed as Jim Conroy, who has a roving assignment on the Ottawa defence.

The Riders' coaching staff apparently read about it and signed Conroy out for a play now and again. The Montreal blockers, their assignment keyed to where No. 25 was playing, became confused and it took a while for the Montreal attack to get untracked.

The Als have two injured men returning for limited action—centre Joe Stracina and punt receiver Ted Page. Stracina has had a bruised knee and Page an ankle injury.

A victory for the Alouettes, in third place with eight points, could put them within striking distance of the second - place Riders, who have a four-point edge.

MEET SUNDAY

Toronto and Hamilton meet in Hamilton Sunday, and the big question is whether Argos' offence can do it again. He took his first starting assignment as signal-caller Monday night and threw a record eight touchdown passes as the Ticats' walloped Saskatchewan Roughriders 67-51.

The battle for first place in the Western Football Conference continues Saturday between Calgary Stampeders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers, but on two fronts.

The Bombers play Edmonton Eskimos, already eliminated from the playoff battle, in Edmonton while Calgary goes to Vancouver to play the fourth-place British Columbia Lions. The Bombers take on Saskatchewan Roughriders at Regina on Monday night's only action.

Calgary skipped into first place last Saturday with a 19-15 victory over Winnipeg, taking the lead away from the Bombers by one point.

None of the conference playoff berths is decided. Even the defending champion Bombers need at least one win in their remaining four games to be assured of making the grade.

No Hassle Expected Here

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TORONTO (CP) — The big hassle over control of track and field in the United States between the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union isn't likely to spread to Canada, says a highly-placed American amateur sportsman.

Col. Donald F. Hull of New York, executive director of the AAU of the U.S., said in an interview Thursday that a similar battle couldn't happen in this country because the AAU works closely with school groups and with the top-level athletic colleges directly.

His views were confirmed by Ken Twigg of Toronto, national chairman of the AAU track and field committee, who said there is no trouble. And he doesn't expect any.

Col. Hull spoke freely of the U.S. hassle and said:

"The NCAA is a power-hungry, well - heeled organization and it has a master plan to control all amateur athletics in our country. It, and its puppet organization, the U.S. Track and Field Federation, is hurting development of the sport and unnecessarily will cause hurt America's chances in international competition, including the Olympic Games.

EXPANDS REMARKS

Col. Hull, here to attend the thirteenth annual convention of the AAU of Canada, gave his side of the NCAA-AAU dispute at the opening session and later expanded on his remarks later in an interview.

The long - established AAU holds what he described as the trump card in the dispute.

"The International Amateur Athletic Federation, ruling body of track and field in the world, recognizes the AAU as the governing organization of the sport in the U.S.

A month ago it passed a resolution barring athletes of all member federations—and Canada is one—from participating in any American open track meets not authorized by the AAU. AAU in effect, this means that athletes who take part in non-AAU sanctioned open meets would not be permitted to compete in international competition, including the Olympics.

Twigg said that Canadian athletes competing outside Canada must have an international permit from the AAU. If a Canadian holding an AAU card competes in an open meet in the U.S. that has not been authorized by the AAU of the U.S., "that athlete would risk a suspension by the AAU of Canada," Twigg said.

COULD BE BARRED

And if a Canadian not holding an AAU card competes in such a meet, that athlete would possibly be disqualified from ever being a member of the AAU and in effect, would also mean he would not be able to compete for Canada in Olympic, British Empire or Pan - American Games," Twigg said.

A Canadian track and field coaches' symposium was set up last month and officials said at the time they would be interested of trying to take over control of track and field in Canada. Officials said basic aims of the association were to raise the standard of track and field coaching, to facilitate exchange of information regarding coaching methods, and to co-operate with all sports governing bodies and other groups interested in the advancement of track and field in Canada.

Hull said the NCAA is the aggressor in the dispute with the AAU.

"I can see possibly two things developing that might stop them. One is that college presidents might step in and say this has gone long enough and another may be taken by parents of promising young track athletes.

"If a youngster, for instance, is Olympic material and has been ruled ineligible to compete by us because he took part in an unauthorized AAU open meets, his parents could take the NCAA to court. This might bring the NCAA to its senses."

City Loop Now Ready To Operate

The City Hockey League had its sponsorship problem solved late yesterday afternoon when Welbanks Motors announced that they would take over the entrie sponsorship of the loop's fourth team.

The league, which opens with a twin bill on November 7, now consists of the Pepsi's, Doyle-Hollins Jaycees, Trudeau Motors and Welbanks Motors.

A league schedule will be drafted shortly, likely calling for a 15-game schedule. All games will be held in the form of double-headers, effective each Wednesday night at Memorial Arena.

Gael Leads College Score Race

TORONTO (CP) — Queen's Gaels keep on doing what they were doing when they had Robin Ritchie cleared to play Intercollegiate Football League again this year.

Ritchie, a 23-year-old, 186-pound halfback from Pembroke, Ont., is the league's leading scorer with 22 points in the first two games—four ahead of Brian Timmis, Queen's University of Western Ontario Mustangs.

Two seasons ago Ritchie won the scoring title but was ineligible last year, even though he attended school, because he played three minutes of a professional game with Ottawa Rough Riders.

Ritchie, while his team rolled to a championship last year, was rugged to keep in condition. His case was presented to the league's governing body and he was allowed to rejoin the Gaels this season.

Queen's fullback Jim Young, a rookie from Hamilton is third with 12 points.

Mouth Guards Cut Injuries

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Properly fitted guards eliminate mouth injuries in football, mostly where at least 50 per cent of football injuries occur, the American Public Health Association was told Thursday.

Dr. Abraham Cohen, supervisor of dental health in Philadelphia public school system, told the association's convention that mouth protection is equally important in hockey, soccer, basketball and lacrosse.

The ultimate in tooth protection, he said, can be obtained when the whole unit of a face mask is supplemented by a mouth protector.

Cohen reported on a five-year study of various types of mouth guards in the Philadelphia public school system. He said that last year 719 guards were used but this year only one loosened tooth, which tightened without treatment, and one head concussion.

Expected $100,000, Got $43,000

TORONTO (CP) — John W. Davies of Montreal, president of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, wanted a $100,000 government grant this year but received only $43,250.

But, he doesn't blame the National Advisory Council on Fitness and Amateur Sport as much as he blames his own organization.

"I indicated as urgency in submitting our request to the Federal government for financial aid;" he told delegates at the AAU's annual meeting Thursday, "and I requested all branches to make an estimate of approximate costs.

"Two branches realized the urgency."

As a result, Mr. Davies claims he couldn't prepare the type of submission he wanted to.

And it has already resulted in the AAU's grant application running headlong into the government's austerity program which didn't help.

Grant monies have been reduced as a result of the program.

Ripley Is A.L. Coach Of the Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Bill Ripley, whose Los Angeles Angels astounded the baseball world by finishing third in only their second season in the American League, was named the circuit's 1962 Manager of the Year Thursday in the annual Associated Press poll.

Ripley received 80 of the 100 votes cast by members of the Baseball Writers Association. Sam Mele of the second-place Minnesota Twins was a distant runner-up in the balloting with 25 votes. Ralph Houk of the pennant-winning New York Yankees was third with three.

The 43-year-old Ripley, an astute handler of youngsters, had his surprising club in second place as late as Sept. 12 before the Angels dropped to third. They wound up with 86 victories and 76 defeats, 10 games behind the Yanks and five behind the Twins.

Hunter, Mavety To Timmins

TIMMINS (CP)—Chick Cechini, manager of Timmins Flyers in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League, has announced that his club has signed two junior graduates from Belleville.

Forward Moe Hunter and defencemen Larry Mavety have signed contracts. Mavety received a telegram from the camp of Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League.

Cecchini also announced that the Flyers hope to sign Floyd Crawford of Belleville, acting coach. Crawford was captain of Belleville McFarlands when they won the world amateur title in 1959.

Western Hockey

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sid Finney spent 10 good years in the Western Hockey League with Calgary Stampeders. The Stampeders probably wish they still had him on the payroll.

The 33-year-old centre, picked up by Edmonton Flyers from Calgary before the 1963-63 campaign got under way, gave the Stampeders another hard time Thursday night.

He scored two goals and two assists in leading the Flyers to a 7-4 win over the Stamps before 2,231 fans at Calgary. At Edmonton Wednesday night, Finney scored one goal in a 3-2 Edmonton triumph against the Stampeders.

The win put the Flyers into a tie with Calgary for second place in the Northern Division with four points apiece.

Forbes Kennedy, Ray Kinasewich, Lou Marcon, Bob Dillabough and Chuck Hamilton were the other marksmen for the defending champion Flyers. Gordy Vejvoda paced Calgary with two goals. Lou Jankowski and John Kosiancic added singles.

Palermo Faces Girl Charge

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Frank (Blinky) Palermo, a former boxing promoter, was released in $1,000 bail Thursday for a further hearing in county court Nov. 1 on a charge of molesting a 13-year-old girl who had run away from a private school. He has denied the charge.

Palermo is also under $100,000 bail pending appeal of his conviction in California for extortion in attempting to muscle in on the earnings of former welterweight champion Don Jordan. Palermo was sentenced to 25 years in prison.

He surrendered through his lawyer on the molesting charge after a warrant was issued Monday, waived a hearing before county Judge Edward Kalisch and furnished bail for the further hearing.

US Football

NEW YORK (AP)—Only one thing is certain about this weekend's major college football games in the United States. Some changes will be made.

Four nationally-ranked teams lost each other in games Saturday that could have a vital bearing on the No. 1 spot in the country.

The battles match top-ranked Texas against seventh - ranked Arkansas and sixth-ranked Ohio State against No. 8 Northwestern.

Mighty Alabama, edged out of the No. 1 spot this week, is counting on a shakeup in its league to regain top place. But to do so, Alabama must get past Tennessee, which is much tougher than its 6-3 won-loss record would indicate.

One Might Go, Bavasi

Snider, Moon On Block?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers are in a trading mood, with such stars as Duke Snider and Wally Moon on the available list.

General Manager Buzzie Bavasi said Thursday the Dodgers' prime objective will be a second or third baseman and possibly a pitcher. Bavasi said that either Snider or Moon might go —not both—because it isn't fair to the others on the National League team to have two such highly paid athletes riding the bench. Each reportedly earned more than $40,000 this year.

Veterans Daryl Spencer and Andy Carey, who were merely adequate at third base, seem headed for other pastures, and catcher John Roseboro, whose hitting was a disappointment, might be expendable.

WINS STAKE

LEXINGTON, y. (AP)—Darby Dan farm's Primonetta, making her move at the top of the stretch, defeated six other fillies and mares Thursday in the $73,550 Spinster Stakes at Keeneland. Primonetta, timed in 1:48 2-5, returned $3.20, $2.20 and $2.20. Second was Royal Fairie who paid $4 and $2.20 and third, Firm Policy, $2.80 to show.

Meets Torres Thursday

Paul Pender To Retire

NORTH FALMOUTH, Mass. (AP)—Paul Pender punctuated preparations for the Nov. 2 defence of his partial middleweight crown today by announcing he'll retire after three more fights.

The outspoken ex - fireman, who once said he tolerated the fight game strictly for the money, said his decision to the 160-pound crown at Boston Garden against unbeaten Joe Torres.

"Just three more bouts, and I'll quit," Pender, 32, said during training here. "I'll fight Torres, the winner of the Gene Fullmer - Dick Tiger match (next Thursday) and then one more."

"This is no way to live. A man can't be away from his family for two and three months a year and like it. Boxing has been good to me, but you have to know when to quit."

He said the single - title bout with Fullmer or Tiger has been held up because "sponsors won't televise any title fight this year, but it should be different next year."

Pender really wants Fullmer in the oft - postponed middleweight showdown because he was the best Fullmer seven years ago in Brooklyn, despite the fact he suffered a broken right hand.

Fullmer is a 7-to-5 underdog to Tiger in defence of his title which is recognized in 48 states. Pender is little more than even odds against Torres ridding the crown recognized in two states and Europe.

Pender picks Fullmer over Tiger.

Eliminate Ottawa Valley

Trotters Rezone Country

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Trotting Association approved a rezoning of the country into 13 districts Thursday, eliminating the controversial Zone 3 in the Ottawa Valley.

The association has had problems with the Hinton Carleton Raceway was opened this year near Ottawa in opposition to the long-established Connaught raceway in nearby Hull, Que.

Under the new resolution each province will be known as one district except Ontario, which will have three, and Quebec, which will have two.

James Kanaley, managing director of Rideau Carleton raceway, opposed the zoning change, saying it was a mistake for the association to set up provincial boundaries as proposed. He said he feels the new system will not enable Connaught Park to operate freely against Rideau Carleton without having to answer to the association.

The Tracks

The four wins brought Turcotte's total to 66 after 40 days of the current 45-day meeting. Toronto racing shifts Monday to Old Woodbine.

Kentucky Warbler—which had only one win in eight starts at Arlington Park, Washington Park and Churchill Downs—discovered Woodbine a month ago. The five - year - old bay, owned by Thomas E. Hays, has contributed five victories to Turcotte and to trainer Frank Merrill's leading total of 22.

Turcotte rode the double Thursday, on Finnalls in the first and That Critter in the second for a $18.20 payoff.

Pratt, 25, required only 26 putts for his round in overcast and showery Pratt had 31-35—66 for the par 36-35—71 Whispering Lakes course.

Jerry Steinberg, Glendale, Calif., shot a 35-33—67 for second place.

'Two for the Seesaw' Will Likely Win Many Oscars

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—On the stage, Two for the Seesaw was a duet for actor and actress written by a pool of rare insight, William Gibson.

As written for the screen by Isobel Lennart, Two for the Seesaw lacks some of its original poetic quality. But it remains a remarkably human love story about real people, and you don't find many such vehicles nowadays.

Robert Wise, a Wincester, Ind., boy with a sure ear for the New York idiom (West Side Story), faced some problems in directing Seesaw.

The stage version had been played in two shabby apartments, side by side. The entire original cast consisted of Anne Bancroft as the warm-hearted Gittel Mosca, and Henry Fonda as Jerry Ryan, the displaced Omaha lawyer.

Obviously two players could not occupy the entire running time on a panavision screen. The locales were broadened, but the major part of the story is still played in the two apartments, his and hers.

MACLAINE MARVELLOUS

As another concession to the screen, Gittel is a bit less Bronxian and Jerry somewhat less square than in the original. But both are enormously appealing as faultlessly played by Shirley MacLaine and Robert Mitchum.

MacLaine is marvellous, as expected. A bit of a kook herself, she fitted perfectly into Gittel's black tights. She is forever the doormat, accustomed to having men take advantage of her generosity and surprised when she comes along to castigate her for it.

It is a standout performance, certain to lure another Oscar nomination for the actress. Her ever-moving face is a joy to watch, and she is blessed with scenes of the brightest dialogue since Born Yesterday.

The casting of Robert Mitchum was more adventurous. He has not been noted as an actor of sensitivity, largely because he seldom has had a chance with sensitive roles. In Seesaw he gives new examination to that tidy band of rooters who have been saying for years that Mitchum is Hollywood's most underrated actor.

Note to parents: This is adult entertainment.

AT THE BELLE — Tonight and Saturday — In a tender scene from the Academy Award winning film "Spartacus", Charles Laughton grants freedom to slave girl Jean Simmons, as Peter Ustinov looks on. "Spartacus" is widely acclaimed for its unique blending of a tender love story, set in a frame-work of eye-filling spectacle.

AT THE PARK — Gregory Peck has to warn his family, Polly Bergen and daughter Lori Martin, of a fearful threat to their lives in this scene from Universal's suspense drama, "Cape Fear", opening Monday at the Park Theatre for its first Belleville and district showings. Peck and Miss Bergen are starred in the Melville-Talbott production, with Robert Mitchum. Based on the bestseller thriller, "The Executioners". the film was produced by Sy Bartlett and directed by J. Lee Thompson. On the same program the added suspense drama "Five Minutes to Live", stars Johnny Cash, Donald Woods and Cay Forester with Pamela Mason.

'Dramatized Documentary' On Tunnel to be Screened

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Amid the hullabalooo over NBC's plans to show a film about a Berlin escape tunnel, CBS can feel a little smug after it dropped its show on the same subject following a nudge from the state department.

But Robert E. Costello, producer of CBS' Close Up Theatre, now in its sixth season, feels vindicated. He is preparing a "dramatized documentary" of a tunnel escapes from East Berlin for broadcast Nov. 7, and nobody has any objections to a fictional treatment of an explosive, delicate subject.

The producer in recent seasons has been growing increasingly suspicious about the way CBS treated the program.

"Several years ago, before CBS plunged into night - time public affairs shows—before the Federal Communications Commission became so interested in public affairs shows—the network seemed thrilled with what we were doing, let us alone and permitted us to do what we wanted."

This halcyon period came to an end when CBS took away Douglas Edwards, a staff newsreporter who had been doing the narration on the shows, on the ground, Costello said, that the network news department had no control over the content of the show.

"Then the squeeze started," he continued. "On several occasions we were told we couldn't use a person on our show—we wanted Adlai Stevenson to talk about slavery under communism for one show. We couldn't. When we wanted to do a story about corruption in one particular city police department, we found ourselves harassed and hamstrung in a vague area of program practices."

No Sign Summit Talks Would Settle Berlin

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top Soviet Leader Nikita Khrushchev failed to yield any evidence today that a Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting next month could put an end to the Berlin crisis.

President Kennedy spent two hours and 45 minutes in discussion with Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko at the White House Thursday and then Secretary of State Secretary Rusk then continued the talks at the state department for 4½ hours — until after midnight.

A department spokesman said the meeting failed to clear up the positions of either side in the Berlin dispute—positions which are regarded here as putting Russia and the Western powers on a collision course over West Berlin's future.

It is known that the Soviet leader is seriously considering such a trip to the United Nations in New York next month and that he would like to talk with Kennedy about Berlin.

Kennedy is understood to have received no hint that such a meeting unless there is hope it will result in easing the dispute. However, he has said that if Khrushchev comes to the United States he will see him.

REPORTS ACCORD

RONDON (AP)—Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder of West Germany said today that he and President Kennedy agreed the West will not accept any further interference in access to Berlin.

Schroeder reported this upon his return to Bonn after his talks with Kennedy, State Secretary Dean Rusk and Defence Secretary McNamara.

The foreign minister said that major concessions would lead to only a "wall of paper between the East-West standpoints which could be broken by a mere push of the finger."

NBC Will Show Berlin Tunnel Despite Pleas

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Broadcasting Company proceeded today with preparations for a 90-minute special television program Oct. 21 about an escape tunnel under the Berlin wall.

Announcement of the project last Thursday precipitated a running controversy. Seventeen of the West Berlin students who dug the tunnel said they had asked NBC not to show the film. So did the West Berlin Senate, which expressed fear for the safety of those who helped 20 East Germans escape to freedom. The U.S. state department also was drawn into the matter.

An NBC statement said that "at no time did NBC receive a request from any government agency to withdraw film coverage of the digging of a tunnel under the Berlin wall."

A spokesman added that the network stood on an earlier statement that it had full confidence that both the state department and the West Berlin city government "have no objection to the program's nature and content . . . will agree with NBC that it will not be injurious to the interests of the governments and individuals involved."

CANADIAN EXPERT IN TOGO — Dr. G. J. F. Millette, a Canadian hydrology expert, works with natives in southern Togo to measure rainfall and wind in the West African republic. Agriculture Expert Helping Togo Meet Drought Problem

LOME, Togo (CP)—A Canadian agricultural expert is helping this West African republic tackle its perpetual drought problems.

Dr. G. J. F. Millette, in charge of the Fredericton research station of the federal agriculture department since 1953, is in Togo for the UN's Food and Agriculture Organization.

"Either there is too much or not enough water," said Dr. Millette, who has been a soils lecturer and consultant geochemist at the University of New Brunswick.

"The crops depend on the rains and every three or four years the millet crop, which is grown between the main crops of yams, cassava and maize, is destroyed through, and the people have not enough other food available to replace the millet. This is what happened earlier this year."

The FAO has undertaken a project to store water in small dams so that it can be used to irrigate the land and offset the effects of drought. This modest project is at present restricted to a few valleys in the northern part of the long, narrow country.

"The government is very keen to expand this type of earth dam to the whole country," said Dr. Millette, "but a general soil and water resources survey must be made before such an ambitious scheme can be undertaken.

"Soil and hydrological maps of selected areas now are being made by a team of soil surveyors and hydrologists. . . . The maps that the experts prepare will serve as a basis for the future development of agriculture in Togo."

Because Togo has a swampy coastal belt, hilly lands in the central part and a low mountain range in the north, it presents special problems. Experts suggest the lowlands should be drained, the hills irrigated and the mountainous area terraced.

The French Institute of Geography is co-operating in the soil survey project. The second stage is a detailed survey of three typical strips of land to provide information on rainfall, water flow, evaporation, infiltration, soil analysis and geological conditions. This information will be used later on a broader scale.

Dr. Millette, a graduate of University of Toronto, has his PhD from Pennsylvania State University, is working on the $1,000,000 project with a French-Canadian research team based on ships passing beneath. A state visit, he was inspecting work on a new bridge.

'Dad' of Fuller Brush Men Took Stake of $375 and Ran It to $120 Million Business

By JOSEPH MacSWEKEN

EAST HARTFORD, Conn. (CP)—What you notice first about the "Dad" of Fuller Brush men is how little he acts like a salesman.

Alfred Carl Fuller, 77, who fathered a sales technique that is part of folklore, is far removed from the popular image of the breezy, back - slapping practitioner of the so - called hard sell.

In a classic farmboy-to-riches story, Fuller took a stake of $375 and founded a firm whose annual business now is $120,000,000 and whose some 350 products are sold throughout the United States and Canada by independent door-to-door salesmen.

Paradox seems to be a companion for the original Fuller Brush man, who was an utter flop at his first three jobs.

Although endowed with a quiet humor, the self-styled country bumpkin from Nova Scotia seldom makes jokes. Yet he and his sales staff of 9,000 rank second only to mothers-in-law as a source of joke material.

FOOT IN DOOR

In most minds, the phrase "a foot in the door" typifies a Fuller Brush man and that is the way it is supposed to picked for his autobiography. But in fact, he taught his salesmen to take a step backward—not forward—when a housewife opens the door.

Other tycoons tend to emphasize intricate economic principles to explain their operations. Fuller talks in down-to-earth fashioned things such as value for value and lessons learned in the strawberry patch about thrift and incentive.

"I was making something people wanted and we found a way to get it to them," Fuller told an interviewer who asked the secret of his success.

As chairman of the board—his 46-year-old son Avard, now president of Fuller Brush—the founder devotes much effort to educational, philanthropic and community affairs but is found in his office every day.

NOVA SCOTIA FLAG

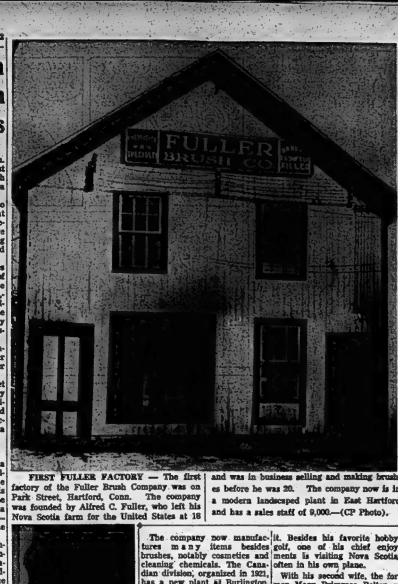
His office sports a Nova Scotia flag and big paintings of Fuller homes. The executive placed his huge hands on his desk and leaned forward, emphasizing some points.

"No one knows what action and reaction have a particular result, except perhaps in the professions and the arts. To start a new business, there's no guide. . . .

"What the elements were that caused this business to be a success is hard to say. The business was built by a lot of people who have a talent for what they're doing. This is an infectious thing. You have to like it.

"The symbols of human relations is awfully important. The tendency is to be self-centred, almost selfish, and the farther you get away from that the better for building and expanding. You'd like to reduce all these things to a science, but you can't. Human nature being what it is.

"I notice that today many people of 25 and 30 years of age are unhappy—not sure whether they're in the right position. This causes me to think that the key is that ours has been a growing business throughout the U.S. and Canada and it presented an opportunity for a person to grow as he grew. I never thought he was in one. We've enjoyed a good spirit.



"I've always said there is just as much opportunity for young people today—more, in fact—than when I started nearly 50 years ago, although I realize my experience was unusual."

Fuller led the reporter to the plant cafeteria, toted a tray to a table and launched with a boisterous group of visiting salesmen and their wives. He gave them a big talk and beamed when they referred to him as dad, his tag in the company for many years.

"I was called dad when I was barely old enough to be pa to anyone," he smiled.

It's ironic that Nova Scotia gave the world Sam Slick, the fictional character who specialized in sharp trades, and Fuller, credited by many for making the "peddlar" respectable.

Fuller's slogan, which he adapted from his father, was "Bless This House."

FIRST FULLER FACTORY — The first factory of the Fuller Brush Company on Park Street, Hartford, Conn. The company was founded by Alfred C. Fuller, who left his Nova Scotia farm for the United States at 18 and was in business selling and making brushes as before he was 20. The company now is in a modern landscaped plant in East Hartford and has a sales staff of 9,000.—(CP Photo).

The company now manufactures many items besides brushes, including cosmetics and cleaning chemicals. The Canadian division, organized in 1921, has a new plant at Burlington, Ont., employing 350. There are approximately 1,200 Fuller Brush dealers in Canada—each a small businessman on his own, buying his wares wholesale and retailing them to his customers, aided by the techniques developed through the years.

"One of the reasons for my good health is that I've had such good support I haven't had to worry much," said Fuller, who retired from the presidency in 1943 in favor of his elder son Howard. Howard and his wife were killed in a car crash in 1959 and Avard—the only other son—succeeded.

NON-SMOKER

The Fuller founder, a Christian scientist, is a non-smoker and does not take tea or coffee, although he will have a cocktail if the social situation demands it. Besides his favorite hobby, golf, one of his chief enjoyments is visiting Nova Scotia, often in his own plane.

With his second wife, the former Mary Primrose Felton of Yarmouth, N.S., he takes a keen interest in educational and civic affairs and chairman of the board of founders of University of Hartford, to which he has contributed $1,000,000. He received several honorary degrees, including one from Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S.

"I've never accumulated money for the sake of accumulation," said Fuller, adding he would be one of the world's wealthiest men but for heavy taxes.

"It is no good for a man to be found dead with $10,000,000 or $12,000,000 any more," he grinned.

"I have kept busy because I don't think a mature businessman who has much to be grateful for has the right to retire and go fishing."

STARTED A LEGEND

Alfred Carl Fuller, the Nova Scotia farmboy who founded the Fuller Brush Co., rests on the steps of his boyhood home during a visit to the farm at Welsford, N.S. Fuller, whose firm in East Hartford, Conn., does an annual business of $120,000,000 fathered a door-to-door sales technique that has become part of folklore. The Welsford farm is operated by a nephew. (CP Photo).

Scoharie

"Through your acts of loving kindness
May be small indeed,
Yet they bring to sad hearts courage
In their time of need.
Just a smile, a cheerful greeting,
Makes the sun to shine;
Just to lift another's burdens
Is an act divine.
Let us then press forward,
knowing
God is pleased when we
Gladly share our store with others
When their need we see".

Private FM Ont. Network Being Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — Two privately - owned radio stations sought Wednesday to sever their ties with the newly - formed CBC radio network on the grounds it is causing them economic loss.

The applications by CHSJ Saint John, N.B., and CKAR Huntsville, Ont., were opposed by the CBC as contrary to the national interest at a public hearing of the Board of Broadcast Governors.

At the same time, CHFI-FM Limited, Toronto, sought authority to organize a private FM network in Ontario, which initially might serve Belleville, Cobourg, Brantford, Kitchener, London and Toronto. However, it would be necessary to make a further application to the board for permission to actually operate such a network.

Without opposing the CHFI submission, the CBC asked that all parties bear in mind possible subsequent development of a CBC FM national network, paralleling the new AM radio network, to which private FM stations might be affiliated.

The board is expected to announce its recommendations on the submissions made at this week's hearings possibly towards the end of next week.

CHINESE, INDIANS CLASH ON BORDER

Seek Identity Of Woman Killed At Plainfield

Companion in Hospital; Car Hits Hydro Pole

A Rochester, N.Y. yacht "Folly II," burned to the waterline about 200 yards off the Government Dock following an explosion in her engine compartment at about 11:00 o'clock this morning.

Rescued from the burning craft after they had taken to the water were Kendall B. Castle, Jr., Newton B. Castle and Bruce Smith, all of Rochester. It was reported that the craft had just been gassed in Belleville harbor following an overnight stay here. The Castles are well known yachting people from Rochester.

Three Saved As Boat Burns Off Harbor

Ontario Provincial Police here are looking for the owner of a vehicle in which one girl was fatally injured and another seriously hurt.

Police as yet, have been unable to identify the dead woman, but they believe may be from Hull, Quebec.

In Belleville General Hospital is 18 year-old Mrs. Martha Cartier of 354 Chaplain Street, Hull.

Mrs. Cartier is said to be suffering a fractured left leg and lacerations in her face and arms. Her condition makes questioning impossible.

Police say the car was proceeding south on highway No. 37 and came around a sharp curve to the right at Plainfield. The driver failed to negotiate the curve went across the highway and smashed into a hydro pole, practically wrecking the car.

Staff Sgt. Gail of the Ontario Provincial Police said the police have been unable to locate the owner of the car and are unable to identify the dead woman. He said police are waiting for a phone call which he hoped would clear the matter up.

Bill Providing Minimum Wage 'Talked Out'

OTTAWA (CP)—Sharp ideological differences emerged in a Commons debate Friday as MPs "talked out" an opposition bill providing for a $1.25 minimum wage for workers in the labor fields under federal jurisdiction.

The bill sponsored by Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) did not come to a vote during the hour set aside for private members' bills and so may not come up again this session.

New Democrats and Liberals said a minimum hourly wage is needed on humanitarian grounds and to end "alarming exploitation of labor."

Conservative and Social Credit speakers opposed the measure on a variety of grounds.

Deputy Social Credit Leader of Real Caouette said every worker should get at least $1.50 an hour, but the socialist bill would place private enterprise in a strait jacket.

Order SIU Stop Picketing Canadian Ship

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Great Lakes district of the Seafarers International Union (AFL-CIO) was convicted today of an unfair labor practice in the picketing of a foreign-flag vessel at a Lake Superior port last fall.

The National Labor Relations Board, upholding a three - man board panel, handed down a cease and desist order in connection with the picketing of the Canadian ore ship Northern Venture at Marquette Nov. 18 22, 1961.

At the same time, the SIU International Union, an original codefendant in the prolonged case, was exonerated. The complaint against the International was dismissed.

An injunction against picketing of the Northern Venture, handed down in U.S. District Court in western Michigan at Grand Rapids, still was in effect as the NLRB decision was announced.

Bandit Hounded by Language Problem and Frightened Teller

HULL, Que. (CP) — Police told the story Friday night of the frustrated would-be bank robber who tried to hold up three banks without success.

The bandit was hounded by a language problem, frightened by a fainting teller, confounded by a slippery floor and finally nabbed by a fleet-footed bank employee and a police constable.

Police are holding Donald Abbey, 33, of Montreal, and Gaston Lemieux, Archbishop of Ottawa; and Most Rev. Philip Pocock, Archbishop coadjutor of Toronto.

Jury Praises Policeman Who Stayed on Land

TORONTO (CP)—Policeman Gerard Switzer has been absolved by a coroner's jury of criminal responsibility in the Oct. 11 drowning of Michele Bredin, 7.

The jury was told the constable, a non-swimmer, radioed for help and within minutes two other constables arrived. But neither was able to swim.

Michael Bredin, the victim's 10 - year - old brother testified Friday he and his sister fell into the water from rocks at the end of a pier.

The jury commended the constable for his sensible decision not to jump into the lake and recommended that piers be fenced in and warning signs posted.

ENGLISH-FRENCH RIVALRIES BEING REVIVED IN QUE.

Issue for Calling Election Forgotten

QUEBEC (CP)—Almost - forgotten English-French rivalries in Quebec are being revived in the campaign for the general provincial election Wednesday, Nov. 14.

Both the Liberal and Union Nationale parties have been more than just pin-pricking the old hurts. There have been such hard slashes that the issue on which the government called the snap election—expropriation of private power companies—seems almost forgotten.

The Liberal administration of Premier Jean Lesage, in office just slightly less than 28 months, is committed to expropriating the 11 power companies. It is asking for a clear mandate to have Hydro-Hydro take them over at an estimated over-all cost of $600,000,000.

The Union Nationale opposition of Daniel Johnson, former hydraulic resources minister, is dodging a definite stand on the issue. It demands a take-over of those small companies in the under - developed Gaspe and Abitibi regions and a referendum on the question before expropriating the nine others.

DEBATE OTHER ISSUES

Apart from Mr. Lesage's argument that a unified system of electricity is necessary for a planned development and decentralization of industry, the province's 2,400,000 voters aren't hearing much about the pros and cons of the economics of public- and private-ownership of power.

Instead, the voters have been hearing more and more about such emotional appeals as the question of religion in schools, and the acknowledged control that English-speaking financial interests have over Quebec's industrial growth.

There has been a noticeable increase of mud-slinging in the

FARM CREDIT ACT AMENDMENT BILL BLOCKED

Remarks Tossed Not Compliments

By JACK BEST

OTTAWA (CP)—The farmer-vote "Yo-Yo" situation was demonstrated from the Conservative side of the Commons towards the end of Friday's inconclusive debate on the Farm Credit Act.

The remark, tossed at Hazen Argue (L—Assiniboia), was not intended as a compliment.

Mr. Argue, the Saskatchewan farmer who belted the New Democratic Party last winter to join the ranks of the Liberals, had just raised Conservative heckles by holding up introduction of amendments to the act.

The amendments would increase the capital of the Farm Credit Corporation by $18,000,000 from $12,000,000 so as to boost the corporation's lending capacity to $400,000,000 from $300,000,000.

However, they cannot be introduced until the way is paved through approval of a preliminary resolution—and Mr. Argue decided not to allow the resolution the required quick consent Friday.

URGED FAST PASSAGE

Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton had asked for speedy passage of the resolution so that the house could "get off to a good start next session" on the amendments.

Mr. Argue thereupon requested assurance that the bill would be sent, after second reading, to the Commons committee on agriculture and colonization where improvements could be proposed by the Liberals.

The agriculture minister countered by suggesting that the legislation be passed first —"so that I can operate this session as I see fit in eastern Canada"—and officials of the Farm Credit Corporation examined it more closely later.

This proposal did not commend itself to the Liberals' farm spokesman. The debate likely will be resumed next week.

Monty Says People Wasting Their Time

LONDON (CP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery Friday night said the addition but said were wasting their time raking up old issues in a dispute arising out of the recent publication of Field Marshal Alexander's memoirs.

Lord Alexander, Canadian governor-general from 1946 to 1952, wrote sections that have been inserted into his official dispatch after the El Alamein campaign which Monty has given the wrong man credit for planning Allied strategy in the battle of Alam el Halfa.

The sentence mentioned Montgomery and Alexander as experts to argue whether Montgomery or Field Marshal Sir Claude Auchinleck planned the battle.

Alexander later admitted he had approved the addition but had forgotten about it over the years.

The controversy had faded until Friday night when Montgomery addressed a reunion of El Alamein veterans here.

"Our concern these days is to prevent a third world war, and not to argue about the past one," he said.

"I should have thought we had enough trouble with that battle 20 years ago."

Caouette Is Called Fascist By Hecklers at B.C. Meeting

VANCOUVER (CP) — Votes in nearby Burnaby-Coquitlam constituency will elect a member to the House of Commons Monday after a quiet campaign, marked only by one rowdy rally.

Five candidates are in the running for the seat vacated by Erhart Regier after the June 18 election to give New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas, defeated in Regina, another chance for election.

A highlight of the campaign is Independent George Burnham's platform. The 72-year-old cafe owner who sold his business to finance his campaign has elaborate plans for an underground duplicate of the city of Vancouver so the city will survive a nuclear war.

The campaign came alive two weeks ago when Deputy Social Credit Leader Real Caouette spoke in support of lumberjacker Rene Baouache.

The deputy leader had a running battle with a large group

Committee Aims to Improve Lot of Nova Scotia's Negroes

HALIFAX (CP) — A committee on human rights aimed at improving the lot of Nova Scotia's Negroes has been created by the provincial government, Premier Stanfield announced Friday night.

Spokesman for the province's 13,000 Negroes immediately welcomed it as a progressive step. In widely-spread parts of the province. Most cities and towns have Negro communities of between 10 and 100 families, but the heaviest concentrations are around Halifax, Truro, New Glasgow and in the Annapolis Valley.

The premier said the committee will be assigned to define objectives and co-ordinate the efforts of various government departments which have been working among the Negroes for some time.

Commented Rev. H. C. Cornish of Zion Baptist Church in Truro: "It is something that will bring about a better understanding between the races. When the government takes a step it more or less puts a stamp of approval on a pro-

Airliner Door Blows Open, Stewardess Falls to Death

WINDSOR LOCKS, Conn. (AP)—The pretty stewardess was announcing the landing at Bradley Field when a tremendous blast of air roared through the plane.

Heads turned but all that could be seen was the rear door flapping from one hinge. She was gone, swept out into the night.

Two hours later Friday night, the body of Francoise de Morniere, 22, was found in a field 1,500 feet below.

Charles Mack, 36, of Springfield, Mass., had been sitting next to Miss de Morniere on the second leg of Allegheny Airline's flight 928 from Washington to Providence, R.I.

Between Philadelphia and Windsor Locks, site of Bradley Field, the wind began screaming through a gap that opened around the rear door, Mack said.

Miss de Morniere, a native of Paris and a veteran of two years' service with Allegheny,

Communists Use Very Large Force In Strong Attack

No Military Planes Are Yet in Action

CP from Reuters-AP

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Communist Chinese troops today captured Khinsemane on India's northeast frontier after Indian troops fought "to the last round," the defence ministry said.

The announcement came hours after Defence Minister V. K. Krishna Menon said Chinese troops had launched "very heavy" attacks in the disputed northeastern frontier agency area and the Ladakh area of Kashmir.

Menon said the Chinese "attacked in large number all our forward posts in the Khinsemane and Dhola area" and that "very heavy fighting is going on area with "very large forces of Chinese thrown into the attack."

The defence ministry said an Indian helicopter being used to evacuate casualties from the fighting in the Ladakh area was been shot down by the Chinese.

Red China earlier had accused India of opening attacks on both ends of the disputed border—the Ladakh area in the west and the north-east frontier Agency, about 900 miles to the east. Menon asserted that Peking's charge was a coverup for the Red Chinese operation.

The Chinese "suffered heavy losses and were compelled to take up resolute self-defence action," on the eastern frontier, the Communist New China news agency said.

Menon said the Chinese onslaught in the northeast opened at 5 a.m. and very heavy fighting still continued at 11 a.m.

USE LARGE FORCES

Calling the Chinese attacks premeditated and concerted, Menon said Chinese troops concentrated very large forces in the eastern sector and "these are all being thrown into the attack." He said the attack came after a bombardment with heavy mortars and machine-guns.

Menon refused to estimate the numbers involved in the fighting, but informed sources have spoken of thousands on each side in the area.

At the same time, the Chinese attacked Indian posts in the Chip Chap River valley, to the Mystery Pickets, Identity Secret, Tie Up West Coast Construction

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mystery pickets, who parade in silence and anonymity, have tied up three construction projects in British Columbia in the last month.

They decline to identify themselves on their union and no union will admit responsibility for them.

Twice there have been two men, once three.

And always their placards read:

"Non-union men are working on this job."

They first appeared outside the $2,200,000 addition to the Vancouver Vocational Institute and 100 men went home.

"I was told to hire teamsters or the delays would continue," said A. R. Grimwood, contractor on the job.

"The grievance was apparently over my purchasing agent occasionally driving a truck."

The delay, which Grimwood blamed on "a small group" of union leaders, lasted a week.

A spokesman for the provincial government said the government could do nothing to prevent such picketing.

He said the contractor should have obtained an injunction to remove the pickets. Then, any refusal to go to work would have become illegal.

Larry Anderson, business agent for local 52 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America (CLC), said the school walkout arose from a Teamsters' grievance. He declined to say who paid the pickets. All unions on the job were affiliated into the Building Trades Council.

"Picketing is illegal in B.C. unless there is a strike," said Anderson. "There was no strike at the building. However, you can be sure the signs carried by the pickets were painted by union painters."

The contractor had Cyrus McCoristone and Stewart Trainee charged with unlawfully attempting to persuade employees not to enter their employer's place of operations. Later the charges were dropped when the men promised it wouldn't happen again.

Said Ralph Giesler, superintendent for Peter Kiewit Sons Company of Canada Limited, primary contractor on the project:

"Why the pickets were there, I don't know."

The latest incident occurred at an apartment block site in western Vancouver. About 25 men had declined to cross the picket line.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Cooler air that moved into Northern Ontario Friday dropped temperatures below the freezing mark in many areas overnight. One of the coldest reporting points was White River with 23 degrees early this morning. Rain is forecast to spread into southern Ontario tonight, possibly beginning as a few showers near Lake Erie earlier today.

Move to Prohibit Drug Used in Alcohol Cure

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says that the federal government has moved to prohibit a drug used in the treatment of alcoholism and certain mental diseases.

The newspaper says the prohibition is contained in amendments to the Food and Drug Act now before Parliament. It says doctors and medical researchers, who were apparently not consulted on the proposed ban, are puzzled and dismayed.

The drug is known as LSD, lysergic acid diethylamide, used in treating alcoholics and as an adjunct to psychotherapy.

The newspaper says a number of officials had heard of the proposed ban only through a memo sent to hospitals, clinics and wholesale drug distributors under the signature of Dr. C. A. Morrell, director of the food and drug directorate at Ottawa.

The newspaper says that Dr. Ved Archaleya, director of the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario, has sent a telegram of inquiry to Ottawa. The foundation is about to launch a program of experimental treatment of alcoholics with LSD.

U.S. Explodes Nuclear Device

HONOLULU (AP)—A nuclear device carried aloft by a specially built rocket was detonated successfully Friday night over Johnston Island — the second success in six attempts in the U.S. high-altitude series.

Joint task force 8 spokesmen immediately announced that the next test will take place between 9:30 p.m. Honolulu time (3:30) a.m. EDT) Oct. 23 and 3:30 a.m. (8:30 a.m. EDT) Oct. 24.

went forward and brought back co-pilot Thomas Hawkins. Together they stuffed pillow cases around the loose door, Mack said, adding:

"The noise stopped. She sat down again and we chatted. A little while later, she said 'Excuse me, I have to announce our descent.'"

The terrific blast of air ended Miss de Moriere's announcement.

A second stewardess, Kathy Lacey, 20, of Washington, was in a lavatory when the door blew open. The rush of air ripped off the lavatory door, but two male passengers grabbed Miss Lacey and saved her from being pulled out of the plane.

Officials of the Civil Aeronautics Board and the Federal Aviation Agency were to begin investigating the incident today.

The loose outside door had reported to Bradley Field at about 10 a.m. ADT by pilot Harold Gould, 38, of Alexandria, Va. Two minutes later, Gould radioed back that the door had gone and Miss de Moriere had been "elected."

After landing the twin-engined plane with all 47 passengers safe and sound, Gould helped state police plot his approach, course in an effort to pinpoint the spot where the stewardess had fallen.

A helicopter equipped with searchlights buzzed back and forth over the course, guiding the searchers on the ground.

However, it was Robert Swingle of Farmington, a town several miles west of Hartford, who found the body.

Swingle had gone out to investigate a noise and had found a pillage and other debris from the plane in his yard. He called police.

Swingle then began a closer search of his property and found the body of the stewardess in about 100 yards behind his house.

'Education Is Inadequate' Says Speaker at Convocation Held at Albert College

By GLADYS WARD

By the time you are in High School you should be intelligent, self-employed," vowed W. T. Ross Flemington, O.B.E., M.A., B.Paed., D.D., LL.D., Paed. Director of Education, Canada's External Aid Office, told the students of Albert College at their fall Convocation in Memorial Chapel on Friday morning.

Dr. Flemington who was President of Mount Allison University, N.B. referred to the ties between Albert College and Mount Allison, which both the Principal, Rev. J. Alistair Reig and the immediate Past President, A. E. MacKenzie are Alumni.

"You are at a school which stands for education at its best," Dr. Flemington said. "You are living in a world that is at a catastrophic age of revolution. It is an age of crisis where education is concerned. There is a crisis of numbers. But partly to the population growth, partly to increased wealth and partly to increased interest in education. It is a crisis because our education is inadequate.

"The crisis is found all over the world today. There is a tremendous feeling of pressure and the urge for education. Whatever you begin to educate a person you teach him, however feebly, to think. Education is started in the early years in the home, and the first five years are very important. To reading, writing and arithmetic have been added responsibility and listening, because radio, television and movies are the tools of the strongest educators today.

"All through education a golden thread is woven, learning to think. It is better to have an African nation learning to think, than an African nation living in the past.

WORLD TERRIBLY NEEDY

"Dr. Ross of the University of Toronto used to ask his graduates these questions, 'Do you realize that your education has just begun? Science is doubling in information every eight to ten years. Have you learned to think? Parents have passed on their thought images, and you have imbibed their attitudes. You must have different thoughts than your parents. You must learn to think for yourselves. Have you learned the discipline of work? Have you learned to care? First for yourself, then for others. You must learn to care about yourselves before you can care about your fellowman. Do you care about justice, truth, and virtue? Do you care about the world? The world go to bed hungry every night, and what are you going to do about it? The world is terribly needy.'

"The leaders of a newly-independent African country said there are three things needed, a flag, a national anthem, and a university. Today the Commonwealth is assisting those nations to build universities although there are no secondary schools, but the university will pull them up to it. They have to learn to care about what it has taken us centuries to learn.

"You are called to go out as educators to teach the basis of industry and agriculture. It is a challenge and a tremendous responsibility. One thing that is fundamental is education, but education in itself is not enough. It must be combined with religion, which is the centre of things, I would like to trace in the years to come the history of those who go out from here under the present regime."

SPEAKS OF SERVICE

In introducing the speaker, Mr. J. O. Demeza, vice chairman of the Board of Governors, spoke of Dr. Flemington's service as a pilot in World War I, in the Royal Canadian Air Force, his service as a Rhodes Scholar, his graduation from Queen's University, his service as a distinguished clergyman and educator, and now had the task of co-ordinating and administering Canada's External Aid program, as director of education.

Mr. Stuart Robb expressed sincere appreciation to the speaker on behalf of the listeners. The value of education and its relation to religion was a message that would be remembered.

Principal of the school, Rev. J. A. Reig, presided at this one hundred and fifth year convocation. Mr. Hall read greetings from Rev. Bert Howard,

FLOOR SANDING AND FINISHING
GLEN ELLIOT
186 Dufferin Ave. WO 2-3403

Principal Emeritus of Albert College and from Rev. A. E. MacKenzie, both of whom expressed regrets at being unable to be present.

"I am overjoyed to welcome back the graduates tonight," said Principal Reig. "Some of you have been in these cloisters five years. Last year was a happy one, because there was a good spirit present. Albert College becomes a part of your life, and I hope the graduates will look back with ever increasing gratitude and joy to these years."

Rev. Reig introduced four new members of the faculty: Mrs. Winifred Graham, Dean of Women; Mr. D. Misener and Miss Foye Organ, physical education instructors, and Mr. D. MacNicol.

The academic procession entered with the members of the faculty leading, followed by the Board members and the visiting clergymen, with Mr. Douglas Hoare presiding at the organ.

The invocation was given by Rev. Mervyn McFarlane, minister of Tabernacle United Church. The audience joined in singing the Albert College hymn. The school choir, directed by Mr. J. MacKay, Dean of Music, sang "Blest with fine effect in "Onward Christian Soldiers."

The trophy table was decorated with a beautiful floral arrangement of bronze and gold chrysanthemums.

Mr. J. MacKay officiated for the presentation of certificates. The N. A. Bean award was won by Garth Jackson. Mr. Murray Irwin explained the origin of the award and its purpose which was to encourage leadership. The recipient must be a Grade XII student who was returning for Grade XIII. The qualities of leadership must be recognized by the student body as a whole, and involved responsibility as the recipient must consider the general good of Albert College.

Miss Woodard presented an award in music to Ann Barbour which represented a full credit for Grade XIII academic study.

The Governor General's medal which is the highest academic award for Grade XII was won by William James who is attending Queen's University. Mr. James also won the certificate for an Ontario scholar and was congratulated by Principal Reig who said it was a great honor to have this award come to Albert College.

After accepting the double awards, Garth Jones spoke briefly, saying that he had noticed that all returning students said two things, "You don't appreciate Albert College until after you have left" and "Events in the chapel are what stay deepest in my mind." Principal Reig is the centre of the school, not only in the physical sense, but of the spirit as well. The process of education is not only in an academic sense, but is more embracing. It is more than knowledge. It is something we can apply after - we leave here. My winning the awards was not a credit to me, but to Albert College."

A reception was held after the service in Ackerman Hall, where refreshments were served by the ladies of the faculty. Following this the annual dance was enjoyed to the music of the Dixie Five.

IN MEMORIAM

RUSHLOW — In loving memory of a beloved husband and father (Mrs.) Ethel Rushlow, who passed away October 20th, 1949.

Deep in the heart lies a picture,
Of a loved one true and kind,
In memory's frame we shall keep it,
Always.

Because she was one of the best
Of a husband, daughter Marjorie, Carman, John and Bonnie.

RUSHLOW — In loving memory of a dear mother Ethel Rushlow who passed away 13 years ago today.

She took no one her last farewell,
She said goodbye to none.
She left behind a world of sorrow,
When she left for heaven alone.
Often sit and think of you,
And talk about you used to say;
I wonder why you had to die,
Without a word, you left us all.
Thought out of sight, you're ever in mind.
Sadly missed, still mourned.
You will live with me in memory
Until I, too, am called.
Inserted by her loving husband John, daughter Marjorie and son-in-law Gerald and grandchildren.

RUSHLOW — In loving memory of Ethel Rushlow who passed away October 20th, 1949.

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last.
The world's weary troubles and trials are past.
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more.

—Ever remembered by son Bill and wife, daughter-in-law Stella and grandchildren.

the McMahon line and the river and also ammunition and weapons."

The Northeast Frontier Agency fighting is confined to a narrow steep - sided valley bordered by the Tsa Ridge, which India claims is the border in this area.

Two days ago, the Chinese reported the Indians had begun heavy shelling in the area and this was taken by observers to indicate a preliminary softening up of the Chinese position in preparation for an Indian attack.

Before Menon's announcement, Indian officials declined to comment on the Peking reports of a large-scale Indian attack.

Menon reported Indian supply dropping planes were attacked from Chinese ground fire on both fronts today, but all had returned to base.

"No military aircraft are in action as far as we are concerned," he said. "All our planes are supply planes."

Since then there has apparently been a change of heart and Land 'O Lakes officials have decided to approach the Highlands of Hastings district with the view of forming a region.

Students Will Study Family For Diseases

KINGSTON (CP) — A New York cancer specialist told the Ontario Association of Pathologists today about techniques to determine the rate of multiplication of cells in tumors.

Dr. Patrick J. Fitzgerald, chief pathologist at New York University medical school, told the association's 25th annual conference that a photographic technique is used in his detection process.

Cell tissues are covered with a photographic emulsion and then placed under a microscope to determine the presence and eventually the rate of cell division, he said. A cure for the cancer would depend on control of cell devision.

In conjunction with the conference, Queen's University announced that undergraduate medical training will include stationing of the student with a family in future.

Dr. John H. Read, head of public health and preventive medicine at Queen's medical school, said third-year medical students will be stationed under the supervision of a general practitioner.

The student will be placed in contact with all the needs and problems of a family to gain valuable training in preventive medicine as it applies to the family as a whole.

The annual meeting of the Quinte Association was held Thursday evening at Collin's Bay.

Organized five years ago, the Quinte Association's aims are to encourage the preservation historic sites in the Quinte District and to press for the development of Highway 33 (especially between Collins Bay and Adolphustown) as a scenic drive.

Again named to represent Hastings County on the executive was Gerald Boyce, president of the Hastings County Historical Society.

Simulated stretcher patients are lifted into a RCAF Yukon aircraft at Trenton during the first flight of one of these large transports on an air evacuation exercise from Trenton to Edmonton. Thirty-six stretcher and over forty ambulatory 'patients' took part in the exercise, as well as medical staffs from the RCAF Station at Trenton and observers from the other two services.

Yukon Is Tested for Use In Evacuation of Wounded

TRENTON — The aft section of Yukon 327 presented a scene of quiet competence as stretcher after stretcher was quickly brought in and strapped in its appointed place. Flight Lieutenant Nursing Sister W. M. "Peggy" Corkum, matron of the RCAF Station Trenton Hospital, checked off the names of the injured and supervised the mounting of each stretcher as medical assistants carried them aboard.

Saturday, October 13, was a red letter day for the medical staffs at Air Transport Command and RCAF Station Trenton.

Prior to this date, never in the history of the Royal Canadian Air Force had 80 patients, simulated or real, been carried in one aircraft.

Med Evac 1962 (MEDAIR) was an exercise designed to test the capabilities of the Yukon as a medical air evacuation vehicle. Thirty-seven stretcher patients and over forty walking wounded boarded the Yukon at Trenton on Saturday morning. During the six hour flight to Edmonton, the stretcher cases were fed and ministered to by the medical staff on board. After a short stop at Edmonton the aircraft returned to Trenton where "patients" miraculously regained the use of their health and left the aircraft under their own steam.

Later these voluntary patients would express their criticisms and comments to the medical people. These comments will contribute to improved techniques in medical evacuation methods used in the Yukon. The exercise will establish the capabilities of Yukon aircraft as a patient - carrying vehicle for use in national and international emergencies.

Women Given Bird's Eye View Of Themselves

TRENTON — Wednesday night, members of the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club were given a bird's eye view of women down through the ages, from the time when Mother Eve tried to get the upper hand of Adam in the Garden of Eden down to the present day when women vie with men in the business world, by a club member, Mrs. Helen Upper, Women's Editor of the Trentonian.

Mrs. Upper, who claimed that woman has always been the "motivating power" behind man, said that women had been responsible for the spread of Christianity, education and medical knowledge.

"The power of womankind has caused the laws of protection and survival", said the speaker, "it was they who pressed for schools for hospitals and, the nursing of the sick, because women willed that their babies might live to perpetuate the race of man".

Mrs. Upper said that woman-power has many times changed the course of history, and said that the phrase, "behind every great man there is a good woman urging him along", was no idle saying.

Mrs. Upper said that the granddaughter of Eve was, unfortunately, the subtle about gaining her ends than her grandmother and that she had lost more than she had won by aggressively demanding her "rights." However, said Mrs. Upper, now that women had won her rights, she still resigned to back her sex when it came to such things as public office, and that women either refused to run for office herself or refused to support another woman who was brave enough to do so.

"Woman is happiest with the frying pan and diapers," said Mrs. Upper, "A career conflicts. Women tend to become leaners rather than leaders. Women are not exploiting their own true worth."

Mrs. Upper, who confessed that in her own job, she had never encountered "discrimination" on the grounds that she was a woman, said that centuries of leaning instead of leading must be bred out of existence before woman would take her true place in the world. She advised her audience to remember that womanpower controlled 85 per cent of the economy and that "what Eve wants, Adam gets."

Mrs. Upper was introduced to the club by Marion Baker and thanked by Gwen Mohan.

FOR MEN ONLY

THAT FIRST PAY CHEQUE

Dad, take a look at that—my first pay cheque!

Boy that's more money than I made in a year when I started to work.

Just think, I'll be able to buy a car of my own. That ought to please you.

Yeah, give us a chance to see the inside of ours again. Seriously though, Pete, it's nice to see you with a good job with lots of opportunities to get ahead.

That's right Dad, and you know, I was talking to one of the fellows that works with me and we thought we might rent an apartment together. Then we could be really independent.

That sounds like a pretty good idea to me son, but your mother would hate to see you leave home.

Oh, she'd get used to it. Think of the fun we'd have! We could have a ball every weekend—any night—whenever we wanted.

Fun is fine, Pete, but remember it can create problems—especially drinking.

Sure Dad, I know. Anyway, as far as drinking goes I know that it's only the dopes who think it's smart to get drunk. You've got to have more sense than that to get anywhere today.

DID YOU KNOW:

—that alcohol affects everyone's judgment and behaviour?

—that it takes about two hours for the average person to lose the effects of two ordinary size drinks of beer, whisky or wine?

—that anyone can get scientifically dependable information about alcohol and its effects by writing to The Education Department, Alcoholism & Drug Addiction Research Foundation, Box 1005, Terminal "A", Toronto 1, Ontario.

A NEW PARTY APPEARS

A new party has cropped up in the last couple of weeks. It is called l'Action Provinciale, and includes fringe elements of the grass-roots Social Credit forces that surprised everyone by taking 26 of the province's 75 seats in the last federal election. The Social Credit and New Democratic Parties officially are not in the campaign. L'Action Provinciale has come out against expropriation.

The separatists are not yet actively in the campaign, but Marcel Chaput, leader of the Rassemblement pour l'Independence Nationale, has announced he plans to be a candidate in a Montreal federal constituency. A weekend meeting of RIN is to decide whether it will become a political party.

At dissolution Sept. 19, standing in the legislative assembly was: Liberals, 59; Union Nationale, 44; Independent, one; total, 95.

HITS UNEMPLOYMENT

Mr. Douglas has been plugging away at unemployment. He says the Canadian unemployment rate is seven per cent, compared with 5.8 per cent in the United States and 1.2 per cent in Sweden.

Unemployment will get worse in Canada, he says, because of the Progressive Conservative government's austerity program and cancellation of $250,000,000 in government spending.

Progressive Conservative candidate Eric Greenwood, a mechanical sales engineer, has accused the NDP leader of a half-truth claim that austerity will lead to a depression worse than in the 1930s.

Liberal Warren Clark, an insurance agent, says austerity has raised the cost of living.

Robarts and Medicare

Premier John Robarts of Ontario says his government has not decided for or against a medical care plan.

His comment follows a published report that the government plans to announce a voluntary medical care scheme within a year.

However, it is obvious, from the whole tone of his remarks, both in his appearance before the royal commission on health services and afterwards, that Mr. Robarts and his Cabinet are giving serious consideration to the possibility of some such plan. Indeed, he is reported as saying that the matter is under "constant study." With the Ontario Liberals having joined the New Democratic Party in calling for such a scheme, it is clearly evident that the question is not so much whether any such plan will be introduced, but rather when it will be introduced, and what form it will take.

Premier Robarts' stress on the necessity of adequate staff before such a plan can be instituted is reminiscent of the stand of Premier Frost's government at the time that Liberal leader Walter Thomson campaigned on a platform of hospital insurance. The situation, however, appears slightly different. Though there may be a shortage of doctors, dentists and nurses in Ontario, this shortage is hardly comparable with the shortage in hospital beds at the time when the Conservatives were insisting, quite rightly we think, that it would be virtually fraudulent to make every person pay for hospital care when there could be no assurance they would receive accommodation when required.

It follows that the period between consideration of a medical care plan and its institution is likely to be shorter than that which elapsed between the Liberals' espousal of hospital insurance and the institution of hospital insurance by the Conservatives.

The really important question, therefore, is not so much when the plan will be put into effect, but what form it will take. Before the royal commission, Premier Robarts appeared definitely opposed to making the plan compulsory. He was not so emphatic on this point in a later press conference—at which he repeated he did not think compulsion would be necessary but added if "many studies going on" indicate such a need, this matter would be reviewed. Still, the chances appear strong that any Ontario scheme will lack the compulsory element.

This would have many advantages. It would eliminate, or at least greatly reduce, the opposition of the medical profession. It might result in the scheme being operated co-operatively by private insurance groups, rather than being sponsored by the government and paid for out of taxes. Provision would be made, we are sure, for coverage of those financially unable to pay the necessary premiums. Thus a voluntary plan would wreak no hardship on the destitute.

One point, though, ought to be remembered. If the plan is voluntary, those who refuse to join it although financially able to do so would have to face the consequences of their failure. If the government would be fair to those who do join it, it could not "bail out" those who suddenly face heavy medical expenses because of their failure to participate in the scheme.

Berlin Again in News

A difference of opinion has existed between U.S. and West German authorities as to the likelihood of the Russians precipitating a new Berlin crisis.

The U.S. officials believed a Russian move to be certain before the end of the year. The West Germans doubted it. The U.S. view appears to spring from the fact that the Russians have indicated they expect some action on Berlin once the U.S. elections are over. This appears to have been interpreted by the U.S. as a new deadline set by the Russians. Moscow reports indicate that this was not precisely the Russians' idea—that though Khrushchev expects new negotiations on Berlin to follow the U.S. elections he had no firm deadline in mind. This is apparently confirmed by the latest reports that Khrushchev and Kennedy will probably confer later this year.

Amidst all this controversy, sight may be lost of what the Russians are threatening to do. This is no more, and no less, than signing their separate peace treaty with East Germany, which Mr. Khrushchev first talked about years ago.

Despite all the alarm, such a treaty, in itself, could hardly be considered a cause for war —and we were once well reconciled to that fact. The important thing would not be the treaty, but what changes, if any, such a treaty produced in the present procedures under which the Western powers have access to Berlin.

Opening Night Excitement Pervades House of Commons

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — "This," said John Walker, Canadian newsman recently repatriated from Washington and London, "is sure a crazy mixed-up house of Commons."

"But fun," put in Lubor Zink, longtime European newsman now trying his typing in the Canadian Capital.

A couple of "tourists", these two, with a specialized knowledge in the trade or profession of Government, as they report.

And their assessment daily is being confirmed by sell-out houses of real tourists, who since this new and so-strange Parliament opened, have been racing to fill every seat in the galleries of the Commons and scrabbling even for standing room.

The show has been such a hit so far that even the MPs are sticking around. Other years, they routinely sneaked out to crowd around the television sets in the Centre Block and watch the World Series.

This year, there has been more action on the floor of the Commons than on the ball fields at Yankee Stadium and Candlestick Park.

STAR STUDDED

Measure of the box-office pull of this 26th edelection Parliament as sheer rock'-en and sock'-em entertainment is the keen that the Honorable Members of the Senate have been tottering around to get in on the fun.

And that, to anybody who has been long around these Parliamentary parts, is the untold tale.

If it keeps the Senate awake days . . . if the Senators can get up enough energy to shuffle on over to the Commons and fill their own special reserved spectators' gallery . . . then the show is really on the road.

Fact is, it's the hottest "Capital Caucus" in years . . . and while there has not yet been any promise of such smash endings as filled those earlier hits, "The Great Pipeline Drama," and "The Conscription Crisis Cliffhanger" . . . that is not to say that the curtain won't come down in an exciting to end all endings.

It is one of the fascinations of the show—the suspense — the feeling that despite Social Credit, or the threat of flash creek, the Parliamentary roof could fall in or blow off.

Just look at the cast.

Who have been covering the Commons are finding that they could look back on anything so star-studded before?

Not in more than 20 years has there been such talent.

Only a few of the Old Pros are back.

NEW TRICKS FOR OLD DOGS

Such proven performers as John Diefenbaker, Mike Pearson, Doug Harkness, Earl Rowe, Erickill, George Hees, Donald Fleming, and Paul Martin stars from previous Parliamentary extravaganzas are up and into their acts even better.

(Who now misses old Trader Howe, "Uncle Jim" Lasnet, or even Mackenzie King and other stars of other Hill hits?)

Some of the old stars have some interesting new turns, too.

Diet the Chief, always an oratorical Shakespeher and of fight and fire, has learned to gear down, give his purr along now as soothingly as a contented kitten, when in one of his mellower moods. Or keeps a blazing change of pace on tap, too, just to maintain the old suspense.

Mike Pearson, Parliament's Number One Pro, too, has learned some new tricks. Difficult though it must be to believe it, he is now giving away with the best of them, working up one hell of an orating indignation that almost any day he ought to be ready to sing it out hot shot for hot blast with the PM.

And, of course, that smooth, ie, the Old Master "Oom Paul" Martin has his own wise and winning way with words that has made him a star for 30 years and more.

The old Democrats are very much front and centre with their House Leader, that charming old jokester Bert Herridge, harshbitter veteran Joe Winch and the provocative Douglas Fisher.

FRISKY NEWSIEMEN

But it is the new boys who have been catching Mr Speaker's and the Public's eye.

The incredible Credibiite, Real Caouette and his teammate, the smooth talking imperturable Robert Thompson, the amazing pair who hold the Parliamentary power balance and the fate of the whole House in their unpredictable hands.

Caouette has just finished naming his price for Social Credit's continued support of the Government, no new or higher taxes and an increase in Family Allowances.

(All this and Austerity, too.)

To Your Good Health

Blood Transfusions Will Not Destroy Immunities

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What happens about immunities when you have large or frequent blood transfusions?

I had critical surgery twice in six months and my blood tests are good, but I seemed to have lost resistance or immunities I previously had. I wondered if the immunity factors were thinned, so to speak — S. P.

That's a good question.

We know — as obviously you do — that the creation of "antibodies" in the blood protect us against the invasion of many kinds of germs. This is the principle on which we base all vaccinations, whether for smallpox, flu, whooping cough, tetanus or whatever.

We know that many of these immunities last a long time. Smallpox vaccination gives protection for a matter of years. Polio vaccine tapers off more rapidly.

Now how does (to stick to smallpox) immunity remain for such a long time? The blood itself, like the other cells in our bodies, is constantly being replaced. A blood transfusion, for example, lasts for a relatively short time, because the red cells are known to survive for something like three or four months after which they are discarded and new ones are formed to replace them.

Yet immunity remains many times as long. Why? Because immunity is created by contact with small samples of whatever we have to protect against. The chemical cells of our bodies, whether blood or other tissues, react chemically.

Loss of some blood, in an operation or otherwise, does not eliminate the traces of substances which induce creation of antibodies, or protective substances.

It's something like saying that one match can light either a small fire or a large one with equal efficiency.

I am quite sure that we have a great deal yet to learn about the exact biological processes involved, but we do know this:

Immunity is not lost or "diluted" by transfusions. In fact, the opposite can be true. New antibodies are apt to be contributed by a transfusion if the patient gains but does not lose.

True, immunity can and does fade, but it is not because of transfusions. The exact why and wherefores are not clear, and may well be very complicated, when we finally learn all the story ,that it will take a book to explain them. For the present let's just be content with knowing what happens even if we can only surmise the why. Blood transfusions will not destroy the immunities you possess.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it uncommon to feel discomfort (something like cramps) during ovulation? I feel no discomfort at any other time. — Mrs. R. B.

Discomfort in mid-cycle (ovulation time) is not uncommon. The degree varies greatly, from very mild to pain so sharp that it can be mistaken for appendicitis or other abdominal disease. It also can alternate from one side to the other.

This condition is known medically as "mittelschmerz" or "mid-pain." A simple pain reliever is usually all that is necessary. It's wise to have a pelvic examination to be sure there's not an ovarian cyst or some other disorder.

Note to Mrs. L. L.: Duodenitis is inflammation of the duodenum, or first portion of the small intestine directly below the stomach. It can be a forerunner of the familiar duodenal ulcer. Diet and medication are the same for both.

Oath Treated Too Lightly

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

The administering of oaths has come to occupy such a common place in life today that the act is performed many times without the parties involved realizing that it is anything more than a form.

An oath, in the legal sense at least, is "a solemn affestation supporting a declaration as means of an appeal to some personage or to some object which is regarded as sacred by the person swearing. As employed in our courts and in business transactions, an oath affirms the truth of a statement, and renders liable to punishment for perjury one who deliberately asserts something other than the truth.

If some people do not understand the seriousness and the sanctity of an oath, and it appears that some do not, it may be because the administrator does not perform his task in a manner which engenders the necessary feeling of awe and respect.

We have observed the performance of the oath in a way which suggests nothing more than an empty and meaningless ritual. Surely, such haste is not necessary. If an oath is valid, and if it signifies all that it ought, then its administration merits a greater solemnity.

Gadgets Make Life Easier

Financial Post

Humankind, let it be granted, divides neatly between the busy ants and the carefree grasshoppers who care not that winter cometh.

And to judge from what's being registered in patent offices, the grasshoppers of this life are gaining ground:

Consider the patent on a new "electric shaver" for massaging treatment. At the end of its mechanical ministrations it lifts the occupant back up to his feet.

Or look at the latest way to get dinner dishes cleared away in a hurry. This is a table with concealed dish-washing compartments (soap and water piped in via a hollow leg) permitting dining and washing at one sitting.

Or, for the wife who may be weary of waking hubby up to silence his snoring, there is a new battery contraption which is strapped under the offender's chin. When his mouth falls open the tightened strap sets off a buzzer and the tired wretch awakens by himself.

All it takes, it seems, are the attributes of a mint to get money enough to buy the gadgets of the grasshoppers.

Individual Gives Most

San Mateo, Calif., Times

Contrary to the impression created by spectacular gifts of foundations and corporations, the individual is the big gun in philanthropist in this country. Of $8.7 billion donated for charitable causes in 1961, nearly $7 billion came from you, your neighbor and others like you, the private citizen.

Compared to this, the foundations' benefactions were small; a mere $622 million. Corporations gave $460 million and the income from endowment funds produced approximately a billion.

This is the finding of the American Association for Fund Raising council, a non-profit organization of 28 professional fund-raising firms that measure the public's generosity each year. Discounting what the government generously adds, every dollar you give to the value through inflation, philanthropy was up by $1.5 billion dollars last year over the year before.

Anyway it's good to have the findings posted. Nice to feel that anything the foundations can do, we can do better — and do.

Failing Fund

Toronto Star

The Unemployment Insurance Fund is going into its third consecutive winter perched on the brink of bankruptcy. As its advisory committee has just stated in its report to Parliament "the complete exhaustion of the fund which seemed probable in 1961-62, seems a certainty for 1962-63." A problem that was clearly evident three years ago has been allowed to reach crisis proportions without effective action from the government.

Hovercraft Sales Nil

The Times of London

The failure of the Hovercraft makers to capture a single order as a result of this summer's demonstration drive is causing mounting concern in the industry. With expenditure on British craft now running at several hundred thousand pounds a year, leaders in the industry are saying openly that they cannot go on spending money on this scale without any coming in.

In the absence of commercial orders, strong pressure has recently been brought to bear on the Government to finance a much larger craft — so far without success. Meanwhile, the two commercial operators who seemed the most likely potential customers, British Hovercraft Airways, who have been running the Vickers-Armstrongs machine in the Solent, and Southdown Motor Services, who operated the Saunders-Roe craft across the Solent, have now handled the vessels back to their respective builders with strong firmer than gratitude for the experience gained.

This summer's demonstrations, which included several tons and a speed of more than 60 knots, were carried out to show potential operators that the craft is now sufficiently proven to justify commercial orders. But it is painfully apparent that the operators remain unconvinced.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

Teaching Talent God-Given Peterborough Speaker Says At Quinte S.S. Graduation

"A talent for teaching is a God-given gift and an obligation," according to Dr. E. P. Ray, B.A., M.Ed., Ph.D., director of education at Peterborough, speaking at the Quinte Secondary School's graduation exercises held last night. These exercises were held in Moira Secondary School's gymnatorium because of construction work at Quinte S.S.

Dr. Ray, the guest speaker of the evening was appointed director of education in Peterborough in 1956, after several years as a teacher at Peterborough Collegiate and is the author of the recently - published book, "Canada and the World."

He told the Quinte students and graduates that good teachers are in demand in our modern society and command great respect. "Life is given to use so we can make good use of our every talent," he said, "and with the world's great changing the talents of teaching and learning are the most important. The world will be kept alive," he said, "through intelligent decisions, and the teachers are the ones who will influence these decisions."

"Human beings," said Dr. Ray, "have the ability to think, and that distinguishes us from the animals. As the highest of animals, we have a duty, and we can help others." Dr. Ray added that because of the heritage of Canada with freedom of speech and a democratic way of life, Canadians are under an obligation to set an example to all humanity. Part of this obligation is the teaching of body, "the crowning masterpiece of creation," which must be preserved in purity and moderation. Dr. Ray emphasized that humanity is building for eternity, and there is a place for everyone, no matter how humble the contribution, to add to "the Cathedral of Life."

NEED SELF-CONFIDENCE

"As graduates, you must declare that in these years as students, you grown in wisdom and in stature, soon to make decisions for your choice of vocation. You no longer will depend on home and parents, for moral or financial support. You must place confidence in yourselves", Dr. Ray said.

Jack Bennett, a teacher at the school, introduced Dr. Ray before the speech, and Dale Sullivan, Minister of Reform in Quinte Secondary School's Student Parliament, thanked him in the name of the school. Mr. F. Reid, principal of the school, added his own thanks to those of the students.

Musical selections, "Reverie", by O. D. Kelley and "Prayer from Rienzi" by R. Wagner, were rendered by portions of the school choir. The invocation was by Rev. C. W. Coleman, minister of Holloway Street Church. Mr. Simpson, chairman of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board, presented the greetings of the board to the assemblage, and Mr. F. Reid, principal of the school, made the opening remarks.

Dale Sullivan, as Prime Minister of the Student Parliament, presented to the school board, a gift of $50 from the Student Parliament, the money to be used for a useful purpose with in the school, in remembrance of former teachers.

Science Seminar — Attendance for one week half days at a Science Seminar sponsored by the Department of Botany and Genetics, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph Ontario, awarded to William Buddle and holds for us.

Five years ago, we entered high school, a little nervous and somewhat doubtful about our ability to outlook students ahead. As time "marched" on we acquired confidence and appeared to have taken the necessary and important steps toward a successful life.

Our benefits have been twofold, we have secured an education — a training which will help us in good stead throughout life.

We have gained another group of benefits, not so obvious, perhaps, but nevertheless of tremendous importance and influence upon our everyday life.

I refer to such things as the ability to get along, one with the other; to understand more clearly the true meaning of "sportsmanship," and to have a genuine appreciation of the rewards earned by perseverance and application.

Valerie; one who, perhaps a little skeptically, maybe a little cynically, entered this school five years ago. Do you realize tonight that there is a reward for effort and that only real effort produces a genuine reward!

As we think of the past, the present and the future, our thoughts very naturally turn to those who have played such a vital role in our individual successes. I refer of course to our teachers.

Their task was so great and so difficult! What patience and tolerance they have exemplified!

TRIBUTE TO TEACHERS

To all of them and for all of us, may I just say a word. Emerson must have thought of teachers when he wrote "The reward of a thing well done is to have done it."

If that is true, then our teachers have certainly earned a reward beyond measure for completed the task they so valiantly undertook some years ago.

And yet I feel that their reward will be greater greater, because —our expressions of gratitude will continue to be manifested throughout the years to come.

Just as long as we can remember, our parents have advised us of the rights and wrongs of life.

"Correction does much; but, encouragement does more." Encouragement after censure is as the sun after a shower." Goethe's words express to us our parents' feelings toward our self confidence in life. Our mothers and fathers have showered us with words of correction but it is the words of encouragement which has given us a poem entitled "Don't Quit".

"Success is failure turned inside out — the silver tint of the clouds of doubt".

Each of us is searching for success, and I am sure will ultimately discover the true qualities of success.

Whatever success we may achieve, whatever accomplishments we may attain, we owe our parents and our teachers shall participate, — they, too will experience the joy that success comes from "something accomplished, something done", and we shall share with one our triumphs with them.

Now, a word as to the future. As we face it with optimism, with courage, and with determination, let us remember that final in life may take us far afield but wherever we may be, we shall cherish the memories and precepts acquired during our years at Quinte.

Please stay tonight, but our places will very shortly be filled by others, just as eager, just as anxious and just as determined to succeed. It is our sincere wish that all the delightful and valuable experiences which have been ours will, in due course, be theirs.

When their turn comes may they be as sorry to leave as we are this evening.

Lynne Brown Gives Quinte Valedictory

Miss Lynne Brown gave the valedictory address at Quinte Secondary School graduation exercises held at Moira Arena last night. The address followed:

Mr. Ray, distinguished guests, students, and friends of Quinte Secondary School:

Tonight we have gathered under the most delightful circumstances. Tonight forms a time of touch of sadness. We are a group of friends, fellow students, and teachers who on every friendly terms with those whom we have been instructed in the past years.

We have heard some exceedingly fine speech remarks made concerning ourselves and we have just received a diploma with which for the rest of our existence, testify to our graduation from Quinte Secondary School and application during our association with Quinte.

We have had a delightful, indeed.

And yet, this may be the last opportunity we shall have to meet as students and it may be the last time we shall see which all of us will be present. Five years is a rather half days at a Science Seminar sponsored by the Department of Botany and Genetics, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph Ontario, awarded to William Buddle and holds for us.

Ladakh and heavy fighting also is going on there, Menon said. Today's Chinese attack had followed a large number of "little attacks," he said.

Today they launched "very heavily as far as personnel and weapons are concerned."

He said the Chinese had concentrated "very large forces in the eastern sector in front of Tezpur" in the ridge which is such as this and its enormous is bound to increase."

Rep. Charles L. Coleman of Coudersport, Pa., Baptist Church, Halifax, said the "ride is good but there are some points of discrimination such as employment and housing which will be hard to get at."

Provincial secretary W. S. Kennedy Jones named Committee chairman. Members are the premier in his capacity as education minister, Labor Minister Layton Fergusson and six senior civil servants.

Mr. Stanfield said world-wide concern about racial problems has focused public interest on the situation in Nova Scotia where more than half Canada's Negroes live.

He indicated there were signs the end of the Negro is improving. An increasing number of Negroes are getting jobs and jobs. Negroes were getting jobs where they dealt with the public.

These views were supported by Tom Miller of Sydney, the city's first Negro alderman. He said Negroes with qualifications can generally find jobs and he has no experience of a colour bar in his city.

The province's first Negroes were slaves who arrived in the early 1800s hundreds more arrived as escapees from American plantations. Today administration settled them on land - granta, the same spots where some of their descendants now live.

"The Negroes have shown somewhat the same attitude in these areas. A proposal that Halifax's Negro community of Africville be moved down for redevelopment and the population transferred to other parts of the city has encountered stiff opposition.

CHOCOLATE-CINNAMON BUNS (Mrs. Peg Fay)

¾ cup warm water, 1 package granular yeast, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ cup soft shortening, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅓ cup sugar, 1 egg, ½ cup cocoa, 2¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 tablespoon soft butter, 1½ teaspoons cinnamon, 3 tablespoons sugar icing (see below) ¼ cup or more coarsely chopped walnuts or pecans.

Dissolve yeast in warm water with one teaspoon of sugar. Add shortening, salt, egg, ¼ cup sugar, cocoa and 1 cup of the flour. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric beater or by hand with rotary beater. Stir in with spoon the remaining 1¼ cups of flour until all blended. Put in greased bowl, cover and let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk. Beat down. Turn out on floured board and roll out in a 12" x 9" rectangle. Spread with the tablespoon of soft butter. Mix sugar (3 tablespoons) with cinnamon and sprinkle over the butter evenly. Roll up from the long side. Cut into 12 slices with sharp knife. Place in a greased 8" square pan. Let rise until doubled. Bake 25 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr. Cool. Drizzle icing over the top and sprinkle with nuts. Icing: Combine 1 cup icing sugar, ½ teaspoon vanilla and enough milk to make a thin icing.

Answer: Thank you, Peg, for a unique variation of Cinnamon Buns.

2 cups scalded milk, 2 egg yolks, 2 tablespoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind, ½ cup stale plain cake, broken, jelly or jam, 2 egg whites, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Spread on cooled pudding. Bake until meringue is slightly browned at 325 deg. Fahr.

Second Glance

THE BIG SKY COUNTRY: MONTANA

"There are such holy plains and streams, there are such sky-arched spaces. There are life-long trails for private lives, and endless whispering places."—Vachel Lindsay.

Are you a rock hound?

Though we're not avid rock hounds, yet — "let's hunt for moss agates in the Yellowstone River, since were the close," my husband suggested upon our arrival in Duluth, and two days later, finds us in what is popularly called the Gate City of Montana. (Fold the state lengthwise in half, and put a pencil dot on the cross about 40 miles west of North Dakota border — and you have found Glendive; approximately 10,000, "having recorded one of the sharpest percentage increases in the last decade.")

Here we make ourselves very much at home in this friendly hospitable city, as we enjoy its picturesque site on the east bank of the Yellowstone River, where some beautiful new homes command envious views of it.

Where the spacious city park contains a modern swimming pool, with childrens' play area, picnic tables. Where the main drive is the setting of 56,000 acres of grotesquely twisted and warped formations, about 7 miles from Glendive. "Geologists say they can detect each stage of passing geologic history in the rock strata, mineral deposits and fossil remains," we're told, and marvel at this unusual sight as the standing cedar of the setting of sun the park into a veritable pink fairyland against a turquoise sky.

We sample a marvellous steak dinner at the smart new restaurant, near the airport served by the Frontier Airlines. Behold, there is the gravel smoothed drive way, lined with small stones that glow like July lamps in the light of the sunset sky: Montana greets!

Tomorrow, we will search for them in earnest along the Yellowstone River.

UCW Hear Talk on New Curriculum

On Wednesday evening the United Church Women of Bridge Street Church met for their autumn thankofferting meeting in the sanctuary.

The president, Mrs. A. J. Clare, welcomed the members and quiet music was played by Mrs. K. M. Bird, while the ladies were assembling.

The devotional service, with its theme, "Thanksgiving," was conducted by Mrs. Freeman Burrows. Six members of the CGIT sang two numbers which were greatly appreciated.

The evening's program was under the direction of the committee on co-operation in Christian education and missionary education, Mrs. Nell O'Neil introduced Mrs. Ross Jeffries, director of Christian education for Bridge Street Church. The Rev. H. M. Davis introduced the study book, "The Word and the Way." This book was written by Professor Donald M. Mathers of Queen's University and is being studied in many of the units of the U.C.W. Mr. Davis gave a most comprehensive review of the book. He pointed out noted that parents often find it difficult to converse intelligently with their children, particularly teenagers, about their Sunday School lessons and the Scriptures in general. Parents need first-hand knowledges of the Bible in order to help their children.

The recording from the United Church head office in Toronto was played. This dealt with the complete revision of the material which is to be put into the hands of teachers and leaders in all fields of Christian education. The new curriculum seeks to arouse the interest and enthusiasm of the parents. There were also comments on the book, "The Word and the Way."

Mrs. Jeffries gave an interesting and enlightening talk on the new curriculum. She began by saying "We cannot live a faith we do not know, and we cannot preach a faith we do not live. We are all teachers whether we know it or not. The gospel of redemption is at the core of this new curriculum; the Bible at the centre of the teaching and teaching. Underlying the thinking we find many things relevant to every one which it can become a revelation to us all, but we need Biblical scholarship to help us understand it and the new program."

The appreciation of the association to Mrs. Jeffries and Mr. Davis was graciously expressed by Mrs. Grace Anderson.

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Clare and included reports from the secretary, the treasurer and the members of the various committees.

Miss Grace Kenny, convener of the stewardship committee, gave a short message on Christian stewardship.

Mrs. Clare extended her thanks to all who had participated in the evening's program.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHEN YOU PLAN A RESTAURANT PARTY

Taking a group of people out to dinner in a restaurant offers the host and hostess a relaxing change of pace on occasion. But while the locale is different, basically the same rules of good hostessmanship apply.

If guests are to assemble at a given time, in a given restaurant, host and hostess should be on hand to greet the first arrivals. When everyone is accounted for, the host asks the headwaiter for his table and takes his party into the dining room.

At the table, seating is arranged in the traditional order, with the woman guest of honor at the right of the host, and her husband at the right of the hostess.

When two or more couples simply accompany each other to a restaurant with the understanding that the cheque is to be shared, then each woman gives her order to her escort. When there is only one host, however, each of the guests tells him, instead, what they wish him to order. Guests never give an order directly to the waiter.

If cocktails have not already been imbibed in the lounge during the waiting period, the host may ask the guests what their wishes are, and place the order.

When ordering from a menu in which the fixed price includes all courses, from appetiser to dessert, the host suggests to the host their selections of appetiser and or soup and the main course. Then the rest of the menu orders are given after the main course has been finished.

If the menu is a la carte, meaning each dish is priced separately, guests first give their host their selection of a main course. It's then up to him to suggest what to have as an appetiser, and to ask if anyone would like to order special vegetables and a salad.

The host who wishes to order wine for his guests correctly waits until he has given his order to order before asking for a wine list. It's done at this point so he can select a wine that goes with both chicken and beef, for example, instead of ordering one that would be inappropriate with either. If he's in doubt, then he may ask the wine steward to make a suggestion that would be satisfactory with a variety of main dishes.

If the party is held at a supper club, and there is dancing as well, the host asks the woman on his right for the first dance. He then asks the wife each of the other women in the party before he takes his wife out on the dance floor.

At the end of the dinner, the host asks for the cheque and pays the amount, plus twenty percent for the waiter, on the tray. Tips usually are given to the wine steward and to the headwaiter on the way out.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Jules H. — It's like a bombshell to learn they can't afford to send me to college. Mr. H. H. — I thought things would get better. I didn't want to burden him.

Jules H. — I'm 18 years old and, like all my friends, counting on finishing high school and leaving home to attend a good out-of-town college.

To my horror the other evening, when I matter-of-factly remarked to my dad that I can't pick a favorite among Amherst, Princeton and Dartmouth, he told me to forget them all. He said we're living beyond our means now, and if I go to college at all, it may have to be at night and near home.

I had no inkling that things were tight. We have two cars, a boat, a summer place. My mother has maids. But they can't afford college for me! Why didn't they tell me the truth long ago?

Mr. H. H. — As Jules' father I didn't want to worry him over the precarious state of my finances. Most of my money was in the stock market and some of my holdings had been bought on margin. During the recent upsets I got caught badly. Because I still have good credit, I've been able to keep things looking right on the surface for Jules. And, with new orders in the fire, I may be able to recoup in a few years. But not in time to foot the $4,000 a year for a fancy college for him.

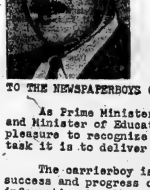
I'm sorry the true picture came out as bluntly. I was glad that Jules was able to keep up with his friends. I didn't want him to feel different. I planned to break things to him gradually.

The Council: While Mr. H.'s intention was good, it's another one of the kind that paves the road to you-know-what for a young man. The families was to spare Jules the truth, because the truth was painful. But truth has a way of creeping in from a side-spur, and the pain is doubled because of shock and lack of preparation.

Nowadays parents are advised to level with a child when it comes to life's problems, rather than shield him completely. Of course, this doesn't mean to knock the pinnings out of his sense of safety and protection. Cushioning the facts about his financial reverses with assurances to Jules that together the family would work things through, Mr. H. could have given his son a wholesome and valuable encounter with reality. Now it's a head-on collision!

Jules has been permitted to dally in a dream world. Without the solid resources of the Joneses, he dare venture to keep up with Jones, Jr, to "belong" where he really didn't belong. He has lived in the wrong neighborhood, aspired to false goals.

The job at hand now is a cards -on-the-table family talk. What "showy" items must be renounced? What basic holdings must be saved? What new resources must be striven for? From such a clear-eyed assessment, plans for Jules' college education may emerge.



If, as seems likely, there's no parental handout available, Jules has many recourses. Besides jobs one can usually get, are scholarships and loans to see him through.

For Mr. H. there's comfort in a line from Helen S. Arnsbarger's book, "What to Tell Your Child." "Hard times," she says, "a crisis met honestly... can become a strengthening force in the life of the family."

TO THE NEWSPAPERBOYS OF ONTARIO:

As Prime Minister of the Province of Ontario and Minister of Education, it gives me great pleasure to recognize the boys and girls whose daily task it is to deliver newspapers.

The carrierboy is an integral part of the success and progress of this important field of information to all our people. As a former newspaperboy I am particularly pleased to join with thousands of other people in this province in the observance of "National Newspaperboy Day".

Well-informed people are progressive and successful people. I believe we sometimes overlook the important part of our daily life fulfilled by the newspaperboy in his service of placing the newspaper at the front door of thousands of the homes throughout Ontario. His reward is the valuable experience in business, in meeting and dealing with people, in honesty, dependability and responsibility. This important training is the basis for a successful future. Many of our most successful men have had grounding in their early days as a carrierboy, and I am sure they look back upon this experience as a valuable foundation.

I extend my best wishes for a most successful achievement and express to the boys and girls my fervent hope that they continue this important work toward a better and finer way of life.

Girl Guides Will Set-Up Committees

TORONTO (CP) — The Girl Guides of Canada plan to set up provincial "hostess committees" to entertain the 2,000 overseas guides expected to attend the Girl Guide national centenary camp near Ottawa in 1967.

International commissioners of the Canadian Girl Guides made this decision during meetings in Toronto this week.

Last year more than 200 Canadian Girl Guides and leaders attended international meetings in Norway, The Netherlands, Britain and Iceland.

The commissioners, representing eight provinces, decided that before going overseas in the future, guides would study Canadian history and would increase the Canadian materials in the international kits they carry.

Each kit is to contain miniature examples of Canadian art, industry and culture: A tiny totem pole, rock and oil samples, a bag of Canadian wheat and a lobster trap and fishing net from the Maritimes.

Going Places

Planning Sail on Briny Blue? This Will Be Helpful to You

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

With the cruise season fair upon us, this least familiar of travel activities is coming in for the usual run of questions on the whos, what and hows of shipboard life.

Bearing in mind that it difficult to generalize because ships and ship lines vary so, here are some of the most common concerns:

Booking — There's no question that the only way is through your travel agent. There are so many different ships going different places at different prices that only a competent agent stands a fighting chance of keeping track of all of them and picking one tailored to your preferences.

Accomodations — Prices vary according to size, location and equipment of rooms, much as in a hotel. Few ships have all rooms with bath and toilet; those rooms without are, of course, the cheapest. Best state rooms usually are found in two locations, the uppermost deck — the deck just above the waterline where the dining room generally is.

The uppermost deck usually is called the Promenade (sometimes Sun) Deck. Below that they are named after letters of the alphabet in descending order — A, B, C and so on, depending how many decks the ship has. Upper decks are sunnier and quieter, but motion may be more detectable in rough weather. Lower deck rooms may be subject to engine noise and vibration and some may have no windows.

Packing — No one uses old-fashioned steamer trunks any more; they're too bulky to maneuver and the storage space they afford is unnecessary because most rooms have adequate closets and dressers.

There is no practical limit on weight of luggage, but probably you won't want much more than the limitations generally set by the airlines. Of weighty items, you may find it advantageous to take an extra pair of shoes or two, books to read, your own liquor, more costume jewelry — all items on which you'd have to limit yourself on an air trip.

If you feel like indulging in extra suits, dresses, shirts and blouses, there's no reason why you can't. You can also carry clothes in garment bags more conveniently than trans-ferring by air, when they have to go as checked baggage — at considerable risk.

Dress — Bathing attire is permitted only on the sun deck and at the pool. Dining room dress is informal during the day, but no short shorts, halters or the like. If there are classes on the ship, black tie usually is mandatory for men at dinner in first class, preferred or optional below that, except on the first and last days out or when the ship is in port.

Personnel and nomenclature — A ship is so much like a floating hotel that it's easy to forget you're on a ship. But it may help to remember that a public room is a saloon, smoking room or lounge; a bedroom is a stateroom or cabin; upstairs and downstairs are topside and below; left is port and right is starboard; the front of the ship is forward and back is aft.

The man at the "front desk" is the purser and virtually all other ship's staff with whom you'll come in contact are called stewards. The man who lays out your chair and brings you drinks is the deck steward, the bartender is a bar steward, your waiter is a dining steward, and your "maid" is a room steward. He services your room, shines your shoes, presses your clothes, brings you food and drink in your room, and will draw your bath if your ship has water hours and you're not around when the water is on.

Tipping — Deck steward, about $1.00 a week per person. Dining and a room stewards, about $1.00 a day per person (variable up or down if there are classes on your ship). Bar and lounge stewards, about 15 per cent as you go, same as on shore.

If your trip is longer than one week, it's thoughtful to take care of your dining and room stewards once a week.

Seasickness — No, not all in the mind, though it makes you wonder when you see people feeling queasy on days when you have to stick your head out the window to see if you're afloat. Various cures include prescriptions from your doctor (some new ones are quite effective); staying in bed and avoiding liquids; and time. Many travellers simply get their sea legs after a day or so.

Shipboard Routine — Days may be occupied with sunning, swimming and games such as deck tennis and shuffleboard; indoors there may be first run movies or lectures on the ports of call.

Sightseeing may usually be arranged aboard ship or on debarkation.

Meals, except breakfast, may be at two sittings, usually noon and 1.30 for lunch, 6.30 and 8 for dinner. Table assignments can be had immediately on boarding, as can deck chair assignments. The deck steward will advise you about chair locations according to your preference. Deck chair charges average about $2.00 a week per person.

Weddings

Christ Church, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding on Saturday, October 13, when Mary Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Dawkins, of Belleville, became the bride of Donald Barrie Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wood, of Montreal, Ontario. The Reverend R. G. Fleming officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. George Dawkins, the bride was charming in a street-length gown of champagne taffeta with light beige accessories. She wore a 'Daisy Charm' type headdress with veil, and carried a bouquet of 'mums mingled with stephanotis.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Lillian Reid, who was attired in blue taffeta with matching accessories, and corsage of pink 'mums.

Mr. William Barokardt, of Iroquois, Ontario, attended the bridegroom.

The bride's mother received, attired in a royal blue knitted wool dress with matching accessories, and corsage of pink 'mums, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a gold-blue jersey, with black accessories, and corsage of pink 'mums.

The reception was held at the bride's parents' home, with guests present from Belleville, Cardinal, Kingston, Marmora, Redneersville, Hamilton; Mimico and Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood have left for a wedding trip to the west, and will, upon their return, live in Hamilton.

St. Margaret's E.G. Plans Fall Bazaar

On October 1, St. Margaret's Evening Guild held its first monthly meeting. The president, Mrs. Ken Wilson, opened with the Lord's Prayer. Roll call was taken, and reports read. A November, Mrs. Gladys Anderson, was welcomed into the Guild.

Owing to the illness of the recording secretary, volunteers were called on to fill this office until the end of the year. Mrs. Fred Black, kindly consented to do so.

The ladies formed groups to work on various bazaar projects.

Refreshments were served by June Gillespie and her group.

The next monthly meeting was held on October 15, and took the form of a pot-luck supper, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The president called a short business meeting, and plans were finalized, for the fall bazaar, to be held on Friday, November. Tickets are available from any guild member. For the second meeting in November the Guild hopes to have as its guest, for the evening, Mrs. Rita Minion, who will speak on and illustrate the 'Art of Millinery.' It is hoped anyone interested in this subject will come out and hear Mrs. Minion.

Refreshments were served by June Gillespie.

University Clubs Aid African Girl

At the October meeting of the University Women's Club of Belleville and District, held on Thursday evening in Education Hall, Belleville General Hospital, members voted to donate $100 to help an African girl, who entered Queen's University this fall.

The Kingston University Women's Club was the original sponsor of the student, who was brought to Canada by the African Students' Foundation. Queen's University and several other University Women's Clubs in the Eastern Ontario region are also making contributions towards the cost of her education.

It is expected that, after she has obtained her degree, the student will return to Ghana, to teach.

The Belleville Club's donation was made possible through public support of the bake table at the Spring Fair and exhibition of Manly Macdonald paintings. The money from the sale of tickets on the picture, generously donated by Mr. Macdonald, goes entirely to the scholarship fund. This fund is used exclusively to provide two $300 scholarships which are completed for annually by girls attending high schools in the Belleville area, who intend to enrol in a degree course in a University.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald A. Bushell of Winnipeg, Manitoba are shown following their recent marriage in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Sheila Noreen Ferraro, daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Ferraro, Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Bushell, Toronto. (Photo by William E. Riley, Belleville).

BUSHELL—FERRARO

Standards of fern, mauve chrysanthemums and white gladioli formed a pretty setting in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church for the recent marriage of Sheila Noreen Ferraro, daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Ferraro of Belleville, to Gerald A. Bushell, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Bushell, Toronto. The Rev. Gordon B. Woodcock, minister of the church, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Traditional wedding music was rendered and "O Perfect Love" was sung by David and Richard McKinnon.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Thomas Atkinson of St. Catharines, was radiant in a floor length, length sheath and matching train of portevale featuring a sacque-trimmed bodice. Her headdress was edged with pearls holding in place a waist-length veil of fine net. She carried a bouquet of feathered carnations centred with a solitaire mauve orchid.

The maid of honor, Miss Roberta Button, Belleville, and the bridesmaids, Miss Sally Bushell, Toronto and Miss June Day, Belleville, were identically attired in floor-length dresses of champagne taffeta, featuring white lace overskirts. Their headdresses were of champagne taffeta and each carried a bouquet of mauve carnations.

quet of mauve carnations.

Mr. Ronald Panter of Toronto attended the bridegroom, while Kevin Burkett, Toronto, and Peter MacFarlane, Belleville, were ushers.

The reception was held in the church parlors which were appropriately decorated with standards of mauve 'mums and white gladioli. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a royal blue taffeta sheath with a light blue lace overskirt, white accessories and a corsage of carnations. She was assisted by the mother of the bridegroom who chose a Cobalt blue taffeta sheath featuring a lace overskirt and matching lace jacket, white accessories and a carnation corsage.

For the wedding trip to the Haliburton Highlands and the Muskoka Lakes region, the bride donned a black and white checked organdy dress, black patent shoes and purse, wore brimmed white organdy hat and a mauve orchid corsage.

Guests were present from Toronto, Cobourg, Peterborough, St. Catharines and Ottawa.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at a shower given by the maid of honor, Miss Roberta Button, and also one given by Miss Irene McKlosky, of Toronto, and one at the home of Mrs. H. Matthews of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Bushell will reside in Winnipeg.

HALLOWAY — A delightful evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kelly on Friday when friends and neighbors gathered at a community shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Shaw, nee Helen Kelly.

The early part of the evening was spent in social conversation, after which the newlyweds were given seats of honor and Mr. Alvin Donaldson, as chairman, called on Mrs. Freddie Wellman, Mrs. Coleman Townsend, Mrs. Emsley Hough, who gave readings entitled "Cold Feet," "Batching," and "Bessie's Boyfriend."

An address was read by Mrs. A. Donaldson wishing Helen and Wayne health, happiness and prosperity for a successful married life. They were presented with a bridge set and oval glass tray from the Halloway community.

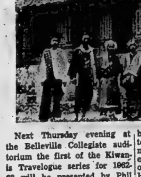
K. George H-S Assoc. Hears Fine Talks

King George Home and School Association began its 1962-63 season with a well-attended meeting on October 10th. The president, Mrs. C. Culkin, welcomed approximately 100 parents and, after taking care of several items of business, introduced the executive for the coming year.

The principal, Mr. H. R. Moorcroft, spoke briefly to the assembled parents and in his remarks noted that King George School is observing its 40th anniversary this year. Mr. Moorcroft then introduced his teaching staff.

GUEST SPEAKER



Mrs. N. McKibbon introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mr. Arthur Duncan, public relations officer for the Bata Shoe Company, Batawa. The first part of his address was on "Humor" and the laughter that greeted his remarks showed that he was most familiar with his subject.

The latter part of his talk was more seriously devoted to "Citizenship" and the responsibility of teachers and parents in training the children of today to become good citizens of tomorrow.

The prolonged applause at the end of Mr. Duncan's address indicated how much everyone enjoyed hearing him.

Mrs. N. McMillan thanked the speaker and the evening closed with refreshments served by the executive.

'Indonesia' To Be Presented at Collegiate

Next Thursday evening at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium the first of the Kiwanis Travelogue series for 1962-63 will be presented by Phil Walker, noted traveller and superb narrator, on "Indonesia, a Girdle of Emerald Flung Across the Equator."

Phil Walker grew up in Carmel-by-the-Sea and in northern California, but traced his family back to the first settlers in New England and owes his existence to his great-great grandmother who befriended the Indians and saved her family when every one else was massacred in an Eastern Pennsylvania valley.

Before discovering the adventure in making travel films, he had sailed a 75-foot boat from Sydney, Australia to the Philippines. In six months he explored almost every native village and island outpost in the 5,000 mile trip. His full time partner, Mrs. Walker, is also an enthusiastic 'traveloguer' and does not regret the discomforts of life with the explorer's way of life.

The pictures he shows are abundantly beautiful, a land rich in culture but young in independence, having a new national spirit and pride. Its people are untaught artists but express the delightful colors of this exotic land, which forms a tremendous bridge of islands between Asia and Australia.

Those who attend will not be disappointed.

Neglect Chief Cause Short Battery Life

By EUGENE R. MILMOE

Very shortly, batteries will face their annual showdown. First of all, they'll be required to shoulder heavier burdens —greater use of lights, heater-defroster, plus longer cranking when the engine doesn't quickly respond at once. In addition, low air temperature has a weakening effect on the battery, sapping more of its strength every time the mercury drops. On the other hand, the colder the engine, the more battery power is required to start it.

Four years of faithful service is not too much to expect from a good battery that has had reasonable care. Average battery life, however, is approximately 18 months. Negligence is probably the number one reason . . . Allowing cell levels to run low, paying little attention to loose or corroded connections, frequently operating radio and lights while the generator is not really charging the battery.

Many times, of course, the battery's condition is enough but unaware that a slipping fan belt, faulty generator or regulator service is draining the battery. You can see why a checkup is especially important right now.

From L.T. — "What's the function of the manifold heat valve?"

(A) This unit operates thermostatically to aid warmup when the engine is cold by directing exhaust heat to the intake manifold.

S.P. writes — "Can you tell us what type of snow tire tread is the quietest and gives the best traction?"

(A) Wedge Cleat, knob or tractor tread design is generally considered best for traction — but the herringbone is probably the quietest of all.

M.P. asks — "A compression test of an eight-cylinder, 1956 model I just bought actually shows that most cylinders have slightly higher readings than that given as the new engine compression."

(A) This is possible. Heavy carbon formation can actually increase compression pressure . . . and I believe this has been pointed out several times.

From B.E. — "My engine was missing and stalling at idle speed until a mechanic replaced a leaking radiator hose. I was told this hose was causing improper carburetion, which sounds a bit far-fetched to me."

(A) Are you sure is wasn't the windshield wiper hose? A leak here will allow air to enter the intake manifold and upset carburetion.

Stuck With Making a Speech

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I have just been informed that I will be the recipient of a dietetics' bursary. The ladies are having a tea at which they will present it to me. I'll have to give some sort of a speech and I am really "stuck." I wonder if you could help me?—TONGUE TIED.

DEAR TONGUE TIED — Say something like this:

"Ever since I made ralain cookies standing on a box in the kitchen, I've wanted to make food my profession. Now they tell me experts in diets are badly needed all over Canada—in hospitals, industries, hotels, schools.

"Your help means I can realize my dream. Not only do I appreciate your financial assistance, which is generous, but your moral support and encouragement will send me off with the resolve to become the best dietitian in Canada."

Full something personal—perhaps how you felt when you received the news about the bursary. Say thank you as if you meant it. Then cut it short.

DEAR DORIS—I am seventeen and heartbroken. Last spring I met up with a boy that I liked. About a month later I received a friendly note from him telling me that he enjoyed himself when he was with me and was looking forward to the next time. Well, I answered him, but never thanked him for the good time I had because I was afraid that he might come down and see me.

This is the point: My parents never knew about this date I had. They will not allow me to have dates because they say I am too young. However, I did go on dates occasionally while I was away from home and going to school, but since I met this guy (who is 22 years old) I don't care to go with anyone except him.

My parents also warned me not to get involved with boys outside of our religion, so even if at some time they would let me go, I'd have that same problem before me. What could I do? - Do you think he'd understand if I told him about religion and my youngness? Do you think he'd think I was chasing him if I wrote him another letter?—MIXED UP.

DEAR MIXED UP—Religion and "youngness" are both against it. Wanting him is natural; but jumping over the obstacles not so easy.

You should be having dates, lots of them, but not with him. What's more, your parents are more likely to go for the idea when it's with boys of your own age and faith!

DEAR DORIS—Is there anywhere in Canada where one could get a course in millinery by mail?—MRS. J. S.

DEAR MRS. J. S.—Not that I know of. Would dressmaking do instead? This is offered by the Director of High School Correspondence Instruction, Department of Education, Victoria, B.C., to anyone in Canada.

TO NO WILL POWER—Make a squared off chart with a column for each day-in the week; and a place to record waist and hip measurements and weight, weekly. Enter calories consumed daily. When you lose five pounds, reward yourself with a new lipstick; when it's ten, make it a new dress in the next size down!

(Let Doris suggest a solution to your dilemma. Write to her about it.)

A Lift for Living

We Should Be 'Good Mixers' Without Losing Individuality

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Recently I was talking with a high church official who helps to place ministers in new parishes. He tol dme that the pulpit committees which came looking for preachers usually asked first whether the candidate was a good mixer. They seemed more concerned about his ability to get along with people than about his power in the pulpit.

When I am requested to sign recomendations for applicants in almost any line of work, the question is asked regarding their agreeable relationship to other people.

But what is it to be a good mixer? Certainly it does not mean to lose one's own individuality in the crowd. Jesus said to His disciples, "You are the salt of the earth, but if salt has lost its taste, how shall its saltness be restored? It is no longer good for anything except to be thrown out and trodden under foot by men." I have known church people and preachers who tried to be such "good fellows" in a crowd that they ceased to be good.

Some years ago I heard a speaker introduced with these words: "He is steadfastly old-fashioned in his convictions, superbly modern in his ideas, and startlingly ahead of his time in his ideals." To keep toned up to that standard, firm in one's conviction, yet flexible in one's thinking and forward-looking in one's planning —that is the norm which the Creator has set for us and for which we need the Christ to restore us.

IN OWN HOME

Consider how we mix in the most intimate circles of our own homes. Love, the most beautiful thing in life, may sometimes lose its wholesomeness. Jesus said that there are times when "a man's foes will be those of his own household." Love may sometimes be too soft, sometimes too narrowing. Turn now to see how we mix in our friendships. Oh, we answer: "We get along with people all right." Yes, but do we get them along? Do we ever trespass on the personalities nearest and dearest to us? Do we ever exploit a friendship? When we mingle with others, do we leave them looking up or down? Are there persons whom we cannot look squarely in the eye because they have something on us? Then we give with grace and forgive without grimace? How deep are our friendships? Was it Thackeray who said, "I have many friends but not more than a dozen the news of whose death would spoil my appetite for breakfast?" That sounds rather brutal, doesn't it? But how many friends have we who can break our hearts by what happens to them?

INSPIRES LOYALTY

For that reason we need the Great Physician who inspires loyalty which lifts all our other loyalties to a higher plane. His spirit in a home is the solvent which removes the little frictions and prevents the large infidelities. Love between husband and wife cannot remain at its best unless it is sustained by common interests and larger loyalties. I recall a couple who were so deeply devoted that each seemed to live soley for the other. But they had no larger common interests. They were like two persons on a teeter board. They watched each other's ups and downs, but their lives never advanced. When one dropped off, the other had nothing left to live for. The Master of Men comes to enrich our intimate loves with those interests which are our joy in life and our stay in death.

Christ ennobles our friendships so that we meet at the sign of our higher, rather than our lower, lastes. He enlarges our sympathies, until they reach out to those who are too unlovely to be naturally attractive and hunt up those who are too shy to ask for help. To be so wholesomely related to others that we look for the best in them and bring out the best from them—that is a mark of being a good mixer, as judged by the Great Physician.

MIXING AT WORK

Consider also how we mix with people in our work. Man is not created to be a wild animal nor a beast of burden, but a being who finds the zest of life in the joy of working. Work is as essential to man as is food or air. Some persons are fortunate enough to find themselves in work so congenial that they can throw themselves wholeheartedly into their daily tasks. Others have to put heart into work that is uncongenial, that seems to require only a meagre part of their talents. To take drudgery in our stride, to make our work meaningful, to ennoble lowly duties with high motives and distinguished doing — that is to measure up to the norm as set by Christ.

But others like to work with us and also to play with us!

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE -

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Three years ago the lake trout limit for Lake Simcoe was reduced to a daily take of two. The reason given, if memory is correct, that winter fishing was taking an exorbitant toll.

At the same time the daily limit in Hastings, Leanox and Addington and Frontenac lake trout haunts was cut from five to three.

The government's decision to reduce the limit raised a mild furore among anglers of the three counties. Lake trout fishing grounds in their areas, they claimed, were not fished out. The brevity of the season, March 1 to October 5, prevented any angler reduction by winter fishing.

They said their season was the shortest in Ontario. Some districts had year-round lake trout fishing, others eleven months, and more a month or so longer than their districts.

The Belleville Fish and Game Association decided to do something about it. Officials sent a resolution to the government department protesting the reduction—and asking a return to the five-per-day limit. In a short time other game and fish clubs of the three counties followed suit.

The request got them nothing. They tried again the next year—and the next. With the same result.

A short time ago nine Fish and Game associations, embracing districts from Bancroft to Picton and Trenton to Kingston merged into what is called the East Central Ontario Association of Sportsmen's Clubs. The organization holds five meetings a year to discuss important matters.

At one of the meetings held in Stirling last Sunday the association believing that in unity there is strength, decided among other matters to take the lake trout mountain to the governmental kitchenet.

Within a short time the association will send some half-dozen or so well-informed, capable members to Toronto where they will discuss with the Hon. W. J. Spooner, minister of Lands and Forests for Ontario, the matter of restoring the lake trout daily limit to five. They will be accompanied by district members of the Ontario Legislature.

"We feel," said past-president Gordon Magee, of the Belleville Fish and Game Association, "that the reduction was not fair to anglers in this area and others involved. It is all very well for metropolitan anglers who own cottages on our lakes. They lock up in the fall knowing the fish will be there when they return in the spring."

"The season in our district is the shortest in the province," said Mr. Magee. "It was bad enough at that, but the reduction in the daily limit was uncalled for. What happens in other districts should not be said for by ours."

Mr. Magee intimated that the delegation to Toronto will ask, besides the restoration of the five-a-day limit, that the season be extended to year-round operation. Another matter that will be brought up, he said, was that seasons on all species of trout be made the same.

Appointed members to the Toronto delegation will meet at the headquarters of the Tweed District Department of Lands and Forests, where facts, figures and other material to be presented to the minister will be finalized.

Officials of the Belleville Fish and Game Association, an organization that now boasts nearly 600 members from the immediate district, told me that they did not agree with the government's decision to cut the lake trout limit here because winter fishermen depleted the trout population in Lake Simcoe and other trout grounds.

Any restrictions made, a spokesman said, should have been directed at the hungry winter anglers in these places, not in districts like this, where five-a-day was a good haul.

Sawchuk Has Brilliant Start ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Wings 'Man With Mask' Is Top Robber

By RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

There's a new masked bandit in the National Hockey League this season and he's robbing some of the league's best sharpshooters blind.

Ironically the man behind the mask is Terry Sawchuk, who 10 years ago was the scourge of the league's forwards. Lately his name was pushed out of the spotlight by another masked man—Jacques Plante of Montreal Canadiens.

Last season there was some rumbling around the league that Sawchuk was nearing the end of his NHL career.

If that is the case, the 32-year-old veteran is going out in a blaze of glory.

KEEPS GOALS DOWN

Sawchuk, wearing a face mask for the first time in his career, is having another fling as top man in the netminders' union. In the Wings' first four games he has allowed only five goals, half the total he let get by him in his first four starts last season.

The Winnipeg-born netminder, now a United States citizen, has already recorded a shutout. That was a scoreless tie last Saturday against Chicago Black Hawks.

He now needs only six more shutouts to break the NHL all-time record of 94, held by the late George Hainsworth.

Last season Sawchuk had his worst in 12 years of big-league goaltending, 30 of which have been with the Wings. His goals against average was 3.22 per game—a big difference from his first five seasons in the NHL when his average never rose above 1.3 goals per game.

MAY BE MASK

Sawchuk himself is reluctant to say what is causing him to have such a good start. He figures it might be the mask, made especially for him by Detroit trainer Lefty Wilson and modelled along the same lines as the one Plante has been using for several seasons.

"The mask might be giving me a little more self - confidence," Sawchuk explains. "But I can't really say for sure."

He and the rest of his teammates have a night off tonight, as do the New York Rangers, Boston Bruins visit Montreal Canadiens and Chicago plays at Toronto in tonight's two games.

Sawchuk, however, goes into action Sunday night at Detroit when the Hawks visit the Wings. In other Sunday games, Toronto is at Boston and Montreal at New York.

Meet Eskimos, Lions

Bombers, Stamps Battle For Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two old Western Football Conference rivals will clash today in Edmonton, but it's not the same any more.

Edmonton Eskimos and Winnipeg Blue Bombers dominated the conference for the last decade, turning it into an annual two-team race.

But now Edmonton is last and out of the playoffs and Winnipeg is fighting hard for first place, a position it has clinched by this time in the season.

Calgary Stampeders, who will meet British Columbia Lions today in Calgary, hold first place with 17 points, one ahead of Winnipeg.

Saskatchewan is a point behind Winnipeg, holding the last playoff spot.

Edmonton, plagued with injuries all season, has import Quillback Johnny Bright and centre Don Duncalfe on the sidelines.

Although Kenny Ploen has a bruised shoulder, Winnipeg coach Bud Grant said he will start at quarterback.

Ploen may be further handicapped with regular offensive end Farrell Funston out with a knee injury. He will be replaced by Bill Whisler, a Washington Redskin cut.

Calgary coach Bobby Dobbs said fullback Early Lunsford, conference rushing leader, may not play because of an injury.

Doug Jones Favored Over Foster

NEW YORK (AP) — Doug Jones, No. 2 light-heavyweight in the world boxing association rankings, is a solid favorite to whip undefeated Bobby Foster of Washington in a scheduled 10-round fight tonight at Madison Square Garden.

Foster is substituting for Zora Folley, forced to withdraw because of a virus attack. The 23-year-old Foster has never gone 10 rounds, although he won all 12 of his professional fights, none against top-grade opponents.

Jones has had a bad year so far with losses to Folley and Harold Johnson and a draw with Eric Schoeppner in Germany.

The bout will be televised nationally at 10 p.m. EDT over ABC and CFTO-TV, Toronto.

Four Canadian Horses Entered

The Championship Stakes

TORONTO (CP)—Four thoroughbreds carry Canada's hopes to recapture the Canadian Championship at the 20th running of the 13-furlong turf race at Woodbine today.

Not since 1953 has a Canadian - owned horse won the Championship stakes. Since then the rich stakes of Canada's second most important horse race have gone to United States horsemen.

Gross purse for today's running is $80,700.

The last Canadian - owned horse to win the even was E. P. Taylor's Navy Page. Another Taylor horse, Song of Even, a four-year-old filly, is in the running today. She is the only Canadian-bred horse in the race.

The other Canadian - owned horses in the field of eight are Max Bell's Lustrous Hope, Jack Stafford's Amber Morn and Ravenwing, owned by the Toronto partnership of Dave Mann and Paul Martel.

Counted to come up strongly for the first prize of $35,700 is Our Jeep, owned by Frederick Streeter John Schiff, winner of the 1961 Canadian Championship.

RIDERS LOSE BACK

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders have lost defensive back Jim Copeland for the rest of the season, but Western Football Conference club announced Friday. Copeland, who came to Riders last year from Montreal Alouettes, suffered a spinal injury on a punt return last Saturday at Ottawa.

Meet Frisco, Hornung Out

Packers' Record On Spot

NEW YORK (AP)—The small crack in Green Bay's silver lining, created by the loss of Paul Hornung, places the Packers in jeopardy of having the National Football League's only unblemished record tarnished S. today by the resurgent San Francisco 49ers.

The Packers, holding top spot in the Western Conference by one game over Detroit, must do without league scoring leader Hornung, who will probably be on the sidelines with a twisted right knee.

Joining Hornung on the sidelines will be another of the league's glamour boys — Philadelphia's passing maestro Sonny Jurgensen. Coach Nick Skorich has decided to star King Hill instead of Jurgensen in an effort to get the Eagles' sputtering offence rolling.

At the same time, two long absent headliners — fleet halfbacks Lenny Moore of Baltimore and Jon Arnett of Los Angeles—are slated to return to full - time action.

The Green Bay-San Francisco meeting is the headliner, but in New York western runner-up Detroit (4-1) takes the Giants, tied for second in the east with Pittsburgh at 3-2.

Eastern leader Washington (3-0-2) tests Hill and the Eagles, Moore returns in action with the Colts at Chicago, Minnesota gets a chance to stop Arnett at Los Angeles, the Steelers host Dallas and Cleveland is at St. Louis in other games.

In American League weekend action, Oakland is at Buffalo tonight and Sunday Houston meets Denver and New York takes on Dallas.

Hull Trims Kingston, Wolves Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It took just one line of Hull-Ottawa Canadiens to kill Kingston Frontenacs in the Eastern Professional Hockey League Friday night.

The line of Billy Carter, Brian Smith and Keith McCreary accounted for three goals as the Canadiens defeated Kingston Frontenacs 5-1. The two clubs are tied for first place with six points apiece.

The result of Friday night's second game left the clubs in second. Sudbury Wolves and Syracuse Braves—tied for third spot with two points each. Sudbury defeated Syracuse 4-3 for its first victory of the season.

Carter scored two goals at Ottawa and Smith one as the Canadiens outplayed the Frontenacs throughout the game. McCreary assisted on two of the goals. Rookie Norm Beaudin and John Roger scored the other Canadiens' goals.

Red Ouellette scored at the 48-second mark of the third period to upset Hull-Ottawa goalender Ernie Wakely's bid for a shutout. Wakely had to make only 18 saves compared with the 20 stops for Kingston netminder Bruce Gamble.

At Sudbury, Ed Ehrenverth, Red Armstrong and Ted Taylor scored for the Wolves. Defenceman Rino Robazza scored the only Syracuse goal.

Speed-Skating Executive Says West Ignores East

TORONTO (CP) — John Hurdis, an Ontario speed skating executive, said Friday officials in Western Canada have ignored eastern talent in choosing the team for European competition.

Hurdis, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Amateur Speed Skating Association, cited the case of Toronto's Steve Kovacs, who he said was not given a chance to try for membership on the 11-man team.

"They never told us a thing about it until yesterday," he said. "Then we got a letter telling us the team has been picked. There are five from Edmonton, one from Saskatoon and Paul Enoch, who now is in Norway."

Hurdis challenged the western officials to arrange competitions between Kovacs and the entire team.

"We had no idea they were going to pick the team from points standing in the North American and Canadian championships," he said. Both events were held in Western Canada early in 1962.

"I'm wondering about another pick to sprinter in the east—Johnny Sands of Montreal. How's he going to be considered?"

The team will go on a six-week training and competitive tour of European racing rinks.

Confident Als Meet Ottawa

Argos Plan-Give Zuger The Lumps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Alouettes, having trampled Toronto Argonauts into the Eastern Football Conference cellar last weekend, go against the second-place Ottawa Rough Riders today with a slightened roster and ched teeth.

And the Argonauts are relying on the big rush to contain the passing of Joe Zuger, the young quarterback in the Hamilton Tiger - Cat den who mauled Saskatchewan Roughriders' vaunted defence for a record eight touchdown passes Monday night.

For Toronto, Sunday's tilt against league-leading Hamilton could be the last, chance for a playoff spot, and coach Nobby Wirkowski says the Scullers have a two-phase plan to stop the 22-year-old Zuger.

Part one is aimed at pulling the launching pad from under Joe the quarterback. "We intend to give Joe the rush," says Wirkowski. "We'll find out how good a quarterback he is."

Hamilton coach Jim Trimble isn't saying much about his young ace, but part of his confidence rides on another of Zuger's abilities, the rollout and run.

Against Joe the rollout specialist, Argos will mount their first phase two of their anti-2 defensive plan.

For an example of how-not-to-do-it the Toronto squad has only to refer to last week's game with Montreal, when Sandy Stephens rolled out, passed and ran the Als to a 50-21 victory.

Toronto will be without ends Menan Schriewer and A. D. Williams. Linebacker-guard Zeke Smith replaces Gerry Patrick, out with a broken leg.

Alouette coach Perry Moss expects tougher sledding against Ottawa and hints at a sharp shift in tactics from those Montreal used in Argonauts last Sunday.

For the first time in weeks, Als will have their bench filled with the full 30-man complement, with the return of centre Joe Stracina and homebrew punt - returner Ted Page.

Alouettes now are in third spot, two points ahead of Argos.

To pull off a win this weekend Alouettes have to overcome the Ottawa defence, which includes three ex - Alouette backs—Dick Cohee, Gene Gaines and Bob Bisaro.

Fullback Dave Thelen, who picked up a leg injury last Saturday against Saskatchewan, is expected to play. Halfback Doug Daignault likely will remain in the lineup in place of Millard Flemming.

The Riders Quinter, an end from Washington Redskins of the National Football League, replace Bill Semenko who received an ankle in a game against Saskatchewan last Saturday.

Soccer Clubs Draws Fines

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Soccer Association has fined seven National Soccer League $25 each for signing players from teams outside the league without the consent of the players' teams.

In addition to the fine, the clubs must pay a minimum of $25 to the teams for which the players registered. If the player was registered on a non-amateur or semi-professional certificate, the cost is $100.

The seven teams involved are Eben City, Italian-Virtus, Hamilton, Checkedanas, Oshawa Italia, Oshawa Hungaria and Toronto Hungarians.

END SIGNS WITH ARGOS

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference have signed Maury Schleicher, once an all-American end with Pennsylvania State. Schleicher recently released by San Diego Chargers of the American Football League, is the ninth United States professional imported by Argos since Nobby Wirkowski became head coach in August.

Picked Over Kidd, Jerome

Crow Award To Gymnast

By PAUL RIMSTRAD

TORONTO (CP) — Wilhelm (Willie) Weller, the Canadian Army's outstanding gymnast, has been named winner of the Norton H. Crow Memorial Award for the second year in succession.

Weller, German-born and now stationed at Camp Borden, Ont., defeated track stars Bruce Kidd of Toronto, Harry Jerome of Vancouver and Gordon Dickson of Hamilton in a vote held at the 69th annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

The announcement was made Friday night at an AAU banquet sponsored by the provincial government.

The award is presented annually to the Canadian male athlete making the outstanding contribution to any AAU sport, taking performance, character and sportsmanship into consideration.

The late Norton Crow was secretary of the AAU for 15 years and the trophy, presented first in 1932, has been dominated by track and field.

Kidd is Canada's internationally - known distance runner, picked up the Vincent Alexander Trophy which goes to the outstanding Canadian Junior athlete, for the third year in a row, and the Dr. Fred Tees Trophy for the outstanding Canadian university track and field-star.

The top woman athlete picked by the AAU is Mary Stewart, Vancouver's world record-holding 16 - year - old swimmer who became a two-time winner of the Velma Springstead Rose Bowl Trophy.

The Maj. J. W. Davis trophy, presented each year to Canada's outstanding track competitor—excluding walking — was won by Jerome, the first man ever to share the world records for the 100-yard and 100-metre events.

The top field competitor, winner of the Frederick N. Rowell Trophy, was shot put champ Dave Steen of Burnaby, B.C.

To Improve Canada's Showing

Track Body Forms Plans

By PAUL RIMSTRAD

TORONTO (CP) — The national track and field committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada made three motions Friday they hope will improve Canada's future showing in international competition. In them they:

1. Urged the AAU to ask the federal fitness council for $25,000 to take a large Canadian team to Great Britain or another European country for a track and field meet next summer.

2. Will investigate the possibility of establishing a standing selection committee which would choose Canada's international track and field representatives for a two - year period.

3. Suggested that Canada's British Empire Games, Pan-American Games and Olympic trials be open to other than Canadian athletes. Trials have been closed in the past.

Taking a team to an international event next summer is Bob Hodgkinson, Kent Twigg's list of things to do.

"We'll take the team," he said, "even if we have to raise the $50,000 ourselves."

Twigg also announced that Canada's Pan-Am team will be chosen Jan. 25.

SET MAT SITE

The wrestling committee suggested Canada employ a top wrestling coach to assist at coaching clinics and awarded the Western Canada wrestling championships to the B.C. branch.

The Pan-Am trials and Canadian championships will be held in central Ontario.

Boxing decided to hold its Pan - Am trials at Weyburn, Sask.

Joe was named as a new affiliate sport and Judoka Frank Hatashita of Toronto will be named national chairman. The judo division will be represented by the Canadian Kodokan Black Belt Association.

The national AAU gymnastics championships were awarded to Saskatchewan.

The only controversy at the meeting developed when Quebec gymnasts refused to pay

The secondary feature, a $700 C-1 C-2 handicap mile trot, was captured by Wind Song, owned by Al Leverington of St. Thomas and driven by Jiggs McFadden, crossing the wire ahead of Darn Tooting in 2:09 2-5, best time of the night, for a $4.20 payoff.

Sonny Liston Poor Copy For Scribes

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Heavyweight boxing king Sonny Liston, in reverse a role from boisterous to shy, refuses to discuss his fight with Floyd Patterson.

Liston, who has been in Portland here tonight, found reporters clustering around him with questions at a dinner. He frowned in silence through most of it Friday night.

"What for you want to ask me them questions?" the champion asked. "Man, they the same all over."

Someone asked him how long he expected to be champion.

"Now how do I know that? How long you going to be working at what you're doing? I don't want to answer no questions like that."

A youngster who asked for an autograph got prompt service.

Liston reached into his pocket and pulled out a pad. From the top he peeled off one of the mimeographed sheets that said: "All best wishes from Sonny Liston."

Lema Takes Golf Lead

First-round leader Bob Pratt of Las Vegas, slipped to an even par 71 for 137 and a tie for fourth place with Cas Jawor of Detroit. Jawor had a 66, the lowest round, shared by four other players.

George Knudson of Toronto was 69-71—140 so far in the tournament while Al Johnston of Montreal has a two-round score of 71-71—142.

Palmer Plays Movie Golf

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Arnold Palmer wound up what he described as the toughest round of his golf career Friday.

"It was certainly one of the most hazardous course I've ever played," said Palmer, "and with some of the oddest players —Bob Hopes and a chimpanzee named Charlie."

Palmer flew here from the United States last week to appear in Hope's new movie. In the film, Palmer plays the role of a golf pro on a course in Africa.

While the cameras whirled, he played chip shots off the backs of elephants and instructed Hope on how to play around a hippopotamus.

These weren't the only distractions.

At one point—when he was trying to drop a 30-foot putt—a herd of zebras stampeded behind him.

"And then there were those hyenas," said Palmer. "I don't know what they got them, but they kept laughing while I was shooting."

TOOK WEEK TO FILM

The picture is being made at the nearby Pinewood Studios. The golf sequence lasts eight minutes but it's taken a week to film.

In between the swinging, Palmer had to learn and speak several lines.

One exchange with Hope went this way:

Hope, after getting off a good shot—"Ever see a man swing like that before?"

"Just once. He was swinging from a tree," replies Palmer.

During his filming, Palmer bet Hope that he could teach Charlie, the chimp, how to beat Hope as a putter.

"I gave Charlie an hour's instruction and felt this was enough. I was wrong. Charlie failed to drop a single putt, but he shows great promise which is more than I can say for Bob."

Hope, of course, is an excellant golfer—off the movie set.

Western Hockey

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A hot battle appears to be shaping up in the Western Hockey League's Northern Division. The Vancouver Canucks dumped Los Angeles 6-2 Friday night for their fourth straight victory but Edmonton's Flyers edged Calgary 2-1 to move into second place—just two points back of Vancouver.

Phil Maloney and Buddy Boone, each with a goal and a pair of assists, led the Vancouver squad.

Lloyd Haddon scored for the Blades in the first two minutes. The Canucks scored twice on shots by Bob McCusker and Larry Popein. The Blades' other goal came from Bruce Carmichael in the second period. Jim Baird and Barrie Ross added the other Vancouver goals.

At Edmonton, a second-period goal by defenceman Knobby Walsh while the Flyers had a two-man advantage gave them the game. Ray Kinsewich scored Edmonton's other goal. Ron Kolanacic tallied for Calgary.

Boxer Holds Own

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Hospital attendants say heavyweight boxer Alejandro Lavorante of Argentina is "holding his own" after under-going his third brain operation.

The fighter has been in a coma since he was knocked out in a bout with Johnny Riggins of San Francisco here Sept. 21.

Ben Casey Is Sailing Into Second Successful Season

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Vincent Edwards smiles!

Some folks believe that should rate a headline any day. After all hasn't he? Well, they do. Ben Casey been written up by magazine writers as the "doctor" and "surly surgeon"? Not to mention "morose medico."

Is he really an angry young (33) man?

"I think people sometimes confuse an actor with the role he plays," he says in his own defence. "Sure, I can get mad when things go wrong. But I can also make a joke as well as anyone."

Edwards is more in a laughing mood these days, and why not? Ben Casey is sailing into his second successful season.

One of the reasons Edwards is happier than last season is that this time he is getting a larger piece of the action. He staged a sitdown last spring until his bosses came up with a new deal.

"I didn't mind working the first season at a nominal fee," he reasoned. "But after the show had proved itself, I figured I was due for a share.

"It really doesn't seem so great when you figure the entire cost of production. Take a look at some of the other beneficiaries. The agency that packaged the show gets a fee of 10 per cent of the weekly cost, which runs about $140,000. The advertising agency collects 15 per cent of the total cost.

"So an actor's fee of $5,000 a week seems kind of small when you figure out what others are getting."

Edwards seemed pleased with the new season's product—he has already made 13 of the hour-long shows.

Multi-Talented Peck Writes, Acts, Produces

"CAPE FEAR" OPENS MONDAY

Gregory Peck, the most thorough-going perfectionist on the celluloid screen has been known to spend a week or more preparing for one small scene.

When cameras begin to roll on one of his pictures, such as the suspense drama, "Cape Fear," a Melville-Talbot production for Universal, opening Monday at the Park Theatre for its first showing, there is no one in the cast who can prepare him in preliminary preparation in depth.

In "Cape Fear" which is Peck's own production and in which he therefore had a hand far beyond the degree of his usual participation, his preparation began many months before the suspense shocker was placed upon the ground stages under the direction of Britain's J. Lee Thompson, who helmed the "Guns of Navarone," starring Peck.

The headline performer, whose co-stars in "Cape Fear" are Robert Mitchum and Polly Bergen, assesses the drama as a study in theatrical suspense each segment of the mounting tension and terror as meticulously put together as the most elaborate architectural blueprint."

He not only completely absorbed all the dialogue, its various nuances and shadings, but also probed the psychological and physiological motivations of the attorney he portrays.

Peck is hooked by his story sense and, although he never shares a writing credit, he works so closely with the scenarist that the cognoscenti can readily recognize his touch in any sequence in which he is involved.

"FIVE MINUTES TO LIVE"
Pamela Mason, Homebreaker

Pamela Mason, actress, national radio and TV columnist and wife of actor James Mason, has achieved her longed for opportunity to play an "other" woman role in "Five Minutes to Live," suspense drama opening Monday at Park Theatre.

Kay Forester and Johnny Cash, nationally popular singing favorite, co-star in the Flower Production offering.

OTTAWA ((CP)—Palermo, a four-year-old bay gelding, won the feature Pontiac pace at Rideau Carleton Raceway Friday night, collecting the winner's share of the $600 purse for owners John Ball and James Hanna of Caledonia, N.Y.

Palermo, driven by Du John Findley, paid $3.90, $2.20, and $2.70.

Driver Ross Curran, 25, of Smiths Falls set a record by winning five of the 10 races and placing third in a sixth.

Presiding Judge Claire Smith said it was the best showing by a driver in a 10-race program he had ever seen.

Sports Snapshots

By BUCE LEVETT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Once upon a time, when a football player was said to be taking to the air, it meant only one thing — passes.

Nowadays, it can have another meaning—the team is flying out to play in a city at the other end of the country. And everybody pays cash — the passes are out.

The transportation of big-time football teams and all their gear is big business to Trans-Canada Air Lines.

This year, under the semi-interlocking system used in the Canadian Football League, the teams will pay an estimated $200,000 to TCA.

Of this, says team general manager Herb Capozzi, the British Columbia Lions will pay $50,000.

Frank Walden, writing in the Vancouver Sun, relates the case of Gary Schwertfeger's contact lenses as an example of the service Canadian football gets for its money.

LENSES FLOWN IN

Schwertz's lenses were popped from his eyeballs by a jarring tackle during a game in Ottawa with Lansdowne Park July 19. Lions were 2,500 miles away from home and the player's spare lenses were lodged with care in his Empire Stadium locker.

The coach pondered the choices — send the half - blind Schwertzger home, send him to an optometrist or play him in myopic misery against Hamilton Tiger-Cats four days thence.

Bruce Hay, TCA sales representative who travels with the team to help solve just such problems, telephoned his Vancouver office. TCA here rang the stadium and somebody unearthed the spare lenses.

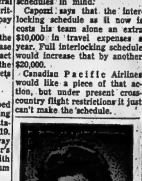
Shortly afterward an airlines pilot was handed an envelope marked "fragile" for personal delivery in Toronto, where Schwertz was waiting.

Airline arrangements are laid on early in March when game scheduling is announced.

In the case of Lions, Hay budgets with Capozzi to arrange travel space. About 45 seats are blocked off for the various flights and return space is laid out.

Airline personnel have to consider the weight problem also. The average football player outweighs the average airline passenger by about 35 pounds. When the schedule calls for a lighter aircraft—such as a Viscount—the players are seated up forward to provide better takeoff balance.

Regular passengers are in for treat on the player flights. The menu provides thick, juicy steaks and double ration of milk and juices.



The flying airlines man is a busy soul. Hay has to keep track of about 2,100 pounds of uniforms, helmets, footballs and personal baggage and keep schedules in mind.

Capozzi says that the interlocking schedule as it now is costs his team alone an extra $10,000 in travel expenses a year. Full interlocking schedule would increase that by another $20,000.

Canadian Pacific Airlines would like a piece of that action, but under present cross-country flight restrictions it just can't make the schedule.

ED BELL MOVES UP

A short seven years ago, a youthful employee of a local manufacturing firm decided to get ahead on his own.

Aware that education is the key to progress, Ed Bell took a three-year night course in cabinet making, blue printing and kitchen planning followed by schooling in the same subjects at the Ontario Vocational Centre in Toronto.

On his return to Belleville, Ed demonstrated the benefits of this training with the success of his outstanding four-plex, the first of its kind in this city, followed by two highly successful six-plexes.

Like most of the best builders, Ed's motto is "Build well and seldom" with emphasis on the latter word.

"We build your choice to the exact specifications you can afford — Basic Line, Deluxe or Custom Made. We do most of the work done by local skilled craftsmen under my personal supervision — Act Now—

FARM CREDIT

Mr. Argue told Mr. Hamilton he was doing a disservice to farmers across Canada by refusing to place the farm credit bill before a Commons committee.

WOULD BE AMAZED

Prairie farmers would be amazed to learn that Mr. Hamilton felt that "their ship had come in".

Mr. Hamilton said the Liberal member's calculations of farm net income were $800,000,000 on the low side.

He told David Ouellet (SC—Drummond-Arthabaska) that he would welcome invitations to Quebec counties to tell farmers what federal benefits, including farm credit, are available to them.

In other developments Friday, a storm began to blow up in the Commons over the government's intention to submit its budgetary proposals to a committee of the whole House rather than hold the customary full - dress debate in the House.

The Liberals and NDP rejected bitterly to the plan, complaining that it would deny the opposition the privilege of proposing non-confidence motions against the government — customary in a regular budget debate.

Gordon Churchill, government leader in the House, promised only that the government would "give favorable consideration" to a full-dress debate.

In other Commons business Friday:

1. Mr. Diefenbaker said the government is studying the case of a Quebec City firm accused by the United States of evading the U.S. embargo on export of American-made goods to Cuba.

2. Spending authorizations for November, totalling $231,819,- 500, were speedily approved by the House.

The Golden Years

Live in Tent, Wear Overalls But Eat Well in Retirement

By THOMAS COLLINS

Food will normally take about one-third of your retirement income. No other single item in your budget will take as much.

Along with your housing and the climate you had better have a look at it.

A healthy couple at 65 might have an appetite that ranges from Irish stew to sirloin, which would make considerable difference in the food bill. But most people nowadays don't eat food just to exist, they eat to enjoy. On the average the couple with a $240-a-month income would spend about $20 a week.

What will $20 buy — where?

In a tour through the retirement areas I have tried to analyze prices and pin down some comparative figures. This is what I have found. Food prices vary very little from north to south or from east to west. Meat may be a few cents less per pound, canned and packaged foods a few cents more. But the $20 bag of groceries will be about the same bag you carry out of a supermarket in any part of Canada. Certain foods will be quite the town — or some meats if a — if farms cluster close to the th town — or some meats if a packing house is near. Others will be very expensive, for no apparent reason. Things balance out pretty well on a $20 shopping trip. Supermarkets in the retirement areas are as fine or finer than those elsewhere. They handle as shopping carts just as large . . . Most retired couples buy all they eat. Despite the long growing season, fair soil and good weather, few of them have with a vegetable garden. Very few bother to travel through the countryside to buy up foods a farmer might sell cheaply. Daily visits to the market appear to be one of their enjoyable chores.

One couple explained that food prices had been a shock to them when they moved. "Labor costs are less, both in erecting the store and tending the counter" they said. "Also you would expect small towns would be nearer the sources of food supply. But we are paying as much for food as we paid back home . . ."

Said another retired man: "No, I don't have a garden. The food stores have made us too civilized before we retire, what with refrigerated counters, plastic wrappings and everything washed and clean. Anything out of a back-yard garden, except maybe for a prize tomato once in a while, hardly seems fit to eat any more."

Don't let this report on food keep you from heading South when you retire if the South is what you want. Housing is cheaper and so are most of the services you buy, especially in the smaller towns. Heating and clothing costs will be less. On the whole you'll fare well enough.

But you may want to do a couple of things — subscribe to the daily paper in the town where you want to go, clip out the food ads and compare them with your local prizes; then de-civilize yourself enough to plant at least a small vegetable garden.

Above all don't skimp on the food you need, as some couples whose incomes begin to fade have done. Live in a tent and wear overalls. But eat well.

Special Courts For Teen-Agers Are Requested

TORONTO (CP)—Young persons from 16 to 18 years old who commit offences against the law should be dealt with under new federal legislation rather than under the Criminal Code, says a brief presented to the department of justice and released Thursday. It was one of 18 recommendations made by the Association of Juvenile and Family Court Judges of Ontario.

The brief said that since these young offenders are neither juveniles nor adults, they should be brought before the law in special courts where cases would be heard in camera and without publicity just as juvenile cases now are heard.

However, if a Crown attorney deemed a case serious enough to be tried under the Criminal Code he should be given the power to order the exception.

The Social Planning Council of Metropolitan Toronto made a similar plea in a brief presented to the council Monday, but suggested the age limits should be 16 to 21.

ask henry

Henry invites letters from readers. For the most interesting letter he receives each week, he will award a copy of his best-selling book, "Ask Henry," published by Prentice-Hall, Inc.

Dear Henry—Do you think a boy 7 years old should go out to play before he does his homework or after he does it?—MRS. CANTANZARO.

Dear Mrs. Cantanzaro: —Well, the 15 minutes' homework a grade two gets isn't worth one hour of "dreamy, I want to go out and play while the sun is out." Let him go free till old-er.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I am a girl of 16 and my boy friend is 17. I was going steady with him until my father found out, now I can only see him two nights a week. My mother thinks I am too young to be tied down and wants me to go out with other boys too, and not only with one. He is going into the service soon and I want to see him more than two nights a week. Tell me if you think she is right.—LILI.

Dear Lili—Your mother wants you to look over the harvest before you choose. Fourteen is too young to go steady. Your mother wants the best for you, so listen—HENRY.

Dear Henry—How do you get children to walk the dog when it is their turn, without arguments?—MRS. B.

Dear Mrs. B.—What do you mean by "their turn?" They should be begging to walk the dog. And any time they step it means that the dog should go. Tell them that if there is no dog's life, there is no dog.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—How do you get children to speak softly, as I have very sensitive ears.—MRS. MARY J.

Dear Mrs. Mary J.—They probably speak loudly because they want to be heard. Also when you are speaking to them, speak very softly and perhaps they will too.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—How can I stop fighting with my brothers? When we get home from school we always end up fighting. —FOLLOWER.

Dear Follower—The best way to stop fighting is to have a message sent from your brain by the motor nerves to your various muscles in your arms, legs, etc., telling them to stop fighting pow and ever after.—HENRY.

CHINESE TROOPS LAUNCH NEW ATTACK

Liner Grounds In Storm, 20 Dead

Driven Ashore On Gale-Blown Norway Coast

45 Survivors Found Twenty Said Missing

RORVIK, Norway (AP)—Rescue ships and planes found 2 bodies today amid wreckage of the Norwegian coast liner Sanct Svithun in the icy Norwegian Sea. Five lifeboats with 47 survivors were found and 20 or more persons still were missing.

Of the survivors, 22 were passengers and 25 members of the 45-man crew.

More than a dozen ships and military planes searched over the stormy seas off Norway's west coast today.

Rescue ships reported picking up eight bodies, while a Norwegian Air Force flying boat reported seeing another 12 bodies in the water.

GROUNDS IN GALE

The modern 2,172 - ton liner went aground Sunday night in gale winds and heavy seas 4 miles south of Nordoeya Lighthouse Island.

The ship messaged that it pulled itself clear. But it had been holed by the grounding. Thirty minutes later it radioed that it was taking "considerable amount of water" and abandon ship was ordered.

Survivors said the sleek coastal ship was still afloat when they pulled away. Electric power on board had failed and they could not estimate how many people had managed to escape in lifeboats.

The search director, O. B. Hansen, harbor master of Rorvik, said the coastal area is littered with rocks and small islands.

"It would be extremely difficult to manoeuvre with a lifeboat in complete darkness under these conditions," Thodesen said. But he expressed the hope that the search planes would locate survivors on the spots of high ground.

NPD Opposes "Secrecy" in Crime Probe

TORONTO (CP) — Plans to keep secret further proceedings of the Ontario royal commission on crime were opposed today by Andrew Brewin, counsel for the New Democratic Party.

As the commission began what was planned as the final day of public hearing, Mr. Brewin asked that at least some of the subsequent proceedings be made public.

Commission plans are to have privacy shroud sessions dealing with argument of counsel and testimony of police authorities regarding the extent of crime in Ontario and the adequacy of law enforcement agencies to deal with it.

One secret session with police officials was held last week.

Mr. Brewin argued today that after any further session with such officials sections of their information not regarded as be confidential should be made public so long as the material would not be of assistance to lawbreakers.

Mr. Brewin, concerning the question of publicity for the argument of legal counsel, said there might be a temptation for them to make political references that would be out of place but he said all would do their best to avoid a political tone.

ASKED RECALL

The NDP lawyer also asked to the recall as a witness of Chief Constable Garnet McGill of Toronto township concerning evidence given earlier by Sergeant John Anderson of the Ontario Provincial Police anti-gambling squad.

An entry in the sergeant's diary for Jan. 19, 1962 made reference to a meeting with Chief McGill but the substance of the meeting was not explored fully in the earlier evidence.

Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, the commissioner, said he would make a statement on the future course of the commission after Liberal counsel Willard Estey expressed agreement with Mr. Brewin on the question of private hearing.

Cancer Will Claim 280,000 Lives Next Year in U.S. Says Society

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Cancer Society, opening its three-day annual meeting here today, estimates that 280,000 Americans will die of cancer next year.

Of that number, nearly 1,000 will succumb to lung cancer, the society reported, adding that 75 per cent of those cases could be prevented if people did not smoke cigarettes.

The tobacco institute, which speaks for the industry, maintains that no conclusive scientific proof has been offered that cigarettes cause cancer.

The society reported that more than 1,200,000 Americans living today have been cured of cancer. Another 700,000 U.S. cancer patients who have been diagnosed and treated within the last five years "will live to enter the ranks of those we call cured," the society said.

Cured persons, according to the society, are those "who are alive, without evidence of the disease, at least five years after diagnosis and completion of treatment."

Next year, the society estimated, about 177,000 Americans who develop cancer will be saved. Some 44,000 of them would not have been saved if they had developed the disease a few years ago, the society added, referring to recent progress in treatment.

19 NORWEGIAN TANKER CREW MEMBERS DIE

Ship and Barge Collide in River

LUTCHER, La. (AP) — The grim task of searching for the missing continued today after a ship-barge collision that apparently took the lives of 19 Norwegian tanker crew members.

Twelve bodies—most of them badly burned — were recovered from the Mississippi River and the charred hulk of the 13,500-ton motor tanker Bokenes. Searchers sought seven others still unaccounted for.

Firefighters put out the last blaze aboard the beached ship Sunday night — about 36 hours after the tanker, bound for Europe, collided near here with a string of oil barges towed by the tug Bonnie D.

As salvage work began, the U.S. Coast Guard prepared an investigation but no hearing date

No Strong Political Tide Seen As U.S. Election Nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — With U.S. elections day only two weeks from Tuesday, no strong political tide seems to be running for either the Democrats or the Republicans.

In a number of states voters may elect a Democratic senator and a Republican governor or vice versa.

At stake will be 38 Senate seats—five of them for unexpired terms—and all 435 House of Representatives seats. Thirty five governors will be named.

A survey by The Associated Press fails to disclose any major upheaval in sight in the political set-up of Congress, where the Democrats now have heavy majorities in the Senate and House.

In the state House races, Republican candidates are given a chance to oust Democrats in big swing states like California, Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania.

In many cases political disturbing factors appear too uncertainly to make forecasters comfortable.

The signs point to minor Republican gains in the House—probably less than a dozen seats; no advance in the Senate and maybe a net loss of one or two; and possible capture of half a dozen of the 34 governorships now held by Democrats.

TED HOLDS EDGE

Here are some of the highlights.

In California former vice-president Richard Nixon is locked in rugged battle for governor with Democratic incumbent Edmund G. (Pat) Brown. Most polls put Brown ahead.

On the other hand, Republican Senator Thomas Kuchel is favored to win over Richard Richards, state senator from Los Angeles.

The contest for governor of Michigan, with former automobile man George Romney making his political debut, is rated too close to call so far. Rom-

Shapely Mother Becomes Vamp To Halt Drivers

LONDON (AP)—Mrs. Anne Macdonald, a shapely mother of four, became a roadside vamp to slow down fast drivers.

In fetching halter top and figure-hugging jeans she took up her stand outside the village of Graveley on the busy Great North Road.

Then she wiggled her hips and gave the hitch-hiking sign to every passing motorist.

When drivers pulled up to offer her a lift, the 29-year-old woman smiled sweetly and said:

"Thank you for stopping. I do hope you will observe the speed limit through our village."

Mrs. Macdonald had written six times to the transport ministry asking that it do something about the many drivers that ignored the village's 30-mile-an-hour speed limit.

"If I saw drivers whistling at pretty girls in the village and that gave me a new idea," she said.

But Mrs. Macdonald has abandoned her vamp technique.

"The drivers were all as nasty as possible," she said. "I'm shocked."

"It would take the type of language used by truck drivers to describe my opinion of them."

Water Pollution in Canada Causes Concern to Officials

By GREG MacDONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Residents along stretches of the St. Lawrence River in Quebec often have to keep their windows closed to shut out the smell.

The Don River, which runs through Toronto into Lake Ontario, sometimes is dyed red or blue because of industrial waste.

Fish eggs and food are destroyed in British Columbia mountain streams as a by-product of logging.

Water pollution in Canada is causing concern among federal, provincial and municipal officials.

Education programs have been started in some communities, and at different levels of government to tell the public what it is all about.

In some cases they appear to be having some success. In Quebec recently, a woman wrote provincial authorities asking for information on preventing the water from his swimming pool into the St. Lawrence.

It is an international problem along the Canada-United States border, where authorities regard the polluting effects of industrial waste as an even greater challenge than earlier bacterial contamination that spread much diseases as typhoid fever.

At the annual meeting of the International Water Pollution Control Federation in Toronto in February, works in close co-operation with them.

Much of the problem is caused by domestic sewage. Every day, from Canadian households alone, more than 2,500,000,000 gallons of raw or partly treated sewage is dumped into rivers and lakes. In some centres drinking water has been used up to six times.

Pollution control in this country is mainly the responsibility of the provinces. Some degree of help is given by the federal government, which in co-operation with the United States, looks after boundary waters.

A large effort in the country municipal governments take over the responsibility. Industry usually works in close co-operation with them.

GOVT. PLANNING NEW ATTACK ON AUTOMATION

Will Pay Costs of Retraining Workers

WINNIPEG (CP)—The federal government is planning a new stage in its attack on the effects of automation which will include paying the costs of labor - management research in particular industries and of retraining workers.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker revealed Saturday during a whirlwind, one-day visit here that the new program will be placed before the present session of Parliament.

"The legislation to be introduced will provide for industry and labor incentives to work together in tackling the effects and consequences of, automation," he said in saying the cornerstone of a new—Manitoba Institute of Technology.

He gave no details of the new program to combat automation's effects which he described as the "supreme challenge" of industrial and social development and a problem which "changes over many working people as a cloud of fear."

PAYS FOR RESEARCH

However, it was learned in Ottawa that the legislation envisages the federal government paying the costs of research into automation where employer and employee get together on such fields.

The aim would be to examine in a particular plant or industry the extent and effects of automation on the working force and to lay down lines of retraining affected employees which could be fitted into new technical training facilities now being developed by the various provinces with federal help.

The Manitoba institute for which Mr. Diefenbaker laid the cornerstone is one of 450 such technical training centres across Canada to which the federal government is contributing 75 per cent of the cost. The federal government's share in the institute is about $280,000,000 so far, under this program.

The present legislation also provides for the federal government to pay 75 per cent of the costs of establishing courses for workers affected by automation.

It is informant in Ottawa described the new program announced by Mr. Diefenbaker as the second stage of a long-range

Ottawa Father Charged in Wife's Death

L'ORIGINAL, Ont. (CP)—A 30-year-old Ottawa father of two young children has been charged with capital murder following discovery of his wife's body in a parked car, 10 miles south of Ottawa.

Ontario Provincial Police said today that—Bethold Thillman was arrested Sunday afternoon after being held by police in County jail in this community, 55 miles east of the capital.

The body of Flavia Thillman, 26, was discovered in the back seat of the family car on a road near the Rideau river about two miles north of the Ottawa suburb of Manotick.

Police said the woman appeared to have been strangled and might have died late Saturday night.

A phone call from a district farmer informed police of a motorist who wished to see a police officer. Police said that on arrival at the scene they found a man sitting at both wrists. He had apparently slashed his wrists with a pocket knife.

Mandela, a lawyer, promptly demanded the withdrawal of the magistrate on the grounds that there would not be a fair trial

Fighting Heavy On Three Indian Border Fronts

New Offensive Opened Near Burma

CP from AP-Reuters

NEW DELHI — Communist China is using tanks on the western end of the Indian border and has launched a new attack on Eastern, India near Burma, an Indian spokesman said today.

The Chinese concentrated their troops at another point on India's northeast frontier, halfway between the two places where fighting already was blazing, the spokesman added.

Reporting on the third day of fighting between Chinese troops and Indian soldiers along the disputed Himalayan frontier, the spokesman indicated the Chinese still were advancing. They captured four more posts at the southern end of the Ladakh battlefront in northwest India, one of them falling to tanks after they had turned back two previous Chinese assaults, he said.

The Chinese also launched a new attack Sunday, with an attack at 3 a.m.

INDIANS ATTACK

Radio Peking said earlier Indian troops attacked a Chinese position in the Chayal area of Tibet. This is possibly the same area, although there is a Chayal in Tibet about 100 miles west of the area near Burma where the Indian spokesman said new fighting broke out.

The Chayul area in Tibet is about 10 miles north of the border claimed by India and about 50 miles northeast of Thagla Ridge near the Bhutan border where the fighting started at dawn Saturday.

About half way between Kibithoo and Thagla Ridge is Lungro, a village that the Chinese captured from Indian border guards in August, 1959, killing three of them in the first bloodshed of the Chinese drive to square 2,500 miles of Himalayan borderlands.

The spokesman declined to say whether a Chinese Kibithoo attack was imminent at Longju, but indicated buildups have led to other attacks in the area.

The agency said in a broadcast Indian troops are "violating on the northeast frontier and launched a "violent attack" and the Chinese were compelled to hit back in self-defence."

There was no immediate confirmation of the Chinese attack, but the Indian Army, in retreat in the first two days of fighting, reported continuing Chinese pressure on at least three points of the 1,000-mile

JFK Rallies Party Leaders, Grave Issues

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy asked today for time on television to address the nation on "a subject of the highest national urgency" at 7 p.m. EDT.

The White House announced that Kennedy also had scheduled meetings of the National Security Council, the cabinet and congressional leaders of both Democratic and Republican parties.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, declined to elaborate on this phrase "a subject of the highest national urgency." He said the American television and radio networks had been asked to set aside a half-hour for the address.

Democratic and Republican leaders in congress were asked to report to the White House at 8 p.m. EDT.

Vice-President Lyndon Johnson already was in Washington.

Fifteen senators and representatives, including chairmen and top minority members of the armed forces and foreign relations committees in Congress, were asked to attend the conference with Kennedy.

USE PLANES

Salinger said U.S. Air Force planes were sent to bring the senators and representatives to Washington where no other rapid transportation was available.

Kennedy conferred in private with key administration officials, including State Secretary Rusk and Defence Secretary McNamara.

The high-level sessions were held while evidence mounted that some major international crisis was imminent.

There was fresh speculation that the heart of mystery-laden activity was in the capital during the weekend lay in Europe—quite possibly at the storm centre at Geneva.

Among those at the White House were Llewellyn Thompson, former ambassador to Russia and now a state department adviser on the Soviet Union, and Martin Hillenbrand, direc-

Tribal-Dressed 'Black Pimpernel' Blasts "Discrimination" in Court

PRETORIA, South Africa (Reuters)—Nelson Mandela, 44-year-old "black Pimpernel" of the African nationalist movement, made a biting attack on "white discrimination" in South Africa's courts yesterday in court here today charged with incitement.

Mandela, bearded and wearing tribal dress with jackal-skin cloak, also was charged with leaving the country illegally. He pleaded not guilty to both charges.

About 200 Negroes packed the courtroom. They growled approval when Mandela strode in and raised a clenched fist in salute. Dozens of security men sat in court and on guard outside.

Mandela, a lawyer, promptly demanded the withdrawal of the magistrate on the grounds that there would not be a fair trial under the present system of justice.

"I consider myself neither morally nor legally obliged to obey laws passed by a parliament in which I am not represented," he said.

It is improper to trust whites with cases involving denial by them of basic human rights to the African people," he said.

Mandela was interrogated several times by the magistrate, who told him to confine himself to the grounds for application for withdrawal and finally dismissed it.

Mandela was arrested last summer after he had been "underground" for more than a year, flitting in and out of the country. He had been sought since he organised mass strikes and demonstrations in 1961, when South Africa became a republic outside the Commonwealth.

Bancroft Man Kills Self While Hunting

A 23-year-old Bancroft man, Howard William Cooney, was fatally injured Sunday evening near his father's home about six o'clock.

Ontario Provincial Police at Bancroft said Mr. Cooney had left the house to go shooting partridges, while waiting for his supper to be prepared.

He went into the bush near his home and when he did not return around 7.30 p.m. his family went looking for him.

He was found lying in the bushes about 500 yards from his home with the rifle underneath him. He had been shot through the head and was still alive.

He was rushed to the Bancroft Red Cross Hospital by ambulance, but died around 9.00 p.m. Sunday night.

Police say all indications are that Mr. Cooney tripped and fell, discharging the rifle.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cooney of R.R 1 Bancroft.

WILL HELP

"We are going to place before Parliament a measure, if not to remove completely, at least to mitigate the fear of automation," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

The visit here was Mr. Diefenbaker's first trip outside Ottawa since Parliament met Sept. 27. Before flying back to the capital, he was awarded an honorary life membership in the Manitoba Historical Society at a dinner commemorating the 150th anniversary of the arrival in Manitoba of the Selkirk settlers.

Mr. Diefenbaker's maternal great-grandfather, George Batherman, was among a group of 97 settlers who left Scotland for Canada and the settlement started by the Fifth Earl of Selkirk.

Ratepayers Receive Answers To Questions Given Council

TRENTON — Thursday night, 45 members of the Trenton Ratepayers' Association turned out to a meeting in the town hall to hear town council's answers to pertinent questions posed by the association executive. The 45 attendance figure represents the best to date, and president Alfred Vaughan and other executive members expressed their gratification in the increasing interest being shown in the work of the group.

The ratepayers learned that the assessment department had upped the assessment on the town's golf course. The assessment now stands at $4,980 for the land. The small frame pro shop will still be assessed at $200. For the past ten years, assessment on the land had stood at $1,700.

While pleased at the increase in assessment on the golf course, the association executive made it clear that there was room for still more improvement and that a greater increase in assessment on the land would be a good thing.

Another point brought out at the meeting was that the town has received an unconditional grant for law enforcement purposes. A little over $12,000 is given to the town by the provincial government to be used to pay such things as the town's share of the cost of the county court house and the county jail. In the same bracket is a grant for snowfighting over $23,000 for welfare and social services.

Ratepayers are querying the fact that the town has failed, for the past two years, to collect a fee of $200 per person living in the Devens Gardens area, for the use of the town's sewer mains. Ratepayers claim that the Devere Gardens residents have refused to pay the fee and that no action has been taken to collect it, which it has the right to do under an existing by-law.

Delegations Appear Before Murray Council

TRENTON — Murray Township council met last Friday night in the town hall at Wooler to hear delegations and conduct regular business.

One delegation made it clear that in the opinion of the land owners making up the group, the actions of an area farmer in changing the line of a dividing fence were out of order. Brought out at Friday's meeting was the fact that fence-viewers were hired to arbitrate in the case were of the same opinion, unofficially, the group left the meeting, after assuring council that a remedy must be forthcoming or the case would become one for the law.

Two area residents appeared in person to protest the terms of a by-law, passed last spring, by which the distribution of firearms in certain township areas is prohibited. Council listened to the arguments presented and took note of a number of letters, which, in effect, backed up the arguments. It was agreed that a new by-law, relating the line to the south of the restricted area, would be in order; township clerk Angus Gunter will prepare one when the line is agreed upon by council members and the reeve.

Council voted to send $317.24 (seven cents per capita, based on a township population figure of 4532.) to the Eastern Ontario Development Association. Also approved for payment was the sum of $1,200 to the town of Trenton for firefighting services. This bill has been in dispute but the township fathers capitulated, following a meeting with Trenton council's protection to persons and property committee.

Better news was contained in a letter from the provincial department of highways, since a cheque for $22,395.41 was enclosed in the communication, and this is to be used for the repair and the upkeep of culverts and bridges.

A letter from the Brighton Fire Department, suggesting that the township pay an annual stand-by fee of $200 in addition to the $100 for the first hour of fire fighting and $50 for each hour thereafter fee now charged, was filed for future reference. The Brighton department evidently considers the stand-by fee as a way of paying for area fire equipment installed in the village and recently at an overall cost of $6500.

Another letter from the county council of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, concerning council that Gordon Wright of Port Hope had been appointed emergency measures co-ordinator for the united counties, was noted. Mr. Wright, the letter said, would be available at any time to discuss emergency measures plans for the area, with the township council members.

A letter from the department of health, calling for action on cleaning up "abandoned cemeteries," will be answered to to effect that such action has been taken, although one council member said that of his knowledge an area builder was constructing a house on the site of a former cemetery.

Present at the meeting were Reeve Douglas McMaster, deputy reeve Fred Bowyer, councillors Leo McAuley, Ronald Webb and Norman Flindall, township clerk Angus Gunter and one reporter.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois seems to be on the road in victory. His opponent is representative Sidney R. Yates of Chicago.

Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller is an odds-on favorite to win re-election in New York, a result that his admirers hope will propel him into position to engage the Republican presidential nomination in 1964.

Not only is Rockefeller picked to take the measure of his Democratic foe Robert M. Morgenthau, but Republican Senator Jacob K. Javits also is expected to win re-election over New York lawyer James B. Donovan.

Fred A. Seaton, who was president Eisenhower's interior secretary, is running for governor of Nebraska against the Democratic incumbent, Frank B. Morrison. The battle is rated a standoff.

In Connecticut, Kennedy's former welfare secretary, Abraham Ribicoff, is battling for the seat of retiring Republican Senator Prescott Bush.

Ribicoff's opponent is Representative Horace Seely-Brown Jr., six-term Republican congressman who was picked to give Ribicoff a slight edge.

In the south Republican gains seem likely to be limited to a few scattered House seats.

BBG to Force Settlement of Cup Dispute

OTTAWA (CP)—The Board of Broadcast Governors today repeated its intention to force a settlement of the Grey Cup television dispute unless the CBC and CTV networks make their own arrangements for every-body to see the game.

The governors said in a statement they have scheduled a private board meeting for Wednesday. Nov. 7, to review the situation on the telecast of the Saturday, Nov. 24 football classic "and determine what action, if any, is needed to protect the public interest."

Meanwhile, the BBG said it has been informed of progress in CBC-CTV discussions. The board has offered to call a meeting of all parties to seek a permanent solution to the problem of TV rights to sports events if there is evidence that the meeting might prove fruitful."

CTV OWNS BROADCAST

The Grey Cup TV rights now are owned exclusively by the private-owned CTV television network which reaches Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver.

Significantly, the governors today made no reference to precisely how they would force all TV stations in Canada to carry the game. Only CBC has stations in Toronto.

Last August, the governors proposed a regulation under which in effect would force the publicly-owned CBC's 120-station network to carry the game in full just the way CTV originated it—with no cuts in either the game broadcast or the advertising.

The CBC objected. It said it was willing to carry the telecast without commercials, but would not take it voluntarily on an arrangement that would be tantamount to having CTV "sell" the CBC network to CTV sponsors.

Govt. Mediator Will Try to Avert Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—A federal mediator was expected to bring the CPR and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (CLC) together today for a start in renewed negotiations to try to avert due in seven days.

Mediator William H. Dickie of Toronto met with both parties Sunday for the first time since he was appointed Friday by Federal Labor Minister Starr to try to settle the 18-month contract dispute of the 6,000 CPR trainmen.

He described the talks as purely exploratory, aimed at sounding out both sides on their stands.

The issues at stake are a series of work rules described by the CPR as featherbedding and by the union as necessary safeguards.

The CPR has offered the union an eight-per-cent wage increase—what the union had demanded on wages—provided the trainmen would go along with the majority recommendations of a federal conciliation board on the work rules.

The union rejected the package deal saying none of the work-rules changes proposed by the conciliation board would result in lower wages, but jobs and family dislocation for some of its members.

The union represents yardmen, trainmen and conductors. Wages now average about $4,600 a year for yardmen and $7,000 a year for conductors.

Hon. Gordon Churchill, (with trowel) Minister of Veterans Affairs officially lays cornerstone of new Deseronto Legion hall during colorful ceremony on Saturday. From the left are Dr. D. C. McVicker, zone commander; Mr. Churchill; Clarke T. Rollins, MLA for Hastings East; Lee Grills, MP Hastings South, and Deseronto Mayor Harry Sweetnam.

New Deseronto Legion hall valued at $70,000 is seen as district Legionnaires gathered Saturday to participate in official opening ceremonies. Building was constructed to replace former Legion hall which was destroyed by fire. Building has two floors — ground level auditorium and basement recreation room.

Car Crash Kills Woman At Plainfield

A 21-year-old Ottawa woman, Giselle Robitaille, was instantly killed in a car crash Saturday evening on highway No. 37 just north of Belleville, at Plainfield.

A passenger in the car, Mrs. Mariette Carpentier, 18, of 354 Champlain Street, Hull, Quebec, is in Belleville General Hospital with a fractured leg and lacerations.

Police said the two women were south-bound on Highway No. 37 when the driver, Miss Robitaille, failed to negotiate a sharp curve at Plainfield. The car crossed the highway and smashed into a hydro pole.

Police said Miss Robitaille died instantly. She was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident by Coroner Dr. R. S. Barry of Tweed.

Police said the car was owned by Jacques Nault of 660 Patrick Street, Ottawa. Miss Robitaille was of the same address. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robitaille.

It is not known if an inquest will be held. The accident occurred around 7.30 p.m.

Firemen Answer Two Weekend Calls

The fire department answered two calls over the weekend, but damage was very slight.

The first alarm was answered at the residence of Jack Mc Murtter, when a mattress caught fire.

The second alarm sent firemen to 154 Victoria Avenue when grease in the oven caught fire. There was no damage reported.

Cars Damaged In Collision

Approximately $300 damage was caused as the result of a two car collision at the intersection of highway No. 14 and Rossmore on Saturday afternoon.

Provincial Police at Picton said the drivers were Walter Lott of Point Anne and Clifford Bowler of Belleville.

Ontario Provincial Police constable A. Besteman of the Picton detachment investigated the accident. Charges are pending. There were no injuries reported.

was announced. A spokesman for A. O. Andersen Steamship Company of Oslo, owner of the Bohema, said her cargo, which included highly inflammable nitrate solvent, was intact.

The spokesman said it was too early to, give an estimate of damage, but fore and aft sections were badly charred. The engine room and nearby crew's quarters, where many were trapped, were heavily burned.

OIL STARTS FIRE

Burning oil from some of the four barges spewed into the channel and set the ship ablaze during the predawn hours Saturday.

Crew members leaped into the flaming waters as fire roared across the Bohema's deck and explosions — apparently from the engine room — rocked the tanker. Their cries could be heard from shore.

Two crew members were in critical condition with burns at hospital in New Orleans, about 30 miles south of Luther.

Six others, taken to hospital for treatment of minor burns and injuries, were released Sunday night. In all, 29 of about 50 aboard the tanker were reported hurt.

Veterans' Affairs Minister, Hon. Gordon Churchill, DSO Opens Deseronto Legion Hall

Saturday was a big day for the 100 members of Branch 280 of the Royal Canadian Legion at Deseronto.

It marked the official opening of their new $70,000 Legion Hall, the construction of which saw hundreds of volunteer man hours work of the part of members. Actual cost of the new 45x100 foot hall was about $40,000.

The new hall was officially opened in a colorful ceremony with Legion color parties from Belleville, Stirling and Tweed taking part.

The Hon. Gordon Churchill, DSO, Minister of Veterans' Affairs, assisted by Lee Grills, M.P., and Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.P., laid the cornerstone.

Comrade Arthur Adams, first vice-president of the Ontario Command, Royal Canadian Legion, presided over the ribbon-cutting ceremony.

DR. McVICKER PRESIDES

Dr. D. C. McVicker of Deseronto, Zone Commander for Eastern Ontario, presided over the opening ceremonies.

Saturday evening the opening banquet and dance was held in the new hall with First Vice President Arthur Adams of the Provincial Command as the guest speaker.

Mr. Churchill, Minister of Veterans' Affairs, congratulated members of the Deseronto Legion in the construction of their new hall, noting that all across Canada the Legion was becoming a great service body.

In doing so the Legion was fulfilling the Legion tradition of service in time of war and service to the community in time of peace.

Comrade Adams declared the new Legion building was something for Deseronto members to be proud of, and said it would fill well the purpose of community service.

WORK FOR YOUTH

"One of the main objectives of the Legion was working for the youth of the country," he said.

"We are entering a new phase of life and must look to the future," he said. "You in Deseronto are doing something about it."

But in serving youth the Legionnaires still had a challenge not to forget the pioneers. All must do what they can to keep their memory bright.

Deseronto Mayor Harry Sweetnam said it was a pleasure to see the Legion building completed and wished Legion members every success in their venture. Branch Padre Rev. J. V. Temple, dedicated the Legion Hall.

During the evening banquet, Branch President Earl Brant extended greetings to the guests, while greetings were extended by the Deseronto Mayor Harry Sweetnam, Lee Grills, M.P. for Hastings South, Clarke T. Rollins, MLA, Hastings East, Warden Harold Varty, the Hon. Gordon Churchill, Minister of Veterans' Affairs, Zone Commander Dr. D. C. McVicker introduced the guest speaker, Comrade Arthur Adams.

PROVIDE BURSARIES

Comrade Adams reviewed the accomplishments of the Legion in providing bursaries for school students and its sports program for the youth of the country.

Looking to the future, he said that the Legion must gear itself to assure that pensions are adequate for pensioners to live in dignity.

He said that emphasis should be placed on low cost housing projects and urged pensioners following their retirement not to let their skills go to waste.

He said in many instances it was possible for retired persons to embark on a second career.

"Pensioners can still serve in their senior years — they have all the skills and knowledge and should put them to work," he said.

An Old Concept

Dr. A. R. M. Lower, emeritus professor of history, speaking during the University Day ceremonies recently held at Queen's University, Kingston, called for both students and faculty members to be given a more vocal role in determining the course of the university.

Although Dr. Lower has been known to make some startling and controversial remarks during his life (e.g. — he has accused the Royal Canadian Navy of being Canada's most exclusive club), his suggestion that an university's course, and we assume he is referring to its curriculum and its presentation, should be determined by the students and faculty members is not without precedent.

Indeed, in the history of the western world, universities were originally founded by those seeking education bringing together a group of scholars in the fields of study desired. The faculty members were, in short, hired—and fired —by the students. This was the situation regarding advanced education which eventually became a most important part of the Renaissance—that period of enlightenment in history which has evolved into the accelerated discoveries and knowledge-gathering of the twentieth century.

In this period men sought an education by gathering the best scholars of the time and hearkening unto their words. If the scholars proved to be uninteresting and unable to hold the attention and stimulate the interest of their students in the subject in hand, they did not remain overly long at the university.

There might well be a case for a rejuvenation or reapplication of this principle. The situation of an interested and stimulating professor inspiring enthusiasm and devotion in his students towards both his subject and their progress is certainly much more beneficial to all concerned than the situation of a learned man who can contribute nothing more than pedantry and boredom to his subject and his students.

There is also much benefit to be derived from the application of Dr. Lower's suggestion in that often training is given at the sacrifice of education, as it was conceived during the foundation of universities.

It is one thing to turn out an engineer who can present a multi-dimensional drawing of any object set before him and quite another to produce one who can create something in his mind and put it on paper for others to see. It is useless to produce a student who becomes obsessed with the trivia in history to the exclusion of a recognition of how certain events have influenced both their period in history and the actions of succeeding generations.

It might be argued that the creative instinct and the interpretive art are being lost in the act of satisfying a mere demand for more and more people with initials after their names as well as before, and often, especially in the United States, changes are undertaken in what is taught and how by people whose backgrounds are more political than anything else or whose choice has been dictated by the clamor of those who see only the short term view.

Should this city, as is essential emphasized the need for more concentration on the philosophical things rather than the material. He emphasized, most correctly, that although man had made great strides learning about new power and new things in the universe, he had made little or no progress in learning more about himself.

Perhaps if both students and faculty members had some say in an university's curriculum this blatant oversight and shortcoming might have been avoided. Education is pretty much an individual thing. Only the individual knows what he is seeking. It is a shame that too many universities this search is stifled by conformity to a standard set of courses which will produce a degree but not necessarily an education.

If Doctor Lower's suggestion would do something towards alleviating this unhappy situation we are in favor of it.

I respect the monstrous theory that while a man may redeem the past a woman never can. —Hall Caine.

The best producers of all, as every actor must admit, are those who give you the best parts. When all's said and done, this is their main function. Those who give you good parts are pretty good. Those who don't are pretty bad.—British actor Alec Duncan.

A new principle is an inexhaustible source of new views.—Vauvenargues.

Computers Are Stupid

The Times of London

Of all machines, computers are the most elaborate, the most terrifying, and, it might be thought, the cleverest.

They are mechanical brains, capable of storing up, and of producing at demand, quantities of facts and figures that no human brain could ever absorb or remember.

And yet in certain directions computers, of course, are less intelligent than we are.

This was made abundantly clear at the recent congress of the International Federation for Information Processing, held in Munich.

It is no good, the congress-attenders were told, feeding into a computer information in the shape of sentences taken straight out of books, even if the sentences in question could be neatly and readily understood by a schoolboy of 10.

The computer might well find them indigestible and ambiguous. Presumably, though no mention of this was made, a computer on such occasions would whirr angrily, red lights would flash and bells alarm the place, and it would crossly eject the offending material.

The example that was given of the kind of thing that a computer could not argue its way round was fascinating one.

It was the sentence: "We are eating apples."

Any poor fallible human would know exactly what the writer of these four words meant when he wrote them. Not so the computer.

At once too clever and too stupid, it would argue that while the obvious meaning was, so to speak, on the cards, another possibility was that this sentence might have been written or spoken by an apple who was trying to explain that it likes to eat apples he and his fellow-apples.

This brand of stupidity must present problems to scientists and to the people who have to feed in formation into computers.

It brings sharply into sad reas surance to the unmechanically minded.

Much Depends On Locality

Hamilton Spectator

In a New York newspaper the other day we noticed a photograph of this portrait of the sort of dog named "Fifi" rather than "Fido" and the point of the picture was that she less wearing a special kind of collar.

Attached to Fifi's collar was a tag which included space not only for her name and address —fair enough—but also for her telephone number and, under the flap of the tag, a little pocket for a dime. If Fifi and pet lost her obviously are Park Avenue dogs, or at least Central Park and Fifth Avenue animals. You know the type. The dime might be safe enough, perhaps, if it remained only a block or two from home where she would be known, and where well-heeled dog-breakers sneer at collaring anything under a century note.

But supposing she strayed as far away as the Bowery, where the monetary stimulus is more modest and the crime rate more urgent. Think of the dilemma created for Fifi's finder in having to decide whether to keep the dime for a cup of coffee, phone her home in the hope of reward, or even hold her for ransom.

So all in all, that dime-under the-dog-tag idea creates more problems than it solves — for us if for nobody else.

Peer Finds Soft Touch

Hamilton Spectator

Lord Boothby, the outspoken independent British peer, said recently that the answer to life lies in "the acquisition of directorships." He described a director's duties to a literary luncheon at Harrowgate:

"No effort of any kind is called for. You go to a meeting once a month in a car supplied by the company, you can look grave and sage; say 'I don't think so' once, and if all goes well you get £500 ($1,500) a year . . . If you have five directorships it is total heaven, like having a permanent hot bath."

Sounds to us like the Burke's Peerage version of the 35-hour week.

An Ontario premier may resign his post without involving the resignation of his entire cabinet. When Premier Mitchell Hepburn resigned last night and Attorney-General Gordon Conant was sworn in to succeed him, the remainder of the cabinet was not affected, as would have been the case in the resignation of a Federal Prime Minister. In a newspaper story under an Ottawa dateline, the Toronto Star suggested that acute dissension in the Ontario cabinet led to the resignation of Mr. Hepburn.

It has been announced that the prize of $10 offered by the Victoria Park and the two German captives guns that adorned the lawn in front of the west door of the armouries. The amount of metal contained in the guns amounts to many tidgits. The two cannon from the park weighed 5,670 pounds or nearly three tons, while the large German howitzer from the armouries lawn weighed the scales at 4,960 pounds. The smaller gun weighed 2,700 pounds.

No Phoney First-Namer

Brockville Recorder and Times

Informality is the keynote of our modern society. Most relationships for example are on a first-name basis from the moment of introduction, and most people subscribe to this because it conforms. Otherwise they are uncomfortable, as when someone, a younger person perhaps or a polite stranger addresses them as "Mr. Smith," or "Mrs. Jones." Adults are introduced to friendship by saying: "the name is George," or Mary, or whatever it may be.

Name dropping by those who have somehow struck up a passing acquaintance with the famous by those in positions of influence is another trait that is less than admirable. In this case we may hear not just the Christian name but something shorter, say a nickname, which implies even greater familiarity. People who indulge in this practice are phonies and they are not too difficult to recognize.

The phoney will maintain an attitude of dignified respect toward others in face of his bowing and scraping informality earn our admiration. In this they may be distinguished from the herd. Such a person, we think is Lester B. Pearson. For while this young Canadian is making a strong impression on film producers in Europe. With another young Toronto lad, Peter Ustinov, Devlin worked as an extra in Cleopatra, playing a soldier. He has since won roles in The Leopard and 55 Days at Pekin. Meyer on the Toronto pair made friends with Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton and were with them on a yachting trip at Easter.

Now Devlin seems won more notoriety in recent years than the two principles in Cleopatra. Yet Devlin, in Toronto for a brief visit before he goes to Spain, is quoted only as saying: "Miss Taylor is a very interesting woman and Mr. Burton's wonderful and Mr. Burton's a fine actor." Here is one who would not even permit himself the use in public of his friends own familiar first names. How far the social bonds have been loosened may be gauged when out of the blue like this someone speaks of friends with the respect and formality that he feels is their due.

Strictly Personal

To Really See Take a Good Look

Certain Eskimo tribes, we are told by ethnologists, have nearly a hundred different words for "snow." We have only one in English; to us all snow is simply a cold, white, and relatively unimportant part of our lives.

But it is the people who live in snow conditions most of the year, there are tremendous differences in the kinds of snow that fall; experience and necessity have taught them to discriminate keenly among them.

I recalled this bit of Eskimo lore during my vacation this summer in northern Wisconsin. The trees around our house there are called "evergreens" by we soft-landers; they can not see the difference between a spruce and a balsam. All evergreens look alike to them.

If one lives there for some time, however, not only are persons and trees clearly differentiated — but one can also distinguish among four species of deciduous trees. What seem, to the untrained eye, to be similar or identical trees are seen by the educated eye as quite distinct.

A perceptive Frenchman said many years ago that intelligence consists in the ability to tell the difference between things that seem different." This is not a good definition of intelligence — but it is a good definition of the kind true education ought to be.

We commonly think of education as the process of memorizing the charting of trends, the memorization of the formulas, the mastering of certain battles and regimes. But that is all gross information; the true education comes when we learn to see the real difference between similar things and hard to see similarities between different things.

One reason that specialists in any field find it so hard to communicate to the layman is that the layman wants a simple, clear, simplified, black-and-white answer to his question. But the more truly educated we are, the more we are beyond simplicity and discriminate — and this makes the layman impatient and contemptuous toward the "double-talk" of the specialist.

My lawyer can give an easy yes-or-no answer to a legal case; no doctor can give an easy answer to any real medical case; no economist can give an easy yes-or-no answer to growth and full employment and production and taxes. Indeed, when they attempt to do so, they usually only fool themselves and others.

Education is the process that frees honest followers of their difficult disciplines.

Wisdom, in a woman, for instance, confronts such a complex problem as, say, juvenile delinquency, and offers some simple solution such as a trip to the woodshed or jail sentences for parents, if it is revealing his abysmal lack of education on the subject. He sees only one side of the issue when there are nearly a hundred kinds; and what he thinks is the answer to all of them is only a kind of snow-blindness.

Says Blood Donors Ought to Be Paid

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Should Canadian blood donors get paid for their donations as is being done in the U.S.? In the October issue of the "Liberty" Gene Fowler of Gordon Sinclair is strongly for the payment.

Personally I do believe that donors should get paid, if not for the blood at least for the time they are losing.

Everyone connected with medicine gets paid well. Why should donors not get anything for their lost time?

Acres of Snow

We are sometimes critical of Americans for thinking of Canada as a snow-covered, ice-bound country. But the first thing they see when they cross the Thousand Islands bridge into Canada is a big building named "Arctic Museum." In the gift shop next door they specialize in Eskimo carvings.

I'd doubt if any reducing diet is necessary. About 2,000 calories a day are normal for a child of her age and size.

Dear Dr. Molner: We are soon moving into an apartment that is not yet completed. I wonder if the new plaster will cause any dampness, as I took treatment several years ago for cardiac asthma. — Mrs. C. W.

There is always finishing work to do after the plastering. If the walls are to be covered with oil paint, the plaster must first dry. This doesn't take very long.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple. Write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Her Operation Newsworthy

Welland Tribune

This is an age when it's hardly fashionable to be able to admit to a gall bladder operation and the ladies are said to have left a void in claiming this type of an operation.

However, it's unlikely that we can point to a case hereabouts similar to that of Mrs. Sarah Perier, who had her gall bladder removed at a Brooklyn hospital a few weeks ago. It was a successful operation. Healing was normal and recovery was according to schedule. In fact, the operation was routine in all respects except that the patient was 104 years old.

A search of recent American medical literature would uncover no parallel of major abdominal surgery in a patient of such extreme age. But Dr. Paul Weinzaft, director of the hospital where the 104-year-old patient received surgery, predicts more such operations on elderly people as their numbers increase and as surgical techniques continue to improve.

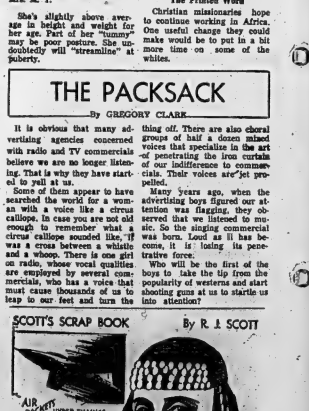
THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It is obvious that many advertising agencies concerned with radio and TV commercials believe we are no longer listening. That is why they have started to yell at us.



Some of them appear to have searched the world for a woman with a voice like a circus calliope. In case you are not old enough to remember what a circus calliope sounded like, it was a cross between a whistle and a whoop. There is one girl on radio, whose vocal qualities are emphasized by several commercials, who has a voice that must cause thousands of us to leap to our feet and turn the thing off. There are also choral groups of half a dozen mixed voices that specialize in the art of penetrating the iron curtain of our indifference to commercials. Their voices are jet propelled.

Many years ago, when the advertising boys discovered our attention was flagging, they observed that we listened to music. So the singing commercial was born. Loud as it has become, it is losing its penetrative force.

Who will be the first of the boys to take the tip from the popularity of westerns and start shooting guns at us to startle us into attention?

Final Mortgage Payment on CAS Receiving Home Will Be Paid

Mrs. James H. Forrester, president of the Children's Aid Society, presided at the monthly meeting of the board of directors, held at Corby Public Library last Thursday afternoon, when Mr. J. N. Brown, reeve of Ameliasburgh, presented the finance committee has authorized the final payment on the mortgage of the Society's Receiving Home at 73 Highland Avenue; also that the property is now free of indebtedness.

The home, which was bought from Albert College in 1955, and renovated at a cost of more than $10,000 serves as a haven for children requiring emergency care and special treatment.

Mr. Bruce Kerr, director of the society, stated that at the end of September there were 165 children under the care of the society.

He said that, due to the present inadequacy of accommodation at the Ontario Hospital School at Smiths Falls, it was now necessary to wait up to two years before a child could be admitted.

2000 ON WAITING LIST

Over the years the society had received the finest cooperation from the superintendent and medical staff of the hospital, he said, but, that there simply was not sufficient space available and there were now more than 2,000 children awaiting admission. He asked the board to urge the Ontario Government to do all things possible to speed up the construction of additional space.

The following resolution was passed: "That the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies request Mathew B. Dymond, minister of health for the province of Ontario, to do all things possible to expedite the construction of additional accommodation for the mentally retarded children of the province in need of away from home care; and that, in light of the fact there are more than 2,000 such children presently awaiting admission, the matter be treated as urgent." Copies of this resolution, will be forwarded to Clarke Rollins and Elmer Sandercock the local representatives to the Ontario legislature.

Mrs. E. E. Follwell announced that the next regular meeting of board, staff and foster parents would be held at Education Hall, Belleville General Hospital, on Tuesday when the film entitled, "Living Pleasure," directed by Mrs. G. S. Wonnacott, will be presented.

In response to a request by chairman of the minister's committee on Child Welfare for a presentation by the local board it was decided to appoint the president, Mr. Bernard W. Hurley and George Whitman to prepare and submit a brief.

FOSTER HOMES SERVICE

Mr. Kerr made mention of the difficulty in securing suitable foster homes for older teen-age girls. He stated that, "This problem is not only our problem, it is one which is common to all other Children's Aid Societies". Recently, the suggestion was made that the Gordarvale School for Girls at Georgetown, which is operated under the auspices of the United Church of Canada, amend its program so as to offer group care to older girls who can not adjust to family living but who can function quite comfortably in a group setting. Mr. Kerr said that a special meeting of the School has been called for Saturday, the 27th of October and that he plans to attend. "I hope that I will be able to influence their thinking, even to some small degree", said Mr. Kerr.

HEAVY ARTILLERY — It takes three to handle this 30-pound part of the display of guns presented by C.W. Smith, of Redneraville, at the Hastings County Museum. This rifle was used by a predecessor of the modern sniper, during the American Civil War. Used by the North, it could pick off a Southern officer at nearly a thousand yards. The boys handling it in the photo are Ronny Drennan, 9, Bruce Rae, 10, and Douglas Boulier, 10 years old, all of Belleville.

"snipper's rifle," About 75 visited the display Sunday, the first day it was presented, and more are expected during the two weeks it will be at the museum. Mr. Smith spent about 17 years in building up his collection, about a third of which is at the museum.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counselors and social workers.

* * *

Anna G. — Why can't he say hello to a woman without kissing her?

George G. — That's how I've greeted women all my life. What's wrong?

* * *

Anna G. — I'm disgusted with my husband. Every time we meet friends he runs ahead and gives the women in the crowd a big kiss! What's wrong with him? Their husbands don't kiss me. They show me respect and they show respect for their wives.

We have a 2-month-old daughter and I'd like to settle this matter now. How is she going to feel when she grows up and sees her father kissing every woman who lets him? And some of the women are so forward they kiss him back! His brother doesn't kiss me, but you should watch George hurry over to kiss his brother's wife, our sister-in-law.

Besides, if he kisses like that when I'm around, what goes on at the Sarurday nights when I'm home with the baby?

* * *

George G. — To me a kiss is almost automatic, as part of a hello to a girls and women I know well. In my family we do this without a thought. But now all of a sudden I find myself married to a bluenose who sees hidden and serious meanings in the lightest pecks I hand out.

Anna is just an i m a ture child. If she weren't she'd realize that my greetings are just a matter of habit, and harmless habit at that. Hasn't she seen women throw their arms around each other and yell, "Darling!" D o e s it mean anything? O f course not.

She's so possessive and jealous that she made a terrible scene at a party last month. I ran into a former girl friend who's still single and gave her a warm embrace which was appreciated and reciprocated.

* * *

The Council: Maybe a trip around the world is what Anna needs, because people use physical embraces as part of their hello in many parts of the globe. Frenchmen k i s s Frenchmen, Eskimos rub noses, others pinch cheeks. But since Anna can't get around to see for herself, we ask her, as the song puts it, to please remember that — a kiss is just a kiss! And she should stop nagging her Kissin' George.

He isn't p r o m i s i n g any of those gals to love, honor and cherish them, along with t h e kiss. The Big Promise went to Anna, who's supposed to do likewise. She isn't if she acts like an agent from the Society for the Suppression of Vice whenever her husband goes into his second-nature routine f o r greeting dames. The impulse, pursued as it is in public and in full view of whoever's around, is a natural part of his ebullient personality. And Anna, as wife, must accept the part as well as the whole!

This early in a marriage is the time to nip tendencies which can ruin it. If Anna is concerned over what her little daughter will think, she must get in workon herself. She appears frighteningly insecure, full of fears, worried about what goes on "at the tavern."

We're inclined to believe that George loves and respects his wife, whether he busses passing ladies in front of her or in her absence. But the bulwark of a man's faithfulness, what makes his conscience ring a loud gong in the face of temptation, is one thing the knowledge that his wife trusts him. Only a real wreck of a man knocks over that rock! So we urge Anna to stop her prudish carping, and especially her hysterical accusations.

Some psychologists c l a i m, Anna, that a jealous woman cannot love her man. She can love only herself, and what she calls "love" is really fear lest she lose possession. Fear lest she leave her. (He usually does.)

A happy compromise here would be for George to hire a babysitter, take Anna along to the tavern next Saturday and watch her relax during the usual round-robin of clinches.

Parents Feted On 35th Anniversary

CARMEL — Messrs. John and Gerald Reynolds took their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Reynolds, and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Salisons, Rochester, N.Y., out to dinner, to celebrate their 35th wedding anniversary.

The boys had arranged for about 30 relatives to come to their home, while they were away, and be there to greet their parents upon their return.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds were so surprised, and also to find the home decorated in pink and white, lovely flowers, a grand array of gifts and a beautiful three-tiered anniversary cake, it is needless to say that it was a happy anniversary and the neighbors join in wishing them many more.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

HINTS FOR THE KITCHEN SHOWERS

An invitation to a kitchen shower often makes the recipient furrow her brow in thought.

What sort of present does this type of shower call for? After all, there's a limit to the number of canisters a new bride can use, and chances are she'll get enough cook books to open her own private shop.

Fortunately, there are so many minor appliances and hostess aids available in stores today that it's an easy matter to find a gift that is both practical and imaginative, besides being an attractive addition to a well-stocked kitchen.

Since so many brides are fairly confident around the stove by the time they get married, a gift that would encourage even greater gastronomic skill and festive service usually is the one that is most appreciated. Bear in mind that if the gift takes a bigger bit out of the budget than had been planned for, it can double as a wedding present, quite naturally and correctly.

Starting at the lower end of the price scale—meaning five dollars and under—there are any number of handy gadgets that will add to the worship service and Mrs. Mabel Treverton with an average attendance of members and visitors.

Mrs. Alfred Garland, Mrs. Throupe, Mrs. G. Coulter and Mrs. E. Parks of Belleville; Mrs. Alton Coleman and Mrs. Roy Boldrick of Plainfield.

Usual business was conducted by the president, Mrs. W. Clare consisting of acceptance of various bazaar and tea invitations from neighboring societies.

Mrs. Vera Chappell was in charge of the worship service and Mrs. Mabel Treverton the balance of the program. Mrs. Carl Ross rendered a piano solo, Mrs. Fred Yorke a vocal solo, Mrs. O. Bertrand a reading and Mrs. Martin a reading.

The next meeting will be held at the Cannifton parsonage with Mrs. Dawson as hostess. Mrs. John Huffman and Mrs. G. Swan will be program conveners.

Put a piece of white cloth or paper over a working sewing machine, and the needle eye will be much easier to see.

Vegetables Dressed Differently and a Highly Recommended Relish

BY MARY MOORE

Into one column I am going to crowd three recipes that I want to pass on but which do not come under one category. Two are for Fall vegetables, and one is for a relish which a cookfriend of my sister's made.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS WITH PEAS

This was a real success and a highly recommended way of dressing up these emminiature cabbages. Boil 1 quart washed and trimmed sprouts in heavily salted water to cover, without a lid, until barely tender. Do not overcook. Quick-cook 1 package fresh frozen peas in ½ cup boiling water until they boil up hard. Drain. Add the peas 1 cup dairy sour cream, 1 tablespoon chopped chives or green onions and ½ teaspoon salt and shake of white pepper to heat. Add brussels sprouts in preheated vegetable dish and serve.

CASSEROLE OF GREEN TOMATOES AND ONIONS

To serve 4, select 4 medium large green tomatoes. Wash and remove core. Slice ¼" thick into buttered casserole. Put next layers arrange 1 thinly sliced large mild Spanish onion. Sprinkle layers generously with salt and a little pepper. Dot top with 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Cover and bake at 375 deg. F. for 1 or 1½ hours or until onions are very tender. Lovely with beef in any form.

Dinner Menu

MONDAY

Main Course Mulligatawny; Cottage Cheese Stuffed Tomato Salads; Homemade Hot Rolls; Sweet Butter; Lemon Meringue Pie; Tea.

This relish recipe came with a sample of its intriguing, my whole family, I'did not make it but Inez did and found it a tasteful worker. All of the relish ingredients are still available.)

INEZ' LADY ROSS RELISH

(Note: This relish will appeal to many of our readers who are short of time for the first five ingredients are easy, through the ¾" knife of the food chopper before mashing.)

4 cups pared, seeded and ground cucumbers, 4 cups peeled and ground onions, 4 cups yellow cooking), 3 seeded red sweet peppers, ground, 1 7" or 8" cabbage, cored and ground, 3 large peeled and cored apples, ground (Inez used Wealthys), 1 average bunch celery - chopped fine; not ground (leaves discarded);

Mix well. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons salt over top and let stand overnight. In morning drain very well. Add 3 cups sugar, 1 scant cup cider vinegar, 2½ lb. (4 oz.) mustard seed, 1 tablespoon celery seed and mix well. Bring to boil, stirring frequently, and let boil 5 minutes, stirring often to prevent sticking. Make a paste by stirring together 2/3 cup flour, 1 tablespoon turmeric and ¼ cup dry mustard and when mixed, stir in 1 cup cider vinegar until smooth. (This makes 8 cups cider vinegar altogether.) Stir paste into boiling vegetables until thick and cook, stirring 5 minutes longer. Pour into sterile pint jars and seal. Yield: Approximately 10 pints.

Modern Greek To Be Taught At McGill

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Anne Farmakides, Athens-born lecturer, will conduct evening courses in modern Greek language this winter at McGill University.

The classic Greek of Sophocles and Euripides long has been a part of the Canadian university curriculum. But modern Greek has been neglected.

Dr. Farmakides says modern and classical Greek are basically the s a m e. "But the changes of our civilization have brought about changes within the meaning of old words and an introduction of many new words."

Her idea is to give Canadians a chance to become acquainted with "the beauty of the modern Greek language" and to give Canadians of Greek origin an opportunity to brush up on their native tongue.

Dr. Farmakides attended the University of Athens and did postgraduate work at the university of J o h a n n e s b u r g in South Africa. She has travelled and worked in England and Europe.

She came to Canada in 1951 with her lawyer - husband George Farmakides. The couple have an eight-year-old daughter, Anne Marie.

Dr. Farmakides speaks her native language, plus English and French, and is honorary cultural attache with the Greek embassy here.

Weddings

POST — HAYES

STIRLING — A pretty fall wedding was solemnized at St. Paul's United Church on Saturday, September 22nd, at 2 p.m., when Sandra Elizabeth Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Lain, Stirling, became the bride of Mr. Ross Sheldon Post, son of Mr. Alger James Post of Ivanhoe, and the late Mrs. Post. The Rev. F. J. Hommersen officiated and the church was decorated with gladioli and fall flowers.

The traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Harry Brown and the soloist Miss Edith De Jong, rendered "I'll Walk Beside You", and the "Wedding Prayer".

Given in marriage by Mr. Ross Lain, the bride looked charming in a waltz-length gown of bordered French lace over taffeta, with lily-point sleeves. Her fingertip veil fell from a tiara of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Harold Bunnett, Belleville, as matron of honor and her sister, Miss Linda Lain, as bridesmaid. They were similarly attired in gowns of Hawaiian blue chiffon with matching accessories and carried nosegays of tinted mums.

Mr. Albert Post, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man and Messrs. James and Gregory Haggerty were the ushers.

At the reception held in the church parlors, the bride's mother received the guests in a double knit teal blue suit, with white accessories and a corsage of white mums. She was assisted by Mrs. Blake Sharp of Stirling, aunt of the bridegroom, who wore a navy dress with navy accessories and a corsage of pink mums.

For a trip to Watertown, N.Y., the bride chose a black and white check dress, with matching coat and navy accessories. Her corsage was of white mums.

Out-of-town guests were present from Kingston, Peterborough, Belleville, Norwood, Ivanhoe, Odessa, Madoc and Campbellford.

Mr. and Mrs. Post will reside at R.R. 2 Halloway, Ontario.

INDIAN AID

VANCOUVER (CP) — Aid. Marianne Linnell wants a downtown reception centre set up for Indians to help visiting Indians who "can easily get into trouble in the city if they are not prepared for it."

Woman Must Stay Home At Night for Five Years

By RICHARD KASHCHKE

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Mrs. Helen Joseph gets in a traffic jam driving home from her downtown office she steps on the gas to get out of it fast.

Otherwise she may be in trouble with the South African government, because for the next five years she has to be home with the kids at 6:30 p.m.

Mrs. Joseph is the first white woman to be placed under house arrest under new political control laws exercised by Justice Minister Balthazar Vorster.

This means among other things that she is confined to her home from 6:30 p.m. to 6:30 a.m. She is forbidden to have visitors there except a doctor.

She cannot leave her home on public holidays or weekends, cannot attend any political or social gatherings and must report to the police every day except Sundays and holidays. Furthermore, she is silenced here and cannot be quoted by word or writing.

If she breaks any of the restrictions she can be jailed for up to three years.

The Johannesburg English-language Daily Mail has headlined: "Mrs. Joseph's home is her jail."

However she has her Siamese cat, Sih, and she gets newspapers and still has a telephone which rings constantly. Well-wishers' calls mix with anonymous messages.

Mrs. Joseph works in a downtown medical aid society doing Negro welfare work.

(A brief interview with Mrs. Joseph that has become available outside South Africa quotes her as saying of her arrest: "It doesn't feel very nice. But I try to keep busy at my welfare work, and cheerful.")

Mrs. Joseph, a childless divorcee, spent four months in jail as one of the defendants in South Africa's marathon treason trial. All the defendants were acquitted because the court ruled the government had not proved they were guilty of communist conspiracy.

Since Mrs. Joseph was born in England and has a British passport, some people are amazed that the South African government did not simply deport her. She has dual citizenship—British by birth and South African by domicile since 1931. British authorities said Mrs. Joseph's friends believe that if she wanted to leave the country the South African government would be glad to let her go.

But her friends say she has no intention of leaving the country.

Nice Fellow But He Stares at Her

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I am 33, still single. I am very shy and feel that I have obligations at home. I have had several offers to go out, but I always said no.

A single fellow has been after me lately, but as usual, I said that I was not interested. Since then I have noticed that he is always looking at me and seems to show up wherever I go. He is a nice fellow, but do you think that he is being rude in looking at me, or does he just like me?—WONDERING.

• • •

DEAR WONDERING—What's your guess? If he really is "a nice fellow," I'd say smile back and accept that date. Or do you want to come to at fifty and discover you've been such a coward that life has passed you by?

• • •

DEAR DORIS—Now, can you tell me, "For what reason will a boy look at you and continue to watch you with his eyes, when he rarely speaks to you?" For the past eight months I have had a very strong feeling for a certain boy. It began one day when I happened to look up from my work and saw this boy watching me.

Thereafter, whenever I looked in his direction I would catch him looking at me. We would say "hello" to each other, and sometimes pass a few moments in conversation. Then, all of a sudden, he quit.

Since then, I have found out he is shy and doesn't associate very much with girls. (He is 19 years old). Also I attend his church and wish to join it, for religious reasons, but I am afraid he will think it is for him I do it.

Why do boys lead you on to believe romantic things, with their eyes? Why do they mislead you, to suffer later?—UNSUCCESSFUL LOVER.

• • •

DEAR UNSUCCESSFUL—Boys stare at girls for the same reason as girls stare at boys—because they are interested in the other sex. He doesn't know his own mind any more than you do.

Girls make the first, second and third moves—subtly—much oftener than is suspected. Join his church—yes—but distribute your favors so he doesn't see that you have singled him out.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—Re "Puzzled." The trouble may be in the attic. Without ventilation, the air in the attic will get musty and smell bad.: I had the same trouble.

I tore out panels here and there, thinking there might be a dead rat. But as soon as I put two ventilators into the attic, all odor vanished.—H. B.

• • •

DEAR H. B.—Thanks very much. How about it, Puzzled? Have you found the trouble yet?

• • •

TO ENGAGED—If he is beating you now, what will happen when you are married? — My mail is loaded with the complaints of beaten down wives. Run as fast as your legs can carry you in the opposite direction.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—Whenever I have a party at home, my father hangs around watching every move we make and gets into everything.

The incident I'm referring to occurred tonight. I decided to have a party and he was there from the minute the guests arrived till the last dance. It made it impossible for us to enjoy ourselves. The guy I invited was quite quiet and I was trying to get him interested, but with my father always opening doors and turning up every light in the living room and dining room, it was impossible.

The crowd I go with is a very respectable, clean and young group. We all come from religious, good families, and our families know each other, yet my father insists on chaperoning every minute. I absolutely believe in chaperones, but I feel that they shouldn't be in the same room every minute. We've all been to parties together where the parents remained upstairs and not so much as a single hug went on. We respect each other and therefore do not do things we would be ashamed of—OLD ENOUGH TO BE TRUSTED.

• • •

DEAR OLD—In our neighbood I know, the young folks take turns at holding Saturday night parties in their homes. Most of the time Mother and Dad are on deck, running the record player, telling jokes, passing candy, showing some dance steps.

If you could have some games going and show Father your friends are not wanting to hide in corners and neck, he might not feel so much like a watch dog. Be glad he cares enough about you to stay home.

• • •

TO JONES-Y—You did exactly right. He wanted to have his cake and eat it too. There would be no point in putting up with a continuing insult. Now you can be yourself.

(Doris can point the way to success. Remember that stamped envelope when you write.)

TORQUAY, England (CP)—A postman in this Devon seaside resort has grown a freak double-faced dahlia. Experts say the flower cell must have split, producing two blooms from the same bud. The split was probably caused by soil deficiencies.

Science at Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Strange colors in the dark, an odyssey through the buried streets of an ancient city and a look into disordered grains of metal.

COLOR IN DARKNESS

Ever rub your eyes and then see strange colored lights —even with your eyes closed or in the dark?

These phenomena are called phosphenes, recognized more than 120 years ago.

The pressure on the eyes causes the color sensations—and evidence indicates that the same sensations can be caused by the pressure from acceleration.

University of Southern California researchers suggest that this may happen to pilots in modern aircraft. The acceleration of their airplanes may make them see phosphenes and mistake them for lights on the ground, or lights of other aircraft.

AN ANCIENT CITY

The city of Sardis in western Turkey was the site of the capital of the Lydian King Croesus, six centuries before Christ.

Now Harvard and Cornell University archeologists are digging trenches deeper into the past of the ancient city. They've found a prehistoric burial site, and a Jewish synagogue, perhaps one of the Jewish communities that St. John and St. Paul visited.

Discovery of a burial urn or jar at the bottom of a 33-foot pit suggests that the history of Sardis may go back to the 14th or 13th century before Christ.

TORTURED METAL

Twist or bend a piece of metal and you make the tortured structure hard and brittle. Heat it and it becomes softer, less brittle.

Researchers have known that this recrystallization under heat is a reorganization of metal grains or crystals. But now x-ray studies by Dr. Sigmund Weissman of Rutgers university offer a more complete picture of how it works.

When metal is deformed, the metal grains break up into smaller units, and some of these smaller grains—notably the ones with the greatest distortion in the rest of the grains—become the nuclei for a reorganization of the grain structure. When the metal is heated, the disoriented grains form the new grains, oriented in such a way to eliminate some of the stresses which have made the metal hard and brittle.

Cleansing of Water in U.S. Has Become Huge Problem

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

"Water, water everywhere,
And all the boards did shrink;
Water, water everywhere
Nor any drop to drink."

Such was the curse of S. T. Coleridge's Ancient Mariner. Posted on every bridge and dam, on every river and stream, it one day could serve as an epitaph for a civilization.

Unless the United States stops poisoning its waters with chemical bug killers and quick-sudsing detergents, with radio-active wastes and virus-bearing slaughter house remains, with untreated municipal and industrial sewage, with oil well brine and polymill acids and tons of silt from road and building projects, the curse could fall in the lifetime of the present generation.

The evidence is already there: appalling, irrefutable, increasing every day.

President Kennedy has called the situation "a national disgrace."

A housewife in Babylon, Long Island, draws a glass of water with a two-inch head of froth. It looks more like a glass of beer, but it has an oily, fishy taste.

Towns along the Animas River in Colorado and New Mexico, where a uranium mill dumps its wastes, learn their drinking water contains 40 to 100 per cent more than maximum safety levels of radioactivity.

'FLAMEOUT FOR ILLNESS

Epidemiologists trace an outbreak of hepatitis along the eastern seaboard to oysters raked from the Gulf of Mexico and to clams dug in New Jersey's Raritan Bay and along the Connecticut coast.

Faced with drought conditions in the Neosho River, Chanute, Kan., attempts to recycle water from its sewage treatment plant directly into its purification plant. The water meets acceptable health standards, but foam rises to the top of every glass, piles up in 15-foot high billows at the water works and blows across town like snow.

Freighters passing through Chicago's ship and sanitary canal churn up so much suds that sprays are employed to break up the billows. On Mondays, when Chicago housewives discharge tons of detergents with the water from the weekly wash, the frothing is noticeably worse.

Gas bubbles rise from the sludge at the bottom of the Missouri River below Sioux City, where a packing house unloads tons of animal entrails. Farther downstream, Omaha awaits the river's arrival for drinking water.

Typhoid fever breaks out in Keene, N.H. Hepatitis cases set a record. Leptospiros, better known as "sewer worker's fever," suddenly crops up in the Missouri River Valley. Health departments in a number of cities note an upsurge in diarrhea, intestinal disorders and stomach sicknesses. In each case, water is the virus carrier.

RIVERS BECOME SEWERS

All of these incidences of pollution actually happened in recent years. Some already have been corrected. Some are up for action in federal enforcement cases. Some continue unabated.

Despite a favorable annual rainfall, the U.S. available water has not increased appreciably since Columbus landed. Its use and abuse has—drastically. For well over a half-century the great U.S. rivers—the Mississippi, the Missouri, the Ohio, the Colorado, the Columbia, the Hudson—have been used as little more than open sewers. In that time, the U.S. population has doubled and the pollution load in its waters tripled.

Today about 40 per cent of the U.S. population drinks re-used water; water that has been through the sewers of some other city before purification.

Agricultural chemicals pose a major problem. Without them, the harvest would be considerably diminished. And yet there is mounting evidence that these saviours of crops may be subtle slayers.

Last year 84,000,000 acres of U.S. farm and forest land were treated with 4,000,000,000 pounds of insecticides, pesticides, weed and fungi killers. Every rainstorm washed some of these synthetics into rivers and streams. Some seeped down to ground water.

Despite the increasing complexity of pollutants, a growing public awareness has led to a number of individual success stories.

The Ohio River, although still plagued with taste and odor troubles, begins its run into the Mississippi a good deal cleaner than a decade ago, thanks to treatment and purification plants in 80 per cent of the towns along its banks.

Salmon runs have been restored in Oregon's Willamette River. Neighboring states are banding together to clean up the Arkansas, the Colorado, the Delaware and Susquehanna rivers. Engineers hope the Potomac will be clean enough to swim in by 1966.

Different Classes of Tulips Provide Gardener With Variety

by Flora M. Saville

Do you know what the names Darwin, Cottage, Lily-flowered, Parrot, Fosterian and Waterlily tulips mean? Each of these is a distinct class in the tulip family.

Darwin, Breeder and Cottage Tulips are often grouped together since they all have been cross bred. They are best classed as late or May-flowering tulips. They all have long stems and bloom at the same time. The chief difference is one of color. Yellow and orange do not exist in Darwins though prominent in Cottage and Breeder Tulips. Breeders include the deep copper, bronze and brown shades and dark blends.

Bizarres, Rembrants, Parrots and Lily-flowered tulips bloom at the same time as the Darwins. Do not confuse Cottage Tulips with short stemmed early tulips.

Bizarre Tulips are old fashioned striped, feathered and blotched in violet, purple and black on yellow ground.

Rembrants are somewhat the same in their markings as the Bizarres but the ground color is white, pink, lilac or red.

CHARMING APPEARANCE

Lily-flowered are quite distinct class with gracefully reflexed petals which give them a charming informal appearance. Ideal for cutting and arrangements and they make bright gay beds and borders.

Fosterian hybrids have extra large blooms, often twice the size of ordinary tulips. Most of these bloom weeks before other varieties. This is an advantage in Southern Ontario where an early heat wave finishes off very quickly all late varieties. Then too, they give us an early taste of color, which is so welcome after a long winter.

Tulipa Kaufmannia is a species of "Wild Tulip" from Turkestan. The flowers are of good size with short stems and broad foliage that hugs the ground. These are very early and the blooms spread wide in the early spring sunshine hence the popular name "Water-Lily Tulips." Many in this class have mottled leaves some produce several blooms to each plant.

Tulip Species are the original wild tulips from various parts of the world. They are miniature in size, good for rock gardens, planter or close to steps or walk where they can be closely observed. The class includes the "Horned" and "Lady Tulips." Some have three to five blooms to each stem. Others have seven to nine stems per plant. Still others are sweetly fragrant.

Greigii tulips are a lovely new race brought about by crossing Kaufmannia and Greigii tulips. They are dwarf, six to ten inches tall with the contrasting zonal base of the Kaufmannia and the mottled leaves of the Greggi. Colors range from white, pink and red with stripes and markings in other colors. They make a gay picture before most tulips are in bud. The flowers are quite large.

Parrot Tulips have extra large, cup-shaped blooms with frilled and fringed petals. Strikingly feathered and blotched with unusual color combinations. The new Parrots have strong stems, a bad fault in old types.

Double Late Tulips also called "Peony" bloom at the same time as the Darwins and have fine large blooms and long stems. Fine for bedding or border.

Mendels are mid-season tulips bridging the gap between the early and late classes. They force easily and are good for bedding.

Triumph Tulips are similar to the Mendels. These are hybrids from crossing single early tulips with Darwins. Good for forcing or bedding.

Double Early Tulips last longer than the early singles and look like large full roses. Fine for bedding.

Single Early Tulips have short stems and withstand strong winds well. Good for bedding.

Sport Slices . . .

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

(The following is a front page hockey editorial in the latest bulletin of the Canadian Olympic Association. Memo to European clubs. Please bring your arnica, liniment, bandages and aspirin at home). You won't need them. Canada will no longer ice world teams that feature "slugging, charging, high sticking" tactics. They won't be making ridiculous visits to the penalty bench". We want our good name for sportsmanship back and h'gad we're going to get it).

I doubt if any Olympic Sport has aroused such controversy as that which has surrounded our hockey team at the past two Winter Olympic Games. Not only has our failure to win the Olympic Gold Medal created much discussion, but the eligibility of our hockey players has been frequently questioned by various Canadian sports writers.

The news that the C.A.H.A. plans to send an All-Star college team to the 1966 Winter Olympics at Innsbruck has been very favorably received. This should put an end to any doubt that the ability of amateur players to take the Olympic Oath and our officials will no longer be placed in the embarrassing position of justifying the participation of players, that our own press have branded as ineligible.

Furthermore I am confident that a team of competent Canadian hockey players, trained as a unit, playing games for a reasonable period prior to the Winter Olympics, under International rules, will give as good a performance as a club which plays in a vicious, hard hitting league until a couple of weeks before the Olympics.

Despite, our losses at Cortina and Squaw Valley, we were represented by a very good hockey team. The Kitchener Waterloo Dutchmen had the superior hockey players and I am sure no players tried harder to win than they did. It is hard to understand how they lost.

I think the answer is in the fact that Americans and Russians had teams that were assembled for one purpose that is to win the Olympic Gold Medal. Each game was the most important thing in the life of each of their players.

I doubt if it is possible for our players, a few days removed from a league that features the slugging, charging, hick sticking type of hockey, to experience a lot down when they play against teams that feature skating, stick-handling, passing and an absence of rough play.

A team organized and trained with its main objective, to win a gold medal for Canada, can easily work itself into a dedication of purpose that has enabled inferior teams from other countries to win the Olympic Gold Medal.

If such a team plays warm-up games for a period of at least six weeks under Olympic rules the coach should be able to eliminate the type of players who cannot or will not adapt themselves to the rules played in the Olympic Competition.

These type of players, in addition to hurting their team's chances by their ridiculous visits to the penalty bench, have given a bad name to Canadian Sportsmanship in every country where hockey is played.

A group of players who consider it an honor and privileged to represent their country at the Olympics and who can and will adapt themselves to International rules, in addition to playing more effective hockey will restore the good name of Canadian Sportsmanship in International Hockey circles.

It will no easy task for Canada to regain the Olympic Hockey Championship. Russia, Sweden, Czechoslovakia and United States play a very excellent brand of hockey comparable to that played in the best amateur leagues in our country. This problem is appreciated by the officials of the C.A.H.A. even though many Canadian hockey fans fail to understand how anybody who is not a Canadian can be a good hockey player.

Gordon Juckes, Secretary Manager and Art Potter, C.A.H.A. President are already making the necessary plans to ensure that we will succeed at Innsbruck. The plan of Father David Bauer C.S.B. which will bring Canada's leading college hockey players together for a reasonable period prior to the 1966 Olympics, at this time, appears to be the best answer to winning the 1964 Olympic Hockey Gold Medal.

Canadian Championship

'El Bandido' Took It!

TORONTO (CP) — El Bandido ran like a thief in the night at heavily overcast Woodbine Saturday to win the $50,700 Canadian Championship by more than three lengths over the 1961 winner. Our Jeep, before 19,627 rain-spattered witnesses.

El Bandido was handled by Ray Broussard and took the gruelling mile and five furlongs on the soft wet grass without apparent strain.

He returned his Chicago owner, Edward Seltzer, $35,700 and paid $8.00 to win a two minutes, 50 4-5 seconds. $ 3.5 seconds off the record set by Rocky Royale in winning the event two years ago for American - owned horses.

took the first three positions, with the Frank Merrill-trained Harmonizing closing steadily in the 1¼ lengths of second-place Our Jeep, the 7-to-5 favorite.

The 54th running of the Grey Stakes, a $15,525 companion feature, was nearly a romp for trainer Johnny Passero who saddled the first, second and fourth horses. His winner was Stafford Farms' Sound Stage, ridden by George Gubbins.

Habs, Leafs Tied For Second

Zooming Wings Undefeated In Five

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Maybe they're doing it with mirrors but Detroit Red Wings continue to confound the experts in the National Hockey League.

Featuring the same cast that finished a modest fifth in the six-team loop last spring, coach Sid Abel's Wings are flying two points ahead of the pack, unbeaten in their first five games.

They breezed to a 3-1 victory over Chicago Black Hawks at home Sunday night to boost their record to four wins and a tie. Montreal Canadiens had to settle for a 3-3 tie against the Rangers in New York after beating Boston Bruins 7-3 at home Saturday.

That left Canadiens with a 3-2-1 record, identical with that of Toronto Maple Leafs, who put together a 5-1 home-ice victory over Chicago and a 6-4 win at Boston.

The Wings have scored only 13 goals. But they have yielded a meagre six to the opposition, barely more than one a game.

It would seem then that a good part of the answer lies in tightened defensive play and the work of goaltender Terry Sawchuk.

The Wings converted power plays into half those of their goals against the Hawks with help from veterans Alex Delvecchio, Norm Ullman and Vic Stasiuk cashing in. Reggie Fleming got one back for Chicago.

Before a crowd of 13,909 in Boston, the Leafs rallied in the final period, wiping out Boston's 3-2 edge on a pair of goals by Bobby Pulford and Dick Duff.

The Big M's second was fired into an empty net after the Bruins lifted netminder Bob Perreault for a sixth attacker.

Eddie Litzenberger and George Armstrong were Toronto's other goalgetters. Murray Oliver, Wayne Connelly, Guy Gendron and rookie Pat Hicks counted for the Bruins.

RAGE FIRST GOAL

Mahovlich bagged his first goal of the season Saturday night against Chicago with Duff and Armstrong rounding out Toronto's attack, the chief dumping the puck into an empty net with three seconds to play. The Chicago marksman was Bobby Hull. It was his lone goal this season.

In New York Sunday night, the Canadiens had to come from behind three times to gain the 3-3 saw-off. Gordon Berezo's 20-footer early in the final period produced the stalemate.

Montreal's other scorers were Gilles Tremblay and Jean Beliveau. New York's goals were by Andy Bathgate—his first Canadiens Henry and Camille Henry.

At home Saturday night Montreal scored four goals in the final period.

Henri Richard scored twice for Montreal and so did Tremblay, Billy Hicke, Bernie Geoffrion and , Phil Goyette added one each for Oliver, Connelly and Cliff Pennington got Boston's goals.

Stamps, Bombers Maintain Pace

Favored Ohio State Beaten

NEW YORK (AP) — Northwestern, riding the passing arm of Tommy Myers, surprised favored Ohio State 15-14 and provided the major upset among collegiate football teams Saturday.

Pitt and Auburn also recorded upset victories, Pitt edging previously unbeaten University of California at Los Angeles 6-0 and Auburn outlasting Georgia Tech 17-14.

Alabama stumbled and faltered for a while, then rallied its forces for a 27-7 triumph over Tennessee, while Southern California, Washington and Wisconsin also protected their positions on the list of the country's top ten.

Southern California No. 3 rolled over California 32-6, Washington No. 9 stopped Stanford 14-0 and Wisconsin No. 10 romped over Iowa 42-14.

Top-ranked Texas came from behind with a last quarter touchdown and beat Arkansas 7-3 in a night game. Louisiana State, No. 4, edged Kentucky 7-0 and fifth-ranked Mississippi blanked winless Tulane 21-0.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The battle for first place in the Western Conference is now closer to solution after a weekend that may both contenders come from behind to score victories.

Calgary Stampeders traded touchdowns with British Columbia Lions and eventually pulled away with a 36-28 win and a slender one-point lead over Winnipeg Blue Bombers, who needed three last-quarter touchdowns to dispose of Edmonton Eskimos 39-26. The loss dumped the Esks from the playoffs for the first time since 1949.

The race continues tonight with the Bombers in Regina to play the third-place Saskatchewan Roughriders and to pick up one of the two games they have in hand over Calgary.

Calgary and B.C. locked in a head-on struggle—with quarter scores of 7-7, 14-14, and 28-28—before Larry Robinson took an 11-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Eagle Day to grab the lead and Jim Furlong added the game away with a single.

Day threw for two touchdowns, Robinson booted five converts. But the turning point came as the third quarter opened when Harvey Wylie ran back the B.C. kick-off 102 yards for a touchdown.

B.C.'s dazzling halfback Willie Fleming returned the favor three plays later when he found running room on a halfback draw from quarterback Joe Kapp, eluded the Calgary defence for 97 yards and gave the Lions a 28-21 lead.

Along with Robinson and Wylie, Calgary got touchdowns from Lovell Coleman, Ed Buchanan and Pete Manning.

Fleming accounted for three B.C. scores while Nub Beamer, who took over as leading ground-gainer in the conference during the game, added a fourth. George Grant booted three converts and a single.

Syracuse Fronts Tie, Hull Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Roger Crozier labored away to keep Syracuse Braves in the game, and when their moment of glory came he could only sit with his fingers crossed.

The rookie goaltender, an all-star in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series when he was with St. Catharines Teepees last season, kicked out 46 shots to keep the Braves in check.

His teammates rewarded his efforts, while he was sitting on the sidelines, as Crozier's extra forward, by scoring the lone goal in favor of a 4-4 tie with Kingston Frontenacs Saturday night.

The result, combined with Hull-Ottawa Canadiens' 2-1 victory over Sudbury Wolves Sunday, left the Braves in third place in the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

As has been the custom over the last few seasons, Canadiens' first place with eight points, one ahead of the Frontenacs..Sudbury trails Syracuse by one point.

Verbal Riot Marks Meet

By MARVEN MOSS

QUEBEC (CP)—Sam Ermen, out unless order was restored a plumbing and heating contractor from Moncton, N.B., emerged Saturday as the new president of the Canadian Professional Boxing Association after a strife-torn meeting far livelier than many of nowadays' bouts.

At more than one point, the five-hour session marking the federation's annual meeting appeared to be collapsing in a hodge - podge of unrestrained shouting and sharp, lifted threats.

Two delegates announced amid the tumult that they were going to walk out, indicating they would pull their affiliated commissions from the national structure. But they stayed and no more was heard of it.

When it was all over, mumbled apologies were sheepishly exchanged by some of the principals. But in some quarters illfeeling undeniably remained.

Giving rise to much of the disorder was the 15c controversy shrouding Canada's heavyweight championship. The deliberations leading to the presidential election also stirred up tempers and angry words.

JUMPS UP, SHOUTING

Magistrate Martin Haley of Dartmouth, N.S., a member of the Halifax athletic commission, jumped up at his feet shouting on points of order and threatened to leave unless he was heard.

Once he went as far as the door before turning back, in that instance he was backed by Duncan Hines of Sydney, N.S., who proclaimed he too would walk

The federation, on a motion by Haley that led to more than two hours of haggling, decided to give heavyweight champ Bob Cleroux of Montreal an ultimatum.

He has 30 days to defend his championship in Toronto against George Chuvalo—or the title will be declared vacant.

Cleroux was suspended a year ago by the World Boxing Association for failing to comply with a contract he signed to fight Archie Moore in Toronto Sept. 18, 1961. The pair hooked up earlier in three 12-round title bouts at Montreal with Cleroux winning the first and last.

IS STILL FIGHTING

The 24-year-old Montrealer, however, has fought a number of times while on the WBA blacklist, appearing in smaller Quebec centres where there are no recognized athletic commissions.

Merv McKenzie of Toronto, an official of the Ontario Athletic Commission, said Cleroux's comanager Al Bachman of New York has "made a mockery of boxing in Canada" with the small-town manoeuvre.

"He's playing Canadians for suckers and refusing to fight rate fighters to meet Cleroux," said McKenzie, a three - time president of the federation.

Also approved was a motion establishing an age limited for fighters in Canada at 38, with a special medical qualification to exempt presumably such fighters as Archie Moore.

35 Attend Practice

"Turk" To Coach Juniors

Don "Turk" Barclay, newly-appointed coach of Belleville Junior "B" hockey club, sent some 35 hopefuls through their first workout of the season yesterday afternoon.

Four returnees from last year's team and one junior "A" cut headed the pack while most of the remainder were up from juvenile and midget teams of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association.

Sito Muirhead, with two years experience with the Peterborough Junior "A" squad, Gary Duvall, a light-scoring forward with last year's Macs, and Jim Jones, who played part of last season with the Trenton Junior "C" club, appeared to be the only experienced forwards at the practice.

Paul Zakos, Ted Rowland and Gary Reid are back from last year's defence while Barclay himself appears to be the pick of five goalies seeking that berth.

Other juniors and players that the team executive hoped to have cut included Pete Weston and Bobby Boyle. Weston is attending Queen's University and Boyle is with the Ingersoll Junior "B" team.

Manager Mel Richards said that he hoped to get Reid Smith, of Stirling, out with the team. Smith played with Belleville's Junior "B" squad two years ago. Gary "Whitey" Hull, also of junior age, was not out yesterday, and apparently plans to play City League hockey. Harold Wyeth, Trenton manager was at yesterday's practice and is attempting to get Hull on waivers for his junior "C" team.

Included among the best looking minor grads yesterday were Bobby Ethier, Gary McMillan, Moreau, Carl Boomhower, John Lawless, Lyle Adams, Pete Emerson, Denny Sinclair, Larry Doyle, Larry "Soup" Campbell and Jim Rutherford.

Barclay was named coach late Saturday. The popular "Turk" is well-known Junior "B" Senior "B", Senior "A" and Intermediate "A" action. This is his first shot at coaching.

The team will practise again Friday night at nine o'clock and next Sunday from one to 2.30 p.m.

Varsity Whips Mustangs

Redmen Upset Queen's

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

It is not hard to understand why the favorite football slogan on the campus of Queen's University is "Kill McGill!" McGill Redmen, for three years in a row, have made a brazen attempt to lift Queen's Golden Gaels in the Intercollegiate Senior Football League.

They did it again Saturday at Montreal, pulled the reins sharply to win 35-24 and stopped Gaels from making a run away with the league title.

While the McGill win may not have been popular at Kingston, it was in Toronto, where the University of Toronto Blues whipped University of Western Ontario Mustangs 23-16.

The win gave Blues, who finished a dismal last in the four-team league last season, a share of first place.

Eric Walter, a 19-year-old second-year student from Montreal rose to great heights as he scored four touchdowns to lead Redmen to their first win of the season.

Gaels, who were undefeated, now have two wins and one loss, the same record as Varsity.

Mustangs and Redmen are tied with one win and two losses.

Walter scored one touchdown on a 90-yard sudden-death run which originated on a screen pass from quarterback Tom Skypeck. Gaels' No. 15, five and four parts for his other scores.

Skypeck tossed 40 yards to Willie Lambert for the other McGill touchdown and George Tellesh kicked a 26-yard field goal and five converts.

Bill Edwards, Bayne Norrie and Bill Sirman scored touchdowns for the defending champion Gaels and halfback Robin Hitchie kicked a 22-yard field goal and three converts.

Breaks Nashua Record

Kelso Takes Gold Cup

NEW YORK (AP) — Mighty Kelso made a powerful claim on unprecedented third consecutive year title with a 10-length victory Saturday in the $108,900 Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Park.

The five - year - old gelding owned by the Bohemia Stable of Mrs. Richard C. Dupont also won his third straight gold cup, a feat never before accomplished, and smashed the Belmont track record for two miles to boot.

Ismael Valenzuela brought Kelso to the wire eased up in three minutes, 19 4-5 seconds, which smashed Nashua's 1956 record of three minutes, 20 2-5 seconds. The time was two-fifths of a second off Kelso's American record set at Aqueduct in 1960.

Mrs. Robert L. Dotter's Guadalcanal, who ran sixth and last for more than 1¼ miles while Kelso was dueling for the lead, came on to finish second. Elmendorf Farm's Mickle Boy was third.

Kelso, the heavy favorite, paid $2.50 and earned $70,785 to increase his earnings to $938,380, making him the sixth leading money winner in history.

LONGDEN SCORES

Veteran Johnny Longden won his fourth consecutive Golden Gate Handicap at Albany, Cal., riding Mandata to a 3½-length victory in the $21,250 race.

For Longden, a 58-year-old grandfather, it was the seventh triumph in the 16 times the event has been run at Golden Gate Fields. Mandata paid $7.80.

In the Roseben Farm's five-year-old Beau Purple led all the way in the slop to win the $131,250 Hawthorne Gold Cup by about two lengths over Bass Clef.

Beau Purple earned $82,250 and paid $11.60.

In Coral Gables, Fla., King Ranch's Tamarona pulled the surprise of the year when she defeated both the mighty Citation and the strong Shirley Jones in the $57,000 Vineland Handicap at Garden Mesta Park. Shirley Jones was second and Lincoln Center third, 2½ lengths before Cicada.

The winner paid $87.60.

McMaster Wins Grid Cup

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

McMaster Marauders, who have four wins in four starts in the Ontario Intercollegiate Football Conference, Saturday took the President's Cup with a 40-9 win over the Ontario Agricultural and Veterinary College Redmen at Hamilton.

In other action, the University of Ottawa Gee-Gees built up a 29-0 half-time lead at Kingston but had to hold on to score a 34-20 win over the Royal Military College Redmen.

And, Carleton University Ravens, who hadn't defeated Waterloo University Warriors in five years, released their frustrations as they whipped Warriors 36-0 at Ottawa.

The President's Cup is an annual trophy contested each year by McMaster and OAVC in a two-game total-points series during the regular OIFC season.

Tom Tresh Ken Hubbs Top Rookies

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Outfielder Tom Tresh of New York Yankees and second-baseman Ken Hubbs of Chicago Cubs were selected major league baseball rookies of the year for 1962 in a poll announced Sunday by the Sporting News.

Tresh, who climaxed a brilliant season for the American League champions in the fifth game of the World Series, received 97 votes. Catcher Bob Rodgers of Los Angeles Angels was second with 30.

Hubbs, who set a major league fielding record this season, made a runaway in the National League balloting. He collected 120 votes. Southpaw pitcher Al Jackson of New York Mets was second with 11.

Moyer Wins Over Joe Giambra

Moyer weighed 153¾ while Giambra came in at the maximum weight limit of 154 pounds.

Moyer opened fast and repeatedly beat his Los Angeles opponent to the punch with jabs and right-hand leads in the first four rounds. He appeared on the way to an easy victory, until Giambra unleased a flurry of lefts and rights in the fifth round that stayed blood flowing from Moyer's nose.

For the next three rounds Giambra outfought Moyer on the inside and evened the bout as the blood continued to flow. There were no knockdowns.

Tiger Rally Grabs Win From Argos

Buffalo Remains Unbeaten

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo Bisons are making a stampede of the Western Division race in the American Hockey League. They notched two more victories during the weekend to continue as the league's only unbeaten and untied team.

The Bisons scored a 4-1 triumph over Baltimore Clippers Sunday, following a 4-3 victory over Hershey Bears Saturday. The two triumphs gave the Bisons a four-point edge atop the western standings with the season only two weeks old.

Providence whipped Hershey 6-3, Quebec Aces defeated Cleveland Barons 6-4 and Pittsburgh Hornets scored their first victory of the season, 5-2 over Rochester Americans, in other Sunday games.

In other Saturday games, Baltimore defeated Pittsburgh 5-1 and Springfield Indians blasted Cleveland 7-0.

Cliff Schmautz scored twice in Buffalo's triumph over Baltimore. Referee Dalton McAllister called 16 penalties in the rough game, including a match penalty on Buffalo's Tom Ingram for deliberately injuring Baltimore playing coach Red Sullivan.

Sullivan suffered a 13-stitch cut over the right eye but came back to play.

CANADIAN WINS

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP)—John Cannon of Montreal survived an unexpected late pit stop for gasoline and won Saturday's featured 45-minute race for modified racers. Cannon, in a Dalby Special with a Corvette engine, had to stop with only two laps to go but lost less than half of his 1¼-minute lead.

Cossentino tossed 21 yards to Easterly the first time he touched the ball and Easterly ran an additional 30 yards for the 71-yard scoring play which put the Blacks back in the game.

Henley made a magnificent catch of the winning touchdown in the fourth quarter, outjumping Argo defender Ron Morris in the end zone.

An injury to talented Hal Patterson put a damper on the Hamilton win. Patterson sprained an ankle when tackled after taking a pass in the first quarter.

All touchdowns, by both teams, were on passing plays. Zeger tossed for three—but one went the wrong way.

He threw payoff passes to Henley and Ken Kilrea and another pass wound up in the arms of Morris, who raced 79 yards to score for Toronto.

Halfback Dick Shatto passed to Dave Mann for another Argo touchdown and quarterback Tobin Rote tossed to Joe Hernandez in the fourth quarter, outjumping Argo defender Ron Morris in the end zone.

Don Sutherin kicked three converts for the Tiger-Cats and Bill Mitchell booted a 37-yard field goal and three converts for Argos.

LAYER EXTENDED

BRISBANE (AP)—Wimbledon tennis champion Rod Laver beat countryman Fred Stolle 6-2, 3-6, 4-6, 8-6 in the Australian hard-court singles final today.

Rider Coach Frank Cossentino, relegated to coach Jim Trimble's bullpen only one week ago, made an outstanding debut as a relief pitcher Sunday when he picked up a win by throwing only two strikes.

Fireman Frank relieved starter Joe Zuger in the third quarter at Hamilton and his strikes were touchdown passes to Ed Easterly and Garney Henley.

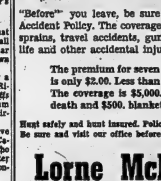
They gave Hamilton Tiger-Cats a comeback 27-24 win over Toronto Argonauts and sole possession of first place in the Eastern Football Conference.

And it would be permanent possession unless the Canadian Football League rules in Ottawa Rough Riders' favor in the board room.

Ottawa, two points off the pace, is protesting a 21-21 tie with Montreal Alouettes at Ottawa Saturday.

One of the Als' scoring plays, a touchdown by Mary Luster, was a weird play on which Ottawa's Whit Tucker deflected a Montreal pass intended for Ottawa crossbar and into Luster's hands in the end zone.

THE PLEA



The Riders are arguing that a pass is incomplete if the ball hits the goalposts or crossbar and Montreal's touchdown shouldn't have counted.

Because they managed only a tie, it could cost the Rough Riders the bye into the playoffs which a second-place team finishing atop the four-team circuit.

Hamilton's win must have been sweet for Cossentino, a Canadian - born quarterback who was shoved to the sidelines after Zuger's sensational debut Monday.

Cossentino had been Hamilton's No. 1 replacement for injured Bernie Faloney until the club went into a three-loss tailspin.

Zuger was having his troubles against Argos before Cossentino got the call. Argos were leading 24-13 going into the third quarter.

Jack Webb Busy Sabotaging Nazis in Occupied Norway

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Webb was busily sabotaging Nazis in occupied Norway Sunday night on CBS—an exciting tale based on a real-life commando mission. Then, with a flip of the dial, one found an NBC drama in which the enemies were the Communists of East Germany today.

Jack Webb story, in spite of its East Berlin setting, was only incidentally a tale of escape. Primarily, it posed an interesting philosophical question.

A "neutral" East Berlin scholar, labored in his work, was drawn into an anti-Communist plot against his will. Was he wrong to betray the underground to his Communist benefactors? After being tortured, he decided he was.

A sympathetic performance by Burt Brinkerhoff as the betrayer made him a sympathetic character. The show, however, was slow-moving.

"You, said my doctor scribbling a prescription, have a mild upper respiratory infection."

"You mean a head cold?" I asked.

"Sure," he replied. "But I try to talk like Ben Casey nowadays. I keep an eye on those shows because it helps me keep up with the symptoms the patients bring in. The patients in those television doctor shows give my more suggestible patients ideas, and if you know what diseases are coming up, you can handle them easier."

Giants Shock Detroit

Redskins Still Unbeaten

Sports Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

A few eyeballs popped the other day when it was announced in Toronto that Bob Fisher - Smith of Ottawa had been added to Canada's track team for the Nov. 22-Dec. 1 British Empire Games in Australia.

The first question some people asked was: "Why not Nancy McCredie?"

It was a good question, particularly since the 17-year-old Brampton, Ont., miss had established a record as No. 3 woman discus thrower in the Commonwealth with a heave of 151 feet three inches. Officials had a ready answer.

The left-handed Miss McCredie isn't ready to go up against the best in the Commonwealth. Her coach, Lloyd Percival of Toronto, said the youngster had already started on a program aimed at reaching a peak by next April in time for the Pan-American Games in Brazil.

NEAR WORLD RECORD

Percival wasn't disappointed that officials had by-passed his protege in favor of Fisher - Smith, whose best time in the 100 yards is just four-tenths second off the world mark of 9.2 seconds, held by Vivian Cook of Harry Jerome of Vancouver.

Miss McCredie hadn't received an invitation from track officials to join the team.

"I talked it over with the selectors, Nancy and her parents," Percival said. "It was a group decision that she wouldn't go to Australia: Mind you, though, she had not received a definite invitation to go.

"Nancy hung her head a bit, I looked up and said: 'Let's forget about Australia and really go to work on Brazil and the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo.'

"We felt a trip to Australia might interfere with her training, which has been pointed towards the Pan-Am games.

"Besides, Nancy really didn't want to go unless she figured she had a reasonably good chance of winning a gold medal. She thinks she can do that in Brazil next spring."

REPLACES JUMPER

Fisher-Smith took over the spot vacated by Emmett Smith of Weyburn, Sask., who won the broad jump in the track and field trials back in August. A student at Brigham Young University at Provol, Utah, he said the trip would interfere with his studies.

The selectors made a good choice in Fisher-Smith, who has shown steady improvement in the past couple of years.

"Now we have a men's 440 yard relay team," enthused Ken Twiger of Toronto, manager of Canada's track team. "And we have a fair chance of taking a gold medal." On the team are: Jerome, Lynn Eves of Victoria and Bill Crothers of Toronto, a middle - distance star who started his track career in the sprints.

Norm Ullman of Detroit, who provided the game-winner in a 3-1 victory over Chicago Sunday night.

Geiberger Takes Golf Tourney

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Al Geiberger of Carlton Oaks, Calif. fired a one-under-par 70 Sunday to win the $25,000 Ontario Golf Open, his first victory in three years on the tour.

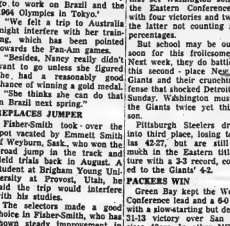
The tall, slim 25-year-old fighting a cold throughout the tournament, posted rounds of 69-67-70-70 for a 72 hole total of 276. The victory was worth $3,500.

Jammed in second place at 277 were Tommy Jacobs, Chuck Rotar, John Reudi, Bob Goalby and Gardner Dickinson. Goalby lost his chance for a tie when he went one over par on the final hole.

Tied for seventh at 278 were Al Johnston of Montreal, Billy Maxwell, Tony Lema and Jon Gustin. Johnston hit a 65 in Saturday's third round, the lowest score up to that time. Jacobs fired a 65 Sunday while Johnston had a 71, matching his first two rounds.

Johnston's finish won $978.

Penske Wins Pacific Grand Prix



MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — Roger Penske, without a heat victory to his name, won the $100,000 Pacific Grand Prix sports cars Sunday when a bad ring gear and pinion forced Dan Gurney to the pits midway through the second heat.

Penske finished second in each of the two 100-mile heats in his centre-seat Red Zora Duralite-Climax. He took home $3,000 over-all prize money plus $1,000 for each of his heat finishes.

Burney won the first heat by two seconds and was running a close second in the final when his Lotus Mark 19 Climax broke down.

Lloyd Ruby was an easy winner in the second heat, but finished only fourth in the first.

AT THE BELLE — Two Laugh-loaded Comedies — Milicent Martin, starring with Bill Travers in MGM's rollicking army comedy, "Invasion Quartet". Arthur Kennedy consoles a distraught Muriel Pavlow in a scene from "Murder She Said", MGM's exciting mystery, based on the Agatha Christie thriller "4:50 From Paddington". Closing of My Fair Lady Evokes Rush of Memories

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When the record - breaking musical "My Fair Lady" closed after 6½ years on Broadway recently, it evoked a rush of memories. Stanley Holloway, who described "the better part of four years" to playing Eliza's rakish father in New York and London, has a few memories of his own.

"Oh, I remember many nights," mused Holloway, now a television star. "There was the first night we played a Sunday night benefit before our own profession. The response was so enormous the stagehands waived their usual finishing time so they could work overtime.

"There was the night a 1,500-pound piece of scenery fell backstage with a great crash. Rex Harrison was doing a number and he didn't miss a note; he said later he thought someone was shooting at him.

"There was the night I heard a commotion in the theatre but kept on singing. I learned that a man had fainted in the stalls (orchestra seats). They had to carry him out over people' heads.

NERVOUS UNDERSTUDY

"One time Rex was out with a bad throat and his understudy played the matinee. What with nerves and all, the poor boy was steadily losing his voice. By the evening performance the audience couldn't even hear him. The curtain rang up at 8:35 and down at 9:15.

"And, of course, there was opening night. Rex was never anything quite like that."

Unknown to Holloway, there was a night that audiences would have a profound effect on his future. He was Paul Harrison, a producer-writer of radio and television.

Back in 1951, Harrison had created radio's Curtain Time, Higgins, Sir, starring Harry McNaughton. McNaughton died and so did Higgins' network radio, and the show went into limbo.

THAT'S THE MAN

While watching Holloway strut through Get Me to the Church on Time, Harrison pondered: "If I ever put Higgins on television, that's the man I want to do it."

The 72 - year - old - Holloway, one of England's great music hall comedians, knew a great deal of Harrison's scheme until this year.

The result is Our Man Higgins on CBC television starting nights.

"I enjoy living here," said the actor, who had never before worked in the Hollywood studios. "Life is much more informal and the climate is marvelous. I wouldn't mind staying, though I'd hate to think that I couldn't go home again.

Jones Stops Unbeaten Bob Foster

NEW YORK (AP) — Light-heavyweight contender Doug Jones of New York, a 7-to-2 favorite, stopped previously unbeaten Bob Foster of Washington in 2:22 seconds of the eighth round of a television fight at Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

Jones weighed 182 pounds; Foster 174.

Jones floored the 23-year-old underdog in the first round, for a count of nine with a jolting right to the jaw. Foster rallied to give Jones a stiff battle through the fifth round. But in the sixth he began to tire and in the seventh round he absorbed a sound beating, twice reeling from rights to the head.

At the end of the seventh Dr. Samuel Swetnick examined Foster. He advised the referee to halt the fight if Foster got hit by a hard blow. The first solid right sent Foster backwards and Martin called it a night.

3 Candidates Will Oppose Drapeau in Civic Election

By STRAUN MATHESON

MONTREAL (CP) — Mayor Jean Drapeau said his Civic Party is campaigning quietly in the bid to win re-election in the Montreal civic election Sunday, Oct. 28.

Mr. Drapeau will be opposed by three candidates, including the first woman ever to contest the mayoralty in Montreal.

The Civic Party is contesting all 45 council seats established in the new streamlined municipal parliament. The party held 46 of 92 seats in the outgoing council under the old electoral system.

Senator Sarto Fournier is trying to regain the mayoralty he lost to Mr. Drapeau in 1960. His citizens' party is contesting 30 of the council seats.

Architect Paul Lambert, supported by the Civic Action League, is seeking the mayoralty in his first election test. The league, once a power at city hall, is contesting 42 of the 45 seats.

The 24 remaining council candidates are independent as is Louise Parent, a Lakeshore part - time architectural draughtsman who is basing her attempt to win the mayoralty first mayor on the success of Ottawa's Mayor Charlotte Whitton.

WANTS CONCRETE ONES

Mrs. Parent wants to build concrete bridges across the St. Lawrence River from Montreal in contrast to "those ugly steel ones." She also wants removal of cars from Montreal streets if their owners have no garage. She has no cars she will hold election rallies.

Mayor Drapeau set the tone of the administration campaign Tuesday, nomination day, when he refused to pose for pictures with other mayoralty candidates.

"I don't have to shake hands with persons who call me a thief," he said. "The voters will understand."

Mr. Drapeau invited all the people of Montreal personally to inspect excavations for the subway under construction.

The administration stands on its record of starting a subway, signing the police agreement and virtually assuring Montreal of the 1967 World's Fair.

ATTACKS DRAPEAU

At various times in his speech, he called the mayor "dictator," "Lord of the Manor," "tyrant" "Napoleon," "Jupiter," "viper," "Pharisee," "hypocrite," "Judas," "joker," and "bad actor."

"Never before," Senator Fournier charged, "have so many lies been told by one man."

Senator Fournier said Montreal has been in such terrible shape since the Civic Party administration took over in 1960 that even the Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League and Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four had had years like Chinese puzzles. He said the Civic Action League said the reason why they were not contesting council seats was because of unspecified administration pressure against prospective candidates.

"Odious and clever blackmail," the candidate Pierre Desmarais said, "was directed at qualified, competent and recommendable candidates."

Golden Eagle Tried to Carry Dog Away

The eagle watched the dog for a moment, then spread his wings to their full six-foot width and swooped down to seize his perch.

The dog's yelps brought help.

The eagle was actually lifting the dog off the ground when I got him," said Fred Goodman, the dog's owner. Goodman swung at the eagle with a broom, forcing the bird to drop its prey.

While the dog scooted for cover, Goodman fought the furious bird with the broom. The eagle snatched up the broom and flew off with it around a corner.

A posse of 10 policemen, a firetruck, some 200 spectators and two teams from the Anti-Cruelty Society chased the bird as it soared from house top to housetop.

A tranquillizer dart finally brought the eagle down.

FIGHTING HEAVY

snow-covered border.

Informed observers here believe, however, that the Chinese were in overwhelming force and had a far better logistical position than the Indians.

Indian Defence Minister Krishna Menon estimated the Chinese force at more than one division of some 10,000 men.

No official figures have been given of Indian strength but observers believe it is unlikely to be more than about 11½ battalions because of the difficulty with the Indian supply position in the mountainous border area.

When the fighting first erupted Saturday, the Chinese also attacked the Indians at launching areas from which they said they had to "take counter-measures."

AIM AT LADAKH

One new Chinese objective appeared to be Chushul airfield, only air supply line to Indian troops facing the Chinese in the Ladakh theatre of operations, 200 miles west of the northeast frontier area. The Indians mentioned fighting in the Pangong Lakes area, which is near the airfield.

The Indians said fighting also continued in the Chipchap River Valley of the Ladakh front.

Sunday the New China news agency said that Chinese troops had taken several posts in the eastern border fighting and also "recovered" several strongholds in Ladakh.

The Chinese claimed today to have captured seven Indian strongpoints in the eastern sector and "wiped out" Indians in the Ladakh area to the west.

The points in the east were located at Khinzemane, Yumtso, Kenlingnal, Jhitingpu, Tang, Ningapa and Drokung Bridge. The Ladakh points were not identified.

ADMITS RETREAT

The Indian government has admitted its troops have been forced to fall back in the face of what were described as attacks with overwhelming strength. Various reports said four to seven strongpoints were out of touch.

Both sides have admitted losses in the fighting but no figures have been announced. Indian military spokesmen declined to say whether the Chinese had advanced but Prime Minister Nehru was quoted as saying the Chinese had pressed three or four miles in the northeast.

The Peking New China News Socialist Party who visited Nehru described him as only "slightly perturbed" and at all "pessimistic about the ultimate outcome."

The Socialist leaders urged a break in diplomatic relations with Peking but said Nehru told them the consequences would have to be studied carefully.

In Peking, meanwhile, plain-clothesmen have been stationed outside the public entrances of all Indian diplomats and embassy staff members in Peking Indian diplomatic sources said today.

SAY IS DESPERATE

Leading Indian newspapers said Sunday that the situation is desperate unleashed war for survival and Krishna Menon said: "From the way they (the Chinese) are going, there is no limit to where they may go."

Menon appealed in an overture for negotiations with the Chinese.

"Even after what the Chinese have done to us, if they mend their ways and come to the path of fair settlement, they will not find out prime minister unwanting in anything that is right," he said.

Previously Nehru had refused to negotiate the border dispute with Peking unless the Chinese withdrew from the 51,000 square miles of territory they moved into on the two frontiers. The Chinese rejected this as blackmail. Nehru also declared a few weeks ago to India's armed forces to expel the Chinese from the disputed territory.

There were reports that Russia might intervene diplomatically with China in an effort to stop the fighting. Speculation on this arose after Nehru had talked for half an hour with Soviet Ambassador I. A. Benedikov.

Britain to Protect Ships From Anti-Castro Pirates

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Rigid principle rather than any political sympathy is behind Britain's determination to protect British-owned ships from the anti-Castro pirates in the Caribbean.

Newspaper reports that Cuban exiles plan to step up hit-and-run activity prompted the announcement Friday by Admiralty to issue a blunt-of British goods.

Most of the Western ships under charter to the Soviet Union on the Cuban run are British.

The British Chamber of Shipping has discussed the Cuban piracy with the British Government proposed by the United States but is waiting for final formulation of the U.S. plans.

The original American proposal suggested that ships carrying arms to Cuba should be banned from U.S. ports. No ships carry arms but the seemingly frivolous transport arms but it was argued the Communists could send arms aboard under a false manifest.

It now appears that when the boycott details are made public, probably next week, the ban will apply only to ships that carry arms knowingly.

British companies will presumably comply with the U.S. ban. In the meantime British officials believe the threats of the Cuban exiles are extrem-

Top Expert on Christian Unity Is Toronto Priest

ROME (CP)—Of the Canadian Roman Catholic bishops and theological experts attending the Vatican ecumenical Council, few can claim a more unusual background than Rev. Gregory Baum of Toronto.

Both 29 years ago into a Jewish family in Berlin, he was born up an agnostic and did not become interested in Christianity until 1946, when he read the confessions of St. Augustine. Now he is a member of the Augustinian Order.

Father Baum is a stocky, eager-eyed man with a mind that seems to toss off intellectual fireworks all the time.

As consultant to the Vatican secretariat on Christian unity he has made five trips to Rome. As an ecumenical expert, speaking fluent German and English, he is in touch with national groups of ecumenists.

He also is professor of theology at St. Basil's Seminary, Toronto; director of the centre for ecumenical studies at St. Michael's College there, and associate theologian to Archbishop Philip Pocock, Coadjutor to the Archbishop of Toronto.

ENCOURAGED

In an interview, Father Baum described himself as "tremendously encouraged" by developments so far at the council.

"The Pope has never before come out so openly in expressing his sympathy for the revival of the church as he did in his opening speech," he said.

"He stressed religious liberty, a more merciful attitude toward error, a new formulation of the relation ecumenical Church to the modern world, a new stress on ecumenical movement and the desire for collaboration of all groups. Even more than that he stress on pastoral rather than doctrinal considerations."

Father Baum is a passionate advocate of unity among the Christian churches. He makes her seem a kind of "sorceress" seeking to draw others into her sphere of influence by some "magic."

Hamilton Man Bucking Trend Toward Foreign Ownership of Canadian Firms

TORONTO (CP) — A prominent Hamilton businessman is bucking the trend toward foreign ownership of Canadian firms.

Dan Vertlieb has bought the former Canadian subsidiary of a U.S. corporation and will operate it as a Canadian-owned enterprise.

BUYS U.S. PLANT — Dan Vertlieb, Hamilton businessman, has pulled a switch on the recent trend toward foreign ownership of Canadian industries. He has bought Curtis Allbrite Lighting Ltd. near Toronto, former Canadian subsidiary of an American company, Curtis Lighting Inc. of Chicago. The subsidiary, established in 1931, now is a Canadian - owned enterprise. (CP Photo).

The company is Curtis Allbrite Lighting Ltd., of Leaside, Ont., a Toronto suburb. It is one of the country's leading producers of industrial, commercial and industrial lighting equipment.

Formerly a subsidiary of Curtis Lighting Inc. of Chicago, the company was established in Canada in 1931. Last year it had more than $1,000,000 in sales to electrical wholesalers and distributors.

Mr. Vertlieb, whose business interests range from candy manufacturing to the presidency of a real estate and liquidating firm, has holdings in Hamilton and Montreal as well as in the United States. He sees nothing unusual about the deal.

EMPLOYS 75 WORKERS

"The opportunity was there and the potential is good. Besides—and mind you, I'm not trying to start a crusade or anything of the kind—this continually growing ownership of our industries by outside interests could be a serious problem.

"We really can't blame them, however. If they see the opportunities and we don't. And believe me, the opportunities are here, even though we are often the last to appreciate the fact."

The lighting equipment firm has a modern plant employing 75 persons and is geared to meet the demands of architects and electrical contractors.

Mr. Vertlieb, whose family lives in Arigona, also has an active interest in a business in Montreal which, he says, is currently preparing to produce a new type of terrazzo flooring that will be superior to anything now on the market while selling for one-third less.

Kennedy Orders Blockade Of Cuba

Crisis Appears Greatest Since Second War

JFK Claims Missile Bases Being Set Up in Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia and the United States headed on a collision course today as President Kennedy clamp an arms blockade on Cuba and halt Soviet conversion of the island into a nuclear missile base.

A direct confrontation between the two great powers could come by nightfall, in the judgment of Washington officials.

The crisis appeared to be the greatest since the Second World War.

Its full scope broke Monday night when President Kennedy announced Russia's establishment of missile bases in Cuba threatening the United States, Canada and Latin America and disclosed a seven-point program of U.S. action starting with a naval blockade to halt the flow of any offensive arms to Cuba.

He called his move the imposition of "a strict quarantine," avoiding official use of the word "blockade." But administration officials said that in practical effect there was no difference.

CUBANS MOBILIZE

Havana radio said early today that all of the island's military forces had been mobilized and Premier Fidel Castro would address the Cuban people later in the day.

Kennedy was depending on crisis diplomacy to pull the world back from the brink of conflict. Shortly before his address he sent a personal message to Soviet Premier Khrushchev to refrain from any step which would make the situation worse.

The letter, along with an advance copy of his speech, was handed by State Secretary Dean Rusk to Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin at the state department shortly before Kennedy went on the air. A copy of the letter was delivered in Moscow to the U.S. Embassy.

The message opened the way for a Kennedy - Khrushchev meeting on the Cuban crisis, by saying the United States is always ready for peaceful negotiations. But officials said it did not specifically suggest such a meeting. On the diplomatic

NOWLAN TRIMS $175 MILLION FROM DEFICIT

Will Give Budget In Near Future

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Nowlan has trimmed $175,000,000 from the anticipated government deficit for this fiscal year with a new forecast of a $370,000,000 deficit, and has promised "expansive" measures early next year to help balance Canada's international trade books.

His new deficit forecast, made in the Commons Monday night as a revision of the April 10 budget of former finance minister Fleming, would still be the third-largest in peacetime history.

In his first financial accounting since taking the finance portfolio two months ago, Mr. Nowlan said he expects to bring in a full-fledged budget speech for fiscal 1963-64 "in the relatively near future." In advance of his speech said "early in 1963" and informants said that plan still stands.

The trimming of the deficit forecast for the current fiscal year, ending March 31, from the $745,000,000 predicted last April, was less than had been expected.

OUTLAYS ARE HIGHER

Mr. Nowlan's statement showed that a $228,000,000 chop in federal spending announced last Thursday would be largely eaten up by a $115,000,000 rise in other outlays and by a shrinkage in appropriations left unspent at year's end by government departments.

He predicted that government revenues will be $150,000,000 higher than the April forecast, with $130,000,000 of the gain resulting from the 5% import surcharges imposed last June to meet a foreign exchange crisis.

Mr. Nowlan's statement contained the first indication of how long Parliament must wait for his first full budget speech. He said: "I should be forecast made it clear he has a long way to go towards the balanced budget which the Sept. 27 throne speech announced as the government's objective.

Much of the forecast dealt with another kind of deficit—the heavy international balance of payments deficit in goods and services which the nation has been running for more than a decade.

Mr. Nowlan said that while Canada's internal economy enjoys record prosperity, it faces a "stubborn and deep-seated" problem in the international payments deficit that lay at the root of the June foreign exchange emergency.

"It is of utmost importance," he said, to reduce and ultimately eliminate this deficit.

The government's approach would be "essentially not restrictive" and its keynote would be increased efficiency for Canadian industry to meet foreign competition in export markets and at home.

GIVES NO CLUE

But he gave no further clues to the nature of the measures in his next budget.

Instead, his speech re-introduced the budget measures which Mr. Fleming introduced —but which were not passed—last spring. He said there is in-

NATIONWIDE ADDRESS ON BLOCKADE — President Kennedy made a nationwide address last night on television and radio, advising the American people that U.S. is acting on a naval blockade against Cuba. (AP Wirephoto).

Prime Minister Believes Idea Will Win Support

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today the Canadian government has no doubts whatever that Cuba is being turned into a strategic missile base as stated by President Kennedy.

His proposal that a team of non-aligned countries send observers to Cuba was intended to allay doubts there may be in other countries.

If the suggestion is refused by Cuba or the Soviet Union, he told reporters as he entered a cabinet session to discuss the Cuba crisis, "the implication would be direct and definite. If they have nothing to fear (from inspection) they wouldn't fear it and would welcome it."

Mr. Diefenbaker's corridor press conference also produced these statements:

1. Every facet of the Cuban crisis would be discussed as it affects Canada.

2. No decision has been made

PRIME MINISTER Page 5

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker expects his proposal for an on-the-spot inspection of military installations in Cuba by eight neutral nations to be raised in the United Nations Security Council.

Canada is not currently a member of the council, but Mr. Diefenbaker indicated in report ers Monday night that he believes his idea will win support from Security Council members.

If the idea is vetoed in the Security Council, the case will go to a General Assembly meeting where the big five powers do not have the veto.

The Diefenbaker plan, however, was given a chilly reception in Washington. State department officials said the crisis was too urgent to wait for a neutral - nation inspection group to go into action.

Mr. Diefenbaker made the proposal to a hushed House of Russians Address

"Serious Warning" to U.S. Following Blockade Order

MOSCOW (Reuters) — A Soviet Government statement today addressed a "serious warning" to the United States following President Kennedy's announcement of an arms blockade against Cuba.

The statement said the United States bore "heavy responsibility for the fate of the world" and that if an aggressive began war the Soviet union would deal out "a most powerful answering blow."

The statement described as "hypocrisy" U.S. claims that Cuba is a threat to the United States.

It was the first official Soviet reaction to President Kennedy's announcement of the arms blockade.

It described the U.S. action as a "provocative step unheard of in international relations and a challenge to all peace - loving peoples."

It appealed to all governments and peoples to protest against the "aggressive actions of the United States."

The statement said Russia has instructed its representative at the United Nations to raise the matter immediately, convening the security council in order to discuss the "violation of the United Nations Charter and the threat to peace by the United States."

The statement said the Soviet government would "do all in its power to obstruct the aggressive plans" of the "aggressive circles" in the United States.

It was taking measures so that the Soviet Union "will not be caught unawares" and would be able to rebuff an aggressor.

Soviet forces were called to the highest state of combat readiness" last month, according to an earlier Soviet statement on the Cuban situation.

The government statement, the first official Soviet reaction to the president's speech, made no reference to the U.S. charge that Russia is building nuclear missile sites in Cuba. However, it accused "imperialist quarters" in the United States of trying to dictate to Cuba "what weapons she should have for her defence."

'ACT OF WAR' SAYS CUBA OF U.S. BLOCKADE

Military Forces Now Mobilized

HAVANA (AP) — Declaring the U.S. blockade of Cuba is "an act of war," Havana broadcasts said today all Cuban military forces numbering hundreds of thousands have been mobilized.

Premier Fidel Castro will address the nation later in the day and "will make important declarations," one announcement said.

President Kennedy's statement that ballistic missiles are stationed in Cuba was ridiculed by a television commentator, Luis Gomez Manguemert, editor of El Mundo and adviser to the foreign ministry, accused Kennedy of "a whole series of falsehoods about Cuba."

Asserting that the United States appeared to be ignoring Soviet guarantees to defend Cuba, the commentator said that "the blockade measures are not only an act of war, but also a provocation for tragic events."

CALL UP TROOPS

Havana radio said the order for mobilization came from Castro and was put into effect quickly.

"Our combat units rapidly placed themselves on a fighting basis," the broadcast added. "Hundreds of thousands of men were mobilized in the course of a few hours."

"The nation has awakened on a war footing, ready to repulse any attack. Each weapon is in its place and next to each weapon is a heroic defender of the fatherland. The entire government is ready to die beside the people. .

"Over the length and width of the island, with more fervor than ever, sounds the thunderous roar of millions of voices in the already historic cry of 'Fatherland or death. We will conquer.!' "

Mr. Pearson and Social Credit Leader Thompson said Canada should join in Cuban talks by the Organization of American States.

KILLED BY CAR

TORONTO (CP) — Ronald Clark, 24, of suburban Scarborough was killed Monday when struck by a car as he crossed Highway 401.

First Contact Could Arrive Early Tonight

"Hail, Stop, Search If Necessary, Sink"

WASHINGTON (CP)—A mighty U.S. fleet fanned across the Atlantic today prepared to intercept a large number of Russian cargo ships possibly carrying missiles to Cuba.

The first contact could come by nightfall—and with it the first test of President Kennedy's newly-proclaimed arms blockade of Cuba.

Large numbers of Soviet ships were reported moving in the direction of Cuba, but not in convoy. U.S. navy vessels sailed Monday from the Puerto Rico area and east coast ports.

Their orders: Hail, stop, search and, if necessary, sink vessels which try to avoid inspection.

Ships of any nation—Communist and non-Communist alike—will be stopped by U.S. Navy ships if they are bound for Cuba.

A defence department spokesman made it quite clear that force will be used—regardless of the nationality of a ship—if it refuses to halt or follow any order to change course away from Cuba. That could mean ships of allied nations.

While mounting this blockade to keep offensive weapons such as missiles and bombers out of Cuba, the United States looked to its guarantee—just in case the communists should try some counter-move.

SAC IS READY

The nuclear-jet bombers of the Strategic Air Command and the 144 combat-ready intercontinental ballistic missiles are ready.

U.S. ground, sea and air forces around the globe—including those in Berlin and West Germany were also ordered to be especially vigilant.

The air force sent more jet interceptor planes into better positions to defend the U.S. east coast. At Patrick Air Force Base, near Cape Canaveral, Fla., a force of 36 jets concentrated — 1,600 - mile-an-hour F-106s and 1,400-mile-an-hour F-104s.

There was no overt threat to the U.S. naval base on Guantanamo Bay in eastern Cuba. But the United States put the base in fighting trim by shipping home some 2,200 navy wives and children and reinforcing the 3,300-man garrison of navy men and marines with 2,500 more marines.

THREATEN U.S. CITIES

The defence spokesman, appearing before a hastily packed briefing, made it plain that the drastic U.S. blockade action was triggered by confirmation that 1,200 - mile - range mobile ballistic missiles were in place and actually threatening U.S. cities.

Another factor entering into the arms blockade decision was the appearance of Russian-

TOMMY DOUGLAS ELECTED OVER FOUR OPPONENTS

Wins BC Seat In Easy Fashion

VANCOUVER (CP) — T. C. Douglas has been returned to a place in the House of Commons. He last sat there 18 years ago.

The national leader of the New Democratic Party, defeated in the home province of Saskatchewan in the June 18 general election, was elected handily in a by-election Monday in a federal byelection created for him in nearby Burnaby-Coquitlam.

His adopted supporters cheered him from the time he arrived at party headquarters an hour after the polls closed until late night when a victory dance ended.

The Canadian Press reported Mr. Douglas' election 49 minutes after the polls closed.

Final figures gave him 16,179 of 32,201 votes cast, slightly more than 50 per cent of the total and more than twice as many as Liberal Warren Clark, who ran second.

Mr. Clark received 8,085 votes, Social Crediter Rene Gamache 5,238, Conservative Eric Greenwood 2,574 and Independent George Burnham 145.

LOSE DEPOSITS

All the NDP's opponents will lose their $200 deposits, as they did in the riding in June. To retain his deposit, a candidate must obtain half the number of votes received by the winner.

The byelection resulted when Erhart Regier, who had represented the riding for the CCF and NDP since 1953, resigned to

Canadian Scientist Rocks World Of Chemistry With New Discovery

OTTAWA (CP) — A 30-year-old Canadian has rocked the world of chemistry by disproving a scientific theory that has been accepted since the turn of the century.

Dr. Neil Bartlett, an assistant professor in the chemistry department of the University of British Columbia, has discovered that not all the rare so-called inert-gases in the atmosphere are inert.

He has found that the gas xenon can be combined with another gas to form a stable compound — a new chemical substance which scientists have said could not exist. As a result of this discovery, it will be necessary to rewrite some of the high school chemistry textbooks stating that rare gases will not react chemically.

A yellow compound produced by Dr. Bartlett by combining xenon with platinum hexafluoride vapor has no immediate practical value. However, the discovery opens a broad new area of research into the binding together of various chemicals to form stable compounds.

Dr. Bartlett produced the compound while doing research at UBC under a National Research Council grant. His work inspired a major research project at the Argonne National Laboratory, Argonne, Ill., where scientists have gone a step farther, producing a compound by combining xenon with fluorine.

A native of England, Dr. Bartlett joined the UBC chemistry faculty in 1958 after graduating from the University of Durham, England. He worked as a vacation consultant with the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Establishment at Harwell, Eng.

One of the first things taught a high school chemistry student is that the rare gases in the atmosphere are inert. He was told that the most characteristic chemical property of helium, neon, argon, krypton, xenon and radon, a radioactive gas, is a total absence of chemical reaction.

NRC scientists said this has been accepted as fact ever since the rare gases were discovered. As a result scientists never bothered to do any research work in recent years to disprove the theory until Dr. Bartlett became curious.

AIRPORTS CLOSED TO RED PLANES BOUND FOR CUBA

Canada Acts Fast In Current Crisis

OTTAWA (CP) — A toughening of Canadian policy on Cuba is up for discussion at a meeting of the federal cabinet today.

External Affairs Minister Green disclosed Monday night that one step in that direction has already been taken—closing of Canadian airports to Russian planes bound for the Caribbean nation.

The cabinet meeting had been set earlier in the week to deal with other matters but a cabinet minister told The Canadian Press that Cuba became the "Grade A number one topic" after President Kennedy's report Monday night on Castro's missile buildup.

Government sources predicted that there will be a complete review of Canada's position on the Cuban question. Official Ottawa had been shocked by the Kennedy report.

They considered it unlikely that Ottawa would alter its diplomatic and commercial ties with the island but there might be a diplomatic move to express

J and J Cash Plant in City 39 Years Moving to Montreal

The local firm of J. and J. Cash (Canada) Ltd., in Belleville since 1923, will close operations there and move to Montreal.

This was confirmed today by E. H. Hall, vice-president and general manager, who said the move was contemplated for purely economic reasons.

He said the company had the floor space available at its Montreal location and that experienced male weavers were more readily available allowing plant operation on a two or three shift basis.

No date for closing out of the Belleville plant was given although Mr. Hall said original plans called for the move to be made next spring.

The company has a present payroll of just under 60 persons. During peak periods it has in the past employed up to 70 persons.

Mr. Hall said he was unable to say how many of the present staff would move to the company's Montreal although the company was giving workers this opportunity.

Fine-O-Meter Boxes Before Christmas

Belleville will get its fine-o-meter boxes for the downtown area before the start of the Christmas shopping season.

This was assured yesterday when council voted legislation of the enabling legislation authorizing purchase and installation of the boxes.

Alderman Jack Ireland as chairman of the traffic committee said the boxes would cost about $400.

The idea is to place the boxes about the middle of each block in the downtown area.

When the fine-o-meter boxes are in operation motorists receiving tickets for overtime parking will no longer have to go to the city hall to pay their fine.

All that will be required will be for the motorist to place 50 cents in an envelope and drop it into one of the boxes.

The city parking authority will be requested to collect the fine money from the boxes.

'Club 39' Has Been Formed, Meets Weekly

Belleville and district residents of both sexes, who are too old for Adult unofficial, too young for the Senior Citizens' Club, and impaired for routine social activities because unqualified, are going to get a chance to bowl and socialize weekly middle-aged fashion. A "Club 39" has been formed here and its first social evening will be held at the Recreation Centre this coming Saturday evening.

The club is open to all district resident between the ages of 39 and 50 who are widowed, divorced, separated or single. The name "Club 39", appears to have originated with Jack Benny's perennial choice of a birthday, while the idea for the club has been copied from neighboring city of Kingston. Their unattached peronsons have parlayed a gabfest in a recreation room last January into a weekly dinner at a hotel, complete with orchestra and dance. A $500 club bank account, a 300-strong mailing list, a weekly turnout of a hundred, and a full-time feature stories in periodicals.

The first meeting of the Belleville club will be held in the Recreation Centre, it is planned to have a short business period for future meetings for a good reason as the Recreation Committee already has such a busy program going that no time is available for the new club. Already — however, the club is in full debt to the Recreation Committee, as the club director, Lloyd Dorrn, has funded the club in aiding the sponsors to make preparations for the inaugural meeting.

While invitations have been mailed out to a long list of eligible people, these invitations are not necessary for attendance at this opening meeting. All unattached persons will be welcome.

Underwriters Hear Talk On Aspects

Mr. J. E. Manning, C.L.U., a director of the national executive council, Life Underwriters, addressed a meeting last Friday on the national aspects of the association and compared it with the conditions existing in other countries who envy the well-organized control system of full-time Life Underwriters operating here.

He quoted examples of the ethics committee and how they worked with the companies and the government departments to ensure the code of ethics laid down by the association were in fact carried out, thus ensuring that the public interest is well served.

Mr. Manning made presentation of the C.L.U. Charter to Jack Peoples and James A. Barnett.

Educational activities of the branch will commence on Wednesday morning, Oct. 24th, at the YMCA. This year a number of local agents will be studying throughout the winter months, the subject being the second year of the Life Underwriters Association training course. This four-year course is a preliminary to taking a three-year course leading to the degree of C.L.U. (Chartered Life Underwriter).

Ald. Lowen Reports on CD Course

A request for appointment of a special committee from the city to work with the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization was made to council yesterday by Ald. William Lowen.

Alderman Lowen reported on the recent civil defence orientation course held at Annprior, which he attended as city representative.

He noted that civil defence officials were striving to overcome the apathy of the general public toward the emergency measures program but noted that until the municipal leaders show interest, little enthusiasm can be expected from the public.

Ald. Lowen complimented Lt.-Col. Angus Duffy who as coordinator for the Quinte district had accomplished a great deal of work.

Deputy Mayor Ben Corke assured that the requested appointment of members to the Quinte Organization would be looked after.

Laneway South Of Armouries To Be Closed

The long used laneway at the south of the Belleville Armouries is going to be closed by the Department of National Defence.

Yesterday council voted to advise the department that it would have no objection to closing of the laneway.

One councillor said the laneway was still being used by pedestrians, but the consensus was that most of the people who formerly used the lane as a shortcut were now using the supermarket parking lot a short distance further south.

Pleads Guilty To Charges of Wilful Damage

Three Belleville men were charged jointly in city magistrate's court here this morning with wilfully damaging property, not exceeding $50.

The three are Charles Keegan, George Stoliker and Bernard Ryan, represented by Tom Lally, pleaded guilty to the charge.

Evidence was that the three men had entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Ashman at 307 Station Street. Mrs. Ashman was on the telephone when the three entered and she reported receiving a minor injury to her arm as the result of a scuffle which took place.

During the course of their visit to the Ashman home, Inspector McLauchlan told the court that a can of paint and a can of varnish had been spilled intentionally over the floor of the Ashman residence.

The three were each fined $25 and court costs. The inspector pointed out that these men were known to the Ashman family and had apologized as requested by Mrs. Ashman earlier to come to their home.

Front Street Property Will Soon Be Razed

The old Dog Hair property on the west side of Front Street north of Victoria Road will soon be razed to make way for an off-street parking lot.

Council will also be awarded the demolition contract for the razing of the building to Percy Hodge at a price of $500. The demolition is to be completed in six weeks time.

The Hodge tender of $3,500 was the lowest of four tenders submitted for the razing of the buildings.

Council has expropriated the property to make way for an entrance to off-street parking along the river bank on the west side of Front Street.

Council will also expropriate parts of two properties on the west side of North Front Street to allow for the construction of the proposed four-lane bridge over the CNR double tracks at that point.

Boards Asked To Take Second Look at Costs

The Canadian National Railways and the Board of Transport will be asked to take a second look on the cost estimate for the installation of new short-arm gates at the East Moira Street and Geddes Street crossings over the CNR double track.

Cost of the two installations recommended by the CNR is estimated at $70,000 of which the city would be called upon to pay about 15 per cent or $10,-500.

Alderman Jack Ireland said the modern type short arm gates were necessary because of the double track crossing.

Council decided to take no action on the installation of flasher signals at the Newberry Street crossing.

Potential Cuba Threat Could Reach Canadian Districts

WASHINGTON (CP)—The potential Cuban threat to Canada hit home as the U.S. intelligence officer displayed a map on the big screen.

It showed the 2,200-mile unclear missiles reported under development in Cuba could reach and devastate almost every Canadian community east of Regina.

The speed with which Soviet-Cuban forces were erecting medium-range and intermediate-range missile bases was depicted in photographs made by high-flying U.S. reconnaissance planes. These aerial photos were to be shown today to ambassadors of the organization of American states as the United States seeks approval of the naval blockade to prevent the further flow of offensive weapons to the Caribbean island.

The photographs showed a site that one day had indicated no evidence of activity—other than normal civilian survey work—and the next day bristled with medium-range missiles capable of lobbing a nuclear warhead into Washington.

The intelligence officer told a press conference Monday night that so far no evidence—aerial spying have shown no evidence of the nuclear warheads themselves. But the warheads are so small, he said, they could be easily concealed. They might still be on the way from Russia. The United States is not certain.

Ever since last July, when a stream of refugees told of seeing missiles under construction in Cuba, U.S. planes and agents had been attempting to find proof of these fragmentary stories and reports.

The United States Monday night was helping the Cubans to build ground-to-air missile sites with a range of 25 miles. The Americans found 24 of these sites, each with a launching pad. Of these, 22 were considered operational.

Also in Cuba they located three coastal missile sites—two operational—with a range of 40 miles. Evidence was found of 100 MiG jet fighters, 39 of the latest model-21 type. There also were 12 submarines, 10 of which were capable of launching missiles with a range of 15 miles.

The base was only early this month that the Americans found the Russians had unloaded 10 crates of IL-28 jet bombers, capable of carrying nuclear bombs a distance of 750 miles.

And apparently, it was only last Tuesday, the officer claimed, "hard, material evidence" was obtained that Cuba now has missile bases capable of firing nuclear bombs into the heart of the western hemisphere.

The medium-range sites, holding missiles that could be fired within 24 hours, were "fully integrated, mobile sites." The missiles could be transported quickly from one area to another.

The 2,200-mile missiles were not fired. They could not be moved. One of the aerial photographs showed what the officer described as a concrete bunker, an earth-covered storage site for nuclear warheads. Each of these can be had four launching pads.

Prescription Costs Lower In Canada

The average cost of a prescription in Canada was $3.16 as compared to an average cost of $3.25 in the United States, according to the latest survey undertaken by the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association, Cleo B. Colling, president of the Belleville Pharmacists' Association, told local Rotarians yesterday afternoon at their weekly dinner meeting at the Hotel Quinte.

The speaker pointed out that although the basic ingredients in a drug prescription might be cheap, often a complicated method of compounding them was necessary. This has been due to the increasing complex structure of certain new drugs which are far superior to any even dreamed of a few decades ago, the speaker advised.

Just before the Second World War there were no antibiotics to cure pneumonia, no steroid medicine to relieve the crippling effects of arthritis, no real anti-diabetic drugs and tranquillizers, the speaker said. These new drugs are mostly compounded by the pharmaceutical manufacturers and only about 10 per cent of the prescriptions called for are actually compounded in the "apothecary of the local pharmacist, Mr. Colling stated.

This did not make his job any easier for many of these prepared drugs are closely similar in name both in purpose and a pharmacist has to double check everything to be sure that a prescription is properly filled from the thousands of drugs available, Rotarians were told.

The speaker said that in dollar value, the prescriptions Canadians spend five times as much on tobacco, four times as much on radio and television sets, eight times as much on automobile operation and they even spend 14 times as much as they spent on prescribed drugs.

With over 42 million prescriptions filled in Canada last year the average price of $3.16 paid by Canadians assured them of the finest quality of medication available, said Mr. Colling. They were also assured that medication would be there when they needed it, that continuing research would be carried on to produce even better medication and that the services of a pharmacist would be available at any hour of the day or night, the speaker concluded.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Court Miller and thanked by past president Harold Mott.

The Rotarians and Dale Sullivan, prime minister of the Quinte Secondary School's student parliament, as their special guest for the meeting. He outlined the purposes and activities of the student parliament.

The meeting was conducted by President Dr. Harry Burns.

China Charges Aggression But Offers to Negotiate

NEW DELHI (AP)—Communist China charged today that Indian troops crossed the McMahon line frontier and declared that Chinese forces, acting in "self-defence" no longer will respect the 48-year-old Himalayan boundary line.
